Downpour of Rain Increases Damage In Stricken City

Sarnia Officials Estimate Storm Cost at $15 Million

SARNIA (CP)—Millions of dollars damage from Thursday's tornado was increased here today by a steady downpour of rain which soaked roofless furniture and drenched into windowless homes.

Hundreds of volunteers worked throughout the morning spreading tarpaulins and tacking up tarpaper temporarily.

Civic officials today estimated total damage from the tornado at $15,000,000, but said this will go higher."

Mayor L. Duncan of Toronto, Ontario director of the Canadian Disaster Relief Fund, has recommended that fund officials consider aiding Sarnia with part of the $1,-250,000 left over from contributions to the Winnipeg flood relief collections.

Since the bill forming the Canadian Disaster Relief Fund has yet to be proclaimed, it is up to officials of the flood fund at Winnipeg to decide on the course of action.

Sarnia's industries will continue operations with those in downtown area today and Tuesday to help clear the rubble, City workers will be given the day off Wednesday.

In the downtown area, hardest hit by the whirling funnel of wind which slashed through this comical city of 42,000 Thursday evening, reconstruction and debris removal resconstruction work Sunday resembled a battlefield with hundreds of residents watched from nearby rooftops.

City manager E. Royden Coulter said that, from now on, it is probable the cost per square foot estimate will be changed for the first time since the storm made more than 300 persons homeless and caused damage estimated by Mr. Coulter at $15,000,000.

He said that, rather than continuing to rope off the outside of the shattered downtown business district, workers will open up the barricades around individual buildings. Those structures which have been put out as safe by engineers will be opened so that business can resume.

Arrangements are progressing to make temporary homes available to displaced citizens.

Police announced that Mrs. Jack Stanley reported that a box of jewelry valued at $100 disappeared from her apartment. Lee Taylor reported two days ago that a parking worth $2,000 missing from the Mayfair Furniture Store.

At the city limits, police turned back a number of husbands on Sunday sightseers from London, Despite an appeal by Sarnia council for visitors to stay out of the stricken city, hundreds of automobiles filled with the curious and sought in vain to enter Sarnia.

Mayor Allan Brush of London said he will call a meeting of southwestern Ontario officials to organize a relief committee for the storm-swept counties of Middlesex, Lambton and Perth.

Civil Defence Week Will Be Big Exercise

OTTAWA (CP) — International civil defence week, designed to train civilian personnel on both sides of the border and to dramatize need for mutual cooperation, said, starts June 1, the health department announced today.

"Operation Niagara—1953" will be one of the biggest exercises staged on the continent. Hub of activities will be the St. Catharines-Niagara Falls, N. Y. area as Canada goes to the "aid" of the neighboring U. S. city.

Climax of the week will be June 5 when approximately 100 fire and rescue trucks, police cars, ambulances and other emergency vehicles manned by 600 Canadian civil defence workers cross the international border.

Attending will be Health Minister Martin, federal minister in charge of civil defence, and Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator. The operation will be under direction of civil defence director Bradley Norton of Niagara Falls, N. Y., with the Canadian contingent headed by Brig. H. G. Whitelaw of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., civil defence co-ordinator for Lincoln and Welland.

Arrangements for Ontario civil defence participation will be under Jr3-Col. Jack Adams, the province's civil defence training officer. Lt.-Col. C. Lei Smith, chief training officer, civil defence division of the health and welfare department, will handle the federal contribution.

Canadian and U. S. aircraft are also to participate. Rendezvous for the Canadian group will be St. Catharines.

Cream Puff Likes Service

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cream Puff the blackbird wasn't her worms served cut up and on a plate. Otherwise she flies into a tizzy.

"I'm afraid civilization has throttled her instincts," said Mrs. Sarah Sloan today. "The poor bird would starve if I didn't cut up her worms and serve them on a plate."

Connie Sloan, 9, rescued Cream Puff after the bird fell from a nest. Now six weeks old, the blackbird takes a daily shower bath under a lawn sprinkler and dries herself in the heat vent of the Sloan's refrigerator.

The Sloans tried releasing her to return to the wilds, but she returned at feeding time. Now she ventures on daily flights but returns when Mrs. Sloan rattles a spoon in a dish.

Storm Spreads Raging Floods Over Scotland

Thousands Marooned On Trains, Steamers

FORT WILLIAM, Scotland (AP) —A thunderstorm spread raging floods over west and central Scotland today.

Thousands of Whitsun holidaymakers were marooned in trains, buses and steamers as mountain lochs overflowed and sent waters rushing across roads and rail lines.

Hundreds of tons of rocks and road materials were swept into the streets of this west Scotland harbor after two inches of rain in 24 hours turned mountain roads into torrents.

Lightning cut off electricity in a large west coast area.

Air ministry officials in London said the storms covered all the west coast of Scotland and parts of northern England. They are likely to reach London and eastern England later, officials said.

Landslides blocked roads and cut phone wires around Lochaber, Inverness-shire.

Greenock and the upper Firth of Clyde had its worst storm for more than 25 years. Holiday-makers from Glasgow and industrial towns in Ayrshire, driven to shelter by heavy continuous rain and the lightning.

The storm later struck north Wales, clearing crowded beaches and sending holiday crowds home. Lights had to be switched on.

Rescue workers were pressed race for shelter when the downpour hit the seaside resort of Blackpool, Lancashire early today.

New Flareups Of Anthrax Are Expected

CHICAGO (AP) —The American Veterinary Medical Association warned today Texas is danger of new flareups of anthrax in areas where the disease took a heavy livestock toll in 1952.

The association said a new outbreak in Cherokee county, Kansas, one of the hardest hit sections last summer.

The association said the Kansas outbreak is believed to have been caused by anthrax spores which were blown from the Texas area in the 1952 epidemic.

"One of the chief difficulties in controlling anthrax is that the spores can be dormant in the soil for years, police case new outbreaks," a spokesman said.

Marine Lieut. In Bad Way At Big Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marine Lieut. Frederick Vaughner was charged with drunkenness and disgraceful conduct at a dance and dinner party at which he dashed naked through the dining room, swung leaping a dance at the Statler Hotel here early Sunday morning.

Before he got mixed up with the lobby crowd, police said, he trotted up a tree to the second floor, jumped through a window, hopped naked into a private party friends were holding in the hotel. But they were mistaken for the apartment of Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, USN, retired.

The admiral was out but a house guest, Commander Thomas D. Morris, Land, was in hot pursuit as Gallagher sped across the front of the hotel into the lobby where he was cornered and provided with a towel.

What Princess Margaret and Duke Do 'Own Business' Says Clergyman

PLYMOUTH, Eng. (CP) — The Church of England clergyman has dismissed recent criticisms of the Duke of Edinburgh's passion for playing and Princess Margaret's public smoking.

Rev. Anthony Rouse said in a sermon delivered at this naval base's garrison church Sunday that "this narrow attitude is not that of the Church of England."

Rouse singled out the recent criticism of Princess Margaret's smoking by Dr. Geoffrey Gorer, an Dutch Reformed Church. What they do is "her own business," he said.

Commission Says Law Broken By Soap Company Officials

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's new anti-combines commission has reported that the Montreal branch of Procter and Gamble Co. of Canada Ltd. twice allegedly broke the law on resale price maintenance.

Under that trade practice, banned by Parliament in 1951, a supplier would order a wholesale or retailer to sell goods at a fixed price, sometimes threatening to cut off supplies if that order was not obeyed.

The three-man Restrictive Trade Practices Commission, in a 35-page report to Justice Minister Garson, said Montreal regional officers of the big soap company for a time cut off supplies to the Dowlers' Grocery in maintain certain prices, but the name of the threatened wholesaler is not disclosed.

Mr. Garson said he will make his announcement on the question of possible prosecution after all the facts have been studied by legal authorities.

Two Facts Emphasized

The commission, headed by C. Rhodes Smith, former attorney-general of Manitoba, emphasized two pertinent facts:

1. Its attempts to enforce resale price maintenance was done under the Ontario Fair Trade Practices, Montreal district sales manager, without the knowledge of head office. Such action, it said, "cannot but be considered as the result of the situation. It took action to make sure the attempt was not repeated.

2. The Goodrowan, whose territory took in all of upper Quebec and the Maritimes including Newfoundland, "appeared to have had no sales maintenance practice to protect a purchasing dealer from a situation in independent retailers could buy the company's products at prices almost as low as those offered to the dealer."

But the new commission, set up by the Garson law, has no power of any violation of the law—no matter for what reason.

"However, we feel sincere may have been the motives which directed Mr. Goodrowan's attitude and action, we do not think that they may be regarded as a justification for contravening the prohibitions enacted by Parliament."

If Manufacturers were allowed "to formulate their own private exceptions to the general law in order to determine what acts of theirs might claim to be worthy purposes in so many exceptions to the basic principles of the legislation might well result in its main and essential object would be completely defeated."

Company Responsible

The commission also emphasized that a company must be held responsible for acts and things done by its officials and agents in the course of their employment and within the scope of their authority."

This was the first case of a contravention of the 1951 ban which had raised a storm of protest by national industrial organizations.

Evidence before the commission was that Procter and Gamble had three methods of selling its soap to the retail trade: (1) Carload lots, under the "pool car" system, and (2) less than carload lots.

Prices for carload lots were the lowest, but many small retailers could not buy whole carloads at a time. So the company started the "pool car" system under which orders from a number of neighboring retailers were pooled to cover a carload. The goods were shipped through a wholesaler at a price which included the cost of the whole carload prices and thus gave them a chance to compete with the chain stores.

Supplies Cut Off

However, the Dealers' Supply Co. of Cornwall, supplied by Procter and Gamble, refused this price-cutting might injure the pool car system. Retailers might not subscribe to the pool if they could obtain the product from the jobber at a price almost as cheap as the pool car.

On orders from Mr. Goodrowan, F. H. Hutchinson, Montreal district salesman in the Greater Montreal territory, requested the Granby company to obey the price maintenance order. When the jobber refused supplies were cut off for about four months until the jobber agreed to comply with the order.

Rampaging Louisiana Rivers Converge on State Coastline

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP)—Three flooding rivers aimed their muddy crests at the southwest Louisiana coastline today threatening a town of 2,000 and oil-fields 40 miles south of here.

The city of 20,000 was still choked with floodwaters of the record-breaking Calcasieu River that left 15,000 homeless and $15,000,000 damage here. Health officials were vaccinating for typhoid, but no cases were reported.

While Lake Charles and its submerged air force base got ready to mop up, the Sabine River, to the east, braced for a water assault at the mouth of the Calcasieu.

The U. S. weather bureau here predicted water at three feet in Cameron's streets within 48 hours.

Within a radius of 10 miles of Cameron are some 25 oil wells, each producing 100 to 200 barrels a day.

Cameron, once a coastal entrance for Louisiana pirate Jean Lafitte, is the parish seat. The community atop a coastline ridge isolated behind miles of marshland.

Its only road, four feet above the marsh, leads east to neighboring Creole and then north to Lake Charles.

For 90 miles along the coastline, the marshes are filling up with high water from three rivers, including the Calcasieu.

About 15 miles east of the Calcasieu River, the Mermentau River is spilling into the gulf and flowing out of its bed into the marshes.

VOTE FOR UAW

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Office employees of L. A. Young Industries, Ltd., voted in favor of the United Automobile Workers, (CCL-CIO), as their bargaining agent, it was announced during the week-end. Results of the vote, by secret ballot, UAW representative, said the workers would become a unit of local 240.

South Koreans Repulse Bitter 3-Hour Attack

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean infantry fought off a bitter three-hour attack early today by almost 200 Chinese who pushed to the crest of an Allied outpost on the eastern front.

Standing off the raiders with hand grenades and close range rifle and machine-gun fire, the South Koreans reported killing or wounding more than 100 Reds before southeast of Outpost Texas.

Other Allied troopers cut down 30 Communists in counterattacks.

A U. S. 8th army spokesman said the Red line is manned by 263,000 troops.

He said intelligence reports showed there are slightly more than 1,000,000 Red troops spread over North Korea with seven Chinese armies (about 29,000 fighting troops each) and two North Korean corps (about 20,000 each) on the battle line.

Also in the U. S. battleship New Jersey steamed far up the Yellow Sea on Korea's west coast and blasted flocks of coastal Communist the river approaches to the key port of Chinnampo, destroyed the heavy cruiser Newcastle and carrier Bataan, and U. S. destroyer Chauncey also took part.

This was the New Jersey's first shelling mission since last October to November, 1951. British naval units normally man this side of the peninsula.

GAMING HOUSE RAID

BRANTFORD (CP)—In a gambling house raid early Sunday police seized money, playing cards and 15 pints of beer. Robert Williams, 39, was arrested on charges of keeping a common gaming house and Joseph Lee, 39, on a charge of theft. Raiding police also intercepted a picnic at Glen Echo Park in which seven persons were arrested and across a quantity of beer.

KOREAN TALKS HELD IN SECRECY: NEW PLAN HINTED

Recess Until June 1 After Long Session

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Korean truce talks resumed today under tight secrecy and then recessed until June 1 apparently because top-level decision on the critical prisoner exchange issue is needed.

Presumably the United Nations command presented a new proposal at the outset of today's session, which ended an eight-day, Allied-requested recess.

UN interpreters could be seen through the windows of the crude conference tent apparently reading long statements.

Washington sources had said a fundamentally new approach would be offered on the last major barrier to an armistice—what to do about 96,000 Communist prisoners refusing to return to Red rule.

World Reaction

There was no inkling as to whether such a plan had been offered but—if so—the Communist delegation probably would have asked a long recess to study the matter to higher authority.

A communique issued after talks, talking to members of their delegation, said the Allies had requested the June 1 recess. Peiping radio said similar blackout was imposed in April, 1952, but no effort to live on deliberations on the prisoner exchange issue.

The Red newspaper men published disapproval of the secret session. The Red Star, first to be formed by the Red delegation at this conference's meeting. The Red correspondents did not return to Panmunjom from Kaesong for the afternoon session today. The delegates met a total of about two hours, with two recesses.

One Not Present

The absence of Korea delegate on the UN armistice team, Maj.-Gen. Choi Dok Sun, was not present at the meeting, was noted at the explanation of his absence.

Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied delegate, did not hold his usual press conference after the meeting. He turned aside all questions with "no comment."

There was speculation before the meeting that the UN command would make a "now or never" effort for the Red to accept Chinese.

The vital issue of what to do with prisoners refusing to return to their Red homelands remained the biggest problem.

Plane Completes Long Polar Flight

The DC-6B left Copenhagen and 11 crew members, the DC-6B touched down at 11 p. m. after a 13-hour flight from Shemya Island at the end of the Aleutians.

The plane was in the air 37 hours on its flight from Oslo, Norway. It left Oslo at 12 noon Saturday and stopped in Anchorage, Alaska, overnight.

The polar route covered 6,683 miles, about 3,000 less than conventional routes.

Lark Wins Back Title as Earliest Early Bird Recent Survey Shows

GLANTON, Eng. (Reuters) — After sleeping in for three years, the lark has won back the title as the earliest early bird.

Naturalists in Britain and around the world proved that Sunday. They got up before the lark just to make sure it was awake before it does rise and sing.

The survey was organized by Noble Rollin, head of the World Federation of Ornithologists, in Sunderland, town in the north of England.

Previous three surveys showed that the lark, instead of being the earliest riser in the bird world, had become a sluggard. The cuckoo, wood pigeon and the pheasant had all sung their dawn chorus before it.

But Sunday the lark must have heard the rumor going around that it had overslept and began to sing the British tales, at least, it and its kinfolk were up at the first glow of dawn.

The earliest lark in Britain sounded off at 3 a. m.

The champion early bird was Alfred Northampton, England, who at 3:02 a. m. sharp suddenly dropped my notebook in amazement."

Rollin himself noted the order in which birds greeted the day Thrushes, like linnets, lark, 3:11 a. m.; redstart, 3:30; song thrush, 3:44; blackbird, 3:45; robin, 3:49; goldcrest, 4:13; willow warbler, 4:29.

Reports from listening outposts scattered as far away as Canada's Prince Edward Island will take weeks to come in.

"But phone calls I've received so far confirm that the lark has again come into its own," said Rollin. "There is no doubt this time about it being the earliest bird."

The watchers discovered that the earliest bird is the sparrow, who gets up when it feels like it."

New Atomic Gun Fires First Shell, Brilliant Flash

Cloud Rose Swiftly, Seemed To be Travelling Fast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The first atomic shell fired by the United States swished across desert proving grounds here today to burst with a brilliant flash over a simulated enemy target.

The shot was fired from "Atomic Annie" the army's 280-millimetre atomic cannon.

Five minutes later an atomic cloud boiled into view. Its mushroom-gambling town 75 miles away. It developed a large S form and appeared to have an ice cap.

The cloud rose swiftly and seemed to be travelling fast. It did not have the true mushroom shape familiar in previous nuclear tests.

A crew of nine men loaded the atomic gun, then retired to a safe distance for the firing, by remote control from the control point 10 miles away.

The shell was fused to explode 500 feet above a target area seven to eight miles northeast of the gun, which can fire both conventional and atomic shells.

The large gun represented a typical enemy back-of-the-lines installation. It was the first shot which survived the May 7 atomic blast, stood a 45-ton diesel locomotive, 155-millimetre howitzer guns and several types of military housing, from barracks to officers' tents. Various types of army clothing also were subjected, as were rabbits, mice and other pets.

Many Leaders on Hand

Many of the leaders on hand for the test were Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff. Nearly 100 congressmen including Representative W. Sterling Cole (Rep. N. Y.), chairman of the joint atomic energy committee were assigned positions several miles behind the trenches where 2,525 troops and 375 military observers had comparative safety.

The troops were 5,000 yards from ground zero, or twice as far as the nearest armored forces volunteers have ventured to in other burst. The troops were to attack as soon as radiation faded.

Another 280-millimetre gun was stationed several miles away, ready in case of emergency.

The gun crew, headed by Col. Devere Shepherd, was all set to flee to trenches "at a safe distance" after loading the gun.

Both guns were tested during the first week in 11 rounds of firing with conventional ammunition.

Injured by Boat On Parking Lot

BRISTOL, Pa. (AP)—Somebody pulled "Wade's out" on Mrs. Ethel Straffe, 20, turned around Sunday to see a motor-boat bearing down on him.

Straffe—who was standing in the middle of a parking lot—made a jump out of the way, but the motor boat pinned him against a car.

After treatment at hospital the bewildered youth was told the circumstances behind the accident.

The boat was on a trailer pulled by a truck. The trailer broke away and crashed into a car, jarring loose the boat which skidded off the carrier towards straffe.

Fourteen Violent Deaths Reported In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Violent accidents accounted for three of the six drownings reported in Eastern Canada during the week-end.

Also listed in a Canadian Press compilation of 14 week-end fatalities today were four deaths in traffic mishaps and four from miscellaneous causes.

Ernest Bedard, of Hurkett, was found drowned near a log jam in the Nipissing Arthur district. Also in Northwestern Ontario, a victim identified was drowned at Lake Nipigon when a boat capsized.

Catherine Doak, 65-year-old diabetic, collapsed in her bathtub in Toronto and was drowned.

GLASGOW (AP) — A Scottish Daily Mail reporter was killed Sunday while covering a Royal Marine landing exercise on the island of Benbecula in the Outer Hebrides. The other reporter was hurt. Norman Wilson, 34, died when a machine-gun bullet severed an artery. A 11,000-volt electric cable which hit him.

STRANGE INTERLOPER

Man Arrested For Assault Of Brother, Sister

Said to have been beaten about the head by some object, Miss Thelma Hill, 23, and her brother, Noble Hill, 26, of the Mohawk Indian Reservation near Deseronto, were admitted to the Belleville General Hospital Saturday night.

Provincial police have arrested Johnston T. Hilliard, 44, Front Street, Belleville, on charges of assaulting the brother and sister, occasioning actual bodily harm. Hilliard appeared before Justice of the Peace, Mrs. K. Cooper and has been remanded until Thursday.

The assault is alleged to have taken place Saturday night on the reservation. Following the assault Miss Hill was able to make her way to the home of the reservation constable with result that provincial police were called. The two injured persons were given first aid by Mrs. May Campbell, Deseronto nurse for the reservation, and were taken to Belleville hospital in White's ambulance.

Miss Hill has been released from hospital while Noble Hill, a private with the RCA at Picton, is expected to be released today.

Provincial Constables McLeod and Fullerton made the investigation assisted by Constable Harry Barker.

Checks on Cars By Police Officers Show Defects

Routine checks by city traffic officers are finding more than the normal number of cars whose mechanical equipment fails to meet with the requirements laid down by the Highway Traffic Act.

Checks by officers over the week-end turned up nearly half a dozen which definitely had no emergency brake or failing to have the required number of lights.

Chief of Police Walter Probert said it was interesting to note that so many mechanically deficient autos were checked over the week-end. No special campaign for checking vehicles has been started, according to the chief.

Cubs Complete Swim Exercises At 'Y' Pool

Belleville and Avondale Cubs have completed a period of swimming exercises at the Y.M.C.A.

The importance of this can best be judged by our fine showing. Bill Cole attended at least fifty actually learned to swim and received the essential badges denoting they passed their tests.

"These results are very gratifying to the local association who sponsored the scheme and will prove a source of satisfaction to the instructors who gave their time to make it a success. Perfect discipline was maintained under the leadership of assistant Scoutmaster A. F. Gonin, assisted by Cubmaster Bill Lowet, who are particularly good as leaders of boys.

"Queen's Scout Phil Stewart deserves special mention for his faithful attendance and ability to teach. With Glen, his brother, a popular and instructive team resulted. Failures and alertness would best describe them. Cubmaster Scott Gatland, George Hozang, Bob Owen, Cubbers Jim Hubbard and assistant Cubmaster Jim Hultmist also gave valuable assistance. A repeat performance for the veterans" attention attended each week. To all of these people and many others who helped, the committee is very grateful.

The Belleville local association of Boy Scouts wish to record their appreciation to the Y.M.C.A. who donated the swimming pool also to Lloyd Skead, manager, D. Diamantides, physical instructor, and Tom Waterfield, who has been very helpful and courteous throughout the entire period.

We hope to start lessons again next October when Cubs and Scouts will again enjoy swimming in this up-to-date pool. It is very modern, beautifully tiled, with private lockers and showers.

St. Margaret's Guild Holds Colorful Bride's Tea

St. Margaret's on-the-Hill was a bower of floral beauty on Saturday afternoon when the Guild presented Her Bride's Tea, for many patrons, guests and friends. Everywhere there were bowls of lovely blossoms in shades of pink and blue interdingled with white apple blossoms were seen, and fragrant perfumes lent their allurements.

Mrs. A. Page and Mrs. Arthur Watson, president of the Guild, received, while Mrs. E. E. Paradis acted as treasurer. Mrs. F. R. Clarke was convener of the tea.

On a little table decked in pink tulle and apple blossoms was the guest book where the guests inscribed their names. This was presided over by the little flower girl, Sheila Moore, sweet as a picture in her long pink point d'esprit frock with purple satin sash and a wreath of, pink blossoms in her hair.

Trousseau Table

The long, trousseau table, decorated with pink streamers, caught at intervals by dainty horseshoes and wishbones, had as its centre piece a miniature arbor under which stood a radiant bride in white satin caught with glistening rhinestones and wearing a long tulle train. Following her were two bridesmaids attired in pink tulle over taffeta and here and there, centred by bouquets of sweet peas, noting the occasion.

This was conveyed by Mrs. C. H. James, and presided over by Mrs. T. E. Moore, and Mrs. W. A. Meeus, who presented with a delicate array of red and green checked gingham aprons as well as many in various, lovely, colored prints; card table covers in gingham and chintz; tea cosies; cloths; dresser scarves; hemstitched guest towels with crocheted edges; pillow cases, beautifully embroidered; handkerchiefs, with embroidered initials; fancy guest tea towels; wash cloths, and for that touch of "blue" so necessary at all weddings, daintily crocheted garters with pink rosebuds.

Lovely Floral Display

The floral display donated by Mrs. A. Platt, consisted of a beautifully tulle-draped table on which was a dainty doll-bride in white lace, surrounded by pink seaweed with 'ghost leaves, and bridal bells, a lovely bride's bouquet of pink carnations, white pom-poms, lily-of-the-valley, tied in a large bow of white tulle. The bridesmaid's bouquet was a miniature duplicate of this. A pink doily and tied with pastel ribbons, lilacs, pink forget-me-nots, lily-of-the-valley, white narcissi and yellow daises, centred by a pink rose.

The flower girl's nosegay was tied with white ribbon, and centred with a red rose and was completed with white sweetpeas and lily-of-the-valley.

The homebaking table, convened by Mrs. C. B. James, assisted by Mrs. J. L. McGregor, Mrs. Leslie G. Reid, Mrs. D. A. Kaye and Mrs. H. Saunders, was centred by a large bowl of lilacs in varying shades of mauve, from pale to deep purple. Pink stream-

Garbage Men Find Kittens In Collection

Garbage men find the oddest things in collections made during their early morning rounds.

But nothing more unusual is likely to be found than that which was picked up by city garbage men while making collections on a street in West Belleville.

The truck had been making regular collections when operators heard the pitiful mewing of a kitten coming from inside the garbage truck van.

Investigation revealed two small kittens, neither with eyes yet opened, lying in a cardboard box. The box had apparently been placed out with the garbage by a householder.

The kittens were turned over to city pound keeper Charles Thorne who is feeding them.

ers caught with silver horseshoes and wishbones with touches of confetti added extra beauty.

An Alluring Array

Lemon, apple, pineapple, cherry and orange tarts, cocoanut pies, butter tarts, oatmeal cookies, jelly rolls, chocolate squares, topped with halved walnuts, chocolate chip cakes iced in green, cocoanut-frosted egg cakes, spiced date squares, raisin loaves, date and nut loaves, cream-filled marguerites and pink cakes; lollipop nosegays decorating each corner, completed the alluring array.

The tea room was lovely with its long tea table, its damask cloth centred with pink and white lacquered baskets filled with sweetpeas and tiny blue forget-me-nots, and flanked by tall silver candelabra with tall pink tapers, and the silver, glistening services and other end. Those who presided were: Mrs. S. J. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Eric Leeming, Mrs. C. H. Corby and Mrs. C. La Rue.

Guest Tables

The little guest tables were centred by tiny bridesmaids on silver dollies, the serving wares handled by C. D. McGuire, M. W. Angus, J. D. Godwin, D. D. B. Adams, Gordon Hubbard, D. Norman, F. R. Clarke and J. Ritchie.

Those who replenished the tea and plates included Mrs. C. Brown, Mrs. T. Titus, Miss Lois Rollins, Mrs. Robert Bailey and Mrs. C. M. Partridge, while those in charge of making tea were Mrs. A. Brettingham and Mrs. R. V. Daniel.

The convener of the tea room was Mrs. H. J. Seymour, and the decorating conveners, Mrs. B. H. Downman and Mrs. D. D. B. Adlan. In charge of publicity was Mrs. C. M. Partridge.

Nearing the close of the tea, Mrs. A. Watson tossed the bride's bouquet and the lucky catcher was Miss Dawn Partridge.

A charming and diffinctive tea, highly successful.

Two Outbreaks Of Hog Cholera Are Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—Another two outbreaks of hog cholera were reported by the agriculture department today, bringing the total number of infected farms in south-western Ontario to 17.

The new cases of infection, however, were within the quarantine area, in counties where outbreaks had occurred earlier.

One was at Shakespeare in Perth county and the other at Grassie in Lincoln. Both cases were traced to dealers. The department said there is no report of any farm-to-farm secondary outbreak.

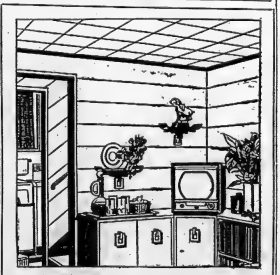
But the disease is continuing to take its toll in dead pigs,—So far the number of hogs that died of the disease or were slaughtered in the eradication stands at more than 700, a jump of about 100 during the week-end.

Check Every Farm

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Federal and provincial veterinarians today started a check of every farm in Middlesex and Elgin counties to determine whether hog cholera has found its way into this area.

Lacking exact information as to what farmers keep pigs, they will call at each farm and inspect the animals if there are any. Particular attention will be given to recent arrivals from other areas.

Mrs. Roosevelt Manhandled In Downtown Tokyo



TOKYO (AP) — Twenty Japanese women waving Communist banners today manhandled Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt in downtown Tokyo when she refused them an interview, the newspaper Yomiuri reported.

The newspaper said the widow of the late U.S. president was rescued by Japanese guards and was uninjured.

Mrs. Roosevelt, on a tour of Japan, was dragged from an automobile outside the labor ministry building.

The newspaper said that when Mrs. Roosevelt's automobile, pulled 60 in front of the building, the women clamored for an interview.

When Mrs. Roosevelt refused, the women pulled her from the car.

General Election In Manitoba Heads for Stretch

WINNIPEG (CP)—The campaign for the June 8 Manitoba general election wended sharply into the home stretch during the week-end as the nomination total rose to 164, Nominations close today at 2 p. m. CDT.

Three of the five parties in the race had enough entries to elect a majority in the present house. The Liberal Progressives, currently in power, topped the list with 49, followed by Social Credit with 42 and Progressive Conservatives with 36.

The CCF had 26 candidates late Sunday with more promised before the polls close. There are 30 independents and one Labor-Progressive in the field.

The standing in the House at dissolution showed the government with 30 members, Progressive Conservatives nine, CCF seven, coalition Liberal-Labor-Progressive and one independent.

Five ministers in the last House retired, including three Liberal Progressives and two CCF. Miner Ministers McDonald retired and has been mentioned as the next lieutenant-governor of the province.

The 42 Social Credit candidates could form a government—on paper—but veteran observers say its prospects appear doubtful. The party has little provincial organization and many of its candidates are unknown. It has no leader.

Name in Last House

There were no Social Credit members in the last House, but it has had as many as five in other Manitoba legislatures and boasted a coalition cabinet minister. This campaign was conducted mostly by Premier Manning of Alberta and Alberta Attorney-General Maynard, giving strength to the term "Social Credit invasion."

Three possible acclamations were listed, in sharp contrast to the 16 government acclamations recorded before the 1949 election. Two cabinet members, Public Works Minister Morton and Health Minister Bell, were without opposition. Chris Halldorson, Liberal Progressive candidate for St. George, also faced no opposition.

One Withdrawal

A veteran campaigner, W. D. Bayley, is the only withdrawal to date. Mr. Bayley attempted to stage a come-back with his Prosperity for Posterity Party, but withdrew Friday without explanation.

Eight women candidates were nominated, three each by the Social Credit and CCF and one each by the Progressive Conservatives and Liberal Progressives. Manitoba has only had two women members in its 79-year history.

The parties have not locked horns over a major issue in a dull campaign. The administration of Premier Campbell chose to stand on its record and the only statement of future plans came from projects already mentioned in the House.

F. C.'s Aggressive

The Progressive Conservatives, under Errick Willis, have been more aggressive. Their candidates include a number of men with wide municipal experience and a former federal member, J. A. Ross, whose seat at Souris was eliminated in the last redistribution.

The CCF has based its campaign on a demand for comprehensive health and hospital services plus sharp criticism of the government for not effecting a redistribution of seats in the province. A minor feud developed between CCF leader Lloyd Stinson, a former United Church minister, and the Liberal Winnipeg Free Press.

Former Czech Officer Claims Russia Plans to Launch War

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Czech Army officer, trained in Soviet military strategy, has informed the House of Representatives unofficial activities compiled of purported Russian plans to launch war in Europe "before 1953."

The Russian decision to "take over Western Europe" by the committee was told, is predicated on Soviet suspicion that Britain is preparing "a definite attack to destroy the Soviet Union" in 1953.

The testimony, given in a secret committee session May 13 and 14, was made public Saturday in an unusual volume entitled, "Soviet Schedule for War, 1953."

The witness is identified as Col. Jan Bukar—a name which chairman Harold Velde (Rep.-Ill.) said was assumed to hide his true identity as a Czech partisan fighter against the Germans in the Second World War.

The year, 1953, is the same year which former President Truman and his top advisers listed as the period of the greatest danger of attack from Russia.

President Eisenhower has scoffed at this idea, declaiming any faith in what he called magical formulas.

He said he did not believe anyone could predict when, if ever, another general war would start a global war.

The House committee headed by Velde predicted in a foreword to its hearing transcript that Bukar's testimony would be met by disapproval by some in the United States and elsewhere, who will seriously object to being interrupted from the placidity they so undoubtedly enjoy."

Bukar told the committee the Soviet target date for war was disclosed to him as one of 3,000 officers in training at a Russian military school for conquest at Moscow between 1945 and 1947.

The witness told the congressmen Russia's plan to overwhelm Western Europe was outlined in a lecture by a Kremlin foreign service expert named Sverdlov.

Thousands Swarm London Streets Surveying Route

LONDON (Reuters)—Under a cloudless sky today tens of thousands of sightseers swarmed through the decorated streets of London, surveying the route the Queen will follow on Coronation Day.

Today was Whit Monday, a national holiday and usually the occasion of a mass exodus to country and seashore. But the trend this weekend was reversed, with London the main goal.

Men in shirt-sleeves and women in light summer dresses, clutching children by the hand, gawked at the gay emblems displayed along the June 2 processional route and clambered over bleacher stands which will be the reserve of ticket-holders next week.

Hawkers did a roaring trade with colored bed, red, white and blue favors and artificial roses which have become an unofficial symbol of the Coronation.

Some of the sightseers came from long distances in chartered buses. Most of them carried packages of sandwiches and bottles of tea and soft drinks.

Queen Mary and her family were at their country home in Windsor, but crowds packed solid around Buckingham Palace, starting at the sweltering guardsmen on sentry duty at their gates, California and bearskin hats.

There were few active signs of Coronation preparations apart from workmen putting finishing touches to the stands and decorations, and mounted policemen familiarizing their horses with the Coronation route.

CAMPBELLFORD

Flag and Pole Given School By IODE Chapter

Campbellford—An impressive Empire Day ceremony took place on the public school lawn on Friday afternoon last, when the Bemersyde Chapter of the IODE presented the school with a flag and flag pole.

At 2 p.m. the Campbellford Citizens' Band led by Bandmaster Donald D. Bennett, took its place on the terrace in front of the primary school building. The public school pupils assembled with their teachers on the lawn. Also present was a large representation from the IODE.

The band opened the program by playing "Land of Hope and Glory" after which "O Canada" was sung with Mr. Jack Clark leading the singing.

The Rev. John McKibbin explained to the assembled boys and girls why their school was being given the gift of a flag. He said that IODE might well mean "I Owe a Great Deal to the Empire."

The flag was then presented to the chairman of the Public School Board, Mr. S. Hopping, by the Regent, Mrs. F. G. Carrol. Mr. Hopping in turn presented it to Mr. Daly, the public School principal. It was then raised to the accompaniment of Mr. Walter Lowe's bugle and assisted by the members of the Bemersyde Chapter.

A recitation "Our Flag" by Miss Valerie DeCarol explained the origin of and the meaning of life crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick. This was followed by two selections, "Rule Britannia", and the "Maple Leaf."

The ceremony concluded with a prayer and the benediction by the Rev. McKibbin, after which the band played "God Save the Queen."

A pleasant feature from the point of view of the public school pupils was that Mr. Daly at the request of the chairman of the Board, Mr. Hopping, declared the rest of the afternoon a holiday.

CAUTIOUS FORECASTERS

It was only a few days ago that comment was made in this page about the rarity with which Canadians experience tornadic disaster. Now Sarnia and some other sections of eastern Ontario have been visited by a storm almost unbelievable destruction.

A curious thing remarked upon by the Montreal Gazette was the failure of weather forecasters to give warning to the people of Sarnia even although they were aware that a tornado was not unexpected. The official explanation, apparently, is that information of this kind is withheld as a matter of "policy."

The forecasters have explained that it is impossible to determine just when or where a tornado will strike, to have issued warnings might have created panic and disrupted normal activities unnecessarily. There will be considerable agreement with the Gazette that panic or disruption caused by warning would have been less important than panic and disruption caused when the tornado struck the unsuspecting communities.

"It appears to me," the Gazette adds, "that the United States Weather Service issued warnings that a tornado might strike in Michigan. It does not seem that all weather forecasters are as dangerously cautious as those in Canada in warning people of what might befall them."

While the people of Sarnia and neighboring communities are busy with the task of clearing up the ruin and rubble left by this sudden terror Canadians elsewhere have a warning how ill-prepared they are in civil defence plans to meet swift and terrible disaster of any kind.

IT WORKS TWO WAYS

It suits the purposes of certain types of politicians and labor leaders to devote themselves to denouncing what they prefer to call our "profit system." Yet interesting statistics have just been released to show how that system in Canada fared during last year.

In 1952 the profits of Canada's manufacturing industries averaged only five on each dollar of sales. A more surprising thing to many will be the fact that out of this five cents of profit from each dollar of sales only 2.2 cents were paid out in dividends. The remaining 2.8 cents was put back into the business.

Referring to these figures, the Ottawa Journal points out that they show how own and run these manufacturing industries risked their money in them, burdened themselves with work and worry. At the end of a year they found themselves with a return on their money less than two percent, plus a bit more than two percent which they risked again for more work and worry. Yet any of these business men could have put their original investment in safe government bonds, avoided work and worry and got a bigger return. Or at the end of the year, they could have sold their business to somebody else, got rid of continued worry.

Nor, as the Journal adds, is this the whole picture. We hear of the industries that survive, that make a profit of five cents on the dollar, but no do we hear of the industries that make no profit, nor of the industries that fail. Yet there are many industries that just keep their heads above water and some which don't even do that. A glance at the record of business failures is an enlightening thing. It reveals all too clearly that what some prefer to call our "profit system" is really our profit-and loss system.

Last year the men who risk capital in Canadian industry had investments totalling close to five billions, and through their enterprise provided jobs for 437,000 people.

ATHLETES IN OTTAWA

Canadian athletes who have made names for themselves in the colorful sports arenas are seldom any great shucks as politicians. Press gallery men in Ottawa speculate on the election prospects of the current crop of athletes in the House of Commons without too much confidence that they will return in the fall.

Howie Meeker, one of the brighter luminaries of the Maple Leafs in the N.H.L. in recent years is apparently unenthusiastic about parliamentary life after a two-year stint as Conservative member for Waterloo South, and may not seek re-election. Lionel Conacher, one of the all-time greats of Canadian sports, has been in the political arena since he was elected to the Ontario Legislature in the thirties. It is thought that he may some difficulty in holding his federal Liberal seat in Toronto-Trinity. Howard Green, McDonald, who was one of the better N.H.L. defencemen in his day, entered the Commons with the distinction of having bested one of the abler front-benchers among the opposing Conservatives. J. M. Macdonnell in Parry Sound-Muskoka. Mr. Macdonnell regained a seat, however, through a Toronto by-election. "Bucko's" prospects of returning in the northern riding are not considered to be too good.

Another athlete is George Hees who was a better than average football player with Toronto Argos a few years back. He entered parliament in a by-election three years ago with a fairly healthy majority but he is reported to be uncertain enough of victory in August to have abandoned earlier plans to attend the Coronation to stay home and campaign.

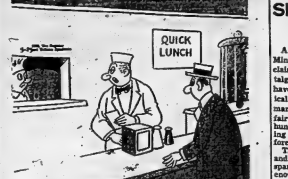
KINGBIRD AND CROW

Observe the kingbird and the crow
And note the difference of each;
When threatened by his larger foe,
At him the little kingbird flies.



Goliath, the frightened crow will be,
The kingbird—David with his sling.
Stouter of heart, though small is he,
Tiny, but swift and strong of wing.

Watch how the giant's great wings flap
Before his little foes' attacks—
A bully frightened by a slap,
Since courage for the fray he lacks.

My boy, when doubt and fear attack
And hard the way that you must go,
Wherever faith in self you lack
Observe the kingbird and the crow.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

On moving into a new district, plan family acquired of the neighbors as to which were the best stores to deal with. The general unanimous opinion of the people next door as well as subsequently proved to be in favor of a delicate sort of fruit store run by an old gentleman and his wife, and made those old stale roses look like lovely fresh fruit!

"Didn't you buy," I asked, "anything!"

"I had several things picked out!" said the mistress of my house, "but the second time I went there I saw that clerk with the roses, we all just walked out."

Occasionally, on a Saturday afternoon while out for a walk, I go into the store and pick up a wedge of some exotic cheese, a bottle of arty pickles, or a jar of honey from far Cathay. I like the store. It has a genial, bright, bazaar tone to it. But my womenfolk won't go near it. When they pass it on their shopping walks, they pretend it is not curled-back petals off all those fine roses so as to make them look like buds!"

"Dear, maybe be. . .uh. . ." I pointed out, in masculine sympathy with the lady of the house, "it is a bit deliberately," the ladies chorussed, "in full view of everybody, picked those outside stuff off, and made those old stale roses look like lovely buds!"

Occasionally, then, I purchase my cheese while out for a walk, I go into the store and pick up a wedge of some exotic cheese, a bottle of arty pickles, or a jar of honey from far Cathay. Menace Of Haste

(Toronto Telegram)

Only about eight percent of motor accidents are caused by faulty mechanism; police attributed most of those last week-end to drivers in a hurry. It was the human element that was faulty.

Everyone who uses the highways is familiar with the type of motorist who in heavy traffic turns out and cuts in, often on a rising grade, depending upon the benevolence and ability of drivers in their proper lane to save his life.

His need for haste probably is no greater than that of many others, but his reckless conduct makes him a great nuisance.

A generous number of prosecutions would do much to reduce the accident toll, especially if driving permits were suspended in order to give opportunity for study of the rules of the road.

Marble Shooting

(Sudbury Daily Star)

A correspondent writing in the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune claims that "newspapermen delight in the fact that our boyhood" have perpetrated a "gross historical inaccuracy" in portraying marbles as a "sunny-pastime of fair with boys (or even girls) bunched around in a circle, shooting marbles with a hand span of forefinger."

The generation "between 40 and 50" started playing "hits and spans" as a rule, it says, "old enough "to get our hands out of our short pants pockets."

"You started by tossing a marble out five or 10 feet and your opponent would try to throw another marble close enough to hit yours or within a hand span of it. If he failed it was your turn. A hit or a span won the other marble.

"Then one day in March or April a big, dry sidewalk would appear here and there. Hundreds of little boys would come down out of trees, crawl out of tents or caves, or retreat from cellars, and, in the middle of lakes, ponds or the Mississippi River, and the marble season would begin. From two to 50 boys would be in the most expensive, small, baked clay marbles (10 or 15 for a cent) were rolled at aggravating long distance. We would roll from three to five sidewalk squares to the nearest (one for a cent) and sometimes the loser would have to buy them for flints (worth up to a quarter). Rules were simple: you could shoot from the hip, dive aggate or flint, and then your opponent had to likewise until marbles or time were gone.

"Then, maybe, a spigate would place it cunningly behind a crack or unevenness in the sidewalk. The 'shooter' would then agates were hard to hit. The lad with aggate would walk back and forth astride to capture the marbles as they rolled off. Or flints that had leaped the outstretched legs or which rolled to either side were out of play. We accumulated bags of marbles. With four or five bags of marbles, a boy could buy bikes would hit the aggie at the same time. Then, suddenly, the game was often ended in fist fights which were even more enjoyable to the spectators than the actual game. "You could come into a game with a bag of marbles and leave destitute, or you could pirate a few stray, get into the game and come away with all the marbles.

"Skill, chance, effort, luck, good and bad numerically and downright thievery were all included in the rules of the game as I recall it. It was a prelude to the competition of adult life and anywhere on or small, strong or weak, could play. Its effects, salutary or otherwise, were remembered today by men, be they dentists or meat-cutters, all forlorn, for shame, that a conspiracy of the press has kept our children from even knowing about this noble game!"

Room for A Small Boy

(New York Herald Tribune)

Little boys habitually are overlooked at great events, so it good news that Prince Charles is being permitted to attend at least part of the Coronation ceremonies in June. It looked at first as though if the youthful Prince would be present, he'd only get a glimpse of in Westminster Abbey.

It was a wise decision. Prince Charles, being only four and a half years old, won't take up much room, and he'll be much brought up youngster, he won't make any noise. Probably he'll behave himself, and if he does plan to him in advance, as to any youngster being taken to a great event."

After all, one day Prince Charles will be king. He'll be on a similar ceremony, one in which he will be the central figure. He'll be the centre of all eyes. Even at four and a half, he may be able to realize dimly that everyone is looking at him. Besides he probably would be inconsiderable if he were left at home while his parents went off to the ceremony. With the inescapable logic of childhood he probably would ask out that while the party may be for Britain's Queen, it's for his mother, too.

The Hitchhiker

(Smiths Falls News-Record)

The hitch - hiking season is coming, or is at hand, and this is a warning to motorists to beware. Remember being what they are, it is not hard-hearted to pass a highway wanderer, but simple good taste.

If you know the "thumber" then use your own discretion. With strangers there are the obvious dangers of robbery and violence. Another danger is the liability of damage suits in event of accident. All in all it is safe to turn thumbs down on the thumbers.

Sympathy Misplaced

(Hamilton Spectator)

When the dust and shouting of last year's Guelph Reformatory riots settled, fifty of the biggest troublemakers were sent to other institutions.

They finished their terms, and now 'where have they ended up? Back in one way or another.

Excessive proportions of these men have been found in the diet for a mature adult are responsible for many common complaints which are in reality manifestations of nutritional deficiency, even though the vitamins are normal in weight or perhaps too fat, yet all the energy they can use or do use and a surplus which they might put to good use if they were not so sluggish.

High sugar, high starch diet is far more injurious to a boy or girl who is growing, because it fails to provide the necessary building materials—materials used to make muscle, bone, nerve, yes, and brain cells and enzymes.

I repeat, the sweets this 12 year old boy tries to live on are in themselves wholesome, pure, scientifically sound, as nourishing as the same calories in bread and butter, but they have ever had."

That is a good diagnosis, possibly—not an answer. People who are robbed or beaten by repeaters and by incorrigibles can be pardoned for feeling that parental love is practically locked out of the door, just a little late. Instead of wallowing in sentimental remorse and the psychological confusion of those who flout the community's laws, they might be expected to spare a thought for their victims—for individuals who may be their children! It is the protection of the defenceless a highly important part of the job of parent.

Among the chief protests and alibis paraded by inmates after their incarceration are the usual complaints about the food. Dietary discoveries were made in connection with other "reforms" carried out in the reformatory. For instance, the remedy for all this — as usual — than to the bigger quantity of how to cash cheques and robberies now so prevalent. The correction that one of the worst offenders remains unconvicted. It is the assailant, not the victim, who draws the heavy sentence.

A prison sentence is a harsh process. It is imposed by society still something harsher. The law fails when it cannot protect those who obey it lively on the run. New menus won't achieve reform. Protection of the public has been looked on for some time as a sort of whimsical aberration belonging to the nineteenth century, but if it is we don't seem to have come up with much of a substitute.

It Happens Every Time

(Stratford Expositor)

They'll do it every time — or almost. Almost every time they write an editorial rebuking someone for an error in grammar. Editors will continue to do it, we'll commit a blunder in the same article.

Or if we draw attention to the mis-spelling of a word on a store front or a street sign, the plaguey typographical error will do us dirt in the next issue.

Considering the multiple chances of such mistakes, mechanical, typographical, human, the occasional added contributions attributable to human element, we wonder is not that newspapers have so many errors but that they produce so few. Still, that does not save editorial embarrassment under the conditions noted.

East Berlin's Barracks

(Manchester Guardian)

In Western Berlin, 15,000 dwellings have been built (since the end of the war) and another 10,000 are being completed, and 126,000 have been repaired, mostly at public cost.

Western Berlin has met those needs which were greatest for happiness and recovery, but in Eastern Berlin the effort, in material and human terms, has gone into the building of Stalin Avenue, two gigantic blocks of flats and now another across a wide thoroughfare near the frontier of the British sector.

They are an architectural monstrosity of the kind that emerged in Tsarist Russia towards the end of the last century. In Imperial Germany it was known as the "Barrack style" (Kasernenstil) which helped to make Berlin one or Europe's most unattractive capitals.

The style is considered obsolete in Western Berlin today, except for office buildings—to except for office buildings—to which, unfortunately, it still disperses.

Stalin avenue is still in process of construction. It will contain 2,000 flats, of which nearly 1,000 are complete. It is conceived as the model "Soviet City" of the future. There is a similar Stalin avenue in Warsaw. To imagine all Berlin as constructed in this style is to imagine the capital of some nightmare utopia or "shape of things to come."

SWEETS FOR THE WEAK—LINGS, SISSIES AND STUFFS

Twelve year old boy eats a large amount of sweets and not much of anything else. What harm, if any, does this do?

The sweets will do no particular harm, but any boy or girl whose regular diet includes too much sugar or too much starch or both is pretty certain to become a weakling, a stuny or inadequate in one way or another.

Excessive proportions of sweets or starchy foods in the diet for a mature adult are responsible for many common complaints which are in reality manifestations of nutritional deficiency, even though the vitamins are normal in weight or perhaps too fat, yet all the energy they can use or do use and a surplus which they might put to good use if they were not so sluggish.

High sugar, high starch diet is far more injurious to a boy or girl who is growing, because it fails to provide the necessary building materials—materials used to make muscle, bone, nerve, yes, and brain cells and enzymes.

I repeat, the sweets this 12 year old boy tries to live on are in themselves wholesome, pure, scientifically sound, as nourishing as the same calories in bread and butter, but they have ever had."

That is a good diagnosis, possibly—not an answer. People who are robbed or beaten by repeaters and by incorrigibles can be pardoned for feeling that parental love is practically locked out of the door, just a little late. Instead of wallowing in sentimental remorse and the psychological confusion of those who flout the community's laws, they might be expected to spare a thought for their victims—for individuals who may be their children! It is the protection of the defenceless a highly important part of the job of parent.

Among the chief protests and alibis paraded by inmates after their incarceration are the usual complaints about the food. Dietary discoveries were made in connection with other "reforms" carried out in the reformatory. For instance, the remedy for all this — as usual — than to the bigger quantity of how to cash cheques and robberies now so prevalent. The correction that one of the worst offenders remains unconvicted. It is the assailant, not the victim, who draws the heavy sentence.

A prison sentence is a harsh process. It is imposed by society still something harsher. The law fails when it cannot protect those who obey it lively on the run. New menus won't achieve reform. Protection of the public has been looked on for some time as a sort of whimsical aberration belonging to the nineteenth century, but if it is we don't seem to have come up with much of a substitute.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MENTAL MICROBES

Microbes, of recent years, have become such a popular subject for conversation and reading that people actually invite them in as guests to their mind—but, I feel, this is not desirable, among the theories of diet and doctrines, and whatnot. People get so worried about them, even when they are not in one's vicinity. So, habitual is this fear, that we "feed" on these microbes finally win out and get a foothold in the mind—then trouble follows!

This is a reading and gossipical age. Newspapers, magazines and public speakers add to the dilemma. I have no fear of "feed" for microbes! And the mind has a real job on its hands. What with the radio, TV, movies, books, books, how are we to arrive at a safe and happy harbor of peace and a relaxed state of mind?

The physical microbes because of all this, are most of their danger, because the mental microbes "steal the show"! What are we to do about it? Firstly, I would suggest that a mental cleaning day should be instituted—get rid of those mental pests—as much as the housewife sweeps out the dust and dirt of the home. A healthy habit, too little concern for the endless microbes that await a fresh "feed" on the mind!

How about healthy thoughts? How about a consciousness of mind that it will have none of the mental microbes that teem in publications and life? Dr. Logan Pearsall Smith commented wisely upon this subject of mental microbes. He said: "If the belief that Bacon wrote Shakespeare gives a person any benefit that cannot give, why pedantically reject such faulty science? Why not be led with the others by still waters, and be made to lie down in green pastures?"

There you have one solution in a nutshell! Put those mental microbes that others have presented as a possible guide, into their eternal sleep. Think right, live right and don't mind what other people write—or say!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHEN TROUBLES COME

Bang!

You're in trouble aren't you? Everybody is at some time or other. We read even of Jesus that he learned obedience by the things he suffered. Life is that way. It is strange, but trouble often works out its glory and happiness if we allow it to do so.

If you are in trouble, there are three things that anyone who knows anything about it would want to say to you. The first is,Face your trouble. Don't try to explain it away, don't try to blame it on other people. Face it for what it is, and then the second thing is, Take trouble-to God. All things in this universe are in His hands, even the mistakes we make and the sins we commit. You are not equal to life but He is because He made life.

Last of all, believe that this commitment results in a solution. Go even further than that—believe Jesus that he knows the solution. Jesus said, "What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them and ye shall have them" (Mark 11:24). Begin to thank God for having given you the things you asked for. Then go your way with confidence knowing that everything is in God's hands and that all will be well.

This procedure, of course is posited on the fact that you have done everything that needs to be done to right any wrong, and that errors are sincere.

STIRLING

Dr. G. Telford Unveils Historic Corner Stone at St. Paul's

Stirling — Over 300 people were in attendance on the lawn of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, at high noon on Sunday for the special unveiling ceremony of the historic 1853 cornerstone, by Rev. G. Telford, M.A., B.D., D.D., president of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Following the service in the church the children led the choirs and audience in the rendition of Sankey's well-loved gospel processional hymn, "The Church's One Foundation". This was a special request hymn of Dr. C. F. Walt, who worshipped for many years at St. Paul's and who was in attendance at the centennial service.

Flowers Decorate Platform

A raised platform on the lawn was decorated with baskets of lilacs and tulips, daffodils and pink pit were placed for the ministers assisting with the service. A pink tablecloth covered the corner-stone which had been previously inserted in the south-east corner of the church. The Hammond organ, the property of the pastor's wife, was placed at the church entrance and here Mrs. Baker presided over the outside music.

The fanfare of trumpeters: Messrs. Tommy Brook, Delore; Carl Blakely and Wm. Ayles-worth, Madoc, took their places at the east of the church and opened the Centennial year at high noon. They also contributed music at various intervals throughout the service.

Roads Proclamation

The recording steward, Harold Hagerman, read the proclamation of Centennial year, which is an acknowledgment of the devotion and sacrifice of those pioneers who built the first Christian edifice for worship. At that time Stirling was called Rawdon and this church was a Wesleyan Methodist Church.

The National Anthem was sung with zest, as the birds sing in tree-tops. Lieut.-Col. W. Putt, previous editor of The Times, read the Bible lesson found in the third chapter of Ezra and a special printed Litany based on "giving thanks", was read by Rev. W. E. Irwin, with responses by the group in attendance. Several prayers from "The Book of Common Order" were given.

Silver Trowel

Mrs. Walter T. Elliott, a General Council Commissioner, presented a silver trowel to Dr. Telford and in her accompanying address she graphically figured a trowel as being symbolic of constructive work. Never in history has a trowel ever been used for any destructive purpose and she made a petition that it be allowed to go forth and build not for today but for eternity. In closing Mrs. Elliott voiced the message to the group that this trowel would serve to remind Dr. Telford of his official visit to Stirling. She said: "may it be a highlight in your memory as you carry out your duties in the week in your official capacity as president of the Bay of Quinte Conference."

Mark of Loyalty

Dr. Telford cordially accepted the silver trowel and gave a brief oration on "The Stone of Scone", thirty miles from historic Stirling in Scotland. Now it has been returned to the Abbey and will always be a mark of loyalty to the Queen, said he, and that "Today this stone placed in St. Paul's edifice will ever be a mark of loyalty to "The King of Kings" and may the congregation cheer it and may it strengthen and increase the fellowship in this congregation."

Rev. A. E. Baker unveiled the historic Wesleyan Methodist Church corner stone of 1853 and Dr. Telford used the trowel to complete the final ceremony. He offered a prayer of gratitude for those who labored in God's vineyard 100 years ago.

Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of the session, voiced thanks to Dr. Telford, Col. Putt and all others who had made the service a success.

The audience joined in that beloved hymn "Christ the Head and Cornerstone" and following the benediction by Dr. Telford the sweet tones of "Land of Hope and Glory" pealed forth in the solemn atmosphere from the organ.

The first service of St. Paul's centennial came to a delightful close.

Preparatory Service

Soon after 10 a.m., St. Paul's United Church was well-filled with worshippers for the special preparatory service preceding the inaugural centennial service.

The church edifice was a bower of beauty with baskets of lilacs placed so as to welcome the congregation as they entered the church and to bring a message of beauty as they sat in their pews. Printed programs will be treasured by many as several folks are planning to keep a full set for future reference.

The preparatory service was in charge of Rev. A. E. Baker, U.E. minister St. Paul's, assisted by Rev. W. S. Irwin and Lt.-Col. W. Putt.

Ten elders served the elements in an old-fashioned service with Mr. Baker officiating. The hymns were by verse, and the large audience singing without accompaniment.

Inaugural Centennial Service

Mrs. A. E. Baker presided at the organ console and rendered Holden's "Coronation" as a prelude for the inaugural centennial service at 11 a.m.

Rev. A. E. Baker, U.E. pastor St. Paul's presided and the choirs used as their processional "Only Begotten Word of God Eternal".

Dr. W. Corneti graciously welcomed the guest minister and all visitors from other points. The Royal choir rendered "Flocks in Pentecostal Splendor Kneeling".

The offering was gathered in her collection bags borrowed from Switzerville, which are 125 years old, and are modern ones, all with long handles.

The offertory interlude was "My Jesus I Love Thee". Lt.-Col. Putt was in charge of the responsive lesson found in Psalm 96. "Arise, for thy light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

The Senior choir of twenty voices rendered very effectively "The Festival te Deum".

Dr. Telford read the second lesson found in the 4th chapter of "The Book of Joshua".

Presentation Made

At this point, Mrs. Carleton Wright was signally honored when Dr. Telford presented her with a suitable gift on behalf of Mr. Baker. Mrs. Wright was celebrating her natal day and her name is Victoria Ann. She and her husband will soon celebrate their golden wedding anniversary and they have both served in St. Paul's United Church for several years.

Mr. Baker in his children's address spoke on "The Word of God", not on armies or navies to carry forward along as do fulfill the numerous duties of the Empire.

Mrs. William Wilkins sang "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings."

Tribute to Minister

Dr. G. Telford, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, presented his address on the theme: "What Mean These Stones" with a gracious word of thanks for his welcome to St. Paul's from the son of a very old friend, who had been called to his reward. Dr. Telford said this was his last official duty before he attended conference on Tuesday and he appreciated the opportunity to have a part in St. Paul's centennial.

Dr. Telford eulogized on the loyalty of the members over one hundred years of history and said: "Our Christian church needs an apology and it is much stronger today than it has been in a long time."

He briefly outlined the expansion work that is being carried out and told a few of the highlights of the past century. Dr. Telford paid tribute to Mr. Baker and felt that under his guidance St. Paul's would be well prepared to begin another century of Christian activities in Stirling.

The story is told in Joshua how stones were gathered from the river bed and placed in a pile because it was at this place that the Lord delivered His people. Then stones were to be a memorial to the younger generation. So it is with St. Paul's United Church. It is a shrine, a place where the Bible has been sheltered for 100 years and the word of God taught and expounded. This old, old book is in two parts; the youngest is 19 centuries old and the Old Testament is beyond living memory. People read the words over and over again and next week the Moderator of the United Church of Canada will present our Queen with a Bible. He said "you and I are keepers of the Bible" and this church is a memorial just like that pile of stones in Joshua's day." Dr. Telford paid tribute to the Protestant faith, old and young are free to enter St. Paul's or any other Christian Church and worship as they choose.

Memorial to God

St. Paul's United Church is a signpost, it points out the way to truth and light. It very distinctively leads each individual to God. The pulpit, lectern, wood carves, so why fear the journey? Hallow this day and the Holy Spirit is here, helping to spread the good news message to those who have never heard and leading the new generations by way of signs to a greater and higher goal. Then, too, these stones stand for the one foundation, Jesus Christ.

In closing Dr. Telford urged that St. Paul's Church be made a place where Christ will be glad to come.

Stirred in Patronage

Editor's note:— The corner-stone unveiled by Dr. Telford is the original corner stone of the first St. Paul's Church, then a Wesleyan Methodist Church.

In 1881 the present St. Paul's Church was erected and the original building was taken apart from the site where the church parsonage now stands. The 1851 corner stone of the first church was found in the church parsonage. The stone was set in the wall of the present church and unveiled as part of the opening ceremonies for the centennial year program.

Fires followed the Friday warning—from Premier W. A. C. Bennett that the "fooling around" is over for the Doukhobors.

The fires broke out around 3 a.m. within minutes of each other, RCMP reported.

"Rosines started burning all about the district," said a police spokesman.

"Two unexploded bottles filled with gasoline were found, but by the time investigators got there several people had fingered them."

No arrests have been made.

Brennan united in marriage Catherine Lorraine Meagher, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meagher, to John Francis Shannon, of Plainfield, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shannon. The mass was said by the Very Reverend Joseph Shannon, uncle of the bridegroom, while the acolytes were Richard Walsh and John Shannon, brothers of the bridegroom. Snapdragon and ferns adorned the altar.

Miss M. Flurey rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the vocalist, Mr. Gerald Shannon, of New York.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her all-white gown of lace over taffeta with medium train. She wore a headdress of matching lace and fingertip veil, tulle illusion and carried a cascade bouquet of pink Delight roses, stephanotis and hyacinth bells.

Peers Busy Picking Pages For Coronation

LONDON —Now busily engaged in picking their pages are the peers whom the Queen has chosen for special appointments in the Coronation procession.

They have to choose boys between 11 1-2 and 13, 4 ft. 6 in. in height and between 10 and 13 years.

Most peers have no difficulty in finding someone suitable. But Lord Lansdowne, who holds one of the Spurs is "quite worried." No one he knows fits.

The other Spur-holder, Lord Churston, has no such difficulty. Says his wife: "He has the perfect page—a nephew, William Grosvenor, Lord Ebury's son.

"He is 12 years old and at prep school. He is very good-looking and very obedient. And he can wear the same suit as the last page wore in 1937."

Lord Portal, wartime chief of the RAF, has made an original choice. He has asked the Winston Churchill junior, the Premier's 12 year-old grandson.

Mrs. Churchill has not yet replied to his invitation. She will first consult Peter Randolph and then sound grandfather Winston.

Other choices: Lord Salisbury, his nephew, Hugh Cecil, 11, son of Oxford don David Cecil; Field Marshal Lord Alexander, his younger son, Brian, now at Harrow.

The duties of pages? They walk behind their peers carrying the coronets. A moment before the crowning they hand these over and retire to their places.

110 YEARS OLD

DETROIT (AP) — Mrs. Mary King, who started life as an Alabama slave 110 years ago, spent her birthday Sunday in her customary fashion—puffing on a pipe and watching television. Foxboro-Bethel Schools Enjoy Trip

Recently, at an early morning hour, the principal of Foxboro public school, Mrs. Rayton, with her pupils ranging from grades 5-8 accompanied by the senior pupils of Bethel and their teacher Mrs. Ketcheson set out by bus on their long awaited trip to Toronto.

Arriving in Toronto at nine forty-five, they first visited the Royal Ontario Museum where a guide conducted them to the Zoology gallery where they were shown the many birds and animals such as duck billed platypus, sloth, ant-eater and panda bear, and where many points of interest were discussed.

After partaking of refreshments at the museum cafeteria they set out for the "Happy Gang" where they enjoyed the special Mother's Day program.

See Parliament Buildings

The parliament buildings was the next stop. A kind guide met them there and took them to the legislature assembly room.

They also visited the Toronto Junior Red Cross branch on Jarvis street where Mrs. Herring-ton guided them through the building meeting the many boys and other objects of interest that several schools had sent in.

They were especially interested in the portfolios to be sent to schools in other countries.

The last stop was the Riverdale Zoo which proved most interesting to them, especially the daffy doings of the monkeys.

A Special Thanks

Special thanks go out to the mothers who went along to share the responsibility of the 38 pupils and to Mrs. Giffin, who is a trained nurse and to Joan Churchill and Mrs. Bert Wannamaker for making their trip a great success.

Everyone came home tired but extremely happy.

MUST PAY BACK WAGES

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Patino Mines, a company whose big tin mines have been nationalized, was ordered Sunday by labor judge Sixto Mejia to pay 200,000 bolivianos ($16,729,700) for workers' back pay adjustments.

Pr. Edward-Belleville Club Enjoys Slides

With Mrs. Fred Burley and her group as hostesses, the May meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club met at the M.C.A. with 46 members and guests present.

The president, Mrs. L. Wannamaker presided for the usual opening and Mrs. Charles Ackerman acted as secretary until Mrs. P. Parliament arrived.

Messages were received from shut-ins and $10 was donated to the Salvation Army drive.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. Burley presided for a most interesting program. In introducing the guest speaker, Mrs. Jean David, Mrs. William Haley presented him with a rose in honor of his birthday, and all sang "Happy Birthday."

Mr. David told of his trip from Malton airport, through Holland, Belgium and France, across the English Channel to London and several historical places in England, arriving home at Dorval airport.

His views on screen were clear and most interesting, showing the movements and activities of a selected group of sailors who were given this extensive trip as a reward for excellent services given to the Philip's Company.

During the musical part of the program, Miss Marilyn Barber favored with a group of three solos, with Mr. W. Connors accompanist. Mr. Robert Burke sang "Galway Bay" and "Mother Machree" without an accompanist.

Thanks were extended to Mr. David and the artists who entertained the club.

Refreshments were served with the tea table centred with the huge bowl of pink and white snapdragons donated by Mrs. Barber and Mrs. Wannamaker pouring.

The next meeting will be held a week later than usual.

Fellowship Club Hears Fine Address

A record breaking meeting of the Fellowship Club of Holloway Street Church was held Wednesday night with 23 members and two guests present.

The president, Mrs. Earle White opened and conducted the short business period, after which the program convenors, Mrs. A. Wright-myer and Mrs. W. M. Anderson, then took charge.

Following a short devotional opening, Mrs. Anderson introduced the speaker Mrs. M. R. Weese, who gave a most delightful and helpful address on "Good Neighbors at Home and Abroad."

Miss Helen Sulman entertained everyone with two splendid readings "Canadian Born" by Pauline Johnson, and "Vera Cheera", morning sunshine talk.

Mrs. Weese and Miss Sulman were suitably thanked.

All enjoyed a very friendly chat and cup of tea.

SPECIAL PATROLS

LONDON (Reuters)—Special patrols are guarding Westminster Abbey day and night against the danger of fire. The patrols in the abbey, where expensive pre-Coronation repairs are being done, will continue until after June 2.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When A Husband Is Financially Irresponsible

The wife with a husband who is financially irresponsible is in a tough spot indeed.

On the one hand, if she is the average normal wife, she is usually happier when the man of the house takes the lead in managing the family affairs, provided he consults with her in partnership fashion and does not insist that he, and he alone, shall say how each penny is to be spent. On the other hand, if the financially irresponsible husband does occupy such a position of responsibility, there he is bound to be constant cause for trouble.

One wife with a husband of this type has this problem:

"Before my marriage, I had a horse of my own which was almost paid for. The man I married had a small equity in a car.

"Shortly after we married, he insisted that I sell my horse and that we move from the city into the suburbs where he worked. Finally I consented and the money received from the sale of my house met half the cost of a new home. On his side, my husband sold the house he had owned and most of the furniture, and with the money bought things which he said were the necessary equipment for this kind of work.

"Before long, what with the high cost of feed and my husband's poor management, we were practically in the poor house. We had several arguments on the subject and finally separated. My husband took his menagerie, the car and the deep freeze and signed over suburban house over to me.

"After a few months of separation, he talked me into a reconciliation. Then I found that in the meantime he had spent all the money for everything he had sold except for a set which he had put down as a first payment on a new car.

"Now he is constantly nagging at me to draw up papers that would put our home back in belonging to both of us. He gives me his pay cheques and we keep up the house and live on his money as well as mine. I am working.

"What I am worried about is that if I were to do as he wishes about the house, I know he would force me to sell it if we should ever separate again, and I am getting too old to try to buy another home for myself on the other hand I do want to be fair and square to him."

So there this wife stands with her two alternatives, neither of which satisfies her. If she allows the home to become joint property again, she may eventually find herself with no place to live and no less able to work to acquire one for herself. If she insists on keeping the house in her name alone, she may feel overburdened by the feeling of being unfair to her husband but there is the danger, even the probability, of their difference of opinion in the matter causing a new break between them.

Perhaps it is just mean suspicion on my part, but I cannot help wondering if this husband would have been as interested in a reconciliation had he not spent all his money and needed a place to live himself. Undoubtedly, he is perfectly well aware that his wife has a steadier head than his in regard to financial matters and that security is to remain with her. Also if he is able to get a hold on the property again, he would have an equity from which he could raise some money if need be.

Unless this woman is so much in love with her husband that it is worth it to her to live in economic insecurity for the rest of her life with her, it is my feeling that she has been unfair in that she has not to see whether or not he has developed any more responsibility than he had before. If he gets angry because of this decision, and goes off again, it will prove conclusively that it was not love of her but lack of money that brought him back to her. If he is genuinely fond of her that he wants to build the proper kind of life with her. It will not matter to him whether or not his name is on the deed of the house.

If you feel ALL-IN

These days most people work under pressure every day of their living lives. They strive on nerve and brain energy. The fitness demands of to-day—harder to regain, Today's home keeps, keyboard maintenance, constantly busy—any of these may affect normal body functions. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, headache, dizzy spells, "tired-out" feeling, disturbed sleep often follow. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Then you feel better—sleep better—work better. Ask for Dodd's Kidney Pills at any drug counter. 33

Earn a Reputation for Your Chicken and Potato Salads

By Mary Moore

Reluctant as I am to admit it, there are two salads that Canadian hostesses find almost indispensable to their summer entertaining. They are chicken salad and potato salad. Variations of the gluey messes I have tasted that masquerade as a potato salad are an abomination and a disgrace to Canadian womanhood.

Potato salad cannot be made from mashed potatoes. Yes, Ma'am, I've tasted potato salad made from cold mashed potatoes, sloshed around in bottled dressing with some onion tops that would turn a visiting Frenchman back to his native land of good cookery, never to return.

Realize, my dear sister-Canadians, that we have a tradition to build and to maintain.

We cannot afford to be careless even for one mealsworth, if we are going to put Canada on the Good Cookery Map.

Either on of these salads would be ideal for your Coronation Day supper in the garden. The potato salad will serve 8 to 10 and is too far she asked for my "favorite potato salad recipe" for hers is dry, has no zip and altogether unappetizing, says she.

Emcee's Potato Salad

To make 6 cups finished potato salad (that is 1 cup more than a quart) which will serve anywhere from 8 to 9 potato salad lovers, you need 3 lbs. waxy type potatoes. Naturally I can't tell you the number of potatoes because they vary so much in size. Red boiling potatoes are the way-y type. If you have to use mealy-type potatoes cook them only until you can barely pierce them with a fork. Wash the potatoes thoroughly and cook gently with skins on in covered saucepan in small amount of unsalted water until barely tender. Drain, rinse with cold water, drain at once and allow to cool. Peel and slice and dice into ½-inch cubes. Now add ½ cup French dressing, drizzling it over all of them, 1 tablespoon very finely chopped green onion and top or your own chives, ½ cup fresh green pepper, ½ cup chopped canned pimiento ½ cup finely chopped inner celery stalks, about 2 teaspoons salt, and if desired 2 or 4 sliced hard-cooked eggs, ½ cup diced cucumber. The next is a "must" but added just before serving — ¾ cup genuine mayonnaise, not salad dressing. Mix all ingredients but the mayonnaise and chill. Carefully stir in the mayonnaise. Serve on delicate lettuce leaves in large bowl or on cold supper platter. Chopped parsley and a few fresh cooked green peas are pretty and tasty additions. Mr sister adds thin slices of raw tender asparagus.

Chicken Salad Supreme (serves 6)

Two cups diced chicken ½ cup well-drained small pineapple cubes (canned), ½ cup finely chopped inner celery stalks, ½ cup shredded blanched almonds, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of white pepper, ½ cup genuine mayonnaise ¾ cup heavy cream. Whip the cream until very stiff and fold it into the mayonnaise. Then mix all salad ingredients and keep very cold for 2 hours. Just before serving fold the cold salad into the cold mayonnaise-cream mixture and serve on crisp lettuce. A delicious accompaniment is a spiced pear.

Variation: You may make a beautiful main course of this chicken salad by serving it in a tomato jelly ring for a cold buffet supper.

To make the Tomato Jelly mix together 2 cups tomato juice, 1 small onion chopped, 1 chopped celery stalk, 1 teaspoon lemon rind, and ½ teaspoon salt. Simmer for 10 minutes. Soften 2 tablespoons gelatin in ½ cup cold water and 1 cup lemon juice for 5 minutes. Then dissolve it and 1 teaspoon sugar in the hot mixture, stirring remove from heat, until dissolved. Pour this into an 8-inch ring mould, and chill until firm. Unmould on large round chop plate; fill centre with chilled chicken salad. Garnish outside edge with scored slices of cucumber, stuffed olives and sprigs of parsley.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Perhaps To Begin A Pleasant Friendship

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a man friend of mine took me to call on friends of his. a married couple. Now I am wondering if it would be correct for me to invite these friends of his to my home. I live with my parents. My friend is boarding, and therefore has no home to which to invite them. — Puzzled

This is a very pleasant and hospitable plan. . .and entirely correct. If your parents approve of the plan, and if your friend would like this friendly bow to his friends. This invitation might very well be the start of a most enjoyable foursome. Good luck!

The 'Lucky' Fiance Makes a Bid Of-A-Speech

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother is giving a Saturday evening buffet supper party next month, to announce my engagement. Only the families, a few close relatives, and several very intimate friends are to be invited. My father is dead, and my father's brother, who is my godfather, will propose the toast to my fiance and me, announcing our engagement.

My fiance needs some of your help, please. I suggest a "bit of a speech" (as he puts it) that he might say in reply to the toast.

Fully his,
Sally

Here's a suggestion I hope "himself" will approve: he rises, after the toast has been drunk, makes a pretty bow to you, and says, "Polly and I thank you all (bowing to the guests), most heartily, for your good wishes to you and I know, Polly is an extremely charming girl, . . .and as you and I know also, I'm an extremely lucky man. We're looking forward to seeing you all at our wedding . . ." and we hope to greet you all at our Golden Wedding.

How A Married Woman Should Sign Her Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion, please answer this question: Is it correct for a married woman to use her husband's name. . . "Mrs. Thomas Baker" for example. . .for social letters, and her first name. . . "Mrs. Mary Baker", . .for business letters, or vice versa? — T.

Neither is correct. When a married woman signs a letter to close friends, she of course signs her first name only. Letters to someone whom she doesn't know very well, but who does know her husband's name, she signs:

Sincerely yours,
Mary Smith Baker
(or Mary D. Baker)
Mrs. Thomas Baker

Important note: It is never correct to sign a letter, any letter to anyone, with the title in the signature. Never "Mrs. Thomas Baker", . .never "Mrs. Mary Baker."

BEAUTY

Why the Platinum Blonde Vogue?

The late, lovely Jean Harlow was responsible for the platinum craze that was just a little meteor in the beauty sky. Considering the loveliness of her abundant hair, it was a pity that it was ever subjected to such harsh treatment. Finding that her golden halo had lost softness and lustre she abandoned the project. But countless thousands of women were giving white-gold in a big way, and the mischief was done.

Beauty operators, as a rule, refuse to have anything to do with this over-bleaching method. It isn't the peroxide that is harmful, but the ammonia that is added; practically burns the shafts, so that they become brittle and break at the touch of the comb. But the ammonia is necessary, and speeds up the treatment.

Almost every blonde flirts with the idea of lightening her hair.

Almost every blond, when her hair starts to darken at the roots, flirts with the idea of resorting to chemicals. It is too bad that nature does not give color gradually, as she does to brunettes and red-heads, whose hair cokering seldom changes until time brings the silvered halo. Often the true blonde will darken in the early tweenies; again it may be middle-age before this transition takes place.

Many home experimenters have poured trouble on their heads. The first bleaching treatment may have been successful, but as the dark growth pushed out from the scalp, there had to be new applications of peroxide. That meant that application overlapped, causing the hair to be streaked and weakening the shafts.

Specialists can bleach the hair so that it has a natural appearance and can do it without damage to the shafts. The average operative in a beauty shop is not always qualified to do this job. The overhead is considerable, because of the need of appointments every two months, in which time the darker growth has appeared to the extent of an inch or more. The average growth is six inches a year.

At the present time, it is possible to have mild bleaches used after a shampoo. These rinses come in many shades. Often the dark-haired girls indulge in them to add a red cast to the hair. The coloring substance is washed away at the next shampoo.

Fashion Flashes

The rich patterns and muted colors of Paisely are much to the fore this season. Not content with to umbrellas. Water repellent cotton, printed in a lovely Paisely design, makes a charming umbrella with white heather-covered crook handle.

Garden bright are the counters heaped with new fabric gloves. Very new and bright is a glove of white cotton with cuff, contrasting fourchettes and borders of red-and-white or blue-and-white gingham. Tripie pearl buttons accent the cuff.

A busy calendar of social events calls for a careful selection of clothes. Ideal for important afternoon events, as well as perfect for wear over formal or informal evening dresses, is a coat of pure lavarathea in navy or black. From the tiny band collar down to the full-length flared hem it is done in graduated quilting in an elongated diamond design in braid and jet beads. Big cuffs on push-up sleeves.

Refreshing silk dresses to see one nicely through Spring and Summer await the shoppers. Navy and white polka dotted silk surah is used for a charming dress, the skirt softly full and gathered, the slim bodice made with a rolled collar that ends in bow to frame the wide, deep neckline.

It's fun this season to dress up clothes with colorful accessories, such as a neat scarf, and glove combination of white silk surah with a stylized butterfly design in several shades of blue. The glove palms are all white.

Coronations an Old Story For Westminster Abbey

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—A great deal of history will surround Elizabeth when she is crowned June 2 in the Collegiate Church of St. Peter in Westminster.

That's the official name of the stately, strange and wondrous building known the world over as Westminster Abbey. Its coronation is stone of about 1,000 years of British history.

Coronations are an old story for the Abbey. For nearly 900 years English kings and Queens have been crowned there. Not far from the spot where the Queen will sit in her Coronation chair lies the body of her great predecessor, Queen Elizabeth I, in an ornate white marble tomb.

Other sovereigns are nearby—Henry III, Edward I, Edward III and Richard II. Henry VII lies in his own chapel. So does Edward the Confessor, the pious Saxon king who was the first great early builder of the Abbey. His chapel is regarded as the most sacred spot in the hallowed building.

Much More Than Burial Place

But Westminster Abbey is much more than a burial place of sovereigns. One of the sins of 13th century Henry III, who rebuilt the Abbey almost from its foundations, was to make it a place for the preservation of "all that is precious and beautiful."

The interior of the Abbey has grown by bits often aimless and unplanned.

One story, for instance, is that the poets' corner came about by chance. The Mediaeval poet Geoffrey Chaucer of the Canterbury Tales was not only the literary father of English literature, but a collector of customs, who was sent often abroad on political missions. He was buried at the Abbey in honor of his services as a faithful administrator.

Many Buried in Abbey

Then other poets died, and it occurred to someone at the Abbey to lay them beside customs collector Chaucer. Spenser, Dryden, Tennyson, among others, followed Chaucer into the poets' corner.

The collection of dead poets seems at one point to have become an Abbey preoccupation. When William Shakespeare died the citizens of Stratford-on-Avon feared his body might be claimed by the acquisitive Abbey. Consequently he was buried deep in Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-on-Avon, and a verse on his monument calls down a curse on any disturbing his bones.

Dr. Samuel Johnson lies in the Abbey, as does David Garrick, the actor.

Musicians were accorded a spot of their own. Men of science were recognized. In modern times the ashes and likenesses of scientists are clustered around the monument and grave of Sir Isaac Newton. Kings and Queens now are mostly borne to St. George's Chapel at Windsor, and many of the great soldiers and sailors are laid to rest at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The Abbey contains many relics. Many Tattered Flags cords of martial deeds, and proud and tattered battle flags are among its treasures. In time the building acquired so many monuments and pieces of such heroic size that they partly concealed beautiful windows and blocked up passageways.

Yet in some mysterious way the Abbey attains a harmony of its own. In few buildings on earth is a deeper impression of solemnity given to a visitor.

The old building is especially effective at a coronation, because it was designed for the ceremony. There is, before the high altar, a much larger space than in most churches. The space is called the theatre, and in it the solemn ceremony unfolds.

Perhaps the foremost of the strange facts about the vast building, 531 feet long and 102 feet high, is that the Abbey isn't an abbey at all. Nor is it a cathedral. It houses no bishop, and there hasn't been an abbot in the place for several centuries.

Strange Sort of Church

It is a church, all right, but a strange sort of church. In ecclesiastical terms it is a "royal peculiar." It is situated in the territory of an Anglican bishop, the Bishop of London, but it is excluded from his authority. Neither does the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, have any control. His direct authority is the Dean of Westminster, Dr. Alan Campbell Don, who is obliged to take orders only from the sovereign.

There is only one other "royal peculiar" in the realm, St. George's Chapel at Windsor.

It is possible that in the beginning the abbey wasn't even Christian. There is some evidence an early building or monastery was built there about 600 A. D. by Sebert, king of the East Saxons.

SAUER GETS TROPHY

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Sauer, Chicago Cubs' power hitting outfielder, received the Kenesaw Mountain Landis plaque Sunday as the National League's most valuable player of 1952.

The presentation, made between doubleheader, was directed by John C. Holtman, Chicago Sun-Times sports writer. Sauer hit 37 home runs and batted in 121 runs last season.

Lobster A La Newburg

By JOAN BARRERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The handling and transportation of live lobsters has improved to such an extent in recent years that successful shipments now are made regularly across the continent.

However, the federal fisheries department reports that development of inland holding facilities is proving more slow, and difficulties associated with holding live lobsters long hundreds of miles from the sea have hindered marketing.

Need Good Care

Lobsters now are usually stored in air in iced containers. Under these conditions lobsters will survive for a few days but are usually sluggish in appearance and not attractive for display purposes. If the holding period is extended the lobsters tend to weaken and many die.

To be on the safe side live lobsters should be purchased, or if already boiled, be sure to get them from a reliable source. The meat "turns" very quickly once the lobster is dead.

In a circular recommended by the Atlantic biological station of the fisheries research board of Canada, a simple, inexpensive wooden holding unit is described in which commercial quantities of lobsters have been kept alive and active for several weeks in aerated, artificial sea water.

A la Newburg

Bostonians have for years been some of Nova Scotia's best customers when it comes to lobsters. The following recipe for lobster a la Newburg comes from a Boston cook book with a few assists from a French chef in Toronto.

Ingredients: One 2½ lb. lobster boiled. One quarter cup melted butter. One tablespoon sherry and one tablespoon brandy. One third cup of 25 per cent whipping cream. Two egg yolks slightly beaten. Salt, cayenne, grated nutmeg.

Slice lobster meat in half-inch thick pieces; saute in hot pan with butter for three minutes. Add liquors, cook one minute, add cream, season to taste and add egg yolks.

Stir until thickened and serve with toast or puff paste points. Serves four.

The French chef says he rarely stirs anything, but shakes the pan instead. However, it probably takes the expert hand to shake a pan of lobster a la newburg without turning it into lobster a l'apron.

Princess Margaret May Enter Religious Order After Coronation

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—What's happened to Princess Margaret?

If everything court gossip says is true, there's been a change in the sunny young Princess of yesteryear—the fun-loving fashion plate who liked late parties, low-cut dresses and practical jokers.

Now, it seems, she prefers "sensible" clothes, stays out of night clubs and seldom indulges in frivolity. There is even a report that after the Coronation she may enter a religious order.

The likelihood is that if Margaret has changed there is reasonable explanation. The Princess who once stuffed scones in the skies of court attendants and danced a version of the can-can at a midnight party has grown up. A phase has ended. This normal process has been accelerated by the death of her father, King George VI, an event which naturally tends to make her think of serious rather than light-hearted things.

High-Spirited Girl

"Princesses are human beings, too," says Peter a Buckingham palace spokesman said. "It was only natural that Princess Margaret should try to have a good time. She is a girl of high spirits and considerable talent, and she may have been flattered at the attentions she received so young."

Her reactions to her father's death were to be expected. Unlike her sister, the Queen, she had no burdens of sovereignty to take her mind off her grief. She spent much time with the Queen Mother.

Persons who know Margaret say the King died at a time when she was already bored with her "teen-aged ambition to stay out each night till the small hours. In her immediate circle, many friends had married, and changes in the Princess' way of life were inevitable. Queen Mary's death, coming so close to the Coronation, was another reason why Margaret stayed in the background.

Margaret has always been a religious person. She often attends lectures given during Lent at Lambeth Palace, official residence of the Archbishop of Canterbury. One Palace source said he wouldn't be surprised if she ultimately became a nun—a remark which possibly gave rise to widespread rumors that such a step was in prospect. Just Conjecture

Since then Buckingham Palace has been at pains to point out that any such report is founded on conjecture.

Warm,hearted, impulsive, a good conversationalist, Margaret has naturally turned at this more sombre period to quiet dinner parties with close friends. Court officials anticipate she is unlikely to return later to the artificiality of night-club life.

For all that, the 23-year-old Princess will find it hard to remain out of the limelight completely. After the Coronation she is sure to be part of the glamorous scene at Coronation balls, parties and racing at Ascot.

At the Coronation itself, Princess Margaret will sit in the royal box at Westminster Abbey with her mother. They will drive to the abbey from Clarence House, first home of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. Furniture is going into the newly-decorated rooms and the royal ladies are expected to move in just before June 2, date of the crowning.

In the eyes of Buckingham Palace, Margaret's position in relation to the Crown is less important than it was before her sister became Queen. When both were Princesses, their status was pretty much the same. Now, a spokesman says, Margaret definitely takes a back seat. This, naturally will have some influence on the attention she receives in the press.

Buckingham: palace of the Queen

So huge (900 rooms) it needs 200 servants. (10,000 windows keep a crew of washers busy full time!) So unwieldy, George V tried to sell it to a hotel group. So hard to heat, George VI dubbed it the "icebox". So cold, things had to! So it's for centuries.

Going out without a hat is going out of fashion, we hope. We just can't understand hatlessness when there are such beautiful, flattering hats at such modest price-tags. Pink straw is used for a pretty little cloche spattered with tiny white velvet leaves, each studded with a rhinestone. The crown is banded by very narrow green velvet ribbon and adds up to a youthful, flattering, garden-like hat, simple yet elaborate.

Texture adds interest to new nylon gloves. For new surface interest, one house does crisp nylon gloves made to look just like white bird's eye pique. Re-embroidered nylon lace is used for a series of dressy gloves ready for Summer, gloves that are as practical as they are pretty.

A natural to wear with tweeds or sports things in the beige and brown shades, is a stunning costume jewelry pieces in brown leather with edges or rings of gilt metal. Bangle and wound-around bracelets, ear clips and chokers, plus an ornamental safety pin, completes the well-tailored group, a natural for country wear.

Just about the most original cotton suit of the season is a Patou design in khaki brown woven cotton pique, a fabric firm yet cool. The Jacket has a cutaway collar, the square in front filled in with a colorful silk scarf. Jacket is straight, has a six-button fastening and patch pockets placed just below the neckline. The skirt is softly pleated.

A novelty in the blouse line, that is useful with sports skirts, shorts or slacks, is an overblouse of embossed cotton in a black and white tweed effect with cotton knit sibling at neck, cuffs and the elasticized waistline, below which is a soft peplum in tunic effect.

Making fashion history are those coats made of synthetic fabric that looks just like wool fleece, and is washable. A beauty in white or pastels, is a 30-inch shorite with welt seams sewn at an angle with the shoulder, and arrow detail on the bodice.

"You can imagine how much our new home means to John and me. We are so proud of it . . . and we're just as proud of the way we earned it!

"We started earning our house two years ago. One night, I suggested the best way for us to get a house would be for me to go back to work, it would be for only a year or two. And the money I earned would go into a savings account—along with John's savings—to buy our own house.

"The next day, we had a talk with Mr. Davidson, the Manager of our Dominion Bank. Every pay day, I deposited my pay cheque in our account. In two years, our nest egg at The Dominion Bank had grown large enough to make the down payment on the house of our dreams.

"We moved into our new house last week. I've stopped working now. I'm spending all my time looking after 'the house that John and I built'—with our Dominion Bank savings account."

A-Bomber Sets Flight Record Over North Pole

The U.S. Air Force has disclosed that its B-47 Stratojet, prize carrier of the A-bomb, has made the first jet flight over the north pole. The flight was made more than a year ago, marking the first crossing of the polar region by jet. The air force also revealed that a B-47 jet smashed all distance and endurance records by flying more than 12,000 miles nonstop by refueling in midair. CROWN CAVALCADE — 20th PROFESSORS of ELIZABETH II

No. 22: Mary I, Queen of England and Ireland 1553-1558.

Born: 1516, daughter of Henry VIII by his first wife. Curiously, when she came to the throne, aged 37 "plain-featured and frustrated" an English historian describes her) women were forbidden to hold public office or practise professions. Today, 3 bishops, 21 clergy, 84 artisans, 100 laborers, 55 women, four children. It is said that Mary died obsessed with the belief she was pregnant. She repeatedly announced that she was with child, but never bore one. The evidence is that her husband, Philip II of Spain, detested her. Englishmen began voyaging far and wide in her reign, challenging Spanish supremacy in exploration. Willoughby and Chancellor sailed into the White Sea and opened trade with the Russians at Archangel with momentous consequences.

The term "distaff side," for women, comes from the instrument used by women in spinning before the spinning wheel appeared in England in the 16th century. There were no schools for women in Mary's time, there being general opposition to the education of them.

RCMP Concerned About Growth Of Organized Crime in Canada

By JOHN LEKLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is concerned about a possible growth of gangsterism—organized crime—in Canada.

The national police force cites two factors for this anxiety:

1. A United States anti-crime drive which may chase some big-time criminals across the border.

2. Expansion of Canada's population providing richer pickings for hoodlums.

The RCMP view is set out in a revised edition of its publication "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy," a 373-page book on crime and police work. Originally published in 1949, it now has been brought up to date.

Dealing with the sharpened crime problem caused by growth of population, the book says that organized crime by its very nature must breed in thickly populated areas.

And, "in gangster parlance, 'the beat is on' across the border. The many of the harassed criminals in the U. S., our country with its wealth, and growth, must seem to offer new and safer fields for their rapacity."

"Much effort," the RCMP adds drily, "may be needed to convince them otherwise."

New and stronger laws may be required to curb crime in the face of the two developments.

"It may be," says the RCMP, "that additional safeguards will be needed against that unending search by criminals for the corrupt 'protection' without which they cannot operate for long as organizations."

But the effectiveness of any such measures, the book warns, will depend in the final analysis chiefly —if not wholly—on the public. The law cannot be changed any faster, or enforced any better, than the general community changes in its opinions and beliefs.

Canadians are inclined to be a little smug about the relatively small amount of gangster activity in this country, the RCMP observes. But any satisfaction should be tempered by the fact that this is only a matter of degree.

N.S. Premier

Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia leads the Liberal party in the provincial general election May 26. He was premier first from 1933 to 1940, resigning to become federal navy minister. He returned to provincial politics in 1954 as Liberal leader and was re-elected premier in 1949. He was born in Dunvegan, Inverness county, N.S., Aug.-10, 1890. — (CP Photo.)

"For it," it says, "we have our own 'world story' of organized crime, of drug rings, of smuggling and bootlegging gangs, of betting syndicates, of chains of brothels, of gang murders.

"We have, too, the correlative story of bribery and corruption, without which very few gang rackets can exist."

While the Canadian history of gangsterism is largely that of local organizations, the book says, every large city in the country has a serious problem in combatting organized crime. It is still "a very active" problem in most cities.

"Given only a lowering of the standards of legislative bodies, courts and police; given the slightest leeway for corruption and,

Police Juvenile Clubs Helping Montreal Kids

MONTREAL (CP)—It's 17 years since a Montreal police officer with a soft spot in his heart for young sters in the area decided that the leader of a tough street gang could be developed into a good sports captain.

That decision is still paying dividends. The police juvenile clubs here are credited with giving Montreal a remarkably low juvenile delinquency record.

It was in 1936 that assistant Inspector Ovila Pelletier first was struck by the number of youngsters running into trouble with the law. He found these youngsters were full of energy and intelligence, and were letting off steam in the wrong direction.

Helped Youngsters

He obtained permission from his superiors to form clubs for youngsters. The first members were recruited on street corners.

Spotting youths with a lot of time on their hands and nothing interesting to do, police would ask them: "How would you like to play in a baseball league?" If it was not baseball, it was hockey or swimming that was suggested.

The response was terrific.

Police officers dug into their own pockets to buy sports equipment, and the league of "kids and cops" was launched. The police athletic fund and the city took an interest and extended financial assistance.

The best of equipment and coaching were placed at the disposal of the youngsters.

The club's experimental period came when inspector Pelletier was given facilities for a 15-minute talk over two Montreal radio stations.

In the two weeks following his broadcasts 34,000 youngsters called at police stations throughout the city to apply for membership in the juvenile clubs. Since then, public drives have been held annually to finance activities.

Big Bureau

A full-time delinquency prevention bureau was established seven years ago. The bureau has a permanent staff of 65 policemen and 20 women. One aspect of its work is to keep young people away from places where they should not be.

Officers keep watch on conditions in restaurants, theatres, billiard halls and similar spots. More than 5,000 such visits are made each year. Often, the officers will explain to juveniles they encounter on these visits how their time could be spent better in some other fashion.

The results of the work are reflected in juvenile delinquency records. In 1952, police referred 2,000 youngsters to juvenile courts. The number was only half as large as in 1943, when the population was smaller.

KEEN AGE CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Keen Age Club of Tabernacle United Church, was held recently in the church parlors with 16 members and two guests present.

Mrs. E. Cornish was in charge of devotional and gave a reading. The club's annual banquet is being held at Maple Inn in June.

After the banquet, the girls are invited to the new home of Mrs. C. Lockyer at Picton. The club is paying for a girl to attend C.G.I.T. at Quin-Mo-Lac camp.

Mrs. W. MacCready was in charge of entertainment and conducted games in carpet bowling. This was followed by refreshments served by Mrs. Arthur Firth and her committee.

ARMY INVESTIGATING

HEIDELBERG, Germany (Reuters)—The United States Army in Europe knows nothing about the alleged disappearance of three big Patton tanks during manoeuvres near the Czechoslovak border, a spokesman said Sunday. But the army is investigating the reports, he added. A New York newspaper said Saturday the 48-ton tanks have been missing for two days.

above all, given a falling-off of public vigilance and morality," the RCMP says, "the vicious elements that create the problem could and would become a very real and firmly-entrenched threat to our national well-being."

Athletic Centre Ready to Open Friday Night

TRENTON. (Special)— Sportsman Jack Zignan deserves a lot of credit for a job well done. The townspeople are taking their hats off to him for providing a splendid athletic centre for the young people of the town.

Early this year he bought an old garage on Telham street with the idea of converting it into a recreation centre. Workmen are now engaged putting the finishing touches on the interior to give the grand opening this Friday night. The outside appearance is a great improvement to the general look of the entire neighborhood.

Last week Mayor R. E. Whitley, councillors Don McPherson and Cliff Gunter and town clerk O. W. Larry visited the premises as the guests of the proprietor. In putting the stamp of approval on the venture the town fathers noted that the centre should be an inducement to occupy the younger people and give them some place to go in their leisure hours.

The centre beautifully finished inside provides facilities for a variety of sports played indoors. There are showers dressing rooms and a snack bar at the disposal of those participating in the games.

Campaigning for Nova Scotia's General Election on Tuesday Carried on 'Down to Wire'

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotia's three political parties, in an election campaign which started slowly but has since had a blasting pace, are carrying their appeal to the voters right down to the wire.

On the eve of Tuesday's balloting, all groups are organizing last-minute meetings. It's considered an unusually high pitch of activity for a provincial contest.

Liberal and Progressive Conservative leaders fired their parting shots Saturday, but CCF leader Michael McDonald kept up a busy round of activity Sunday in Cape Breton's industrial areas.

Mr. McDonald, head of the two-man CCF delegation in the legislature, accused the Liberal government of lack of interest in the welfare of the working classes.

He told meetings in the mining towns of Glace Bay and New Waterford that a Liberal - sponsored amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act, requiring compulsory examination of an ailing worker by a company doctor, was "vicious and reactionary."

Liberal policies on co-operatives and housing also came under fire from the CCF leader.

Defends Record

Premier Macdonald, in a final radio broadcast called the Progressive Conservative campaign "petty criticism, final proof that the party, as led today in this province, is not only bankrupt of constructive ideas, but has lost all sense of proportion and balance as well."

Mr. Macdonald defended the government's 20-year record, which both major parties accept as the chief election issue. He promised extension of the program of industry, rural electrification, welfare services and public works, and pledged sound financing "in the future as we have practised in the past."

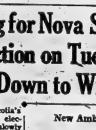
Robert L. (Bob) Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader, repeated his party's charges that the government has failed to stimulate provincial industry. He promised to take over the job personally if elected to head a new government.

Accused of Waste

Also high on the Progressive Conservative platform were reports of cabinet ministers' pensions and a probe into the alleged operations of liquor agents.

Mr. Stanfield accused the government of "extravagance and waste."

Liberals held 27 seats in the 7-member legislature at dissolution and the Progressive Conservatives formed an eight-man opposition. Both are entering a full slate of candidates.



The CCF, which held two seats, is contesting 16 seats and there is one independent.

Preliminary forecasts indicated favorable weather on polling day. About 375,000 persons are eligible to vote.

Four Senators Say Shortages Real in Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four of five Senators who investigated ammunition supplies in Korea reported Saturday that "there was a needless loss of American lives" because of shortages there.

While asserting "it is difficult to pinpoint the responsibility," they blamed policymakers of the recent administration, former President Truman on down, for miscalculating the defensive designs of international communism."

"This is a problem outside which has been extremely costly to the American people," the report said, "a repetition of this type of miscalculation and inability to plan for the defence and security of the United States could result in catastrophe for this nation."

The fifth member of the investigating sub-committee, Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.), disagreed with the finding that lives were lost because of ammunition shortages.

Declaring that this was based "on conflicting testimony between various army generals," Kefauver said "American families" which have sustained grief enough, without sustaining the added grief which this type of statement brings."

The majority report was signed by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.-Me.), chairman of the armed services sub-committee, and Senators Harry Byrd (Dem.Va.), Robert Hendrickson (Rep.-N.J.), and John Cooper (Rep.- Ky.).

Influence Man To Feel Weight Of Judge's Gavel

By DOUGLAS E. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The career of Henry W. Grunewald, Washington influence man with connections in high places, is about to be smacked by a judge's gavel.

Henry "the Dutchman" will be sentenced Thursday for contempt of Congress.

Grunewald is the "mystery man" whose shadowy connections in the United States capital during nearly a quarter-century ran his income up to six figures. As the rasping-voiced man-about-town gave his story to skeptical investigators, it was one involving such things as: "Amazing coincidence" in savings —more than $61,000 in six years—rather than the figure for tax purposes. Yet Grunewald "couldn't remember the name of one nag he bet on."

Fees of $4,000 and $7,500 Grunewald said were merely for introducing people to each other. He told of gifts, favors and loans to government officials. He says he didn't ask favors in return.

Grunewald had $361,000 in six years—

Furthermore, Grunewald says he gave away about $4,000 worth of Christmas ties at $7.50 apiece to prominent persons. Word has been getting around that some members of Congress and various big businessmen are shivering at the thought the list of recipients might be made public.

Monday ago Grunewald appeared before a House of Representatives ways and means sub-committee investigating past scandals in the internal revenue bureau. He refused to tell them anything more than his age—60. He was indicted on 31 counts of contempt and pleaded guilty to one. The punishment could be as much as a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. Later he agreed to talk.

Gave Away Ties

The testimony provided about the most complete picture a congressional committee ever has put together of how one of Washington's many influence men operates.

Grunewald for a time had a home in Florida where he entertained persons such as George J. Schoeneman, commissioner of internal revenue, and Charles Oliphant, at the time chief counsel of the internal revenue bureau.

For a year or more, Daniel A. Bolich lived in Grunewald's downtown hotel suite while serving as assistant internal revenue commissioner.

All three men resigned after Congress began uncovering various tax scandals. Bolich subsequently was indicted on evasion charges.

Grunewald, who said he never cheated the government out of a dime on income taxes, said he got a $25,000 fee in 1949 from New York lawyer Abraham Lefkowitz.

It was brought out that internal revenue bureau records show Grunewald arranged for Duke to see Oliphant and that Duke's client, the Consolidated Electric and Gas Co. of New York got a $500,000 refund instead of $50,000.

Army of Cooks Getting Ready For Coronation

LONDON (Reuters) — An army of cooks, waitresses and dishwashers is getting ready for the biggest operation of their lives—Coronation Day.

They will have to feed the millions who will crowd central London to see the coronation procession.

Plans for the great day were made months ahead by three or four main companies owning cafeteria chains.

One firm alone plans to feed 1,000,000 persons, a project involving a staff of 12,000 and 50,000 tons to bring 1,000 tons of food and equipment to "strategic" points.

Another company, also planning on a basis of 1,000,000 customers, has already made up 1,000,000 sandwiches, wrapped them in cellophane and put them in cold storage.

The big turnover is expected in special tents and temporary buildings built along the route.

Reckoning on a hot day, one sidewalk organization is moving in with 300,000 soft drinks and 100 ice cream bars.

The committee will also handle a heavy trade in a more expensive "buffet lunch" served in the special stands where distinguished visitors and overseas tourists will sit.

Rate of Spending On Arms Over 'The Hump'

By HAROLD MORRISON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

If the economists, the economists, Canada's arms production has passed from a "dynamic" to a "stabilizing" influence on the fast-growing Canadian economy.

That means the rate of spending on arms is over the hump—it has passed the peak and now is slipping downward.

The change, which took place during the last few months, appears to be the first serious check on the economy. Economists are confident that Canada's national production of goods and services will make a billion-dollar gain this year on a peak of $24,000,000,000, despite falling prices.

Although the arms-spending trend is on the downward side, a lot of money still is being poured into the industries that make up the industrial economy. Officials believe that $5,000,000,000 a year will flow out of the federal treasury into the arms machine in the current 1953-54 fiscal year.

Here's how economists estimate the rate of arms spending during a three-year period: fiscal year 1951-52, $1,000,000,000; 1952-53, 2000,000,000; 19533-54, $1,150,000,000.

That makes a total of about $3,- 350,000,000 in defence spending. Defence spending is by no means over. Other billions are to go into the military pocket—millions of dollars more for military pay and allowances and upkeep.

But the arms machine has taken the biggest slice. Economic, industrial projects, guns, ammunition and ships. A few civilian consumer programs are still far from completion, although there's talk of a possible big slice for defence spending next year, some economists don't agree.

They believe the Canadian taxpayer may have to shell out another $1,000,000,000 or more in the fiscal year 1954-55 to complete all the defence programs and pay for replacement of obsolete material. A few people think spending may even be pointing down, arms production may remain a "stabilizing" influence on the Canadian economy for a good many months to come.

Sought for Abduction

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—City and provincial police are searching for a man who abducted a girl from a parked car and assaulted her and then escaped into a wooded area near the west-end boundary of the city.

Police said the description of the man was armed.

The girl was later picked up by police and brought to headquarters here.

Although information was sketchy, it was believed the hunted man forced the girl from her car in which she was sitting talking to a friend. Police declined it identify the girl.

U.S., Britain Slowly Heading For Showdown on Red China

By FRANCIS CARPENTER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and Britain are slowly but inevitably heading for a showdown on Red China.

This explosive question must be settled as soon as there is an armistice in Korea.

Britain wants Peiping seated in the United Nations, but not while fighting goes on in Korea.

Britain is opposed to a complete embargo on Red China, such as Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) and others in Washington have suggested. But Britain asserts it is loyally living up to a limited UN embargo on strategic materials.

The United States is opposed to admitting Red China to the UN but Chester Bowles, former U.S. ambassador to India, said on his return home in mid - May he thought the U.S. would have to go along with pressure to seat Red China if such a move were made a condition of peace in Asia.

Former prime minister Clement Attlee, who headed Britain's government when it recognized Mao Tze-Tung Jan. 6, 1950, touched off a trans-Atlantic furore with a demand in the House of Commons May 19 for Peiping to be given China's seat with the big five and that Britain start "heart-to-heart" talks with the Americans immediately on how such matters as the UN representation, trade and related topics are to be handled after the armistice.

Did Not Answer Attlee

Prime Minister Churchill did not answer Attlee except to comment that those of Attlee's views seeking peace while the actual fighting is going on.

Attlee answered: "No, soon after the armistice."

President Eisenhower announced May 14 he would not say at that moment that admission of Peiping to the UN should follow an armistice.

The British have been ignored by the Red Chinese since they recognized the Peiping regime. They have seen their investments and trade in Red lands and in so many restrictions slapped upon them that they finally closed shop in Shanghai and Tientsin, totally totalling $640,000,000.

March 17, Attlee inquired what the Churchill government was doing about Red China. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden replied in the House that Britain will oppose admitting to Peiping as long as the Chinese Reds are "in full aggression against United Nations and shooting down our troops."

Forty countries — two-thirds of the UN membership of 60—must vote to accept the credentials of a Peiping delegation and reject those of Chiang Kai-shek's delegates before Peiping can legally enter the UN.

Only 37 of the UN members have recognized Red China.

The trouble between Britain and the United States on the recognition question basically involves a differing conception of the meaning of recognition.

Britain explained that its recognition merely took note of the reality that Communist China was the governing power in China, and that recognition certainly did not imply approval or disapproval of any regime.

The United States, in deciding not to recognize Peiping, based its position on the belief that recognition also means tacit approval.

"Britain went along with the majority in the UN assembly in a historic vote Feb. 1, 1951, to describe Communist China an aggressor in Korea.

This was the first time the UN had struck such a big power such a bad name.

Postal Employees Want More Money, Shorter Week

TORONTO (CP)—A meeting of postal employees Sunday decided to ask post office authorities to introduce a working week of five eight-hour days, pay for overtime, a general increase of $500 a year and collective bargaining rights.

Charles Axford, president of the Toronto branch of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers, said the turnover among letter carriers in the Toronto area is about 100 a month, highest in staff history. He said the turnover in Welland is 100 per cent.

Present top salary for letter carriers is $2,850 a year, attained usually after three years. Starting salary was raised last week from $2,340 to $2,500. These salaries are based on a 44-hour week. Carriers on residential walks work 48 hours but get one week off every 12 weeks.

Diplomats Burgess, MacLean Who Vanished Two Years Ago Still Sought by Police

LONDON (AP)—On the night of May 25, 1951, two men answered aboard the excursion steamer "Falaise" at Southampton. The next morning they stepped ashore at St. Malo, France, got into a taxi and drove 60 miles to the railway station at Rennes. They stepped out of the taxi—into oblivion, so far as the Western world is concerned.

The two men were British diplomats Guy Burgess, 40, and Donald MacLean, 38. Now, two years later, they are still being sought by Western Europe's best cloak-and-dagger talent as the central figures in one of the world's most spectacular vanishing acts.

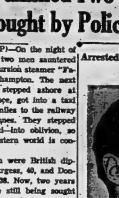
Authoritative sources refuse to admit that Burgess and MacLean have slipped behind the Iron Curtain. But the trail is cooling fast and they admit it. One official source said: "Of course, say clue that turns up will be vigorously investigated, but the trail is pretty cold and it's getting colder."

Hunted in Europe

On the other hand, Britons find it hard to believe that two diplomats could drop out of sight so completely despite hot pursuit by police and undercover agents from every country in Western Europe. At the time, Burgess and MacLean were being hunted by 13,000 intelligence men and police.

The alternative, it is widely believed, is that Burgess and MacLean went behind the Iron Curtain. But neither the Soviet Union nor any of her satellites has ever admitted this.

Burgess and MacLean were foreign office experts on United States affairs and MacLean at the time was last on the American-Canadian-British wartime committee which handled political aspects of the atom bomb.



M. I.5, Britain's most secret military intelligence outfit, spread its net wide throughout Western Europe in an effort to locate the two men. The Secret Service—France's Second Yard—probed even the faintest clues; nothing.

Many speculations have been advanced as to their fate—the two men went to North Africa and joined the French Foreign Legion; they entered a monastery.

Two Telegrams Received

Foreign office officials said the most sent telegrams to relatives shortly after their disappearance. Two from Paris were attributed to MacLean. One was addressed to his American wife, the former Mel-

Arrested in Death of Young Girl

Arrested in a restaurant at Cochrane, Ontario, 22-year-old Mervyn James Hutson, a railway gang cook, was returned to North Bay to face a murder charge involving the death of three-year-old Susan Hope Hutchins. The almost nude body of the youngster was found by three others on the outskirts of North Bay more than 24 hours after she had been left by her mother in the care of Hutson, an acquaintance of her family for past two years. In 1947 Hutson, seen above, was confined to a mental institution. A year later he was acquitted of the murder of his mother, who was hacked to death with a hatchet May 20, 1948, as she prepared supper in her four-room bungalow in Timmins. — Central Press Canadian.

inda Marling of Chicago, saying: "Had to leave unexpectedly. Sorry, darling. I love you. Please do not stop loving me. Donald." The other, to his mother, Lady MacLean, read: "I am quite all right. Do not worry. Love to all." It was unsigned.

One attributed to Burgess was addressed to his mother, Mrs. J. R. Bassett. It said: "Terribly sorry for my silence. Am embarking on long Mediterranean holiday. Do forgive, Guy."

British officials breath easier as time passes. Although the two men were experts on foreign policies when they vanished, events are rapidly cutting their value to a foreign power by outdating their knowledge. No documents were found on Burgess and MacLean disappeared.

Comfortable Quarters Feature R.C.A.F. Base in Germany

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany (CP) —More than 700 RCAF personnel settling in at this third Canadian airbase in Europe will be on top of the world if they appreciate material comforts.

The men and women who fly and maintain the Sabre jets of Canada's No. 3 fighter wing officially took over this German-built, French-financed base late last month.

Visitors here for the international ceremony saw enough to convince them that the spacious, cream-colored offices, barracks and recreation centres add up to something hard to beat in service setups.

"They haven't noised a thing," said a touring RCAF officer, eyeing the amenities of theatre, gymnasium and working and living premises.

Barracks features include tiled bathrooms, carpets, easy chairs and two-bed cubicles. There is a Protestant and Roman Catholic church. Asphalt roads and cement sidewalks are installed and there is visible evidence of extensive landscaping plans.

Sumptuous Living

"This is the sergeants' mess," said a guide, indicating a sumptuous, roomy lounge, its walls banked with chesterfields, easy chairs and low tables. Other messes, he said, are on similar lines.

Sombine streamed through half-wall windows, except where black-out curtains, doubling as shades, served as a reminder of why Canadian airmen are here.

No. 3 fighter wing is Canada's third European aerial contribution to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. A fourth wing will be added this year.

This first Canadian airbase on German soil lies atop a plateau, surrounded by rolling, wooded terrain pocked with the ruined pillboxes of Hitler's Siegfried line. Some had walls 21 feet thick.

German bulldozers bit into the rust-colored earth two years ago to initiate construction. German labor moulded French designs into the virtually finished project at undisclosed cost. The expense is being met by France from German war-reparation payments.

Wooden Tents

Quiet, 30,000 - population, Zweibrucken, nearest city, was nearly destroyed by Allied bombs just before the war ended. The raid was summoned to try to smoke out a pocket of diehard Germans, but when the bombs dropped they were gone.

War devastation makes for tight housing. That's the complaint of personnel looking for accommodation for the limited number of dependents that now can be brought from Canada at government expense under certain conditions.

It adds, too, to the wing's diplomatic problems. Most of the Canadians are too new here to assess their position. One young officer said Zweibrucken is a conservative town—"you meet girls in the family home, not in the streets."

Perhaps the best illustration of German reaction to the past is the story, perhaps apocryphal, of a house-hunting RCAF man and his landlady. She said it was too bad the Allies had bombed Zweibrucken so heavily. The RCAF man replied quietly that places such as London, Coventry and Liverpool had suffered, too.

"Ah yes," said the German woman, "but the Allies used such big bombs."

The cheese factory, with refrigeration system, situated on the fourth concession Rawdon, was sold to Mr. Walter Warren and it is understood he plans to convert it into an apple storage plant. Various items of factory equipment were sold individually also a large garage.

Built in 1903

This factory was built in 1902 and has been in continual operation for the past 50 years. Various cheesemakers have operated the factory and it was flourishing until recent years when the milk supply was curtailed. Last season the factory only operated two months.

At a recent meeting of shareholders and patrons it was unanimously decided to dispose of the business and not try to operate this season.

Consequently a committee was appointed to make arrangements for the auction sale and the last president, Mr. Walter Warren, was authorized to see that the various shareholders be reimbursed. It is alleged these are well over 400 shares held by various residents of this district and by former residents who now reside elsewhere.

Up-to-Date Apartment

The factory has an up-to-date apartment upstairs with comfortable living quarters where the cheesemakers have lived during their stay at the factory.

The factory is in the heart of the agricultural district, and now another landmark for the cheese industry has been discontinued.

Earlier this season, Springbrook cheese factory ceased to function and the building and equipment were sold, and moved off the premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Heasman and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Donohoe, of the River Valley community, in Sidney township, spent a recent Sunday at Ottawa and viewing the masses of tulips on display. They report a most enjoyable scenic drive along the canal.

Mr. Keith Clancy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Clancy, sixth concession Rawdon, underwent an appendectomy in Belleville General Hospital on Saturday.

Born — At the Sine Maternity Home, Rawdon township, to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bateman, Jr., Springbrook, a daughter — a sister for Louise, on Thursday, May 20, 1953.

The Past Grands' Club members and several friends enjoyed a trip to Peterborough on Wednesday and held their meeting at the home of Misses Evelyn and Cora Bailey.

Several ladies from Rawdon and Sidney township attended the I.O.D.E. afternoon tea and home cooking sale at the home of Mrs. Albert Fraser.

Miss Flossie Howbush, Trent River, is holidaying in Toronto with her friend, Miss Gladys Bly.

"Airport overcast! Where's the plane that wants to be 'talked in' for a safe landing?"

"We send out a short burst of radar detector waves, they find the plane and bounce back as our radar screen. We've got him spotted and can guide him down to the runway."

The Ground Control Approach (G.C.A.) Technician grins.

"Radar waves travel at the speed of light so if the 'echo' took two seconds to reach our screen, we'd know the pilot was at the impossible distance of 186,000 miles from base. Native Dancer Stretches Neck, Wins Preakness Over Jamie K; Gem Third, Dark Star Fifth

BALTIMORE (AP)—The experts can go on arguing today whether Native Dancer is great, good or just the best of a poor crop, but there's no question the grey colt has excited the public more than any horse, probably since Man O'War.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's pride proved conclusively in Saturday's Preakness he has that indefinable quality of colors.

Rarely, if ever, has a race horse been applauded by the crowd walking to the post as he was at Pimlico by 30,756.

Never has a horse caused such a distortion of betting.

There was $656,639 bet on the seven horses and $546,983 of it was on Native Dancer. Moreover, while they put $85,705 on him to win and $79,382 for second, bettors poured in an amazing $381,776 on him for third.

Guinard Lays

This was outsmarting the racing laws of Maryland. The state grant, assess 10 cents on the dollar, and the Dancer didn't figure to be much, if anything, over that to win. He wasn't, paying only $2.60 for first and 20 cents less in the next two spots. Pimlico had to fork over $46,012 of its own money to make the minimum payoff.

So great was the public faith in Native Dancer that the net inward win odd was $11.20 for $1 on Royal Ray Gem. And this disparity despite the fact that Native Dancer had been beaten three weeks before in the Kentucky Derby by Dark Star, one of his competitors in the Preakness.

The public made Dark Star their third choice at $11.30 to $1 and he finished fifth.

Some of the experts still weren't fully satisfied at Native Dancer's greatness after Saturday's race. Their reluctance was due to his failure to win by any more than a long neck over Jamie K, the surprisingly game fighter who had won but three of 18 previous races against mediocre competition.

These experts want to wait for the Belmont, final event of the triple crown, June 13 when Jamie K, and his jockey, Eddie Arcaro, will have another chance.

Both trainer Bill Winfrey and owner Vanderbilt felt that Native Dancer had run a stronger race in the Derby in which he suffered his only defeat in 14 starts.

Which at least proved he could still beat the best of his three-year-old competitors on an off-day. Nor he showed he could knock down the early speed horses, such as Dark Star and Tahitian King, and then hold off such a late comer as Jamie K.

Tahitian King faded back to next to last behind Dark Star while Correspondent, who also had started fast in front of Native Dancer, pulled in a sad last.

Royal Ray Gem was third by a conclusive six lengths and Ram O'War took fourth place money.

The experts also cast appraising eyes at Native Dancer's winning time of 1.57 4-5 for the 1 3-16 miles and were inclined to sniff.

The record of 1.56 was set by Capot in 1949.

STRUCK BY FLYING WHEEL

HULL, Que. (CP)—Eleven-year-old Raymond Coad of Hull was critically injured Sunday when he was hit by a flying wheel from a racing car at the Beamishill stock car racetrack, 10 miles west of here. The driver, Norm Miller, escaped injury. The wheel broke away on a turn, bounced over a low retaining wall and hit the boy in the chest.

Diesels Defeat Bobcats 19-3

Bob Temple's Bobcats went down to a slugging 19-3 defeat when they tangled with the C.N.R. Diesels at the Alemite field Saturday evening. Previously listed as a B.D.S.L. League game, the contest was later announced as only exhibition.

The Diesels opened up the scoring in the first frame, grabbing two runs against the Bobcats goose egg. In the second, the Bobcats got their first while the C.N.R. were held scoreless. C.N.R. copped three more runs in the third, five in the fourth and six in the fifth with Bob's still restricted to their one run in the second. Slowed down a little in the next three innings, the Diesels got one in each while the Bobcats again went scoreless.

The Bobcats last two runs came in the ninth frame as the Diesels were blanked. Vern Goyer for C.N.R. smashed out the only home run of the game in the fifth frame. He doubled in the seventh and went on to make the four bases as the ball scooted between the left fielder's legs.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP)—Five Canadian track records were broken Saturday at the Canadian open relay championships held at Varsity Stadium here. Only 100 fans watched the 200 athletes representing the 20 events. Competitors were mainly from Toronto and district.

A Toronto two-mile field four-some broke the mark for the four-mile open relay. They knocked 24.8 seconds off the old mark of 19:14 set by the University of British Columbia team in 1949.

Hamilton Delta Collegiate lowered the four-mile high school sprint relay record by 9:10 second by pounding out the half-mile course in 1:31.9. A Toronto secondary schools track club took the 440-yard juvenile relay in 45.5 seconds. The old record was 46.6 seconds.

Hamilton Central Collegiate broke the 880-yard high school spring relay record with a time of 1:34.1, 7/10 second better than the old mark. Another Toronto secondary schools quartet cracked the juvenile 880-yard spring relay in 1:35.8 against the old mark of 1:36.6.

FRANKFORD

Lions Hockey Club Gets Leather Jackets

Frankford — The Lions' Club of Frankford entertained the "Frankford Lions" hockey team at their regular meeting Wednesday night. A fine repast was enjoyed prior to the business of the evening.

Following the meal, Lion Arthur Duncan, president of the Trent Valley Hockey League, welcomed the hockey players and spoke on the great showing the Trent Valley Hockey League had made this year.

Leather Jackets Presented

Team manager Lion Oscar Farrar and Lion Ray Scott presented each player with a red leather jacket on behalf of the Lions Club. As the jackets were presented Coach Mac Watson, of the team, lettered each player. Captain Roy Cooke of the hockey club, thanked the Lions for the beautiful jackets.

A program of moving pictures was enjoyed by all. Several contests were conducted. Among the winners were Lion Harry Pearce, Bd Loucks and Holt Madill.

The Lions plan to have a social evening in June before discontinuing meetings for the summer. June 3 will be election of officers and all Lions are urged to be out.

Coronation Parade

The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion is making extensive plans for Coronation Day. A parade will be formed in the morning at 10 o'clock at the Legion hall, including Legionnaires and Auxiliary members, Scouts, Guides and other organized groups. School children are invited to join in the parade, which will be led by the Frankford Citizens' Band.

Immediately following the parade, the Legion Barrel Derby will be held at 11 a.m. The "Thing" will be placed in the raceway at No. 6 dam, and its progress down the river to the bridge will be timed by stop-watch. The person guessing the correct time will receive a cash prize with four runner-up prizes being awarded as well.

Coronation Ceremonies

In the afternoon, through the courtesy of W. F. Rose, of Frankford Radio and Electric Shop, television sets in the Legion Hall will carry the Coronation ceremonies. All citizens of Frankford who do not have television facilities are invited to come to the Legion hall to watch them from 1.00 to see the television story of the Coronation.

In the evening about 8.30, a social evening will be held in the Legion hall for veterans, wives and families.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Billy Loes, Brooklyn's unpredictable and somewhat bemused young right-hander, was asked how he explained the fact that he almost invariably follows one of his brilliant performances with an exhibition so horrible it gives manager Chuck Dressen the shakes. "I can't figure it out, myself," Billy replied, pounding in the last few years, they say, and now balances the beam at a robust 16½. The big fellow now outweighs several of his more prominent rivals, including Lloyd Mangrum.

Al LOPEZ, The Cleveland manager, is quoted as saying he would bench Ray Boone and use George Strickland regularly at shortstop if he had a hitting catcher to replace Jim Hegan. While Boone hurts the Indians with his fielding he's a far better fielder than Strickland. "With Strickland, Hegan and our pitcher batting in order," Lopez says, "it means we bat in only six innings to the other club's nine."

The most intriguing item of the young baseball season, for our money, is the fact that the Phillies played 27 games before one of their number hit a triple. Is that good? Does it mean that Steve O'Neill's athletics are such mighty clobbers that they disdain anything short of a home run, or does it mean that Steven is trying to win a flag with two pitchers and a cover of leadfoots who can't run farther than second?

GUELPH-BORN MINISTER

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OOD SHOW!

Warden Dick Allan, boss man of the Kingston Penitentiary, extended a warm welcome to his Belleville cousin on Sunday, Allan added her greetings at the Allen's well-appointed home a short distance from the "big house."

As it was the occasion of the opening of the softball season for the "Saints" institution team, the Belleville Glen Rogs had been invited as special playing, not staying, guests for the certain raleer.

There is still a bit o' the heather about Warden Allan (spell that with two "a's", Mr. Compositor, or you'll hae the wrath o' the Highland shoot yer neck), and he and his grand lady were effusive in their greetings.

After a basker or two o' the best barley water, the topic turned to sport. The pretty colors of blooming tulips, the marvellous greening of trees and shrubbery, the pebbly beauty of spring flowers may herald spring, softball, baseball and golf, etc., to the most of people, but to the Allans the memory of that Goodyear sealer "E" hockey championship is as green as the everygreens in their spacious garden.

"This junior team won the all-Ontario championship in softball circles last year," commented Don Lee, "and while they lack three or four players should give the Saints a run for their money."

"We are expected to get by the Oshawa Merchants," said Mrs. Allan, "that was what we thought would be the stumbling block."

Art Black mentioned something about the softball kids playing a hard game in Oshawa in the second round of the finals last year.

Gosth the Warden: "I thought Belleville gave us a better battle in the playoffs than did the Lyndhurst team."

We ventured another tack. "Who do you think are the top two leading hitters in the American League?"

Mrs. Allan sighed and said Joe Watts and Nicholson. "Besides," added the Warden, "the team never played bet. for three years. Ashley Carr-Harris took over."

"I think the Glens are going to use Bobby Green, ace pitchander against your club, Warden," offered Lee.

"Yeah," replied Dick, "Kenny Parth was a good centre, too, as good as that Peter Jones, who played for Belleville.

"What kind of a team is this Saints aggregation of yours?" somebody asked.

"Oh, they're good, they're good," said Dick, "but I think had that first Goodyears-Belleville game gone another two minutes we would have won by a boothal."

"That big Geyer, who ever called him a hockey player? Why he's big and tough and really rough with our boys," said Mrs. Allan. "But," she sighed, "I wish we had him."

"Are the Saints as good a team this year as last?" came from somebody.

"They'll be as good as last year, we hope," smiled Dick. "Ken Johnson will be back in the nets. MacGregor and Murray will be back, but one or two of the veterans may hang up their skates next season. If Johnny Carr-Harris is retained as coach we will more than likely repeat for the title.

In serious vein, the game played between the Glen Rog juniors and the 1933 edition of the Kingston Saints, was "one for the book." It was a thriller from start to finish and went into eyertime. Johnny Batchelor was the hero of the piece with a well-hitting home run in the tenth that decided the issue. But a dazzling play in the bottom of the tenth when the Saints had a man on third with none out, really locked the door.

The Saints have a hard-fighting team, one that can hit, run and field with the best of them. They racked up four runs in the first inning off Bobby Green and on their own side tossed a couple of hurlers against the Glens who would go well in any senior company.

The teams played before a "packed house" and the spectators were generous with their applause. Naturally the "hometowners" were favored but the fans did not forget to express their appreciation of outstanding plays by the Glens. The place was tense with excitement in the ninth, when, with the score 8-8 for the Saints, Peter Green drew a walk and scored on Junior Day's mighty triple that bounced off the centre field wall. And the crowd stood up and roared when Davy Jones' single to left brought in Day with the tying run.

Goyer went out in the top of the tenth and Johnny Batchelor made his mighty homer to deep left centre. There was a roar when Johnny slammed into the Saints third baseman who stood on the base-path and knocked him toppling before he galloped home. But the roar was for Johnny and not the Saint.

The other thrill came in the Saints' half of the tenth. McKillop drove a triple to right centre to start the inning. Warner rolled a grounder to the box and Doug Radmer on the mound for the Glens, whipped the ball to Gerry Goyer on first, who flashed it back to Peter Green at the plate in time to nip the runner racing in from third. It was championship play and the Glens got a great ovation from the stands.

Later the party was taken on a tour of the institution. It went through the spotless kitchens while the people were being served the evening meal. Here 1,000 pounds of bread and ten bags of potatoes are consumed at one sitting. The meal was a substantial one, typical of the fine fare served by the institution. Then on to the well-equipped radio room and other places of interest, ending with the waiting room where products of handicraft of the inmates are on display and for sale.

It was truly an enjoyable afternoon and this department expresses the appreciation of the Glen Rog Athletic Club and other guests to Warden Allan and his staff for a very pleasant Sunday afternoon's entertainment.

(P.S.—We didn't notice Lorne Cook around the place. Surely he was not in "solitary.")

Pee Wee Reese, Carl Furillo Hit Bases-Loaded Triples As 'Bums' Rout Five Phil Hurlers

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Who said Philadelphia's a dead town on Sunday. Brooklyn Dodgers think it's gayer than Paris, louder than Coney Island and wilder than an office Christmas party.

When you score 12 runs in an inning, before a man is out, as the Brooks did Sunday in the eighth at Connie Mack Stadium, no town is dull. The great fining gave the Dodgers a 15-3 victory but still left them in fourth place in the National League race.

Milwaukee split a doubleheader with Chicago Sunday, winning 5-4 and losing 5-2, to keep the half-game margin with which they took the top spot Saturday. St. Louis clobbered into second place on Gerry Staley's five-hit pitchers of Cincinnati, 9-0, and New York Giants belted Pittsburgh 13-5.

Johnny Sain's batting and pitching for the Yankees' triumph over Boston Saturday, 4-3, changed still 3½ games out front in the American League. Cleveland moved into second place on two wins over St. Louis, 5-1, and 9-8. Chicago held third beating Detroit 3-1. Washington topped Philadelphia 6-2.

At Philadelphia, the Dodgers walked or hit before an out was made in the eighth inning. Five runs turned a neat 4-2 game into a rout before five Phil pitchers managed to get three. It took 42 minutes to play the half inning. 16 Dodgers batted.

Triples with the bases loaded by Pee Wee Reese and Carl Furillo did the most damage. Five more Phil pitchers in one inning tied a major league record. The 15 runs fell short of the modern record of 17 set by the Cincinnati Reds against Cincinnati in the first inning of a May 21 game last year. The all-time record is 18 by Chicago in 1897.

Milwaukee started Johnny Antonelli against Chicago in the first game and relieved with him in the second, getting off with a split. The Braves scored five runs in the second inning of the opener on one hit, two walks, two errors and a fly ball to hand Warren Hacker his seventh loss. Vern Bickford won on relief.

The Giants smothered Pittsburgh with the help of Bobby Thomson and Alvin Dark, who teamed to bat in a total of six runs. Thomson homered for the Giants and Carlos Bernier hit his first big league homer off Ben Cantwell.

Al Rosen's three-run homer in the first game and Jim Busby's grand slam in the second game were the big blows in Cleveland's two victories. Early Wynn threw a four-hitter in the first to best Bobo Holloman for his first win. Dave Hoskins, second of four tribe pitchers, took the second over Bob Cain.

Sam Mele's double and Jim Rivera's single helped the White Sox in the ninth for White Sox' victory over the Tigers.

Washington bunched all its six hits in the first two innings while Connie Marrero parcelled out nine Philadelphia hits along nine innings to cop his fourth.

In the National League Saturday, Brooklyn defeated Philadelphia 5-0, Preacher Roe topping Robin Roberts in a pitching duel. Ed Matheny eighth homer and Lew Burdette's fine relief pitch-ington.

In the American League, New York beat Boston Red Sox 3-2 behind Vic Raschi's four-hit pitching. Al Rosen, Larry Doby and Joe Tipton homered in Cleveland's 5-1 win over St. Louis. Joe Dobson was the winner and Fred Garver the loser as Chicago defeated Detroit 4-2 on a three-run ninth-inning rally. Harry Byrd, the first of three pitchers, was the winner as Philadelphia won 8-6 from Washington.

Leafs Drop Two Over Week-end Still Lead Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although they lost two out of three week-end games to Rochester, Toronto Maple Leafs today are out front in the International Baseball League as the erstwhile leaders, Buffalo Bisons, dropped three in a row. Montreal Royals moved into second place with two victories in three games and Buffalo fell to third.

Saturday Rochester Red Wings edged Toronto 3-2 and the two teams split a Sunday doubleheader, Rochester taking the first 5-4 and Toronto the second 3-0.

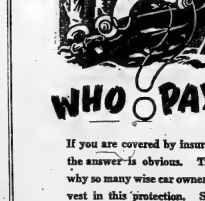
Buffalo was humbled 6-3 by Syracuse Chiefs Saturday and lost a Sunday twin-bill to Baltimore Orioles, 11-5 and 4-3.

Montreal defeated Springfield Cubs 3-4 Saturday, bowed to them 5-3 in the Sunday opener and took the second 7-2.

Ottawa Athletics split both ends of a doubleheader from Baltimore Saturday, 9-3 and 4-3 and did a repeat against Syracuse Sunday, 5-1 and 7-4.

In records Sunday, Lou Sleater, Leaf southpaw, got off to a bad start in the first game, giving the Wings one run in the first and three in the second. The Leafs tied it up with a four-run third-inning rally, but Leo Ortiz sent the winning run in with a single in the sixth.

Toronto spaced their three runs in the second game. Starter Denis Reeder took the loss and Don Johnson the win.



Ron Northey's grandslam homer in the fifth inning of the opener was enough to give Springfield their Sunday win over Montreal. They started strongly in the second game but two homers by Rocky Nelson, one in the first with one on and another in the seventh with two aboard, did the trick for Montreal.

Fine relief pitching proved the strong point as Ottawa took both their Sunday games. Ed Bartecki relieved Ed Hrabcezak with the score tied and the bases loaded in the seventh inning of the first to get out the fire and Bob Trice relieved Al Romberger in the fourth of the nightcap, again with the bases tied, and added a win to his record.

Glen Roys Edge Kingston Saints In Ten-Inning Softball Thriller

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Bill Spofford's Glen Roy juniors, last year all-Ontario softball champions, won a last-minute thriller from the Kingston Saints in an exhibition game on Sunday. The score was 9-8.

The Glens played up to championship form in the ninth and tenth innings of a hard-fought game. Down two runs going into the ninth, the Glens evened the count when Junior Day made a mighty triple to the left field wall to score Peter Green who had walked. Day raced home with the tying run when Dewey Jones lashed out a clean single to centre field.

The Glens went on to win in similar thrilling fashion. Doug Redner, who had relieved Bobby Green early in the game, set the Saints down in order in the bottom of the ninth. Spofford's first man up in the tenth, grounded out. Then Johnny Batchelor, who had gone after a throughout the game, blasted a wall-touching home run that ultimately gave the Glens the victory.

The youngsters protested their defeat when they came to bat in the bottom of the tenth with sparkling shortstop Jack McGilley, Saints' second baseman, drove a screaming triple to the right wall. Warner Hall scored McGilley for a box. Redner scooped the ball, whirled and threw to Day at first for the out and the big first-sacker in one motion flung the ball to the plate to nip the runner in a dazzling double play. The next batter flied out to end the game.

Year in First

The Saints scored four runs in the first inning on five hits, a pair of walks and a passed ball. They added two more in the fifth on two hits and two walks and another brace in the fifth off three solid singles. The Glens got one single in the first and blasted out four runs in the fifth to cut the Saints' lead to 8-5.

Bradner got a hits and Barclay clambered to second on Bradner's Saints' error. Carr lashed out a long double to left field to score Gerry Goyer followed with a swinging triple, scoring boo. Goyer scored on Hall's wheeler to second home on a passed ball.

Singles by Day, Batchelor and Carr accounted for the Glens' sixth run in the eighth and they came the third time at bat to give the Glens tie the count and go on to win.

Bobby Green started for the Glens and lasted until the fourth giving up hits in that time to Doug Bradner took over and yielded two runs for a half dozen clouts.

Woods, a husky bolo hurler, started for the Saints but did as far as the fifth after giving up five hits for as many runs. Littlefair, another Saints' hurler, relieved him and finished the game. He was pitching the best ball good for four runs. Littlefair pitched a no-hit no-run game against a Kingston team in his previous appearance.

Junior Day led the Glens' offensive with a triple and two singles. Batchelor hit a homer and Claude Carr was good for a double and a single with Dewey Jones, Warner Hall, Bobby Green getting singles. Gerry Goyer smashed out a triple and Peter Green a double.

McKillop was the power at the plate for the Saints with a triple and two singles with Thompson, Fazekis, Johnson, Kaveskie, Constantine, Hendrikson, Carr, McKillop, 2b; Warner, lf; Woods, p; Littlefair, p.

Expects to Run Four-Minute Mile

JAMES, Ia. (AP)—Wes Santee, the slender 21-year-old Kansas University junior, expects to run the long-talked-of four-minute mile before he is graduated next spring.

There is good reason for his confidence. Santee raced to a U. S. collegiate mark of 4:06.7 Saturday as Kansas won the big seven conference track title.

Discussing with reporters his chances of running a four-minute mile, Wes said:

"Of course conditions have to be just right, and I think I will get those conditions before I graduate next spring."

Santee's mile mark knocked out the 18-year-old record of 4:06.7 by Glenn Cunningham, another Kansas great.

Allert College Second in Track Field Meet

KINGSTON (CP) — Twelve records were established at the fourth annual Kingston and district track and field meet Saturday at which attracted about 200 entries from nine eastern Ontario schools.

Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute won the grand aggregate trophy with a total of 69 points. Allert College of Belleville was second with 37 points and Gananoque followed with 36 points.

Gananoque's junior boys with 37 points took home the junior section trophy. Allert College was strongly in the intermediate class with 37 points. Brockville boys, with 18 points, took school honors. Allert College of Belleville collected 61 points to win the senior events.

In the junior group, KCVI girls gathered 27 points to win easily over Gananoque's five points. The Napanee girls, with a strong intermediate squad, were cause for alarm in this class with 18 points followed by KCVI with 11.

KCVI boys set six of the 12 records. Two were established when Doug Munroe clipped nine-tenths of a second off the 200-yard record, lowering it to 24.1 seconds. In the 440 he set a mark of 53.8 seconds.

Small Percentage Canuck Golfers 'Beat Boros'

TORONTO (CP) — The United States Open Golf champion, Julius Boros, will play at the Oakmount country Club at Pittsburgh Saturday, Canadian Press learned. 1,362 Canadian golfers tried to beat him; 418 did.

The 418 will be presented with bronze medals bearing the words "Beat the U.S. Open champion, Julius Boros, May 23, 1953."

The Canadian Press spokesman was known officially as the second annual national golf day tournament sponsored jointly in Canada by the Royal Canadian Golf Association, The Canadian Professional Golfers' Association and the U.S. magazine Golf World. Prizes are shared by the Canadian Red Cross and the golf associations of Canada for the promotion of golf among juniors.

The divot-diggers improved on Boros' score of 70—aided by their club handicaps, except in the case of Walt Mexsby, former Oakmount amateur champion, who shot 69 in Vancouver without a handicap.

In Toronto, 122 of the 1,941 competitors beat Boros, as did 31 of the 222 in London, Ont., 34, of about 1,400 in Montreal, and 11 out of 370 in Ottawa, 12 out of 254 in Windsor, Ont., 95 out of 998 in Winnipeg and 97 out of 785 in Vancouver.

Red Sox Blank Waterloo 6-0, Extend Lead

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If their starting record is any criterion Brantford Red Sox will likely be a strong contender for top honors in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League. They currently lead the league.

The Red Sox enlarged that lead Saturday night with a 6-0 shutout of Waterloo Tigers.

In other league games London Majors defeated Guelph Maple Leafs 5-1; Kitchener Panthers edged Galt Terriers 2-1; Ottawa Merchants set back St. Thomas Elgins 6-1 in an afternoon game and 23-3 in a night game.

Behind the Brantford victory was lanky Bob Thurman. Negro lefthander, who put on a one-man show both in pitching and batting departments. He limited the Tigers to five hits, three of which were Billy Flick. The Tigers' Gord Arlen who was doing well until the seventh when he weakened, was relieved by a three-run homer.

The Red Sox collected but four little trouble with Guelph. Majors' pitcher Bob Penney gave the Leafs only four hits in the first seven straight win. Guelph starter Sid Gaetz was the loser.

Jerry Mack of London, hitless in his first four games, homered with one on in the second and his third inning single hammered home two more tallies.

Little Mel Duncan, Kitchener pitcher, held Galt to only four hits. It was Galt's fourth straight loss in five tries. Earl Hansell was charged with the loss. Hugh McGillivray was Panther's leader, tripling with two on in the sixth into deep centre in the seventh. Bob Gaetz drove a single to the second to nip a Panther threat.

The Ottawa afternoon victory was bolstered by a four-hit effort by Ted Stone who gave up only six hits and unloaded Flyers' four frames before tiring. It was Ottawa's fifth straight win and coupled with the night victory they moved into a sixth-place tie with Guelph.

In the night game the Merchants staged a wild 15-run second inning parade. Doug Munroe clipped nine-tenths of a second off the 200-yard record, lowering it to 24.1 seconds. In the 440 he set a mark of 53.8 seconds.

Bud Ray of Belleville Collegiate set records in the junior 100 and 200 yards. He ran the 100 yard in 11.1 seconds while in the 220 he established a record of 25.4 seconds. Mike Gaetz of Allert College, Belleville added 4½ feet to the senior shot put to set a mark of 42 feet 8½ inches.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What gives you the most trouble in bridge need not do so. By following the simplest rules you no longer have trouble with any of the hands that have been troubling you.

Do you know what makes most bridge players such bad players? It is their attempt to use too many rules only a few of which they understand completely. They are better off with fewer rules.

For several days we will talk about this north hand:

♠J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3
♥A
♦Q 4
♣K J

The player who held this hand said their bidding went thus:

South	North
1 C	2 S
3 C	3 S
3 NT	Pass

His south partner had ace and king of spades. They made three no-trump. But south said north should not rebid spades; should say three no-trump over three clubs. They want my opinion.

My decisions are not based on opinion. Noted experts who write bridge columns never seem to need the same rules for similar hands. They are clever deducers. I am not that brilliant.

The result of one hand reflects not the slightest influence with me. A certain percentage of all the bridge deals will go sour with the soundest system. Only a fool expects otherwise.

The correctness of a bid is determined by rule; the same rule that applies to all hands, no matter how it turns out. And those who know the game best will admit that some must turn out bad.

From this can I tell you why a bid is wrong or right; why one other bid is right or wrong. And one hand is as good as another for giving the reasons. Let this one be the nucleus of a series.

Meantime, chew on it.

Movie Column

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —This summer will see no doldrums, as far as movie fare is concerned. In fact, theatres will be giving some of Hollywood's best pictures during the warm months.

Summer has been traditionally a slack season in the entertainment business. All but the best New York plays shut down, and the top radio and TV shows are replaced by smaller and cheaper programs. The theory is that people spend more time out of doors and vacationing during the summer.

The picture business has usually played mostly routines movies in the summer time, holding off its special attractions until the fall, when the biggest possible audience was available. This year will be different.

By the fall season, a good many theatres will be converted to big screens. The first picture made especially for wide screens—"The Robe"—will be released. By that time, Hollywood's new-dimensional revolution may get into high gear. Some are predicting that normal-sized films will become obsolete.

Capsule review: "Thunder Bay" combines all the elements for an engrossing movie. It has an intriguing and timely background—the drilling for oil in offshore Louisiana. It has an excellent cast, headed by James Stewart, Joanne Dru, Gilbert Roland and Dan Duryea. It has color, action and romance. The direction and writing are craftsmanlike. It lacks only a touch of genius to make it seem like reality.

Firestone Develops Sensational New Dri-Charged Battery

This revolutionary new Dri-Charged battery will give motorists longer, more economical service than conventional batteries now in use. Developed by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, the battery was made possible by a new glass separator and a plastic bottle that holds battery acid indefinitely.

Upon delivery to the customer the new Firestone Dri-Charged battery is "dry" when the battery acid is poured into the battery cells. The dry battery at this time seems to life and, from this point on, becomes the same as an ordinary wet storage battery. Demonstrating this simple process of energizing a Dri-Charged battery are E. W. Barbour, Firestone Merchandise Manager (right) and H. D. Shipman, Trade Sales Manager.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 26, 1953:

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Indications unfriendly in other than reliable, sound activities. Avoid any tendency to scatter energies or interests.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Day's activities may tend to lead you to widely differing lines. Choose what you think essential and go after it with will to succeed.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—We advise centering interests quickly on the vital matters. Watch outside elements that could cause difficulties, legal unpleasantness. Be calmly alert.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Expects not all stimulating. Knockout display or too set ideas will hurt chances of advancement. Solve problems by reason. And keep cheerful.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Guard well your economy; don't buy what you really do not need, save money for future times. Endorse only what you know is worth while.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Some adverse tendencies, but they are evident so—be on guard—you won't be befuddled. Seeking aid from able minds advised. Keep trying.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Move with extra care to insure better accuracy. But sidestep indecisiveness; be awake to real opportunity.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Caution, alertness are two things you might concentrate on today. Circumstances may tax your nerves, cause disappointments. But brighter days are ahead.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—There may seem little offered today yet the aspects are not against, just nil. The energetic, conscientious worker can make headway.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Personal affairs, romance can make pleasant progress if treated rightly. Do your best and you will not be disappointed.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Happy indications for the alert and eager who are willing to work hard. Don't heed temptations to take it easy now.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Co-operate with associates, at home, business, socially; but never forsake principle. A give-and-take spirit is the wise thing.

YOU BORN TODAY: Honor, fame, advancement are prominent with your ruling planet, the Sun. Your especial colors are yellow-brown, orange, gold; your flowers, mayflower, myrtle, lily of valley; stones, emerald, topaz. Gemini can succeed in varied fields, as broker, lawyer, politician, actor. Use your charm, for good ends always. Birthdate of many able personalities in business and the arts.

Employees Enjoy Hospitality Of President of Companies

PICTON — Employees of the McFarland Construction Company, Robindale Quarries, McFarland Lumber Company, Par Land Farms, were guests of the president, Hervey J. McFarland, at a banquet in Picton Armouries Friday night. Also among the 300 enjoying the hospitality of the mayor of Picton, were government representatives, members of parliament, county wardens and municipal officials of local and adjacent counties.

Head Table Guests

Head table guests were Hon. George Doucett, minister of highways and acting premier of Ontario; Senator W. A. Fraser of Trenton; George J. Tustin, M.P. for Prince Edward-Lennox; Elmer Sandercock, MPP Hastings South; Jack Pringle, MPP Frontenac-Addington; Roscoe Robson, MPP Hastings East; Norris Whitney, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox county wardens Clinton Green, Prince Edward; Fred McDonnell, Lennox; Lorne Aylesworth, Frontenac; Jack Kincaid, Hastings; Harvey McFarland Jr., and Malcolm McFarland, sons of the president; Arthur McFarland and F. L. Ward, Q.C., who presided for an outstanding program of entertainment by Toronto artists and short addresses which followed a sumptious turkey dinner.

A telegram from Everett Murphy, deputy minister of works, Ottawa, regretted his inability to attend and he sent good wishes to the firm and congratulations to the employees.

Tribute to Mr. McFarland as a builder of Canada was paid by Senator Fraser, who recalled the contractor's rise from humble beginnings to leadership among those in his line, success achieved through personal ability, hard work which knows no hours, and loyalty of employees. Referring to Mr. McFarland's friends among all political parties, the Senator referred to him as a political maverick, one embraced by all parties.

Minister To Attend

Hon. Mr. Doucett said he felt it an honor to attend this dinner as a tribute to a great organization, which is a tribute to its founder. He referred to the requirements of highway building and had praise for the local firm. Above all, he felt that Mr. McFarland had built highways of friendship which bind this great organization together.

Chairman F. L. Ward referred to Mr. McFarland as a great humanitarian, revealing several instances where families of those employed by the company were being provided with free medical aid and hospitalization.

Responding to the tributes, Mr. McFarland admitted that no day or week had sufficient hours for him and felt that no one could build up a business and maintain a home and family if he watched the clock all the time and limits himself to a 40-hour week. Though he could afford to retire, he said he felt a responsibility toward his employees. "It is my ambition to continue to work with each and every one if you'll work with me," he told his employees.

A bridge or bridges, connecting Hastings and Lennox Counties with Prince Edward county, was urged by the mayor as a development which would mean much to the whole area.

Mr. McFarland, in paying tribute to his office staff and his secretary, Miss Clare Fredrick, revealed that last year the McFarland Co., had a payroll of $3,578,450; Robindale Quarries, one of $730,430, and the lumber company, $150,000, as well, there are other payrolls to make a total of more than four and one-half million dollars. Success in meeting such obligations, he felt, demands loyalty and effort.

Mayer is Ousted from Premiership

French Premier Rene Mayer is seen, at left, leaving the president's office in Paris after submitting his resignation, the outcome of the ousting of his coalition cabinet. In office less than five months, the government was defeated 328 to 344 in a National Assembly vote of confidence in Mayer's demands for emergency measures to solve France's economic crisis. Most conservative of the 18 that have ruled France since the liberation, Mayer's cabinet was formed Jan. 7 after a 16-day crisis. Formation of a new government may be even more difficult this time, for the rapid turnover in cabinets has made the task of premier a thankless one. — Central Press Canadian.

CAMPBELLFORD

B.P.W. Club Sponsors Cinderella Ball

Campbellford—The Cinderella Ball sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club for the Hospital Fund, was held on Friday evening last at the Masonic Temple.

After many try-outs by different ladies present, Mrs. Vern Rose, Campbellford, was the lucky "Cinderella" whose petite foot fitted the size 4B slipper, fitted by Miss Elsie McPherson, of Maher Shoe store. Mrs. Rose was the recipient of the following gifts: the pair of shoes donated by Maher Shoe store; a beautiful spring bouquet, courtesy of Palliser florist; 12 theatre tickets, nylon hose, lingerie, perfumes, stationery, photos and a lovely necklace.

Mr. Vern Rose received a boutonniere.

The hall was beautifully decorated in a spring theme with the entrances being a garden trellis covered with climbing roses and the bandstand in the form of a bower. Each window was complete with window box and flowers and various plaques of birds, flowers, bunnies and other spring motifs decorated the walls.

Mr. Jack Cowing was the capable master of ceremonies and in the absence of Mayor Locke presented Cinderella with her many gifts.

Parents Mourn Loss of Firstborn

Words of comfort are given to his 19-year-old wife by Max Wywras, a garage mechanic at Inverness, N.S., following the death of their two boys, siamese twins, 36 hours after their birth by caesarean section at Inverness County Hospital. An autopsy on the babies — who were joined face-to-face from close to the neck to the navel by a bone — revealed that each had one liver but their hearts were contained in a single sac. Doctors said surgical separation would have been impossible. At birth their combined weight was 13 pounds. — Central Press Canadian.

British Flatten Egyptian Village Near Water Plant

Operation Designed to Wipe Out Position for Security

FAYID, Egypt (Reuters)—British troops today flattened an uninhabited Egyptian village adjoining a British water purifying plant 19 miles south of this Suez canal zone community.

The operation was designed to wipe out a position from which Egyptians could threaten the security of the plant.

It was the largest such precautionary action taken in the canal zone for months. It followed an outbreak of anti-British incidents which have occurred since Egypt suspended discussions with the British over evacuation of the Suez.

Reynaud Attempts To Form 19th Post-war Regime

PARIS (AP)—Paul Reynaud, premier up to the fall of France in 1940, agreed today to try to form France's 19th post-war government.

The right-of-centre leader, still spry despite his 74 years, said he would go before the National Assembly Wednesday to ask for confirmation.

Parliamentary observers were cautious about predicting success for Reynaud's efforts. An independent, he is recognized as a financial expert, but his conservative approach to the problems may not find favor with the predominantly left-wing National Assembly.

President Vincent Auriol has appealed to the Gaullists and Socialists; who helped bring down the government of Rene Mayer last week, to "make possible the formation and action of tomorrow's government."

He warned that the "gravity" of the situation risked "endangering the republic itself and harming France's influence and prestige abroad."

SABRE JETS DOWN TWELVE MIGS IN NEW BATTLES

Bombers Wipe Out 90 Communist Trucks

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—United States Sabre jets shot down 12 Communist MIGs and damaged another today, boosting their MIG kills this month to 51—12 less than the war's one-month record set last September.

Two sharpshooting pilots bagged two MIGs each in savage sky battles. Four others shared one.

Maj. James Jabara of Wichita, Kas., the world's first jet ace now serving his second combat tour in Korea, got two and boosted his total to 15.

The war's one-day record is 13 kills, one probable and seven damaged July 4, 1952. Today's was the biggest since May 18 when 12 Red jets were destroyed.

Five MIGs were shot down this morning and seven this afternoon, the last three at dusk.

Night-flying B-26 bombers wiped out 90 Communist trucks, destroyed a locomotive, seven box-cars and a railroad bridge in pre-dawn strikes, the air force said.

B-29 Superforts smashed 130-acre troop and supply area south of Hamhung on Korea's east coast and destroyed a bridge supply dump in the same area.

Ground fighting dwindled to patrol clashes.

Sky Duels Flare

The sky duels flared while bitter new fighting cover for 23 Sabre fighter - bombers which streaked across the Yalu River to attack what a troop concentration area on the outskirts of Sinuiju, Communist Namsi. The air force said 22 buildings were destroyed.

Sabre jets and prop-driven fighter - bombers slammed 1,000-pound bombs into Red anti-aircraft gun nestled south of Kumsong, attacked rail lines and supply areas, the air force said. Flights totalling hundreds hurled mortar shore batteries and other installations on the Korean east coast navy announced.

Maj. Leo Mintas of Red Bank, N. J., who shot down two MIGs, described his twin killing.

"We picked up the MIGs at 40,000 feet," he said. "The No. 1 and No. 2 broke off to the left of me and I went after them. I started after No. 1 and I broke off when he got my tail. Then I was on his tail.

"I came around and locked onto him and fired a few short bursts from 1,000 feet. He caught fire and began to smoke. He went into a spin and I followed him down to 10,000 feet where he went into a dive and exploded on the ground. I did not see the pilot eject.

Crowds on Hand to Cheer Queen At Abbey Coronation Rehearsal

LONDON (CP)—Smiling happily, the Queen went to Westminster Abbey today for a rehearsal of her crowning. She looked more at ease than the stage managers for Coronation only a week away.

Extra police were called to hold back the cheering crowd of 2,000 as they pressed forward for a closer view of the royal party.

The Queen appeared to enjoy her own preview of what to expect June 2. She smiled graciously, calling twinkling knowing glances at Prince Philip of Edinburgh, who rode with her.

Elizabeth looked dainty and cool despite the hot sun. She wore a trim dove-grey, white spotted taffeta two-piece suit with a flared skirt, elbow-length white gloves and a close-fitting white hat trimmed with a regular coronet.

The duke was in a navy blue lounge suit and carried a bowler hat.

They were met at the annex entrance by the Very Rev. Eric Graham of Norfolk, who is directing the ceremony.

For the Queen, who knows her part to perfect already, it was her fourth rehearsal in the church and devoted to the climactic part of the ceremony—the crowning.

It was a private tryout. Doors of the abbey were closed to the public.

The Queen looked as fresh and as relaxed as when she left the abbey, smiling and waving to the by-standers who almost pressed against the windows of her car.

The crowd had grown to several thousand and mounted police were forced to clear the way. The car moved at a walking pace on the way back to Buckingham Palace.

Thousands of spectators were on hand in giddy London is to "walk the Queen's six miles."

B.C. Premier Claims Liberals Have 'Sabotaged' Efforts To Control Sons of Freedom

VICTORIA (CP)—The long-standing problem of how to deal with radical Doukhobors has been scrapped up again in British Columbia politics as new developments indicate further violence may be in the offing.

With a general provincial election only two weeks away, Premier Bennett accused the Liberals Monday with a charge that the Liberals have "sabotaged" the government's efforts at controlling the lawless Sons of Freedom sect.

The premier's remarks coincided with reports from the troubled West Kootenay. Some of the province's 20,000 Doukhobors, that a fanatic fringe of the Sons is determined to throw out all the leaders of their sect.

The Provincials, numbering about 2,000, are blamed for homeburnings and bombings that have terrorized the Kootenays off and on for 50 years.

Vote is Ascendant

A meeting of some 250 Sons at Krestova voted to throw out the 35-man executive committee that reformed Doukhobors which has looked after affairs since leader their spiritual leader, Stefan Sorokin, left for South America in search of a new group of people.

One non-Doukhobor source said the decision means the Freedomites will go back to age-old similar to 1949 and 1950, when bombs and nude parades reached unprecedented heights.

Seven Doukhobor homes were burned during the Castlegar area district, just w etsoin eiaoin shrdlu district, just a few hours after Premier Bennett had warned the Liberals to stop "fooling around."

The premier also announced a new eight-point government policy for dealing with the Sons of Freedom. Among other things it provides to extend the franchise to all Doukhobors and recognize the Doukhobor form of marriage.

Interview Given

In an interview Monday, Mr. Bennett said:

"The government has, for the first time, taken a firm and constructive attitude on the Doukhobor problem. The attorney-general. . . had taken time to go to Ottawa to discuss the matter personally with a report for us.

"Unfortunately the political parties, particularly Liberal leader Arthur Laing and the federal cabinet ministers are playing party politics with this important issue.

"Their remarks and statements are sabotaging the government's constructive effort."

Replies to Charges

Replying to the premier's charges, Mr. Laing said:

"Let us get normal law enforcement—not the force and evil of the political football field."

Last month Premier Bennett said the federal government must impose a curfew on all Doukhobors, but was told by the Ottawa administration that this would be a violation of provincial rights.

Meanwhile, Attorney-General Bonner has invited Justice Minister Garson to attend a conference here June 15 on the whole problem.

Mr. Bonner said that at the meeting it is hoped "once and for all" to decide the legal government responsibilities on Doukhobors.

South Koreans Denounce Secret Allied Truce Plan

By BILL SHINN

SEOUL (AP) — Authoritative South Korean sources today revealed that the secret new Allied truce plan "would give the United Nations great security but they will say in determining the fate of war prisoners who refuse to return to their Red homelands.

The informants said the proposal handed to Communist negotiators at Panmunjom was clearly unacceptable to them. One top government official called it "nothing but an Allied defeat by the Communists."

The proposal also incorporates some South Korean demands first offered by both the Reds and Allies, said the sources, who would not allow use of their names.

The UN command — reported to have presented the news blackout on Monday's truce session — would not discuss the plan, but it even refused to acknowledge the offer was made.

Some observers here in Tokyo said the Allied proposal possibly is being used as bargaining bait by the Chinas, which has long wanted to get into the United Nations.

By accepting the plan, they said, it would give Red China a toehold in the world assembly — through the back door.

Talks Recessed

The truce talks were recessed after Monday's session until June 1 — apparently to allow time for Red negotiators can send the plan to Peiping, or even to Moscow.

The South Korean sources said the Allied proposal presented May 13 proposal under which 34,000 bally North Korean prisoners would be released immediately after an armistice.

The Allied proposal also would free 14,500 Chinese captives who refuse to return to the Red rule, and the major roadblock to a truce in the nearly three-year-long Korean war.

The Republic of Korea sources said South Korean President Syngman Rhee—who insists his prisoners not be released—would accept any armistice that would leave Korea divided—if it was not consulted before the plan was drafted.

Washington, Maj. - Gen. Chol Dok Shin, South Korean delegate to the truce talks, the sources added, Chol boycotted Monday's truce session, probably on orders from Rhee.

Cabinets Split

South Korea's cabinet met today.

A government spokesman Dr. Kari Kong Kee said later that the discussion of an open break in the Allied ranks and the new Allied plan:

1. Drops the Allied May 13 proposal that North Korean POWs be held in custody for 90 days for justice.

2. Retains the Red-proposed five-country commission to take over the 48,500 reluctant prisoners after a truce.

3. Turns over to a post-war political conference the prisoners who still refuse to go back to communism. Finally the remaining POWs in custody would be handed to the UN general assembly.

4. All decisions would be made by majority vote.

FORD, UAW REACH NEW WAGE PLAN, PENSION SCHEME

Supplier Strikes Will Soon be Called Off

By GLENN ENGLE

DETROIT (AP)—The Ford Motor Company and General Motors — one better in voluntarily revising its five-year contract with the United Auto Workers (CIO) early today by giving the union the best wage pension plan in the industry —a maximum of $137.50 a month.

Before it did so, however, Ford demanded and was given assurance that the crippling strike of 37,000 workers in the Ford Motor plant would be halted immediately. That 4-week-long tie-up has made idle 85,000 of Ford's 135,000 production workers and virtually shut down the vast Ford production system.

Ford and the UAW wound up two long days of secret, top-level negotiations by formally announcing the contract changes shortly after midnight. Ford president Henry Ford II and UAW and CIO president Walter P. Reuther led the talks.

The 135,000 Ford employees and dependents—$12.50 to $35 a month—are scheduled to be benefited after General Motors, the industry's biggest producer and traditional wage pattern-setter, has signed a supplemental agreement with the UAW on Monday without any pension improvements.

All Apply at 65

Contracts with GM, Chrysler and virtually all of the independent automotive firms provide maximum pensions of $125 a month. Ford's new plan is new $137.50 Ford figure include federal social security benefits. All apply at age 65 and after 30 years service. The $35 boost at Ford will apply to 20-year men who now will get $115 a month instead of $80.

The provisions of social security provides other benefits not found elsewhere in the industry:

The group of skilled workers—200 die sinkers and pattern makers—will get 20-cent-an-hour wage boosts.

The 6,000 retired Ford workers will have the option of buying low-cost paid-medical insurance at Ford's group rate.

Some Identical

Otherwise the new benefits in the Ford and GM contracts are identical.

Nineteen of the 24 cents net gain picked up under cost-of-living wage escalator clauses since the contract signed in 1950 will be put into base pay, to be considered by any future price declines.

The so-called "annual improvement factor" wage increase which is to cover improved production technology—will go up from four to five cents an hour June 1.

About 25,000 Ford workers will get a 10-cent hourly pay increase.

Reuther said the union would insist Chrysler match the Ford fringe benefits in negotiations opening this afternoon. He also said the UAW would go back to GM and try to "pick up the pension end of this package."

REGRADE IMPORTED EGGS

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of the department of agriculture say that 594,000 eggs imported from Holland are being regraded according to Canadian standards. They said importation of eggs from Holland began a few prices last year discouraged Canadian farmers from raising hens.

A-Bomb in Shell 11 Inches Wide Produces First Atomic Cannon

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The atomic cannon is an established reality today in United States defence plans. Nuclear scientists and military men watched the firing silent of a standard A-bomb into a shell only 11 inches in diameter.

These gunners said the atomic results of Monday's successful first firing of an atomic shell from the U. S. Army's 280-millimetre gun, key commodities of the atomic energy commission at the Nevada proving ground.

There is hardly anything short of the hydrogen bomb, however, which could impress observers more than this historic cannon shot which whirled seven miles across Frenchman Flat and exploded with bomb brilliance at 500-foot elevation.

The blast snapped off 50-foot trees and flipped railroad boxcars and army tanks like toys reports filed an entire bomb bay."

Producers Asked To Keep Hogs Off Market

Want Minimum of 34 Cents A Pound from Packers

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario hog producers have been asked to hold their hogs on the farms unless they get a minimum of 34 cents a pound from the packers.

The move follows a packers' announcement that they have dropped their prices to 31 cents. Farm groups Monday night accused the packers of taking advantage of the situation created by the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in parts of southwestern Ontario.

A federal embargo bans the movement of hogs out of the province from 26 counties and, if hog producers refuse to ship them to packers in the province, it will amount to a virtual strike on the part of the 40,000 producers.

The Ontario Hog Producers' Association called on its members to insist on the higher prices or withhold their pigs.

Wants Level Price

Charles McInnis, of Iroquois, president of the organization, in Ottawa trying to obtain a level price for producers. Checking with the headquarters here of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, he said the organization support in the move to hold back hogs from the market. V. L. Brown, secretary-manager of the federation, said:

"Producers are not taking advantage of the farmers, who are in a position that is no fault of their own. The unfortunate thing is that we are not able to ship the United States as the duty will move a few carload lots, it would be all that is needed to bring the packers do their senses."

26 Cents in Montreal

In Montreal Monday the price was 26 cents. Ontario producers expressed fear their pigs would be bought in the north and west of Ontario and then sold in carcass form in Quebec in competition with Quebec packers who were willing to pay 36 cents a pound.

If producers refuse to ship within the province, it could mean a shortage of pork and resultant high prices to the consuming livestock men said. There is not now enough pork on the market to meet domestic needs.

No hogs will be shipped today unless farmers get 34 cents a pound the association said.

Given Four Months

SIMCOE (CP) — Lloyd E. McDonald, 61, of Windsor, was sentenced Monday to four months of hard labor and fined $100 on conviction on 12 counts involving violations of the Ontario Securities Act. The sentence will run concurrently in addition to a $1,000 fine and $1,000 bail, out of an additional three month term.

Evidence showed that McDonald sold securities in December of 1950 and January of 1951 while not registered with the Ontario Securities Commission. He was also charged with selling stock of the Kenny Oil and Gas Company of British Columbia under the name of Andrew Heinz. The amount involved was $50,000.

Winter Planting Ahead of Normal, Seeding Is Late

TORONTO (CP)—Winter crops are generally well ahead of normal but heavy rains have held up some seeding, the Ontario department of agriculture said today in its weekly farm report.

Dundas county reported a week of dry weather needed before work can begin on the land. In Grenville county, the land was wet.

Bruce county reported hay pasture and winter wheat 10 days ahead of normal. The outlook for winter crops in most sections of the province was excellent.

Corn in the Kent area suffered little from a tornado last Thursday. Agricultural officials said hail did little damage because crops were still close to the ground.

Frost damage was severe numerous in Grenville county.

Nith River Rolls Over Its Banks

WELLESLEY (CP)—The Nith river rolled over its banks during a heavy rainstorm Monday night and the entire village of Wellesley was roused when the flood gates at a dam could not be opened. Damage was light.

Water spilled over the banks shortly after midnight and headed for the village, 22 miles northeast of Stratford.

Michael Boshart, gate tender at the dam, sounded the fire siren and the flood gates were shut. Small boats were washed away and cellars and garages in the village were flooded.

A volunteer fire brigade about 70 residents hurried to the scene and placed sandbags along the river bank during the night.

The flood gates were opened just before dawn this morning and the water level went down to normal.

PROVINCIAL POLICE IN POSSESSION OF STRAY PUNT

Boats, like dogs, sometimes get strayed away from their owners.

At least provincial police here are in possession of a flat bottomed punt which this morning was found floating in the bay some distance out from the government dock.

P. J. O'Neil looked out of his kitchen window and saw the punt bobbing up and down on the water. He went out in his own boat and towed the punt ashore. Police say the owner can have the punt by identifying his property.

Restaurant Men Want to Serve Milk by Glass

City restaurant owners will cooperate with the Belleville Board of health in all sanitary and other regulations, but they think there should be permitted to serve a glass of milk when asked for it rather than be forced by regulation to serve the milk in a bottle.

According to city board of health regulations restaurant owners must serve milk in individual bottles instead of by the glass.

The meeting of restaurant owners, held at Lafferty's, was well attended, the 'meat' of the time being taken up by the discussion regarding serving of bottled milk.

It was pointed out by George DeVoyst, Bridge St., restaurant owner, that the regulation regarding serving of milk in bottles was brought in before homogenized milk was available. The serving of milk in individual bottles prevented any restaurant owners from buying milk in bulk, skimming the cream off for coffee use, and then serving the skimmed milk in glasses to customers.

According to Mr. DeVoyst, restaurant owners will ask the board of health for permission to serve milk in glasses when asked for. Customers would benefit because milk by the glass for some reason is cheaper than by the bottle.

Planning, Suburban Boards To Meet on Street Extensions

The city council planning committee and the suburban planning board will get their heads together on the matter of extending streets ways and means of extending Pine Street and Victoria Avenue east through to Herchimer Ave.

This was decided Monday at council after J. T. Hanson, a spokesman for the suburban planning board outlined the advantages of extending the streets and provide for future development of the area into Thurlow township.

He noted that the planning board could do no more in placing the proposed limits of the corporation and that any further planning must be toward the development of areas outside the city limits.

He said that now was the time to plan for extension of Pine and Victoria streets as land only was involved at the present time. However, there is a question as to buildings would be erected on the proposed street extensions and then development would be a costly proposition.

Recommendation Tabled

Mr. Ransom tabled a four-part recommendation from the suburban planning board calling for the approval in principle for the extension of the two streets; for approval of the planning board council to meet with the planning board in the suburban area to determine the percentage of costs to be borne by the city and by Thurlow township, and to report to council at the next meeting.

His motion that the terms of the plans were self evident and cited a letter from the provincial planning board advising committee noting that the existing east and west arteries in the east part of the city were not wide enough to carry the traffic, as result more streets were required.

Thurlow township Reeve Fred Mitchell also spoke in favor of the extension of Pine and Victoria Ave. should go through. There would be enough street to the city. He assured that the township would co-operate in every way possible.

Later in council Ald. Duffy asked for deletion of the first part of the planning board recommendation, which called for the city to "agree in principle" to the extension of the two streets. He saw no harm in the remainder of the recommendation.

Sticking Neck Out Claim

"I don't approve of that first paragraph," he said when questioned. "It seems that every time the city agrees in principle with anything we are just sticking our neck out."

Ald. Thomas was of much the same opinion, saying that the extension of the two streets had been discussed in council before and the matter had been turned down because the cost was prohibitive.

Ald. Argue noted that when the matter was discussed before Thurlow township had shown little interest and the city would have been left to bear the entire cost.

Under the proposed plan the city would be asked to purchase parts of three buildings standing there was nothing to hinder Victoria Avenue being extended beyond the present city limits and then proceed.

Alderman Tice was also opposed to a curve in Victoria Ave. as was proposed in the present plan. He said a curve in the street would be undesirable.

Mr. Ransom said the two slight curves in the proposed Victoria Ave. extension had been planned because of the heavy cost should the street be continued straight. If the street was extended straight two houses would have to come down and the cost would run upwards of $30,000.

On the south end of the street was angled to avoid the houses land only was involved and the cost would be in the neighborhood of $200 for land in the county, the cost of the three lots on the north side of Victoria Ave.

Council approved of the planning board resolution after deletion of the paragraph calling for approval in principle by the city, and also approved a recommendation tabled by Alderman Keegan for the entire planning committee to meet with the suburban planning board to discuss the matter.

Council Increases Mayor's Expense Allowance for Trip to Coronation

Mayor A. M. Haig will be reimbursed the extra $500 for having paying the expenses of his trip to the Coronation.

This was decided by city council Monday when by a majority vote they approved that the mayor's expense allowance for 1953 be increased by the above amount.

The full recommendation from the executive and finance committee read "that as, His Worship Mayor Haig received tickets for two seats in Westminster Abbey during the Coronation on account of his being Mayor of the City of Belleville, it is recommended that the mayor's expense account be increased by $500."

The recommendation touched of a discussion which revealed councillors had a divided opinion on the subject.

"I am disappointed that this recommendation had been introduced," Acting Mayor Chas. L. Thompson said, "I consulted the finance committee while I was away and I am sorry that I cannot support it."

"I have every respect for Mayor Haig and for what he has done for this city, but the taxpayers are not in favor of the city paying part of his expenses to the Coronation. It is a pleasure trip for the Mayor and he does not expect it."

Alderman Duffy took a directly opposite view. "I don't agree with Alderman Hyde," he said. "We in Belleville are proud of our British tradition and it is on account of the honor has been invited to attend the Coronation with seats in Westminster Abbey."

He went on to point out that Mayor Haig was to be at the Coronation as the city's representative.

"I am sorry this discussion has taken place," he went on, "and the motion to contribute toward the mayor's expenses while away is well deserved. Besides, the mayor does not know it is taking place."

Alderman Tice said the matter should have been discussed before the mayor left for England. "Why the delay?" he asked.

"I think it's a roasting we're getting and I opposed it" replied Alderman Hyde.

Alderman Gerald Hyde brought in an amendment that the mayor's expense allowance be increased $200. "It would at least show that we appreciate the honor," he said.

Alderman McDevin disagreed. "If we are going to pay any, pay it all, I say," he said. "The mayor is representing Belleville at the Coronation.

The same point of view was taken by Alderman Bradford. "The only criticism that I have heard is that $500 is not enough, and that the mayor was not brought up before last mayor left."

"I have heard the same thing," Alderman Keegan said.

Sidney Hopping, George Nicholas, P.C.'s Archie Eady and George Rose.

George Atwell, Archie Meyers, Lewis Glover, George Free, Jack Allen and Dr. Owen Watson acted as honorary bearers.

Interment was in English Line Cemetery.

Boathouse Owner Will Pay Rental For Right of Way

After and in and out discussion on the matter lasting since before Christmas, the future of the forcing department of transport boathouse on the Belleville waterfront has now apparently been decided by city council.

Frank Weir will be allowed to retain the boathouse which he purchased from the department, but he will be assessed a ten dollar per year rental for a right-of-way over city-owned property to get to and from his boathouse.

The boathouse in question is presently covered by permit the department of transport for use in connection with the Carlton lighthouse. When the lighthouse was torn down the boathouse was sold to Frank Weir, who now plank to renovate the building. But first he wanted to know how he stood with the city.

Some months ago council received a letter from Mr. Weir requesting a right-of-way to his boathouse, which is on the water lot at the end of St. Paul St. There was delay in preparing the lease and Ald. Keegan brought in a recommendation from the Victoria Park development committee asking that the boathouse be torn down as it was an eyesore.

After discussing the matter pro and con, council referred the matter to the property committee, who Monday brought in a recommendation that Mr. Weir be leased a right-of-way for his building.

Ald Keegan Opposed

But Ald. Keegan was still not satisfied and he brought in an amendment asking that no action be taken.

He said that as an aldermanic candidate he had promised to clean up Belleville, particularly Foster Ward and re-iterated that no boathouse was to remain there. He said the city should not lease any land to a roadway leading to the bay which might be needed at a later date for expansion in harbor facilities. He claimed there would be no benefit in leasing the right-of-way to Mr. Weir as it was public property and everyone had a right to use it.

In reply, Ald. Countryman, as chairman of property, noted the suggestion this committee was not available of doing so.

The amendment was defeated and the original motion leasing part of the St. Paul Street right-of-way to Mr. Weir was carried.

Many Attend First Night Cooking School at Collegiate

"Cooking with gas," was most interestingly demonstrated last evening at the Collegiate auditorium, when Miss E. Bateman, home economist of Toronto, assisted by Miss K. Forster at the Gurney cooking stove, sponsored by the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary. The John Lewis Company of the city are dealers for the Gurney stoves.

White standards of mixed spring flowers and the immaculate ivory stoves in white ranges formed an attractive setting for the dainty foods that were demonstrated to a fine audience of housekeepers.

Mrs. Hugh Murray, president of the Auxiliary, welcomed those present and tendered thanks to all those who had made the cooking school possible, introduced Mr. A. N. Morfitt, who in turn introduced Miss Bateman and Miss Forster.

Complete Oven Meal

Miss Bateman demonstrated the cooking of complete oven meals, which included oven fried chicken, a carrot and orange salad and baked ambrosia, as well as many other dishes, nourishing and delicious. The plan for the oven fried chicken is given as follows: prepare the chicken, and season flour in the proportion of 1 cup flour, 1 tablespoon salt and one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Place about half in a paper bag. Drop in chicken, a few pieces at a time and shake, adding more flour sometimes as necessary. Heat shortening in pan to same depth, quarter inch layer. Fry to a uniform golden brown, then transfer to baking pan and bake at 350 degrees F. for 45 minutes.

Surface and Broiler Cooking

Other dishes prepared demonstrated surface cooking, as fruited pork tenderloin, liver creole, and broiler cooking as fruit cobbler. The making of an attractive chicken's nest in the form of a little boy and girl was also shown; a peach half was used for the face of the girl, with raisins for eyes, shredded carrot for hair; a marashino cherry for the mouth and a clove for the nose, a piece of pineapple for the collar, while a flare of crisp lettuce acting as the skirt over a half pear as crinoline, and slices of maraschino cherries for shoes.

The little boys outfit began with a bunch of carrot shreds for hair, a half pear for the face, thin piece of lettuce for the shirt and peach half shaped for trousers and half cherries for shoes. This salad was most tempting to children who shy away from salad as a rule.

Use of Aluminum Foil

Miss Bateman gave some interesting and timely hints regarding the use of aluminum foil. To melt chocolate and to ease the burden of washing-up place the square of chocolate to be melted in the cup-shaped foil, place over heat, and when the chocolate is melted, it can be run into pudding or whatever calls for it, without the use of extra saucepan.

In the care of the oven, she suggested that any grease that might have spattered could be wiped off with a paper towel while the oven was still warm. To prevent the juice of fruit pies from smearing the oven bottom, a piece of foil could be placed in top form in the grate holding the pie. Any juice that might run over would be caught here, and easily disposed. To aid in the cleaning of oven dishes, as roasting pans, if one-quarter cup of ammonia be added to water and left overnight, the pan may then be more easily cleaned. If a stain has hardened on a burned grease stain use the ammonia solution. and let stand. To obliterate the odor of cooking grease sprinkle with nutmeg. The use of salt is not good for enamel.

Prizes Awarded

Following the demonstration, the prepared foods were plate for inspection, and later given to the holders of the lucky tickets. Prizes of bags of groceries, and baskets of fruit, and costume jewellery, consisting of a pair of rose wreath drawn for by Mrs. Murray, the names drawn by Mr. A. N. Morfitt, of Toronto, handed out by Mrs. H. C. Bronson, convener of Ways and Means of the Auxiliary.

The cooking school will continue this evening also.

Quinte Sea Cadet Corps Highly Praised at Inspection

Outstanding tributes to their appearance, deportment and evolutions of training was paid to members of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps at their annual inspection held at HMCS "Quinte" last night.

Inspecting officer Lieut. Commander C. J. Manson, RCN, Deputy Director of Sea Cadets, Ottawa, told the cadets: "You made a very fine showing. I like your clean-cut appearance and your steadiness on parade. The guards handled their rifles in an excellent manner. It was an excellent performance, one of which you, your officers and your city should be proud. You were very smart, and well turned out."

Lieut.-Commander Manson urged the boys "to stay in school as long as you possibly can. No matter what vocation you select, whether it be the navy, the professions, or business, you will need the best education you can get."

He reminded the cadets that when they were the uniform of the navy they were under the eyes of the public. "Remember," he said, "to stay in step with your responsibility is to your country and to your city as well as the service."

Took Personal Interest

The inspecting officer took a personal interest in practically every cadet during his inspection. He stopped and chatted with almost every one. Among those to him were: Lieut. J. Jeffries, RCN, Recruiting Area Officer; Lieut.-Col. J. Widdifield, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Major Everett S. Fairman, 8th Anti-Tank Regiment, RCA., representing the army; Squadron Leader Malcolm Robb, representing the RCAF; Commander K. S. Mastachino, O.B.E., president of the Ontario Division Navy League of Canada; Commander Jack Guthridge, president of the Belleville branch Navy League; Acting Lieut. and Lt. H. D. MacKenzie, officer commanding the corps.

Trim in their natty "round rig" of the navy the cadets swung past the reviewing stand where Lieut. Commander Manson took the salute. A surprise effort was that the march-past was under the supervision of the petty officers of the corps headed by PPO N. Judge.

Large Crowd Present

One of the largest crowds in years viewed the inspection and march-past, led by CPO Judge, and the pipe band, which, under year-old J. Meldrum, who was one of the youngest cadets on parade. Not a boy was absent. The entire personnel of the corps was on parade.

The corps marched behind its pipe band, a unit that was established under the leadership of Leading Seaman K. Bradshaw. Two months ago not a member of the drum and bugle band could play a note. It is now a highly creditable performance last night.

Following the march-past the cadets were demonstrations in sailing, cutter and signalling. A crack crew rowed a trim navy cutter past the official stand at the bow of the ship, while three crews of two manoeuvred in exact manner the three pre-dinghies, recently presented to the corps by a trio of city business men.

Signal flags fluttered in the cool evening breeze as the youthful cadets "wig-wagged" in official semaphore messages from the ship to a motor craft across the harbor.

Colorful Ceremony

Later the colorful navy ceremony, "Evening Quarters," was demonstrated inside the ship, with the band playing "Retreat." Cadets stood at attention as the white ensign was gradually lowered on its staff.

Lieut. Commander Manson presented certificates of proficiency to several cadets. Promoted from acting cadets to leading cadets were: Cdt. AP Brown and Cdt. G. Bradshaw. From ordinary cadet to acting cadets: J. Raley, D. Hannah, J. Lucciola, R. Lindley, J. Worsley, J. Lucciola, G. Lindley, Adams, N. Taphouse and P. Hunt.

Addressed Briefly

Commander Maclachlan briefly addressed the corps following the presentation, and "Sea League," he said, "is very much interested in the cadets. We feel this training is very worthwhile." Mayor Judge, CPO was on hand to congratulate you on a splendid showing and hope you maintain your interest in this fine corps."

Officers of the corps are: Lt. MacKenzie, officer commanding; executive officer, Lieut. R. Watson; division officers, Sub-Lieut. Slingerland and Middlehpran D. Richards. Non-commissioned officers are: Jack Judge, CPO second class, S. Shandraw and Leading Seaman K. Bradshaw.

At the close of the ceremonies the cadets were served refreshments and the many guests and the "ship's deck."

Council Votes to Buy Walk-in Truck, Turns Down Pumper

Despite the fact that Belleville's new firehall on East Dundas St. was termed "new house without any furniture," the Belleville Fire Department will have to get along a while longer without a new fire-pumper for the east-end fire station.

At least city council yesterday turned down a recommendation to buy a new pumper for the unit in the east end of the city at a cost of over $14,000.

The recommendation to buy the new pumper was part of a package deal aimed at providing the department with an additional pumper and also a walk-in panel truck for use by firemen as an "emergency vehicle. Council voted to buy the walk-in panel job, but turned down the fire pumper.

The proposal to buy the walk-in panel type truck had been before council on several occasions and was turned back principally because of council's inability to see their way clear to pay for the vehicle. There was no money in the budget for this purpose, and it was decided that the municipal board would approve of debentures for such a small amount.

Agreed Pumper Needed

The fire committee had agreed unofficially that a new pumper was needed as well as the double decker truck but felt the city could not afford both and left the equipment this year.

Council then decided that both the fire pumper and the panel truck should be purchased and yesterday's recommendation from the fire committee was based on this premise.

There was considerable discussion as to whether or not the fire pumper was needed, this phase of the talk being introduced by Ald. McNevin, who asked if the fire committee had not at one time said the department could get along this year with a small panel truck.

"There is a proposal to buy both trucks," he said. "All of this needless big tax talk."

Ald. Duffy explained that issuing of debentures for the small truck was more likely to be approved by the municipal board and that council had suggested both trucks be purchased with proceeds of debentures.

Did Not Like Method

Ald. Counsitman didn't like this method of financing. On one hand the fire committee had indicated the city could not afford to buy both vehicles this year, and after more reconsideration set in to purchase two pieces of equipment.

He said it was, like a man who could not afford it, yet was buying two cars because he would get a cheaper unit price.

Ald. Keegan thought a pick-up truck might be more suitable for the fire department than the panel truck and tabled an amendment to buy this type of truck rather than the panel truck. The amendment was defeated and the original motion to purchase the panel walk-in truck at $3210 was carried.

Discussion then swung around to the recommendation to buy the new pumper from Bickle Seagrave at $14,292. Two tenders had been submitted, the other being from LaFrance at a price $116 less. Council decided to accept the lower tender.

An amendment, tabled by Ald. Tice, to buy the LaFrance pumper, it being the lowest tender, was defeated, while the motion to buy the Bickle-Seagrave pumper was declared lost when a tie vote resulted.

Approving the recommendation were: Ald. Bradford, Clarke, Dulmage, C. L. Ryde, G. Ryde, Thomas and Tice. Opposing were: Ald. Argue, Counsitman, Keegan, McNevin, Reid, Smith and Temple.

Midway Section At Fair Grounds To be Paved

Midway patrons at Belleville Fair will have their feet kept out of the mud like dust as a result of a generous offer on the part of Patty Conklin, owner of the midway, which plays Belleville fair.

Fair president Harry Rollins told members of council yesterday that Mr. Conklin had offered to pave the midway section at the fair grounds from the manufacturers' building to the grandstand at no cost to the fair board.

He said the proposal was to pave the area between the two fair buildings, the south end of the midway, the pavement to extend northward to the grandstand. In the centre the pavement would widen out to accommodate the two rows of midway attractions which are generally set up.

Would Beautify Grounds

"Not only would the fair patrons be kept out of the mud, but the pavement would be a fine thing for the fair board and for residents attending grandstand performances other times of the year," Mr. Rollins said.

Approximately 3,000 square yards of pavement would be involved, it was stated. The work would be done within the next two or three weeks by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company.

The condition of Mr. Conklin's offer is that the midway may that he be given a contract to play at the fair for a ten-year period.

Mr. Rollins said that some grading by the city would be necessary in connection with the paving. The cost of this had been estimated at $500 of which the fair board would be willing to pay half.

Council authorized the necessary grading to be done by the public works department.

PROBLEM OF LONG-STANDING

A new tax deal for property owners in Ontario is the best-for result of a study on municipal finance, responsibility and administration which has been entrusted to special nine-man committee appointed recently by Premier Leslie Frost.

An outline of this long-standing and vexatious problem has been presented in an excellent pamphlet prepared by W. J. Stewart, C.B.E., M.P.P., who is director of the Property Owners' Association of Toronto. As a former mayor of Toronto we know that Mr. Stewart has a thorough grasp of all the ramifications of the predicament the cities over a century have fastened upon the municipal home owners. But we must wonder whether he recalls how often in the past steps have been taken to analyze it and propose some equitable terms of relief.

Why he thinks this new combination is more likely to get results than any of its predecessors, is not stated. It is hope that he is right.

The point Mr. Stewart's pamphlet covers the ground in presenting the case for the real property taxpayer-makes it clear that the inequity and unfairness of his position has been established long since and has been admitted by the three levels of government concerned.

Relief has been promised in the past and it must be admitted that Mr. Frost's administration has gone further than other governments in providing greater measures of help.

But meanwhile every branch of municipal administration which adds to the burden of the home owner, and admittedly outside of proper charges against service to real property, has so greatly increased in costs over the last score of years that no fair measure of relief has been achieved.

Mr. Stewart sets out some glorious means of relief and these are not original. As he points out the burden of real estate taxes charges of education and social welfare were never calculated to be proper charges. Unfortunately it all began over a century ago when the Baldwin Act was passed providing for grants-in-aid to municipalities for certain necessary utilitarian services. Since then, like Topsy, it has "just growned" in magnitude until the original purposes for the additional welfare costs had become a major charge. And all the while ordinary services were expanding and education eventually replaced relief charges as the major item in municipal budgets.

"Above all," Mr. Stewart writes, "there is need for insisting why municipal government were compelled to undertake certain service to property, and to see that taxes collected were spent for this purpose . . ."

"The object is not to encourage municipalities to unload their financial responsibilities upon senior governments. It is to bring home to provincial and federal governments the necessity of aiding municipalities "to meet the costs imposed on them . . . The committee's work may result in a reasonable solution that will distribute the burden more evenly."

Quite a few years ago the Powell-Sirois Commission on Federal-provincial affairs admitted all this. Let us hope that at this time Mr. Stewart's optimism is well founded.

SOME DEFENCE COSTS QUESTIONED

Greatly increasing costs for airpower in defence programs today as compared with only a few years ago is the problem of a critical article in the current issue of Reader's Digest. In view of the fact that the latest report in our own House of Commons on military costs per man also shows costs mounting from year to year it would seem to be a general trend.

The Digest article deals, of course, with costs in the United States and is confined to atomic bombers. It states that the cost of one recent experimental high-speed airplane was equal to its weight in gold. Behind these high costs is the fact that every pound of new equipment added to an airplane means five pounds more airplane to carry it. This added weight averages about $40 a pound.

It is claimed that electronic equipment is overloading modern planes. Some new devices are installed even though they might be limited to five minutes' use in 100 hours of flight. Every gadget that is put in, it is stated by the Digest, "and each one is complicated device."

Partly because of such complex equipment, today's single-seat fighter weighs almost as much as a four-engined B-24 bomber. One new jet bomber, says this report, will cost $4,000,000 after "development expenses." The modern bombsight, with all its accessories weighs a ton; the Norden bombsight of World War II weighed 50 pounds. Today's bomber carries 30 miles of electric wire and thousands of electronic tubes.

It is the claim of this article that the Russians get along without many of these modern devices and pilots are beginning to question the need for so much new equipment. The pilots are dubious about justifying the terrific costs of today's defence programs the taxpayer is likely to be quite as much concerned. No one is going to argue that costs should be lower at the expense of proper equipment but it is not unreasonable to expect the assurance that there is no unnecessary waste.

Make an extra effort these folks to please,

But, somehow or other, it seems to me,
There is no one who isn't a "V.I.P."

To merchants striving the whole day through
For that extra effort to please,
The customers may, or customers few,
Are certainly "V.I.P.'s."
In every business, whatever it be,
The humblest clerk is a "V.I.P."

We're all important! Husbands and wives,

And by their assistance share our lives,
That effort to please deserve.
Who finds me in trouble and sets me free,

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

It must be a considerable satisfaction to these modern composers of music to know that Tin Pan Alley can't steal their tunes. They have no tunes to steal.

The finest melodies of Beethoven, Tchaikowsky, Grieg and other classic composers have given to popular music in recent years some of what might be called the "best sellers" of the trade. Absurd little Tin Pan Alley boys have got themselves great reputations and no doubt a great deal of money simply by stealing the magical themes of world famous symphonies. We can visualize them sitting around their smoky rooms, the collars off their shirts open at the neck, the necks in the best tradition of composition, playing and replaying the immortal symphonies of the classics, listening intently for stealable melodies, ever and again leaping excitedly to their feet to clap one another on the back and exult in the birth of a new Number One on the Hit Parade.

In due time, they will have combed the classics bare. And then they come to the modern! Alas, not a tune in a tinful.

If you listen to one of these modern symphonies or no-tone poems that are to be heard on nearly every symphonic program these days, you can literally visualize the modern composer dodging and ducking melodies. Sometimes, when he comes to the very edge of what is a melody, you will see him veer away, as in a fit of terror, and cry "Ah!" you can hear him exclaim. "Nearly gave the boys an idea!"

Tin Pan Alley will get nothing out of him.

If by accident he composes a melodious bar, for an en a tuneful chord or two, his music halts abruptly while he searches around for a concretion of sounds from other instruments to rub out immediately the harmony, as if it were a faux pas.

Maybe we are on the right track with modern "serious" music. Maybe it is nothing more than a conspiracy to foil the pickpockets on Tin Pan Alley.

Gossip is like mud thrown against a clean wall. It may not stick but it leaves a mark.

Remember Harold Lloyd?

(By Seymour Fork in New York Times Magazine.)

On May 18, 1925, a news story out of Hollywood named unemployed Harold Lloyd the highest salaried actor on screen, over Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson and Mary Pickford. His income: $1,083 a week for a year. Lloyd's earnings were estimated by others at $30,000 a week or $1,560,000 a year." it stated. "They have advanced since then to about $50,000 a week, or $2,600,000 a year."

These astronomical sums—in a relatively tax-free era—were being paid to young Lloyd for portraying with uncanny insight a shy, fumbling, bespectacled, naive, slightly pathetic adolescent—lovable but a bit of a dope.

Perhaps Lloyd's most triumphant venture into bewildered youthfulness was "The Freshman" in 1925. In this film, Lloyd, himself puts it, he was "a kid going to college more because of the idea of being popular. It was not so important to get academic knowledge as to become the most popular man in college. Getting stuff on the side was the thing. I fancied himself only the college boob."

Such eventual triumphs over all odds are characteristic of the Lloyd comedies. If, in 1923, "Chaplin typified the down-trodden," Lloyd was the down-nice, frustrated American youth that somehow came through," Lloyd noted.

The obstacles that beset Harold were often as hair-raising as they were ridiculous. In "Safety Last", in 1923, he dangled from the hands of a clock on a building fourteen stories high, without assistance from a double or from trick photography. To protect him a platform extended from the building. However, as Lloyd fell, he might have missed the platform.

Harold's farcical knack for getting out of tight spots—and getting out again—carried him through some difficult times. Lloyd's peak income, which earned more than $35,000,000.

Then, in the late wide-eyed chap, born in Burchard, Neb., won an Academy award and moved over into his personal life. While making "Why Worry?" in 1923, Lloyd married his blonde leading lady, Mildred Davis, built a 33-room Italian Renaissance mansion on 20-acre estate in Beverly Hills, complete with swimming pool, nine-hole golf course, full-time chef and a reproduction of the Tuileries Gardens. The Lloyds produced ultimately included two girls and a boy.

Last week Harold Lloyd, now 60, was in New York to watch his son appear in "Harold and Freshman," which was being revived. Still boasting a fair head of hair, a shadow of gray, he talked eagerly and modestly, occasionally freshening into a boyish guffaw. His decision to revive "The Freshman" came partially, he said, from "my concern that young people 26 or under don't know me."

Lloyd has extensive real estate holdings to look after; he enjoys travel, spent twelve months touring 1949-50 going about the country as Imperial Potentate of the Shrine of the Mystic Nile, working devotedly for the many hospitals he has endowed mainly for crippled children.

Possessed of a fortune reported to run to $10,000,000, Lloyd and his wife still maintain their big house in Beverly Hills, where he married and each has a child; their son, Gloria Fred, is a World War Two ace and aspires to work on Broadway.

Lloyd's hobbies, which have run the gamut from handball to photography, have included one about tri-dimensional color still photography, and painting. As a painter Lloyd has had a one-man show in California.

Considering his present title any of his paintings, he explained, "they're all abstract, completely abstract, pure color harmonies. Maybe they're strike you as being a picture of a bunch of temples with hordes attacking them. Sometimes you've got to close there's nothing you can point to and say this is that or that has been. But I've seen things you might object that they didn't look like anything, but they look like what I called them. With no title, you start with an open mind."

Lloyd thinks he would return to movie-making if he knew "the thing he really wanted to do." "I worked hard enough in movies," he said. "I like doing it.

"What do you mean?" the friend asked. "You don't work hard—you loved it."

"Sometimes, that's true," Lloyd admitted.

Parks For Recreation

(Hamilton Spectator)

It is hard to see how the rights of free speech would have been in any way violated by a parks board decision to forbid the use of parks property for a political meeting on May 28.

Permission was refused the Labor-Progressive, or Communist Party, because of the stipulation of a by-law which states clearly that parks cannot be used for any meeting at which any public speech by a member or members of any political or other organization, which is opposed to the political color of the organization asking for use of the park, is delivered. The by-law is framed it could proceed with its public meeting, although police authorization applied to only the one meeting.

Should or not the parks board should change the by-law will be debated. Aldermen Lawrence, Freedman, David Lawrence of Ward Three, Hall and Mrs. Thompson and all denominations should be able to use the parks for meetings, is their view so feeling for the "Commies," he said, "but if they are allowed to meet there they will go underground and we won't know what they are doing."

He spoke of London's Hyde Park, where speakers are allowed.

Alderman Lawrence may not be alone in his opinion, but we think it ignores another most important right, and that is the right of the people, of Hamilton to use their parks for recreation, for relaxation, and not be harassed set aside, and are kept up, for this purpose, they are to be devoted to political harangue, where will it stop? How can any political organization be refused permission to hold similar gatherings? There are few enough parks available to the public here as it is without setting aside a part of them as areas of debate.

Only a fringe of London's vast Hyde Park is used for this purpose that is no more a vindication of democracy than are cranks and steam-letting it had a certain entertaining value. It is an exception—as far as use of parks go—rather than a rule. The people of London have available to them an unbelievably fine system of parks. They enjoy the beauty of them as it should be enjoyed, without any intrusion by orators. Hamilton's citizens should have the same privilege.

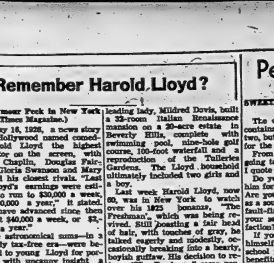
Crossing Dangers

(Financial Post)

Once again the suggestion has been made that freighters should carry some sort of reflectors to make navigation safer during the way crossings at night. This time the proposal came from Parliament just before it adjourned for the year, but it is one that will get attention.

Something like this could be done at little expense. Simple and cheap glass reflectors on metal poles could be placed if necessary.

In a large number of crossing accidents, it is not the train that hits the motor vehicle but the motor vehicle that hits the one that comes suddenly on a long freight train. Cars are often killed on a dark night it is easy to understand why. After the engine has passed there is usually no more light at all until the caboose appears, and sometimes a mile behind. Painted in dark colors and unlighted, it is difficult for headlights to pick up the moving freight cars especially when the railway is a few feet above the normal level of the road.



Ballads Pay Off

(Sudbury Star)

Revival of public interest in old songs may bring money to the pockets of copyright owners who have published them and to producers of new revenue.

A song that was written more than a year ago — There's a Long, Long Trail A-winding — which became popular in the First World War is still bringing publishers of the song, and it has retained a certain measure of popularity throughout the years.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT STUFF, ETC.

The day's mail nearly always contains a pump-handle letter or two, but on rare occasions one for the Lady, Eh! file.

I got a piece about the child going to school, printed recently, I quote two paragraphs:

Do you see your child, explain him for your overambitious purpose? Are you going to use his teacher as a sounding board for your own fault-finding, your crackpot ideas, your sense of personal dissatisfaction? Think it over.

If you help your child to give himself joyously to the early school years, he can reap untold benefits. . . . The words you use when you talk to the child or within his hearing, about the teacher or about the school, should be judiciously selected with his welfare in mind. It is essential to his well being that you think of his teacher as a warm friend whose suggestions he can follow with cheer. . . .

I'll admit that I thought the piece was pretty good, but I had a downright proud of it when a reader asked the publisher for the reprints of the piece to distribute to members of Parent-Teachers organizations.

But here comes the Lady, Eh! letter:

"You'll never make me believe Dr. Brady" (the writer really knows how to spell, but I put it "Oh" Doc Brady") "wrote this sweetness and light stuff—he who used to spare no English in blasting teachers! Besides, it is not his style—it's just not W.B., M.D."

Well, all right. You win the prize—I offered a complete set of Little Lessons in the Art of Health (23 volumetries) as a prize to the reader who should be able to guess the authorship of my ghost writer. If you want your prize, which comes from the old teacher blaster, remember, just make up your mind which reader you are and let me know. . . . I'll never send it as a non-descript.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE WASTE OF REGRETS

Famous is that line, "Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these — it might have been." What a waste of hope and energy is that of regret. What has been has been—no and that should be the end of it.

The past cannot be retrieved, nor can idle or hurtful words, or foolish deeds. We can only build upon our regrets as lessons learned. Tomorrow is always another day, clean and fresh, with its possibilities are what we make them. Regret is a thief that can make them if we do not close the door and up with regrets and misgivings.

Waste always means a lessening of personal power and initiative, and the joy of the unlimited. With regret, and in no way, we can amass all our energy at any attempt we may undertake. We can make efficiency our watchword. We cannot retrieve what we have lost, but we can build a balance that may wipe out all memory of what we have lost.

How often we hear someone speak about a mistake in some form that they wished they had hoped it was not very true. The silent one should play it! We must make ourselves the exception—no one else. But even though we may have failed to grasp an opportunity, we have learned of what we might have done,

A New Industry

(St. John's Telegram)

It is a bit of irony that family allowances are a bigger "industry" than Newfoundland's great fisheries which annually produce a million dollars more than the entire fishing industry, including filleting plants.

Latest official figures from the list of money-makers in 1951. Today, though the income from fishing has not varied much, they are ninth.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE REAL LEGACY

The poet Milton once wrote that the command of one's self is the greatest empire to which a man can aspire. Most commonly to be subject to his own passions is the most grievous slavery. We are all sometimes in every life when within desires and fears, is more than hatred and rules his passions, a king."

A lack of self-restraint is the greatest handicap with which one can be burdened. The man who lacks restraint goes through life fighting difficulties of his own making and often rendering success impossible, while others less gifted achieve great success because they are patient, calm, and self-controlled.

The greatest school in the world is home. Many fine moral qualities can be taught—and are taught — in public schools, but character is almost always either built or destroyed in the home. Here a child spends the greater part of his time. Here he has teachers more interested in him than anyone else can be. Furthermore, here the greatest attention which he cannot have as a member of a larger group.

Some branches of learning have to be left to the schools, but the things having to do with moral character are chiefly the concern of the home. Every parent should realize this, or her the responsibility to teach self-control to the growing child. Better this than a big cash legacy.

Miss 'Danny' Marshall Entertains at 'Thank You Tea'

Miss Daphne "Danny" Marshall delighted a large audience on Saturday afternoon, in the Air Marshal Bremner School auditorium with her comic vocal rendition of "I Call's Say Sir" by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II.

The airwoman entertainer from RCAF Station Aylmer performed at the monthly tea of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary who were being honored for their contributions to the success of the 1952-53 season at a "Thank-you Tea" arranged by members of the WA executive.

The versatile afternoon performance by the ex-Wartime Army Show entertainer included three vivid renderings while she was shall accompanied by Mrs. C. V. Phillips, of 34 Mercedes Street, Trenton, opened with "Jalousie". Followed by "Gypsy Love Song". The expert and lively performance was concluded with "Tico-Tico".

The social affair was the conclusion of a successful year for the auxiliary whose members raised a substantial sum of money with their variety show "S. S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise, under the convenorship of Mrs. W. F. M. Newson. An Arts and Crafts program, under Mrs. W. Welser, added a great deal to the community spirit of Middleton Park.

Under Mrs L. J. Hill and Mrs. R. E. Church, a monthly program of "Street" entertainment was adopted by the auxiliary. Following each general meeting members from two or three streets in and around Middleton Park provided varied programs of fun, games, and stage acts for the enjoyment of fellow-members.

Tuesday Active Season

Due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. W. J. Walker, social welfare convener concluded an active season. Two hospitals received the generous support of the auxiliary under Mrs. B. R. Brown, Station Hospital convener and Mrs. J. N. Stonhouse-petite, Trenton Memorial Hospital Nursery.

The final meeting of the auxiliary on Monday, June 1, in the Brewster School auditorium may result in further assistance to the Trenton Memorial Hospital. Members will cast their second and decisive vote on an important motion: "Moved that the RCAF Women's Auxiliary purchase a delivery table, costing approximately $1185.00, for the Trenton Memorial Hospital with the proviso—approximating a sum agreed upon by a meeting in January 1953—from the "S.S. Quinte" Coronation-Cruise variety show and with money from a separate W.A. Fund".

The November 1953 meeting saw the largest attendance of 400 members at any one meeting since the inception of the organization several years ago. Mrs. R. F. Murray, public relations convener and Mrs. M. Wright, membership deserve credit for the increased enrollment. Also Mrs. Murray's committee has travelled many miles in their visits to welcome new residents to the RCAF Trenton area.

Important to the entire community is the work of the Well Baby Clinic under Mrs. M. J. Smith. The Opportunity Shop, under Mrs. H. L. Harris, sent more funds for welfare work. Recently a large donation from this source went to aid European flood victims.

Mrs. W. G. Taylor, refreshments; Mrs. J. R. Woodcock, press reporter; Mrs. J. N. Sheffield, 1st vice-president; Mrs. F. J. Blair, 2nd vice-president; Mrs. K. W. Joy and Mrs. D. J. Fisher, treasurers; and Mrs. C. E. Mallard, secretary, have all contributed to the success of the 1952-53 auxiliary.

Bouquets Presented

At the head of the retiring executive is Mrs. J. G. Kerr, honorary president; Mrs. D. H. MacCoul, past president and Mrs. E. R. Johnston, president who can reflect upon the past season as the "Suggestion Box Year" for the year-old Arts and Crafts program and also the Welcoming Committee grew from ideas put into the auxiliary's suggestion box in 1952.

Cpl. W. Hoare, who is on a recreation course at Aylmer and whose family reside at 35 Nanan Drive, introduced Miss Marshall and Mrs. Wilkins.

Large bouquets of mauve lilacs and red tulips were arranged at the head table and on the stage by Mrs. J. B. Millward and Mrs. F. N. Sheffield.

Presiding at the head table were: Mrs. B. R. Brown, Mrs. M. J. Smith, Mrs. F. N. Sheffield, Mrs. G. Matheson, Mrs. C. E. Maitland, Mrs. W. Welser, Mrs. W. B. Walker and Mrs. D. J. Fisher.

Student Tells Of Ottawa Visit To Rotary Club

"Like a classroom without discipline," is the way Trevor Deacon, Grade 12 student at B.C.I. described his recent visit to Ottawa. Recently returned from a tour of Canada's capital as a guest of the Ottawa Rotary club, Bill Deacon was speaking at the noon luncheon of the Belleville Rotary club in the Hotel Quinte on Monday. He was selected to make the trip for his scholastic proficiency and joined 180 other students from all parts of the country at the capital.

In reporting his impressions of Ottawa, the young man, son of John Deacon, a Belleville Rotarian, noted the members of Commons, read papers, passed notes to one and other, spoke in loud whispers and in general completely ignored the speaker on the floor.

Absent at this sort of practice, the boy became slightly reconciled to the House of Commons, after he viewed a right-about-face of the members, when a bill of major importance was being voted upon. "You would think there was a fire", he said. "First a bell is rung to advise members an important vote is to be taken, then comes the greatest scrambling and hustling of members to get to their seats."

Taken on Tour

Another place of interest the student visited was Rideau Hall, home of the Governor General, Vincent Massey. He, along with the other 180 students was taken on a tour through the grounds, given a meal and shown around.

Later, during the four-day tour, the students visited Laurier House, 13 miles from the capital, and one time summer home of the late Mackenzie King. Here, as well, they were shown through the house by guides.

An extremely important part of the tour was the presentation of citizenship papers to each member of the tour by the Prime Minister, St. Laurent.

Bill Deacon, in concluding, thanked the club for presenting the opportunity for him to visit Ottawa. He urged them to continue sending students to the Nation's capital as he felt much educational benefit was to be derived from such a trip.

Two birthdays were honored at the luncheon on Monday. Ted Jones and the Rev. Andrew Mackenzie were presented with the birthday roses by Ed Bernstein.

Bill Deacon was thanked by Harold Mott.

Six Fires Burning

TORONTO (CP)—Six forest fires, none of them serious, were burning in Ontario today.

The department of lands and forests said all the blazes were under control. They were in the areas of White River, Port Arthur, Sudbury, North Bay, Pembroke and Tweed. Ten blazes were put out during the last 24 hours.

Beta Kappa Boys Sponsor Distinctive Lilac Tea, Bake Sale

A distinctive and colorful lilac tea was held Saturday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. under the sponsorship of the Beta Kappa Boys. The president of the club, Donald Cherry, received, and extended cordial welcome to all.

Mr. Leo Fox acted as treasurer for the afternoon.

The attractive tea table with its hand-crocheted lace cloth, was centred by pink roses and fragrant lilacs and flanked by tri-branched candelabra holding two tall, pink candles and one white taper.

Presiding were: Alderman G. R. Hyde and W. L. Anderson, president of the Y.M.C.A.; Frank Follwell, M.P. and Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P.; C. B. Morgan, chairman of World Service Committee of the Y.M.C.A. and G. E. Currie, principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute, and L. Skaff, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.

Those who served included the members of the club, George Frederick, Don McCurdy, Bill Cook, John Hinchey, Lorne Bradford and Jack Matthews.

Fine Collection

The bake table, convened by Bill Yeates, Terry Clifton and Jim Macdonald, was replete with the fine collection of home cooking as one could wish to see. There were pies of various kinds, cream layer cakes, coconut topped, rich chocolate cakes, so dear to the hearts of the sterner sex; tarts of various kinds, pastries, rolls and marmalades and jams, all of which soon found eager purchasers.

Assisting in the kitchen were, Mrs. Bateman, Greig Hall, Mrs. M. Matthews, Mrs. J. E. MacDonald, and Miss E. McCurdy.

A special feature display of the afternoon near by the homecooking table, on the wall, were pen and ink drawings and water color paintings as well as photographs done by the art students, depicting the needy in the distant countries, Japan, Greece, Liberia and Ethiopia, each bearing its explanation, and above a poster with the words, "Buy for These."

After the tea, Mr. Currie, of B.C.I. and Mr. Skaff, of the Y.M.C.A. drew the tickets for the luscious chocolate cake, and for the beautiful floral centre piece. The winner of the cake, which had been donated by Mrs. F. Houston, was won by Mr. C. B. Morgan, and the centrepiece by Mrs. Wilbur Fox.

The proceeds from the tea are being donated to the Y.M.C.A. World Service Fund, used to assist 74 Y.M.C.A.'s outside the North American continent.

Appreciative thanks are tendered the convener, and to all who assisted in this fine tea—a job well done.

In Final Battle

NEW DELHI (AP) —British Mount Everest climbers were presumed to be engaged today in a decisive battle for the final few hundred feet to plant the Union Jack atop the world's tallest peak.

The Indian government's radio warned that they faced two snowshovers Wednesday if their assault does not succeed today.

There still was no reliable word as to the progress of the climbers. Who were last reported operating from an advance camp 2,000 feet below the 29,000-foot summit. The only communication is by means of runners to Katmandu, Nepal.

BAKER—SILLS

Apple blossoms and ferns formed an attractive background in Bethel-Zion United Church, on Saturday, May 9th, at 2:00 p.m., when the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sills, of Gravenhurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Sills, became the bride of John Francis Baker, of Niagara Falls, son of Mrs. H. Baker and the late Mr. Baker. The Rev. E. J. Kerwey, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mrs. M. Duff, pianist, provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. A. Newman.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her ballerina-length bridal gown of silk organza over orchid net over white taffeta, and featured a strapless fitted bodice having a bolero trimmed with seed pearls. She wore a fingertip veil of white tulle and headdress of white taffeta encrusted with seed pearls, and carried a semi-cascade of gardenias, stephanotis and trailing English ivy.

The Misses Dorothy and Connie Sills, sisters of the bride, were attired in orchid tinted bombazine over taffets. They were orchid taffeta and tulle headdresses trimmed with English ivy, and flowered, and carried semi-cascades of lavender-tinted double stocks and ivy strands.

Mr. Robert Roach, of Niagara Falls, was groomsman; Mr. Jack Sills, of Toronto, and Mr. Douglas Sills, of Gravenhurst, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully adorned with daffodils and tulips, for the occasion. The bride's mother, wearing navy crepe with pink accessories and corsage of pink roses and carnations, received the guests assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also wore navy crepe and lace, with navy accessories and similar corsage.

For travelling to the United States, the bride chose a two-piece light blue suit of Shantung with pink accessories and corsage of pink violets. Mr. and Mrs. Baker will reside at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Guests were present from Niagara Falls, Toronto, Gravenhurst, Madoc, Picton and Belleville.

Windsors in Paris for Coronation

Bound for Europe, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor pose aboard ship in New York. Many View Film, 'Mr. Texas,' At Alliance Tabernacle

"Mr. Texas," the outstanding gospel film, sponsored by "The Hour of Decision," under the evangelist, Billy Graham, was shown twice to capacity audiences at the Alliance Tabernacle on Saturday afternoon and evening. Many were unable to attend the first showing due to the lack of accommodation, and were requested to wait in the Sunday School Assembly room.

Mr. Ernie Pedley, of the Youth for Christ, who was in charge of the projector, brought a brief commentary on the film prior to its showing. He stated that as a result of this film $6,000 decisions had been made last year for Christ, and that 50 people were kept busy counting mail regarding it. That for every $5 donated, 10,000 people were privileged to hear the broadcast, and that Billy Graham, "a great man of God for Christ, and the Christless millions of the world, requested first of all, before donations, that the Christian people would pray, for the work that the Word of Life might go forth on its saving mission and show, give, as God directed.

"Mr. Texas"

The story of "Mr. Texas" centres around the true story of a young fellow of Texas, and his sister, who, with their father, ran a ranch of considerable size. At one of Billy Graham's evangelistic services in Texas, the sister accepted Christ, and the next morning confessed her faith to her weekly brother, whose only desire was to make a name for himself and be known as "Mr. Texas."

He sarcastically thanks her for her "sermon," and departs, leaving part of his unfinished breakfast, adding that he, too, knows at that meeting. He sets himself to the making of money by seven-thirty acknowledged vice, prearging, and then comes home again, devoid of his financial position. Then one day he is thrown from a vicious horse on his father's ranch and lies at death's door, broken in body.

His Hour of Decision

Through a tactful talk of a Christian friend, he finally listens to another broadcast of the "Hour of Decision," and while his sister silently prays as she sits beside him in the room, he makes his decision for Christ.

The last picture shows "Mr. Texas," convalescing, seated beside the cheerful grass fire, singing praises to the Saviour of men. His sister hears his singing, and coming, she herself on the arm of his chair and joins her voice with his to the glory of God.

During the decision time following the showing of the film, seven at all including children and adults, made this their "Hour of Decision."

Miss Marion Sills presided at the organ for the hymns, and Mr. Ernie Pedley, president of the Youth for Christ group of the Tabernacle, acted as master of ceremonies.

History of Canada's Capital Described to University Club

The University Women's Club met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. W. L. Langdon, MacDonald Avenue.

Mrs. Douglas Burr, in charge of the meeting, thanked the members for their fine co-operation and hard work for the success of the Spring Fair.

Mrs. Burr expressed the regret of the club at the departure of Mrs. Arthur Smith, and extended the best wishes of all for the happiness of Archdeacon Smith and Mrs. Smith in their new home.

A number of interesting annual reports followed. Miss K. Daly gave an encouraging financial report which showed a total of $629 now in the scholarship fund.

Slate of Officers

The nominating committee presented a slate of officers for the next year: past president, Mrs. Douglas Burr; president, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon; vice-president, Mrs. F. Seibert; treasurer, Miss K. Daly; recording-secretary, Mrs. W. F. Baldwin; corresponding-secretary, Mrs. R. Barrett; program convenors, Mrs. A. E. May and Mrs. W. E. Kellett; social convenors, Mrs. J. Haig, Mrs. H. W. Burns, Mrs. J. Kuntze and Mrs. R. L. Littlejohn; Federation representative, Mrs. W. N. Hurst; members at large, Mrs. Gillis and Mrs. J. H. Bateman; publicity, Mrs. J. E. Pugh.

These officers were received by acclamation.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Walter Bowker, director of information on the National Planning committee. Mr. Bowker, who is learned, was born in England, lived from an early age in Calgary until in 1930 he moved to Ottawa, where he was a journalist and a free-lance writer, and where he became interested in town planning. This interest was developed during the war years when he served as an officer in the army, but on his return to civic life, he became a member of the National Film Board, and was then to publicize the national plan for the capital city, Ottawa. Mr. Bowker has just returned from a tour of the Maritime Provinces for the Canadian Club. The beautiful pictures of the national plan which he shows, practical and political, to please both sides. In 1867 one of the articles of Confederation made Ottawa the national capital of Canada.

In 1899 a federal district commission was set up to co-operate with the Ottawa city officials on improvements of the city. Nine hundred acres of parks were set aside, twenty-two miles of scenic driveways started, and floral displays agreed upon. It still costs Ottawa city money to service the parliament buildings which belong to all Canada, but now the government gives an annual grant to Ottawa City for the use of these services. All this was a beginning but still not town planning.

City Developed

Town planning is research, and a resulting planned and efficient development of a city. Back in 1913 to 1915, in Robert Borden's time, the government was alive to the need of a plan, but with the outbreak of the First World War, nothing came of the tentative plans initiated. When the war ceased conditions had changed, and the first-born plans were shelved.

In 1922 a private citizen brought forth an unofficial plan. Still nothing was done.

In 1937 the government reinvited the services of Jacques Gréber, a famous French designer, to work on the War Memorial. His report, issued in 1938, was the result that "Confusion Square" arose around the memorial. Then in 1939 all plans were once more held up by war.

Jacques Gréber has now again been retained to work on the planning of the national capital, and a federal district commission has been set up to include all the points of view of all parts of the country so that it will be a truly national capital.

National Capital

The Commission includes ten members from Ottawa, one from Hull, and ten from the rest of the country. Mr. Sandwell is the representative for Ontario. The members include eminent architects, and others experienced in work of this nature. These men are giving, mostly gratis, service to the nation as a whole, the highest kind of public service in their efforts to create a beautiful, dignified national capital.

In addition to the commission there is also a technical planning staff. Returning the 30 municipalities concerned, the federal government and the provincial government do not always see eye to eye on plans, but there has been praise-worthy co-operation, and the plans are going well.

These plans for Ottawa City include the re-location of the railways and the development of a sound arterial road system. Population of the city will be limited to about half a million with government buildings scattered over the city so that the workers can live close to their jobs. Around the city will be a three to five mile belt where there will be no city services. This area will be for farmers and market gardeners who will supply the city. Not far from Ottawa will be Gatineau Park, a natural playground of 34,000 to 52,000 acres.

Famous Floral Displays

Already the capital's floral displays are famous. The 60,000 crocuses around the War Memorial, the three solid acres of daffodils, and the biggest show of all, the tulips, literally numbering a million bulbs, planted 18 inches deep, make a gorgeous showing.

The length of time needed for the national plan to reach fulfillment is not known, it may be 25 years, or it may be 50. The cost likewise is problematical, but 100 million is a reasonable estimate.

As Mr. Bowker said, the capital will grow anyway, and it is better to have it developed according to plan. A beautiful and dignified capital is one of the finest legacies Canadians can leave to their children.

Mr. Bowker's pictures, slides in color, could not fail to stir with pride the heart of every Canadian. The natural beauties of Ottawa are evident, but the concept already made encouraging, and the city of the future a thrilling vision.

In commending the appreciation of the club, Mrs. A. E. May thanked Mr. Bowker for the education he had presented so pleasantly and for the interest in and work of this national capital.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Archdeacon Smith and Family Presented With Handsome Gifts

On Sunday evening, following the service of Evensong, a large number of parishioners of St. Thomas' assembled at the Rectory House, the purpose being a farewell reception in honor of the rector, Archdeacon Arthur Smith and Mrs. Smith, who will be leaving shortly for Toronto. Where Archdeacon Smith will assume his duties as rector of Christ Church, Deer Park, on June 1.

The parishioners were received by Archdeacon Smith, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. W. S. Stone, wife of the rector's warden, and Mrs. George Hosang, wife of the people's warden. Despite the fact that all present entertained deep regret at the departure of the rector and his family, it was indeed, a most enjoyable event. The rector's warden, Mr. W. S. Stone, presided and following his well expressed address, presentations of gifts as tokens of the affection and high regard entertained by the parishioners of St. Thomas' Church, Mrs. Smith and members of the family were made.

Chest of Silver

Mr. Archie S. Lewis, who was rector's warden at the time, presented a chest of silver flatware, comprising a service for eight, to Mrs. Smith, and the latter, also on behalf of the St. Paul members of the Church, Mr. George Hosang, the people's warden, followed with the presentation of a large bouquet of beautiful red roses to Mrs. Smith, which she acknowledged, in a gracious manner. Mr. Hosang next presented to Miss Patricia (Patsy) Smith, who recently graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Toronto University, a high grade travelling clock, and Miss Smith acknowledged in a charming manner. To little Harriet Smith, the youngest member of the family and the sweetheart of many of the parishioners, Mr. Hosang presented an engraved bracelet, which she acknowledged with a kiss for Mr. Hosang.

The main presentation was the last to take place and it was made by Mr. W. S. Stone, people's warden. Archdeacon Smith and Mrs. Smith were requested to stand during the beautiful new stage curtains which had remained closed all evening and when they were drawn they beheld a handsome, new grandfather's clock, seven feet in height and two feet in width with three solid chimes, on the Westminster, St. Michael's and Whittington. Upon the clock was a handsome engraved presentation plate.

Rich Memories

Archdeacon Smith feelingly acknowledged the gift and he said that he would never forget the parishioners of St. Thomas' and the kindnesses shown to him and members of his family during the seven and one-half years he had served as rector. He had received loyal and active support in his parish work and to all the people who had served during his time here; to all the women's organizations, the girls' auxiliaries, the men's club, the choir and organist, to the officers of the Sunday School superintendent and teachers, the Altar Guild, members of the representative council, who had served at various times, to the Archdeacon and to the Diocesan Synod, he expressed his sincere thanks and appreciation.

At the close of the presentations refreshments were served by members of the Woman's Auxiliary and the Women's Parochial Guild. Mrs. Austin Smith, Mrs. J. W. Davison and Miss Amy Belleghem presided at the tea table.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Doesn't feel guilty about seeing a married man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am becoming very fond of a man I met about a month ago at a club here. In town.

In that month, I've seen him three or four times, and he told me that he knew I was seeking his wife for a divorce for the past three years, and from the way he talks, I don't feel guilty now about seeing him, although I did at first. It seems the trouble with his wife has to do with her family and the fact that she doesn't want any children. The reason I haven't seen him more often is because he tells me he doesn't want to start any arguments with his wife about going out.

Could you advise me?—R.C.

Dear R.C.:

I can advise you all right, but is it going to do any good? If your own common sense doesn't tell you that you should stay away from married men, I doubt if you will pay any attention to what is told you by anyone else. And if you don't feel guilty, you should.

Whatever this man's reasons may be for wanting a divorce, they have nothing to do with the proposition of going out with him. Apparently, you think that because what he may have told you seems to justify a divorce, you can disregard the fact that he still has a wife. You couldn't be more mistaken. And what do you know about the wife's side of the story? Absolutely nothing. I'm quite sure.

You have no business going out with a married man under any circumstances whatever, and if you persist in doing so, you are very likely to find yourself in some kind of very unpleasant situation some day. Moreover, I see no reason to believe that he has any particular interest in you.

The advice for which you ask, therefore, is that you mind your own business, leave this man alone and so avoid both the possibility of trouble and the embarrassment of pursuing a man who isn't interested in having you do so.

Says she can get curl, permanent lasting as one lipstick

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Can I be a real blonde? Of high school, and while my mother allows me to go out with boys, she will not allow me to wear lipstick, so that I feel very conspicuous and silly because all my girl friends are permitted to wear it.

I have had a long heart-to-heart talk with my mother and still she will not let me, wear make-up—not for trips, but I think at 15 I should be allowed to do it like other girls. Do you think my parents treat me this way because I'm the only child and they don't want me to grow up too fast?

A.F.

Dear T.A.F.:

You may be quite right in thinking that perhaps your parents are reluctant to see you grow up. Some day, when you are grown up and married and have children of your own, you will understand more clearly how hard it sometimes is for parents to feel that their daughters and sons are leaving childhood behind and ready for grown-up privileges.

I agree, however, that you might be allowed to wear some makeup, properly put on, as the other girls or your age do, for I know it is hard for any girl to feel that she is "different" from her friends in any way, especially when she feels that she is being kept a child. I have a suggestion that perhaps might work out if you handle it with care. The suggestion is that you and some of your friends go to the teacher in charge of school who is most likely to listen and understand, and ask her if she could not arrange to have someone from your local beauty shop give a talk to the girls of the high school on how to use make-up in a way appropriate to their age. If she is willing to do this, then get her to have notices sent out to the parents of all the girls telling them about this meeting and asking them to attend.

When your mother sees that the mothers of other girls are ready to go along with this idea, as most of them probably will be, you may find it changes her attitude more than anything you could say to her. Perhaps then how well you can put this idea across, and then let me know how you make out.

It's the Little Things That Count

By Mary Moore

A worried young man said "Yes," there anything I can do to make her love me like she used to?"

Their quarrels had been over the merest trifle—(her hair-do) and there is still a strong bond of respect and affection between them, but the quarrel had somehow removed the glamor from the courtship.

It set me to thinking about the little things that affect the whole lives of some people.

I know a doctor who openly admits that he proposed to his wife because of her beautiful curly red hair. . . and of a woman who smilingly claims that her swain won her heart with his courtly manners—for instance tucking her flowing skirts inside the car door after ushering her in.

Another trifle that saved the lives of two widow ladies was a bed of lilies of the valley. They inherited their property in Florida, and had the opportunity of moving there to live . . . but couldn't pull themselves away from this large bed of lilies of the valley growing by the side gardden of their old home. Subsequently, a hurricane blew what was laid low by a tropical hurricane and the caretaker was killed.

A mild little woman who had shortened many a man's journey, her faithless husband silently resolved to "show her" when he bumped into her dining-room chair as he passed again, after he had been told she'd broken his childish trick for five years. His did—and she did.

The wife of an uncle of one of mine served that apple pie for dessert every day for twenty-five years. (Sounds like a tall story—but that's how it was told to me.) I don't know the outcome but if he ate regularly a large dish containing cold water and do not think it had a chain him to the wall.) When cooled to lukewarm add 1 teaspoon vanilla and beat until thick and glazing is to hold its shape. Add 1 cup broken nuts—not all necessary. Pour to 1 inch depth in small buttered pan. Chill in refrigerator for at least 1-2 hour if you can keep your family away from it. With love from Mary.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS RECKONAH

Attention, please . . . feminine guest at a church wedding

When you go to a wedding in a church . . . a church of any denomination . . . you should wear a hat or some other kind of dignified head-covering. Not to do this shows that you are lacking in good taste, in lacking in proper judgment, and lacking in the proper understanding of reverence for any ceremony performed in a church. And this means you . . . whether you are a very young girl or an older woman.

This bride has a real problem of "relationships"

Dear Mrs. Reckonah:

Please help us to work out our difficult problem! I am to be married soon, and we are having such a time trying to plan the receiving-line. And the timing of reception.

This is the situation: When I was two years old, my parents were divorced, and ever since I have lived with my grandmother. Both my mother and my father have re-married. I have talked with all of them as to the reception line. My father says to give me in earnings and he has said that he would be in the receiving-line. My stepmother has told me she would not stand in the receiving-line because she felt that she was not entitled in. My mother said she also would not stand in the receiving-line because she had not supported me all these years, nor is she helping to plan or to pay for the wedding. Now, Mrs. Beeckman, I am wondering if I were your daughter if my grandmother stood in the line with my mother and my father, my grandmother has really been my mother for as long as I can remember. However, I am concerned as to whether it is proper for her to do this. Please tell me what you think about these "positions."—M.

(1) I am glad that your father is to give you in marriage. this is the difficult procedure. And he may be in the receiving-line if you wish, although the large club containing cold water and do not think it had a chain him to the wall.) Chill in refrigerator for at least 1-2 hour if you can keep your family away from it. With love from Mary.

(2) Your stepmother, point of view is correct, very definitely, she should not stand in the receiving-line.

(3) And very definitely I think that good and wonderful) grandmother of yours should be in the receiving-line! She richly deserves this position, considering her great and abiding goodness to you.

(4) About your mother's being in the line. . . you didn't tell me enough about her position in the family circle for me to give advice about this. If you feel that in your grandmother have been and are on friendly terms, then, if you wish, he may be in the line. This is entirely your decision—a very wise plan you might like to consider is to ask your grandmother to stand near the entrance of the room to receive the reception guests . . . her position then hostess and the grandmother who reared you. . . and then have the receiving-line composed only of the wedding party: you and your bridegroom (you at his right); on your right, your maid (or matron) of honor, and at her right, the bridesmaids. $427,538.18 Is Expended By I.O.D.E. in Past Year

This amount is $16,626 more than for the 1951-52 period.

In a report prepared for delivery tonight at the 53rd annual meeting of the national chapter, IODE, Mrs. Barbara E. Osler, Toronto, convener of national standards, said that $83,719.45 of this amount was spent on equipment for clinics, hospitals, preventoria and similar institutions.

Equipment supplied by chapters across the country ranged from television sets and floor polishers to infant oxygen tents and an examination table with equipment for cancer research, she said.

"More than 28,000 visits were made to 1,477 families in need, and some 90,000 magazines as well as thousands of games were distributed."

AM For Children

The Aid to Children Fund received over 15 tons of clothing and other articles valued at $54,753.80, while there were seven tons of clothing and bedding, valued at $23,957.43, sent to 1,000 families in Great England. A children's hospital in England and another in Scotland received $1,710.40 worth of clothing and comforts.

Mrs. Osler said that the IODE had experimented by "sending" parcels overseas through the purchase of food tokens from a London, England firm which distributed packages in the country itself.

This method was adopted because of high postal rates on food parcels and seemed to be working out successfully as a means of cutting expenses, she said.

"The order has made a very real effort to assure our servicemen that they are not forgotten by those at home," said Mrs. Osler.

Gladdie For Troops

More than a million cigarets were shipped to Canadian and British troops in Germany during the last year and thousands more distributed to ex-servicemen in hospitals here.

Recreation programs for blind persons, veterans, handicapped children, pre-school children, inmates of county homes, orphanages, Canadians and members of "Over-60" clubs were carried out by many chapters, she said.

Thousands of dollars were also distributed for emergency aid, flood relief, merchant sailors and fishermen's homes and institutions and for the establishing and maintenance of war memorials.

Mrs. Osler said that although much was being done in Canada by the order, concentration on overseas projects was necessary. "If the world is to be a better place and situations which foster discontent and unrest abolished."

Visits of Prince of Wales Welcomed by Elizabeth

A week from today Queen Elizabeth II will be crowned. Millions who glory in the grandeur of the Elizabethan age, 400 years ago, see in the new Elizabeth a symbol of a better era. This story, second of a series of five on her life, tells of the touching point in the Royal Family that placed Elizabeth one step from the throne.

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—Little Princess Elizabeth and her uncle David were pals.

It was an exciting event for Lilibet when the dashing Prince of Wales dropped around to her house in Piccadilly, as he frequently did in those carefree days.

Welcome Escape

Such visits were a welcome escape from the regime of her grandmother, Queen Mary, who believed Elizabeth's training should begin early even though the possibility she ever would be Queen seemed remote at the time.

Just before Elizabeth's 10th birthday came the first real turning point in her education and in the outlook of those guiding her.

King George V died.

The little princess broke into fits of weeping on encountering this first crisis of her life. Then other changes came fast—too fast for a little girl not yet 10 to understand.

The casual visits of uncle David, now King Edward VIII, became less and less frequent, and finally stopped altogether. There was a tenseness around Buckingham Palace which was noticeable even to a child.

Given Explanation

Finally, Dec. 10, 1936, not quite a year after George V's death, she and her sister, Princess Margaret, were told they were moving from the Piccadilly house into the Palace.

"What, forever and ever?" exclaimed Lilibet in amazement.

Edward had abdicated. His bluegyed niece was now next in the direct line of succession, and destined to be England's fifth reigning Queen.

The princesses were given an explanation of how their uncle was going away for a long time, perhaps forever. Lilibet was not to see him again for a while.

Soon she was poised, grown-up girl.

She has never lost her affection for him. The Duke of Windsor on his rare visits to England usually calls at Buckingham Palace. But the Duke will not be at the Coronation. It would be against constitutional usage for a former sovereign to attend.

Elizabeth was only 10 at the abdication.

Shadows Shortening

Already the shadows of war were shortening. It was the year that Hitler "reoccupied" the Rhineland, Mussolini triumphantly annexed Ethiopia and the Spanish civil war dragged on.

The Coronation of Elizabeth's father as George VI saw her and her sister Margaret taking a full part in purple robes and coronets. Lilibet beamed with amazing dignity during the long ceremony in Westminster Abbey, and even took it upon herself to see that Margaret behaved too.

The education of Lilibet went on under private tutors with a new sense of direction now. Sir Henry Marten, vice-provost of Eton, the chief tutor, reported that royal prestege was systematic rather than brilliant, but "considerable, responsive, ready to be interested or amused."

13 When War Broke Out

The war brought important changes in the life of the princess. She was 13 when the war broke out, old enough to get a lasting impression of the bombings and hurried scamperings to a bomb shelter.

Many British families sent their children to Canada or the United States to escape the blitz. There were suggestions the Royal Family do likewise. Their mother would not hear of it, explaining emphatically:

"They could not go without me, and I would not go without the King."

But the princesses were evacuated to Birkhall, near Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and then to Windsor Castle where the danger from bombs was not so great.

Elizabeth's growing responsibility was manifested before her 14th birthday in a broadcast to the children of the Dominions and the Empire:

Doing All We Can

"I can truthfully say to you that we children at home are full of cheerfulness and courage. We are trying to do all we can to help our sailors, soldiers and airmen, and we are trying to bear our share of the dangers and sadness of war.

Reaching 16, Lilibet registered for national service and was officially introduced to the armed forces with an honorary appointment as Colonel of the Grenadier Guards. For months she pestered her parents about joining the ATS.

There was here a spark of the first Queen Elizabeth, who centuries before rode bareheaded among her soldiers at Tilbury and rallied them to face the impending invasion by the Spanish armada with the cry: "I myself will take up arms. I myself will be your general."

King George and the cabinet felt that Lilibet's training for Queen should not be interrupted, but such service and even issued an official announcement to that effect. But in the end the princess had her way.

Enlists Quietly

The ATS transportation corps carries this entry: "No. 230873— second subaltera (lieutenant) Elizabeth Alexandra Mary Windsor; age 18; eyes blue; hair, brown; height, 5 feet, 7 inches."

In the ATS Elizabeth underwent rough training in overalls; and learned to tear down and grease a motor and drive a truck.

One week there were spit-and-polish preparations for an inspection by distinguished visitors, who turned out to be the King and Queen.

"I have never seen a royal visit from the inside before," she told her parents. "I didn't know so much preparation went into it."

Perhaps Lilibet was thinking of another royal visit she made with her parents to the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth. There a young sailor had caught the eye of the 14-year-old princess. He corresponded with her through the war.

It was the beginning of a romance that blossomed into the marriage of the princess and the handsome naval officer, Prince Philip of Greece.

They will receive the lopped-off third as an expense allowance which, under recent federal legislation, will be tax exempt.

I.O.D.E. Spent $172,938 On Education

EDMONTON (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire spent $172,938 on educational projects during 1953-53.

In a report prepared for delivery at the 53rd annual meeting of the national chapter being held here this week, Mrs. O. M. Martin Toronto, national educational secretary, said that $139,443.20 of the amount represented outlay by the provincial chapters, "the largest in the history of the order."

Mrs. Martin said that $41,729.08 was spent on 1514 schools by 613 chapters for libraries, pictures, calendars, magazines and other supplies.

The total used for students was $26,261.28 including scholarships, bursaries, monetary assistance and prizes.

Big Prize List

"Prize giving increased last year when 2,264 prizes were presented. 1,773 of which were awarded to students," said Mrs. Martin.

Last year 848 students, 128 of whom came from homes of ex-service personnel, were helped by the order.

Mrs. Martin said that the collecting and preserving of Canadiana was a major project of the IODE and a committee headed by Ethel Raymond, Brantford, had been set up for this purpose.

The educational secretary also reported that "provincial educational secretaries of the IODE are realizing the importance of the creative use of leisure as reports show more and more interest in music, art and literature."

Plans were completed for the publication of a special IODE edition of Prof. George E. Tait's "Famous Canadian Stories." Chapters were urged to purchase copies as Empire and Citizenship Day prizes for grades VII and VIII.

Obscene Literature

Mrs. Martin referred to a brief presented last summer on behalf of the order by Mrs. J. H. Derwiler, Paris, Ont., to the special committee of the Senate on sale and distribution of salacious and indecent literature.

"The special committee of the Senate with even wider scope resumed its hearings in February and has now presented its report to the Senate of the Dominion for recommendation that border controls be expanded to halt the import of obscene books," she said.

In a report on the national Commonwealth and Empire committee, Mrs. C. M. Scott, Peterborough, said that it proposes under way to bring a nurse, Miss Goanaselvan David, from Ceylon this autumn to attend the University of Toronto school of nursing. Mrs. Scott said it was announced that the over-all cost of the two-year degree course would be $4,200.

Mrs. Laurence Grout, Toronto, national secretary of the IODE magazine "Echoes," said in her report that "revenue from advertising was $24,367.40 for 1952-53 and from subscriptions, $23,821.18."

"This represents a very small profit on the year's operation despite the rising costs of publication, she said.

Homemade Bread

Isn't it funny how things change? In our grandmother's day, homemakers made their own bread. Then bakeries came into being and in almost every town, no matter how small, the local bakery took the load off the homemaker. What aroma could be more tempting than the fragrance of homemade bread? Everyone loves homemade bread but many homemakers feel a little timid about making it—they think it is difficult. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture assure homemakers that it isn't. If they have never made bread or rolls and are somewhat skeptical about turning their hand to it, they should start with rolls first. It is fun to work with yeast dough and homemakers get more satisfaction out of baking breads and rolls than almost anything else in the baking line.

Flour, of course, is the main ingredient used in both bread and rolls. There are two common types of flour made from two types of Canadian wheat. One from spring wheat is a hard flour with considerable gluten in it which is needed for bread and rolls because it gives a tough elastic dough. Soft wheat flour from winter wheat is not as good flour and is used for making pastry. Cake flour, also made from soft wheat flour is used for making cakes. It is true that hard wheat flour is often called all-purpose because it can be used for all types of baking, but a soft wheat flour is not suitable for bread and rolls.

Yeast For Bread Making

Without yeast, homemade bread is not possible. As a bread making ingredient, it is of prime importance. Yes it is essential for perfect results. Yeast has been known since the most ancient times. Back again to our grandmother's time—the green blossoms of the hop vines that grew in the backyard were gathered and dried for making yeast. It was quite a job combining the hops with the right amount of flour, sugar, salt and potato to make perfect yeast which was needed for perfect bread. Today, the yeast is made for us and there are two kinds available. The compressed cake yeast and the dehydrated granular fast-rising yeast. The dry yeast seems to be largely replacing the compressed yeast, no doubt because it is not so perishable as the compressed type and is small cakes wrapped in foil.

The ingredients for bread making are flour, liquid which may be either water or milk, or potato water and some shortening, just butter or a vegetable shortening, is always added to bread dough. Last but not least, we must not forget sugar and salt. Bread and rolls would be very insipid with out it.

Bread Making Pointers

Home economists have some ideas for the homemaker who is a little frightened about tackling bread making. The first point they mention is that temperature is a thing which must be watched in bread making. Yeast, the leavening agent of bread works best at 75 to 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Incidentally, when using the granular yeast rather than the compressed type, the amount of liquid used to dissolve the yeast must be double and that liquid must be water rather than milk. Getting back to temperature, this 75 to 80 degree temperature should be maintained in every step of the way. If hot milk is being used in the recipe, it should be cooled to lukewarm before combining with the yeast. In the final step, dough should be allowed to rise in this 75 to 80 degree temperature. To be sure that the water or milk used is cool, it can be tested with a standard thermometer, but the quickest and easiest test is the same test used in testing baby's bottle—pour a little on your wrist. If the liquid feels neither hot nor cold, then it is just right. In hot weather when the air is warmer than 85 degrees, it is best to place the yeast to rise in a pan of cool water. This will help to keep the temperature of the dough around 80 degrees F.

The reason for kneading bread is to thoroughly distribute the yeast and the air bubbles. When kneading the dough, turn it out on a greased board. The home economists say a greased board but a floured board may also be used just as long as you are careful not to work too much flour into the dough.

Scotland Yard

More than a century ago one of the houses of Whitehall Palace — the old residence of the Kings of England — was called "Scotland Yard." When the London police force started a detective branch in 1842, it was housed in this yard, and Scotland Yard became associated in the public mind with London police. Thus when police headquarters moved to more spacious premises near Westminster bridge in 1890, the name went with them. New Scotland Yard now consists of three blocks built in 1890, 1905 and 1940. — (CP Photo.)

Newspaper Wins Anti-Trust Suit

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U. S. Supreme Court ruled today that the New Orleans Time-Picayune did not violate anti-trust laws by its advertising policy which required that classified and national advertisers buy space in both its morning and afternoon newspapers.

The court's decision was by a margin of 5 to 4 in the civil anti-trust suit brought by the justice department. The department contended the advertising requirement was a "forced" rate method unfair to the New Orleans Item, a competing afternoon paper.

The majority decision emphasized that the ruling applied only to circumstances in this case and did not "determine that unit advertising arrangements are lawful in other circumstances or in other proceedings."

Under this advertising method, advertisers wanting to buy space in the morning paper, where there is no competition, must also advertise in the afternoon paper, which is in competition with the Item. The method is in effect in many U. S. cities.

The combination rate requirement does not apply to local retail advertisers.

Many Buildings Needed For Coronation Planning

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Britain's most extensive preparations in nine centuries of Coronation planning have involved thousands of London buildings.

Some, like the earl marshal's office at his Belgrave Square home, the war office and the ministry of works, join Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey in shouldering the main burden.

Others, famed in their own right, hold subsidiary but significant administrative and traditional roles. Among them are Canada House, Clarence House, 10 Downing street and Scotland Yard.

Canadian Rendezvous

Canada House, on the southwest side of busy Trafalgar Square, is well into its most active season ever. The massive, Georgian residence of the Canadian high commissioner, link with home to Canadians in Britain, is swarming with Coronation visitors.

Besides its services as a Commonwealth headquarters, it will afford one of the choicest procession viewing sites. Those occupying the seats, whose plank and steel tube ingredients swath its exterior will see the pageantry three times as it passes through the square.

In front, Canadian service personnel will stand guard along a section of the route.

The building forms the central point of a cluster of many of Canada's commercial houses, including railway and shipping companies. Built in 1824, it was purchased by the Canadian government in 1925, revamped and then opened by King George V and Queen Mary. Norman Robertson, present high commissioner, is the eighth since the post was inaugurated in 1833.

Royal Rendezvous

A year younger and boasting long royal ties, Clarence House is a cream-colored, square building near the Mall, where the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret have just taken up residence.

Here, beside the dingy red of St. James's Palace, the then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh set up housekeeping in 1949, before King George VI's death took them to Buckingham Palace.

It was built in 1825 for William IV, housed various royal figures and was occupied from 1901 to 1940 by the Duke of Connaught, once governor-general of Canada. Canadian troops taking over the traditional guard at Buckingham Palace June 5 will also stand sentry duty at Clarence House.

Watching of the four is New Scotland Yard, storied in crime fiction, home of the metropolitan police force "hobby" and never at heavy-handedly inept as the Sherlock Holmes tradition sometimes implies. A group of three buildings, "the Yard" fronts inscrutably on the Thames-side Victoria Embankment and is bordered at the rear by historic Parliament street.

Get Two Views

Aptly enough, the procession will pass front and back of the premises responsible for split-second details of security, traffic and crowd control.

It has taken the vast task in stride, profiting from countless similar problems met since its organization 1842 with 12 detectives in its criminal investigation department.

Scotland Yard originated in part of old Whitehall Palace and moved to its present location in 1890. Its unusual name derives from the habit of visiting Scottish kings invariably occupying that part of the palace where the organization was born later.

Least prepossessing but carrying the greatest national and international prestige, 10 Downing street is the brick office-home traditionally occupied by the sovereign's first minister since Disraeli set the precedent in 1877.

Downing street, 285 years old, opens on Whitehall and backs into St. James's Park, a short distance away. Its No. 1 occupant, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, could manage a distant view of the Coronation procession as it comes back from the abbey.

But, by virtue of his position as head of Her Majesty's government and main go-between for crown and responsible government, he will be an important part of it.

"Liver-Colored" Carpet

The house at 10 Downing street has never lived up to its high position in looks.

"Liver-colored and squalid" was the description given it—a scene most endorsed by many of its illustrious tenants. Stanley Baldwin said it was also the "most convenient in any way."

Att, although it was disliked, with one small bath up to 1936 and rarely affording enough room for all the belongings of the changing residents, its place in modern world history is undeniable.

Suffragettes stormed its doors. Crowds formed for good news and bad, peace and war. The call was accepted and accepts new and former inhabitants as the electors decree.

Here June 9 Sir Winston will entertain Commonwealth prime ministers in London for the ritual of Coronation and to talk about the economic troubles of their countries. Later in the year, if tradition prevails, Sir Winston will entertain the sovereign.

BUILD 800-FOOT ROADWAY

NORTH BAY (CP)—About 100 reserve force engineers of the army's 8th field squadron Sunday put finishing touches on a 800-foot road into a proposed playground area for its housing development. The property was donated the city by Veterans Land Act administration for a recreation and conservation area.

CHUTE BRUSHES WIRE

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—While making a parachute jump Sunday, Glen Masterson, local president of the Canadian Parachute Club, realized he had misjudged the wind. He floated a short distance from the designated landing spot and as he landed his chute brushed 2,200-volt power wires. It caused a short circuit and power was off for about an hour.

Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years!

TCP* Shell-discovered additive, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline puts an end to the greatest cause of power loss. Actually boosts power up to 15%, spark plug life up to 150% by counteracting the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers.

Though you may not realize it, the chances are that your engine is delivering far less than its original horsepower.

This is because, in the average engine, deposits constantly "build up" on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. These deposits actually "short circuit" your spark plugs causing them to misfire. They may also cause pre-ignition of the combustion mixture—resulting in severe knock. This is especially true when accelerating, climbing hills, or driving on the open highway.

This condition exists in the majority of cars on the road today.

To overcome this condition, Shell research discovered a fuel additive TCP. Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, TCP stops the short-circuiting effects of the deposits on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. This means, for the average motorist, a power boost of up to 15%, an increase in spark plug life of up to 150%, plus an increase in gasoline mileage!

Shell Premium with TCP is the most important advance in gasoline since the discovery of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

New and old engines benefit

If you have a new car, particularly one with a high compression engine, Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of the spark plug. But high compression or not, Shell Premium with TCP keeps it working like new.

Owners of older cars also benefit. Even if your car has gone thirty thousand miles or even more, your engine can get back much of its original power by the use of Shell Premium with TCP.

Shell Premium with TCP quick to act

So rapidly does Shell Premium with TCP counteract the deposit on spark plugs and in combustion chambers, that you'll feel your engine's had a tune-up before you've finished the second tankful. You enjoy that new car pep again.

Now in Canada–but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP was originally developed by Shell research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only at Shell Service Stations.

Coronation Theme Thumping Tune On Cash Registers

By JOHN McKEE

NEW YORK (AP)—The British Coronation theme is thumping a merry tune on United States cash registers from coast to coast.

Nearly 400 stores, in some 270 cities, in every state, are participating in Coronation promotions—featuring British merchandise as a tie-in with the crowning of Queen Elizabeth June 2. And a number have already reported royal profits from the royal theme.

"It's the biggest campaign to sell British goods ever launched in America," said Duncan Mowat, chief executive of the British trade promotion centre in New York. "And we are confident that it will prove highly successful for both British manufacturers and American merchants."

The centre and the British Commonwealth Chamber of Commerce in the United States are sponsors of the promotion. Many are private business organizations. Mowat, a Scot, formerly served as joint general manager of the dollar export board in London.

President Owen Letcher of the chamber said he expects a "great surge" in sales as a result of the promotion. "Purchases of British products by department and specialty stores throughout the country have been particularly heavy in recent months," he added.

Imports of British goods are currently running about 10 per cent ahead of last year, Mowat said. British exports of goods to the United States in the first four months of this year totalled $146,000,000, compared with $120,000,000 in the same period last year.

FIND FIRE ACCIDENTAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said Monday a fire at Lac Ste. Marie, Gatineau county, which took the lives last February was accidental. They had released an unidentified, 40-year-old man held for questioning for the last 18 days. Police said they investigated because of telephone calls that there was "something suspicious" about the fire.

U.S. Buyers Take Many Cattle At Auction Sale

OAKVILLE (CP)—United States buyers took more than half the 461 head of cattle at the sale at the national Holstein sale Monday.

The sale, the first big one since the lifting of the embargo following the foot-and-mouth outbreak in Western Canada, brought a total of $41,160.

Highest price paid during the sale was $1,250 by Craig Reid of Norval for Juan Bilaron of Mexico City, for a six-month-old bull calf consigned by J. J. E. McCague of Alliston.

McCague also sold the top female at $1,225 to H. J. Scald of Washingtonville, N. Y. Second highest price for a bull was $1,050 record by Albert Seiling of Edmira. Buyers were Eldon and Cecil Ballantyne and Allen Bain of Stratford.

C. W. Fraser of Streetsville sold a bred-heifer for $1,575 to Massey-Harris farms of Milliken and another for $1,200 to Fred Baer of Fort Plain, N. Y. Baer paid $1,025 to J. M. Fraser, also of Streetsville, for a bred heifer.

C. J. Cornell of Bethcon received $1,000 for a milking female, the highest price at the sale for one. David Stevens of St. Marys sold an eight-month-old heifer calf for $1,450.

Four bulls averaged $1,137, 15 milking females $558, 38 bred heifers $643, two open yearlings $387 and two heifer calves $1,150.

K. A. Hammond of Mccrefield sold a bull calf with its mother to Cephas Bolton of Peterborough for $800. The calf was born just three hours before the cow went on the auction block.

Reward Given To Streetcleaner

MONTREAL (CP) — Napoleon Chartrand, a Montreal street-cleaner, received $500 reward Monday because he found a piece of mud-covered apparatus "that didn't look like anything."

It turned out to be a range-finder, classified by authorities as top-secret. It was stolen April 14 from the car of an employee of a company which makes precision and optical instruments. The company offered the reward.

Chartrand found the gadget while cleaning out a sewer and notified police.

Visitors View Parade Route As Festival Fever Heightens; Britons Become Most Sociable

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—The most popular recreation in giddy London today was to "walk the Queen's six miles."

It's the route through streets and parks along which the Coronation procession will pass just a week from today, the Queen riding splendidly in the gold and purple state coach drawn by eight Windsor Greys.

Excitement increased as the fabulous day approached. A game which Londoners and many thousands of visitors have invented is to see the city just as the Queen will see it. Tens of thousands jostle and plod along the route, gaping at the miles of spic and span grandstands which have converted sober London into a gay and fluttering town of color and light.

The life to the spirits of her majesty's subjects can almost be felt. Britons have become effusively sociable. Strangers talk to each other, argue, laugh and invite each other to tea.

Some of those who argue insist that the grand scale on which monarchy's finest spectacle is being organized is a foolish extravagance.

But everyone loves the Queen, and the fault finders—even those few who like to think themselves left wanting a republic—hurry down the Mall with the Coronation enthusiasts to converge in dense thousands about Buckingham Palace.

Queen Back Home

The royal standard again flew from the palace flag pole today, showing that the Queen had returned from a breather at the royal lodge at Windsor. Even during her absence the crowds stood, shoved and milled about.

Monday night police reinforcements were called to clear away crowds pressed against the palace gates.

"It's the Coronation fever we expected," said the earl marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, in charge of the Coronation arrangements.

Then, wearily, the earl marshal prepared for still more rehearsals at Westminster Abbey, where the Coronation takes place. The most important will be Friday, when a great many of the spectators who will be admitted to the abbey will come to be told which doors to use and how to get to their assigned places with the least confusion.

The Queen herself is regarded just about letter perfect in her part, and the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, who will place the crown of St. Edward on her head, have practised repeatedly in private. In the abbey, before a larger group, she has rehearsed the presentation of the Bible, spurs and sword, and has approached her throne three or four times to be sure just how many steps she will have to take.

Big Day Is Open

The young monarch, in radiant health, had a day in the open Monday. In the morning she rode with the Duke of Edinburgh, and Princess Anne on beside paths about the royal lodge. In the afternoon she and her mother watched races at Hurst Park. The Queen wore a light brown frock and a wide-brimmed hat. She smiled and seemed to be thrilled by some exciting races.

There still were 3,000 persons milling around outside Buckingham Palace when the Queen arrived from Windsor shortly before midnight. The royal car came unescorted and had slipped into the palace forecourt before the people realized they had just seen the sovereign go by. Then they raised a mighty cheer.

The Coronation fever pleasantly afflicting the land probably was heightened by the weather. The temperature rose to 86 degrees at 6 o'clock Monday night—and for England that is a scorcher.

The heat was expected to break late today, a change being brought in by severe hail and rain storms in Scotland and northern Wales.

Synthetic Narcotics New Problem for RCMP Agents; May Cause Shift in Strategy

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—New synthetic drugs, which can be turned out wholesale in the kitchen, are posing a problem for the men fighting Canada's illicit narcotics traffic.

The moonshine manufacturing tactics may cause a big shift in the strategy of narcotics agents battling the heartbreak it causing untold social and economic damage in this country.

The RCMP, the police force chiefly concerned with the drug problem, tells about its newest headache in a revised edition of its 1948 publication "Law and Order in Canadian Democracy," a general treatise on crime and police work in Canada.

Cause For Concern

Recent development of several synthetic narcotic substitutes, the RCMP says, has given "cause for concern" from standpoint of efforts to curb illegal drug peddling and use, even though steps are immediately taken to control them as they appear.

"The great danger of the synthetics," the RCMP says, "lies in the fact that any unscrupulous chemist, possessing the known formulas and working in a basement laboratory, could produce large quantities of these drugs for the illegal traffic.

"This fact will undoubtedly greatly influence our future approach to the narcotic problem."

Of that problem generally, the force says that—despite a 30-year attack at huge expense—there is still "far too large a number of drug addicts and of the peddlers catering to their wants."

Heroin Gets Big Play

New recruits to the habit—heroin now gets the big play—are being made daily. Smugglers continue to bring large quantities of drugs into Canada.

"The Canadian narcotic problem is certainly still acute and will undoubtedly have to be faced for some time to come," the RCMP concludes.

Canadian addicts spend millions of dollars a year to ease their craving, the Mounties estimate. A large percentage of this money derives from crime, because of the victim's need for a steady supply at all costs.

"Because of the enormous economic burden placed upon the country by drug addiction and the crime associated with it, apart entirely from any consideration of humanitarianism, the suppression and complete elimination of the drug traffic is a matter of vital national importance," the RCMP states.

Up to now, the force says, the attack has been directed at trafficking more than at addiction. But this cannot end the problem.

Must Attack Addict

The drug problem "cannot be solved unless it is tackled at its very source—within himself—the ailment as mental disease.

Canada needs a system of institutional treatment designed for a cure, not as a punitive measure. Narcotic addiction is as much an

"If we are prepared to accept the proposition that there is a close similarity between insanity and narcotic addiction," the RCMP says, "We should be willing to take the next step and provide the necessary legislation for the enforced committal and control of the drug addict."

It continues:

"The only way in which the narcotics traffic and crime stemming from it can finally be stamped out in Canada lies in . . . a nation-wide plan aimed at the roots of the problem, namely the ending of drug addiction through cure and post-treatment control of the addict."

It can save you trouble...

The B. F. Goodrich LIFE-SAVER Tubeless Tire seals punctures on the spot—thus protects against the annoying trouble caused by flat tires.

It will save you money...

The B. F. Goodrich LIFE-SAVER Tubeless Tire provides greater safety than any tire and tube, yet it costs less than the conventional safety tire-tube combination.

Accidents like the one above can happen when blowouts occur—that's why you owe it to yourself to find out about the safer protection in B. F. Goodrich LIFE-SAVER Tubeless Tires. Most blowouts are caused when the inner tube explodes through weakened or broken cords. But, because it has no inner tube, a LIFE-SAVER Tire changes a sudden, dangerous blowout to a safe, slow-out—allowing you ample time to stop your car safely, with perfect control.

PUNCTURE PROTECTION
A gummy rubber compound under the tread immediately seals puncturing objects, and permanently seals the hole when the object is removed. Inconvenience and delays are eliminated.

BLOWOUT PROTECTION
Instead of the tube, the LIFE-SAVER has a patented air cell inner lining that's part of the tire. In event of damage there's no sudden blowout. Instead, only small breathing hole in liner, a self-sealing one that lets you stop safely.

SKID PROTECTION
The LIFE-SAVER tread is cross-cut into thousands of tiny grip-blocks. At 30 miles per hour on wet roads, it stops on a car length quicker than regular tires . . . and gives you longer mileage too.

Okay, let's walk passed them and keep rite on going, just for fun, Puds said.

Proving she was jellias, and after a while she said, Where are you boys going?

Oh, nowheres special, why? I said, and Puds said, We're just kind of taking a walk, why?

I hope you injoy the scenery, Mary Watkins said, and the other girl started to giggel, showing a lot of little white teeth and 2 big dimples, and Mary started to giggel too, making us and Puds feel imbarrissed, and I said, Well goodbye, now, we got a long walk to take.

Yeh, goodbye, Puds sfeid, and Mary Watkins said, Wait a minute, I want you to meet my cuzzen.

And we sat there playing jacks with them, all playing and giggeling and having a pritty good of a time, and proving the best way to get along with grils is to act independent.

Buckingham Palace Conceived By Stubborn Whim of George IV

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Conceived in the stubborn whim of George IV, sprawling grey-and-yellow Buckingham Palace has survived public and kingly scorn to become synonymous with the British sovereign.

As the No. 1 royal residence this 48-acre town-house-turned-palace is the heart of London will stand out with venerable Westminster Abbey in the Queen's crowning June 2.

As palaces go, the 600-room structure is a rank newcomer. For tradition, it must make do with silk worms and money squabbles while the abbey boasts ecclesiastic and royal roots so bedded in Britain's past that fable cloaks their origin.

Nevertheless, the palatory's short and often checkered career can't obscure its position since 1837 in the day-to-day life of Britain's royalty.

Costly Project

George IV started to rebuild red-bricked Buckingham House in 1825 because he wanted a palace the envy of Europe. What he got, most agree, was a broken house and a lot of trouble.

"I am too old to build a palace," he conceded at the outset, but pressed on through costs mounting eventually close to £1,000,000, a House of Commons investigation and interminable delays. He had insisted on the site, acquired for £21,000 in 1762 by his father, for nostalgic family reasons, though he was the only one of George III's nine children not born there. He died before he could occupy the palace.

Brother William IV spurned the draughty place and tried unsuccessfully to give it to Parliament as a new home.

In 1837, young Queen Victoria became the first resident a month after her accession. With a reluctance, possibly inspired by the emotional tug of leaving her birthplace, she spent Kensington Gardens Palace for a 63-year Buckingham Palace career.

Since then, the palace has been the sovereign's London home, continually revamped and reformed, resurfaced, added to and sometimes openly disliked.

Its clocks figuratively stopped on the death of the prince consort in 1861. The gloom symbolizing the Victorian period to many descended on what had been the gayest residence in Britain. Pleasure-loving Edward VII termed it "the sepulchre" as Prince of Wales and, on his accession, swept away the past. George V dreamed of selling it, although he did more to modernize it, including addition of central heating, than any other sovereign.

Massive Structure

Despite changes, it's much the same now as when finished by architect John Nash, whose regency-period work lives on in Regent's Park and Regent Street. Round the bones of Buckingham House he built a massive central block with wings ending in pavilions. These extremities gave way to the second and third sides of the palace court. Queen Victoria completed the square with the fourth side, to gain extra room "for a little family (nine children) fast growing up."

The addition, resurfaced in 1913 in grey Portland stone, is the guard-dotted east side, best known of all the palace features, facing down the Mall to Admiralty Arch Parks.

What tradition the rambling edifice can claim includes a tenuous link with the abbey, whose pre-reformation Benedictine order of monks owned the land. Thrifty James I unsuccessfully tried to grow his own silk on the four acres remaining in royal hands by 1609. His mulberry trees lived but the silk worms died. Eventually the land became privately owned, imported various houses and then was bought by George III.

Queen's Headquarters

In the Coronation scheme, the palace is far more than a mere town house for Queen Elizabeth II. It is the true heart of the elaborate planning and correlation that the conscientious, meticulous Queen has made her own.

The first of millions of palace eyes will seek out her slight form Coronation Day from stands a stone's throw down the Mall, before she has passed the freshly-painted palace fence en route to the most important function of her life.

Her arduous day will not end when she passes the 150-year old stone gates that afternoon. Ahead will be a 400-seat dinner, a palace jammed with the most notable guests and a balcony appearance for a Or-past staged by 34 Royal Canadian Air Force Sabre jets and accompanying Royal Air Force planes.

BOY DROWNED IN CANAL

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Stephen Thirsbeck, 4, was drowned Monday night in the Trent Canal near here. He and a companion were playing about the grounds near the canal while his parents and another couple were fishing nearby.

Arab Kingdom Of Jordan Turns On Old Friend

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—The tiny Arab kingdom of Jordan turned sharply on a traditional friend Monday when its Parliament protested against the "anti-Arab" policies of Prime Minister Churchill.

A statement approved unanimously by the Parliament rapped Mr. Churchill for "praising" Israel in his foreign policy speech of May 11. It said the tone of his speech was anti-Arab, and went on to condemn the Churchill government for its "aggressive attitude to just Arab problems."

The Churchill speech, in addition to assuring the Israeli of "fair play," said the supplies of British aircraft to Arab countries would not be allowed to place Israel "at an unfair disadvantage."

In a speech at Monday's session, Prime Minister Fawzi Mulki said Jordan joins with the other countries in fighting for "freedom against colonialism and foreign influence." He left no doubt he was referring to Britain in his remarks.

Mulki, who was Jordan's ambassador to London for two years before assuming the premiership May 3, called for Arab unity in opposing the "Zionist peril," and said the dispute with Israel is the "solid concern of all the Arab countries."

He said no outside power could force a solution to the differences with Israel that failed to preserve Arab rights.

Weed of the Week

Goat's Beard

While it has at least the redeeming feature of not being able to stand cultivation, Goat's Beard, can still get the farmer's goat if he lets it get ahead of him, says the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in this week's "Weed of the Week" series which has proved so popular with readers.

There are several forms of goat's beard, yellow goat's beard, purple goat's beard, and one also confused with yellow goat's beard Tragopogon dubius. Other common names are meadow salsify, wild salsify and oyster plant.

Goat's beard, all species, has a long, slender tap root, upright stem, 1 to 3 feet tall, long, narrow pointed leaves. Flowers are large, yellow or purple according to species. In bud, or closed at night, the shape resembles a goat's beard hence the popular name. When sides are ripe, the seed head is about as large as a baseball, similar in appearance to the seed head of the dandelion only several times larger.

Purple goat's beard has been grown as a vegetable, which explains the other common names, salsify, or oyster plant.

Roadside Pest

This weed does not stand cultivation, so has not become troublesome in crops. However, as a perennial which produces very large quantities of air borne seeds, it can, and has become a serious pest on roadsides, in meadows and permanent pastures. It spreads very rapidly and is already too well-known in most of Southern Ontario.

It is susceptible to 2,4-D only in its early growth stages, prior to budding, so where this weed is to be controlled on roadsides or pastures by spraying the operation must be done early, usually by June 1st. Blossoms appear early in June, ripe seed by July.

Breaking up meadows or pastures where feasible will eradicate goat's beard. Early cutting to prevent seed ripening reduces further spreading. Regrowth after cutting will blossom again so two or more cuttings may be necessary each season.

FIND BODY IN LANE

GODERICH (CP)—The body of J. E. Brown, 33, of Ashfield township, was discovered in a laneway near his home Monday. Authorities believe Brown took his own life sometime late Sunday or early Monday. Provincial police are investigating.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BALL TONIGHT!

Baseball makes its bow in city circles here tonight when the Regent Juniors clash with the Trenton RCAF team at the Canadian National Railway Athletic Field.

It is the youngsters' first home appearance and it is hoped good c rowd will turn out to cheer them to their first victory. They dropped their first contest with the Prince Edward Combines last week by a 10-7 score.

The game will inaugurate baseball on the well-appointed CNR Athletic Field. And the opening ceremonies will play tribute to not only baseball but the efforts of a hard-working Canadian National organization whose dreams of a modern athletic field have almost reached realization.

Three years ago this reporter stood with Mr. George Foster, now serving his third term as president of the CNRAA, in a swampy, marshy field. Pools of water lay everywhere. Stumps of tufted grass mushroomed in patches. Long grass waved in the breeze. Transformation of this near-morass into a modern athletic park and playground seemed nothing short of a miracle.

Yet it has been done. We stood with Mr. Foster and Grenade Chairman Al Meagher on practically the same spot last evening. The period of three years has wrought the miracle of transformation. Here we saw a modern athletic field in the making, in fact nearly completed.

A six-foot board fence encloses the field. A dash of color offsets the sombre grey of the fresh paint in the form of advertising signs. Open benches line the baselines and behind the backstop with a seating capacity of approximately 900.

Tons of fill were required before the field reached the present level. Hundreds of loads were levelled. It was no long, arduous work. Some $15,000 has been spent on the field to date, thanks to the generosity and co-operation of members of the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association and their friends. Recently the "boys" have been readying the field for baseball. The left field fence is 310 feet away. The centre field spot is roughly four hundred feet while the right field distance is some 275 feet or thereabouts.

A fence has been constructed in front of the bleachers. This is made of rolled wire. Bleachers and all woodenwork have received a fresh coat of grey paint. There is a canteen and a tentative plan where members of the executive and various committees hold regular confabs.

And the committee has plans. A modern clubhouse is being planned which is expected to cost some $40,000. This will house canteen, offices and, in fact, will be a community centre in itself. Parking space for some 400 cars is expected to become a reality in the near future.

Extension to the bleachers is a plan of the future. A ditch that runs parallel with the left field foul-line is expected to be filled or covered over. Entrance from Station Street is planned. Lights for the bleachers and front of the park will be installed this year. These will facilitate the holding of various functions at night. Floodlights for the playing field are being considered.

At the south end of the field is a children's playground, fully equipped. This will be operated and supervised by the Recreation Commission this year. Here hundreds of kiddies of the neighborhood enjoy themselves in perfect safety.

The new CNRAA field is owned by the employees of the company. It was purchased originally from the city for one dollar and land to the value of $100 was purchased and added to the "holdings."

The field is a link in the chain of Canadian National Railway recreation fields that stretches from coast to coast. Similar fields of varying sizes and capacities are located in the Maritimes at Moncton, Belleville, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, Hornepayne, Capreol and westward to Vancouver. Don't be surprised in the near future to hear of CNR tournaments and competitions being held in one of these centres.

Some 1500 employees form the organization which is headed by a strong, efficient committee. Al Meagher was its first president and he was succeeded by Mr. Foster, who has held the position since. Fred Hall is secretary, Chas. Clapper; second vice, Stan Buck; secretary, Bill Parry; assistant secretary, Allen Bushell; treasurer, H. S. Robbins; Al Meagher, chairman of grounds; Laurence Nelson, chairman of finance. Also part of the executive are eighteen representatives of the various departments.

And it is the proud boast of every member of the CNRAA that everything in connection with the park is paid for. They are obligated to no outside individual or organization. They believe that a pay-as-you-go policy is the best.

And last, but by no means least, is that hard-working organization that has contributed as much and is still contributing to the success of the club. It is the Ladies' Auxiliary under president Mrs. F. Cross. The ladies have been working quietly, but efficiently, believing they can put as much in enthusiasm and effort, if not in dollars, the achievements of the males of the species. They are doing an excellent job and when the final history of the field is written, the Ladies' Auxiliary will be well up in the list of those who did a job right and did it well.

Surkont Sets Strikeout Mark; Red Sox, Yanks Stage Longest Nine-Innings Game on Record

By Ben Fellegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

Night games turned into nightmares in the major leagues Monday night. It was one of the wildest programs since they first brought artificial daylight to the big time.

Included in the action were:

1. A modern major league record for consecutive strikeouts.

2. The longest nine-inning game in the history of baseball.

3. The season's high in hits for an American League team.

4. A 4-run scored on a "three-base walk," plus a ball.

5. One club using 23 players, equalling the American League record.

Stan Musial

Mike Surkont of Milwaukee Braves struck out seven Cincinnati batters in a row, waited 38 minutes for a substitute and then fanned one more for the modern record. Then, in the game, the second half of a twilight-night doubleheader, 18-3, for his sixth win, a new Big Leaguer named Stan Musial of the Cardinals clouted a three-bagger with the Yankees rallied in the late innings and Ted Kluszewski of the Reds went all the way around for the first home run ever hit over second and third unmolested and scored on a balk by Ellis Kinder.

Maury McDermott, the starting Boston pitcher, turned slugger for a double and three singles in four times at bat. He wore himself out running and had to be replaced on the mound in the sixth.

The Yankee foes cut their first place margin to 2½ with the first inning and downed Philadelphia Athletics 4-3.

In the National League the twin Milwaukee Triumph gave the Braves a 4½ game lead over St. Louis Cardinals, who went on an 18-hit rampage against the Chicago pitchers in pounding out a 14-3 decision. The finale game saw New York's 6-3 verdict over Pittsburgh were played in daylight. Brooklyn rallied to nip Philadelphia in its fifth straight loss 11-9 at night after a delay of an hour and 21 minutes because of rain.

Stan Musial and Red Schoendienst starred in the Cards' attack. Musial drove in six runs with a pair of homers, his third and fourth of the year, plus a single while Schoendienst got four hits.

Ralph Kiner hit his 300th major league home run at Pittsburgh. The blast produced all three of the Pirates' runs. Only 11 other players headed by Babe Ruth, have hit that many homers.

Philadelphia skidded into fourth place by dropping to Brooklyn. The Dodgers decided things in the seventh when Jackie Robinson homered with two on and Roy Campanella followed with his 14th circuit drive of the season.

Chiefs Edge Toronto 5-4; Ottawa Loses

By the Canadian Press

The booming bat of second baseman Gene Hooks was too much for Ottawa Athletics Monday night and they lost a 7-5 International Baseball League decision to the tail-end Springfield Cubs.

Hooks' two-run double in the bottom of the eighth inning decided the contest and smashed a six-hit Ottawa winning streak. The A's are in fifth spot, 1½ games behind Montreal Royals and Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hooks put Springfield ahead in the third with a two-run triple. He also got a single.

The Leafs' victory, a 4-3 decision in the seventh-place Syracuse Chiefs in the only other game played Montreal at Baltimore and Rochester at Buffalo were postponed because of wet grounds.

Syracuse committed four errors to Toronto's one, but outhit the Leafs' 11-7.

The Chiefs' big inning was in the seventh, when they scored four runs. Art Hartley posted his second victory against one defeat, but he needed help from three relievers in the eighth as Baltimore Markell kept the Leafs at bay in the ninth.

Starter Carl Post suffered his first loss against three victories.

Gorgeous George Whip, Rematched

Hang on to your hats, kiddies. The second coming of the battle between the peacock of Pachydermy and the Warrior of East York has been set for Friday night.

The gent with the marcelled peruke, Gorgeous George, and the good-looking bloke who aspires to a world wrestling championship, Whipper Billy Watson will go at it again come Friday evening.

The Whip does not mind having his arm twisted, his handsome locks "mussed about", or being flipped and flopped about the ring. But he does object to having his leg pulled, literally and figuratively.

Following last Friday when the perfumed beauty parlor who walks like a man, did just that. Of course the Whip did a spot of it, too and thereby hung the tale of "No Contest." It all ended up in as neat a melange of sneering pachyderms, spectators and officials as anyone can wish to see.

So what happen. The Whip said, screaming to Marse Tunney for a rematch to soothe his wounded feelings while Jolus Jogo decontaminated himself in his valet and, the co-chid-bued Cadillac, and swore by all the gods of Tabu, Moonlight Over Shannonville, Evening on Zwick's Island, Sin, and other parfumes, that he would not rest content until he had made the mighty Watson marble. "Uncle" or whatever expression they used in rassln circles for "I Surrender, Dear".

So there it is. And adding sauce to this entree will be that handsome young buckaroo, Don Jonathan, who will attempt to shellaker bewhiskered Man Mountain Dean, Jr., and John Melas, a great god type, who will cross wrestling rapiers with the vicious Hewgag Cantonwine.

Supreme Court to Probe Legality Of Baseball's Argued Reserve Clause

By Herb Altschull

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court decided Monday that it will look into the legality of baseball's long-disputed reserve clause. The future of professional sports rests on the outcome.

The hearing will be held some time in the fall. It will mark the first time since 1923 that the Supreme Court has examined the legality of the national sport. Baseball won the last time.

If it loses this case the game as it is played now will be destroyed. Here's why:

Baseball contracts—and those in other professional sports—contain a clause which puts the player under control of the club that owns him. This is the reserve clause.

Under it, a player may not quit his club and sign with another one unless the club releases him. His services may be disposed of only by the club that owns him either by trading, selling or freeing him.

If this clause is thrown out, a player would be permitted to sell his services to the highest bidder. He could resign from the club that owns him whenever he decided to make the move.

The challenge to the reserve clause comes under the country's anti-trust laws, which prohibit illegal monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade.

Baseball never has contended it is not a monopoly, but it argues it is a sport, not an interstate business and thus does not come under the anti-trust laws.

The present case involves two minor league players and a minor league club. They are George Toolson, a former player in the New York Yankees farm system; Walter Kowalski, 27, a pro 17 of Brooklyn Dodgers, and the El Paso (Tex.) Texans.

All contend that professional baseball violates the anti-trust laws.

The greatest horse-race in the world will be run next week. It is, of course, the Epsom Derby, observed throughout the world as the ancestor of all Derbies everywhere. It is the English Derby, for which the winners of the first place Wednesday at Epsom Downs race track, in Surrey County, England.

Crowds estimated in the hundreds of thousands have viewed this colorful race annually, and as many probably will witness the 1953 revival of the Derby, which will be run June 3.

The Derby, weak imitations of which are raced all over the world, was a famous race when Canada was a tiny colony, and the United States was merely a vague idea. Its history and romance has thoroughbred racing owes practically all that it is to British racing stock and breeding. Most of the winners of the Epsom Derby are now on breeding farms in this continent—Blenheim II, winner of the Derby, Whirlaway, winner of the Kentucky Derby of 1941 was sired by the former.

As far back as the very first Derby, American eyes were cast in the direction of England. The first mare to win Virginia farm, proving a foundation sire of American breeding. Rock Sand, winner of the Derby of 1903, came to America and left his mark on the equine blood-lines of this continent.

Two world wars failed to halt the Derby. In World War I the ancient race was renewed at Newmarket as the New Derby Stakes and this process was repeated in the Second World War.

Contrary to prevailing belief, the English Derby contenders run as to America with their left sides to the rail, throughout the mile and 811 yards distance—and on the turf.

The Epsom course starts up grade, then slopes the other way slightly and finally the field finishes on a gentle uphill grade. That takes real stamina, after a mile and one-half heart breaker.

The race usually is open and three 100-to-1 shots have scored in the Epsom classic and plenty of other long shots, one at 1000 to 15. On the other hand in all the long history of the event only nine horses quoted at less than even money have won.

One winner was Iroquois, 2 to 1, the only American-bred and owned horse ever to win the British event. Iroquois was raced by Pierre Lorillard, longtime American tobacco magnate.

Probably everything that could happen on a race course has occurred during the life of the Epsom Derby, extending into three centuries.

But the last one you'd think likely to happen would be for a "ringer" to finish first!

In 1943 Running Rein, a four-year-old, was slipped in as a three-year-old and he finished first. The deceit was discovered, however, and the winner disqualified. Orlando, 28 to 1, was winner of the $21,750 purse.

Two International Golf Tournaments Guarantee $18,000 in Win-Lose Prizes

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Total guaranteed prize money of $18,000—all gravy and on a win-or-lose basis—will be handed out next week to golfers competing in two international tournaments.

Expected today were that nine countries will be represented in the inaugural of the Canada Cup invitation tourney. These matches will be followed by the second annual test between seven-man teams representing the Professional Golfers' Association of the United States and Canada, won last year by the American pros.

Expenses of all players are guaranteed. These expenses, plus prize money and cost of operating the tournaments, figure to put the combined golf shows in the $30,000 bracket or higher.

Played in Montreal

Both tournaments will be played over the Montreal Beaconsfield course and are sponsored by the Jay Hopkins, Canadian and American industrialist.

The Canada Cup invitation two-some will be played June 1 and 2 with 36 holes of medal play daily. The winner will be the twosome with the lowest combined score for 72 holes.

The PGA team matches will be played June 5, 6 and 7, with 18 holes each day. Six-man teams will be in actual competition but, under the regulations, alternates must be used. Four men will play 54 holes and three will play 36.

Scoring will be on the Nassau system—two points for each nine holes, one for each 18, a total of 18 a day at stake for the six matches and 54 for the entire tournament.

Prize money of $1,000 is guaranteed each player competing in both the foursomes and the PGA matches; $750 for each in the PGA play alone and $500 for each in playing in only the twosomes.

Present line-up for the Canada Cup matches is:

Argentina, Alberto de Vincenzo and Antonio Cerda; Australia, Peter Thomson and Ossie Pickworth; combination team of England-South Africa, Harry Weetman and Bobby Locke; United States, Willie Hoey and Jim Turnesa; Mexico, Al Escalante and Juan Negri; France, to be named; Brazil, to be named; Germany, Georg Bessinger and Hans Goerlitzer; Ireland, Bill Kerr, Montreal, and Stan Leonard, Vancouver.

Locke and Thomson will play with the Canadian team in the PGA matches, along with Kerr, Leonard and Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, Canadian PGA champion; Elles Hood, Montreal, and Lloyd Borthwick, Hamilton.

In addition to Horne and Turnesa, U. S. open and U. S. PGA champions, respectively the American team will be made up of Jackie Burke, Jr., Ted Kroll, Doug Ford, Ed (Porky) Oliver and Tommy Bolt.

Bolt, the wild man who heaves and breaks clubs when his game goes wrong replaces Sammy Snead, who had to withdraw because of an injured hand. Oliver replaces Dr. Cary Middlecoff, who has conflicting exhibition-g a m e commitments.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Roosevelt Raceway, the most fabulous sports establishment since the Roman Coliseum fell in heredity, has opened its hospitable gates for another season of trotting and pacing on rubber tires and housing development on Long Island.

By the time the trotters and the pacers have completed their chores in the fall, it is estimated that more than 2,000,000 persons will have visited the old, abandoned auto racing plant on the outskirts of this city and will have poured some $110,000,000 through its mutuel machines.

In almost any small gathering hereabouts it is possible to run into at least two fellows who had a chance to buy into the operation for, say, $5,000 back in 1940 when the promoters were struggling to bring the bucolic sport to the big city. For that amount you got a real nice chunk of stock, but the men who were willing to risk that kind of money on such an obviously crack-brained scheme were scarce.

The fanatics who thought they could bring the trotters in off the farm and show a profit had other troubles, too. The men who owned and drove the animals were extremely skeptical, and when the night set for the grand opening approached the vast majority of them still were in the rural reaches picking up $200 purses at county fairs. A fellow who was close to the pulse of the promoters tells us:

"The day before the opening, as I recall, we had only 35 horses in the stalls, and we had advertised an eight-race card. It was a desperate situation. But then it began to rain, and you never saw rain more welcome. It came down for three days, and while everybody was feeling sorry for us we were sending out appeals for horses and promising the moon.

"Well, by the time it stopped raining we had enough horses to fill the card, eight horses to the race."

Chartered at Roosevelt at the moment are no fewer than 1,400 horses. They are there to compete for more than $2,000,000 in prize money and twice during the year each meeting the cream of the trotters will go for $50,000 purses.

Will Sanction Title Fight

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Boxing Federation announced Monday it will sanction a middleweight championship fight June 15 at Belleavico, N.S., between champion Yvon Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., and Harry Poullon of Charlottetown.

Durelle won the title earlier this month with a 12th-round technical knockout over George Ross of West Bay, N.S.

Gene Letourneau, acting national commissioner of the federation, said the winner must meet Lou Lawrence of Vancouver, leading contender, within 60 days.

Spring Bowling League Closes Good Season

Bill Bateman's Alley Cats sheathed their claws at the Bowl-O-Drome last night after challenging the Kirkwood Stogies 7-0 in the final series of the Spring Bowling League. The Cats (3546) had already won the league title by virtue of points and they merely increased their lead at the expense of the Stogies (3350).

The defeat shoved the Stogies back into third place behind the G. H. Woods team (3679) which took seven tallies from the Tribards (3229). These three teams divided the one-two-three prize moneys. The remaining five teams, Tri-harts, Combines, Quinte Distributors, Orfuns and Canada Cement played for the one-two consolation prizes. These were won by Combines and Canada Cement.

The results of other games were: Combines (3683) 7; Quinte Distributors (3386) 0; Canada Cement (3475) 5, Orfuns (3306) 2.

Top tripler was J. Bull with a 337 who also racked up the high single of 403. Other good scores were M. Pigeral, 711; J. Curlies, 791; M. Callahan, 718; A. Knott, 765; B. Dennis, 739; Seeley, 797; V. Bagriff, 793; F. Bailly, 700; P. Loft, 743; F. Jeffrey, 830; J. Kirkwood, 687; J. Bennett, 792; W. Moore, 745; C. Hardwick, 651; J. Moon, 763; D. Batchelor, 674; M. Morean, 699; C. Martin, 695; R. Good Name 'Poor Pitch'

FONTAINEBLEAU, France (CP) —Sport-minded Canadian airmen stationed at this Allied base were elated when they heard Flt. Lt. P. O. (Lefty) Donnell had been assigned here from Ottawa.

The Canadians trail nine American teams in a local softball league, and they know Lefty MacDonell as the sharpest pitcher in the RCAF.

The new officer turned out to be P. K. (Red) MacDonell, Lefty's twin brother but hardly his match as a ball player.

"They're biding their disappointment in me, though," says Red, "owing to my peculiar position."

His job includes responsibility for detailing unpleasant jobs among the 80-member Canadian contingent at Fontainebleau.

Cloudburst Halts British Amateur Golf Tourney

HOYLAKE, England (CP)—A cloudburst, with screaming winds and crackling flashes of lightning, struck British amateur golf tournament Monday and caused a delay of two hours.

There were no major upsets but one rhubarb resulted from the storm.

The championship committee ruled that H. A. Haxton of Scotland had defaulted to Ernest Arend of Deal, N.J., one of the Americans in the tournament.

The pair had picked up on the record hole and Haxton went to his hotel for dry clothing. When he returned, he learned that play had been resumed and that the match had been awarded to Arend. He protested but the committee told him he had not been given personal notice of the resume.

Prominent British players who advanced Monday included Joe Carr, the former chairman of the Walker Cup team, and Sir John Hartopp of Scotland, non-playing captain of the British Walker Cup team.

Lions' Halfback Talks Football With Argonauts

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Smith of Detroit Lions met with coach Jack Clair of the Toronto Argonauts Monday to discuss the possibility of playing Canadian football this fall but reports after the meeting indicated that no deal had been completed.

Smith, an ace defensive halfback and punter with the Lions, 1952 champions of the National Football League, annonced that he is going back to Detroit today, presumably to think over an Argonaut proposal.

Earlier, Clair, commenting on a Detroit report that the Toronto Big Four Football League club had offered Smith a $10,000 contract and an opportunity in television and radio, said:

"We haven't that kind of money and didn't offer him anything near $10,000."

Flareday Wins At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—Flareday, 'a mud-running mare from the Waterloo Farm stable, won the feature, the Grosvenor Plate, featured event on Monday's program at Woodbine Park. Flareday plowed through six furlongs of slop in the creditable time of 1:13 3-5.

Unification was 1½ lengths back in second place and Scientist third, another seven lengths back.

The biggest price of the sprint meeting was recorded in the fifth race when Triple Time scored under the colors of M. J. Boyles of Toronto. This good filly paid $81.50 for $2.

Derby Favorite May Still Run

LONDON (AP)—Neariula, betting favorite for the Epsom Derby until the west lame again, is doing well under treatment and may still run in the June 6 classic, trainer Charles Elsey said today.

Elsey announced Monday that the Two Thousand Guineas winner was lame-for the second time in a week. He said the colt was a doubtful Derby starter.

Bookmakers stand to win more than £220,000 if Neariula is scratched.

The colt was 2 to 1 Derby favorite after his Guineas win and was still favorite at 7 to 2 after his first lameness. Today one London bookie was offering 10 to 9 against him.

The next favorite is the Queen's Aureole, down to 3 to 1 in some bandbooks.

CAHA Protects Quebec Franchise

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will not transfer the Quebec Junior Hockey Association.

George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the CAHA, in a telephone interview Monday said his association already asked its Quebec branch for a full report on the situation there. He declined to elaborate until the report is received and studied.

A new team was admitted to the JAHA May 18 to take the place of the Quebec Citadels. League announced that as far as it was concerned, the new club will have the right to all Citadelles players.

NEARS 2-MILE RECORD

LONDON (AP)—Chris Chataway, barrel-chested Oxford star, ran the third fastest two miles on record Monday. Chataway broke the record holder Gaston Reiff of Belgium at the British track and field games at White City Stadium.

Chataway was timed in eight minutes, 49.6 seconds, a British all-comers' record and slower only than Reiff's world mark of eight minutes, 46.4 seconds, and the former world record of eight minutes, 47.8 seconds set by Sweden's Gundar Haegg.

Electrics Whip Frankford 14-2 In Softball Tilt

Frankford — Northern Electric pranced to any easy 14-2 victory over Frankford in a Belleville and District Softball League game played here Monday night.

McCurdy allowed six hits while striking out three and walking six in going the route for Northern. Don Boyle, the loser, gave up 13 singles, fanned eight and issued five free tickets to first. Frankford scored their first run in the third on successive singles by Culkin and a pair of Northern errors. Their other tally came in the seventh when Appleby singled, moved to third as Rankin and Culkin walked, and scored on Curtis' fly ball.

Northern tallied a singleton in the first on Millen's double and Delhushie's single. They caved the roof in on the homesters in the second, plating seven runs on three hits, three walks and two errors.

A walk to Delhushie, an infield out and a fly to centre added the ninth run in the fourth. Three hits in the seventh added another pair and another four hits in the eighth, climaxed by Delhushie's homer, added the final three Northern runs.

Young, for Northern, had three hits in five trips while Frankford's Young notched two for four.

Northern	170	100	230	—14	13
Frankf'd	001	000	100	— 2	6

Batteries—McCurdy and Bone; Boyle and Adams, Murphy.

Liberal Regime At Stake Today In N.S. Election

HALIFAX (CP)—The people of Nova Scotia today decide what political party will govern them for the next four or five years.

About 373,000 are eligible to vote, and the weatherman has forecast sunny weather over mainland Nova Scotia and cloudy on Cape Breton Island.

Voting is from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. ADT.

The three parties agree that the voters' decision rests on whether Premier Macdonald's government has done enough during its 20 years in power.

The Liberals claim it has and during the briefing campaign have pointed to their record of road construction, paving, progress in the fields of social benefit and education, and completion of the Canso causeway, Halifax harbor bridge and Yarmouth-Bar Harbor, Me., ferry.

The Liberals and Progressive Conservatives are contesting all seats, and the CCF has entered candidates in 16 ridings. There is one independent.

Although it has been a spirited campaign—particularly in the four Cape Breton ridings and in the Halifax area—the closing days have been comparatively quiet, the parties consolidating their stands.

Premier Macdonald, 63, says the main issue is Liberal record against criticism by the Progressive Conservatives.

The PCs, led by Robert L. (Bob) Stanfield, member of a family long associated with industry in the province, agree, but add that the record reflects only "waste, extravagance and patronage."

The CCF, headed by Michael McDonald, says the record has nothing to show for the working class. Mr. McDonald, who left the coal pits of Cape Breton for a career as a salesman and politician after being severely injured in a mine in 1942, says the government should have done more in the field of co-operatives and housing and that it is unconcerned with organized labor.

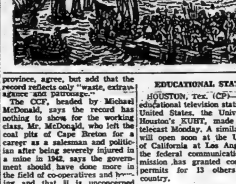
U.S. Siamese Twins Are All Set for Surgery



A history-making operation is scheduled to be performed at a Boston hospital on Margaret Stratton Gibbs of Holyoke, Mass., 61-year-old siamese twin (right), who will undergo internal surgery. While Margaret goes under the knife, her sister Mary, joined to her at the spine, will have to be anesthetized too, because her sisters will have a common circulatory system. Two operating tables will be used and a special mattress will be spread over the tables. The Gibbs sisters, believed to be the oldest living American-born siamese twins, were nearly separated by surgery on two different occasions. The first time was shortly after their birth in Holyoke in 1912 and again in 1928. However, it was considered too dangerous on both occasions. Seen with them is nurse Janet McDonald. — (N.Y. CROWN
TAVALCADE
The PREDECESSORS of ELIZABETH II
No. 28: William III. Ruled England 1688-1702.
Mary II. Ruled England 1689-1694.

Less than three years after he was crowned, the ordinate James II "succeeded in alienating all classes of his subjects and driving them to the desperate expedient of inviting a foreigner, William of Orange, to take the throne," as an English historian says.

Him III. born 1650, was the son of the Prince of Orange (Netherlands) and Mary, daughter of Charles I. His wife, Mary II, born 1662, was a Protestant daughter of James II. Parliament declared the couple joint sovereigns — the only instance of such an arrangement in British history. They were enthroned after having accepted Parliament's "declaration of Right," which was the beginning of the withdrawal of the power of British kings or queens to issue edicts, and of a corresponding rise in the powers of Parliament. William, though respected by his subjects, enjoyed none of the love proffered his wife, Mary, who proved an apt ruler on the occasions that William was away from the throne. William had to effect a peace with Scotland and of the deposed Stuarts. He crushed supporters of ex-King James II in Ireland in the celebrated Battle of the Boyne. Two of the great events of the joint reign were the end of the law requiring all publications to have the censor's licence and establishment of the Bank of England.

Major U.S. Cities Will Get Guided Missile Protection

WASHINGTON (AP)—Details of the army's program to spot guided missile anti-aircraft guns around major U. S. cities have come to light, including the fact that some batteries will be located underground.

Information which became available for the first time Saturday showed the army will require an average of 66 acres for a battalion using the Nike missile to protect industrial, port and government centres against high-flying enemy bombers.

Here are some of the other hitherto secret details:

Twelve launchers will be used in above-ground installations to fire the 1,000-mile-an-hour missiles which, the army claims, have uncanny accuracy against even other guided missiles or supersonic aircraft. For above-ground bases, the army will need 96 acres to deploy the weapons in proper firing position.

Nine launchers will be in underground installations.

Above-ground launchers will be placed in earthworks to help protect them against strafing attacks.

Specifications for sites require that they be adaptable to radar use for detection and tracking of enemy bombers and be clear of obstructions for the take-off of the missiles. The sites also will include underground storage facilities, magazines and housing for troops.

Except for details made available Saturday and two previous announcements "the U. S. Army has been officially silent about guided missile defences.

The Nike weapon is generally supposed to have these features:

An over-all length of about 20 feet, a body diameter of approximately 16 inches. Fins which control its flight, similar to those of an airplane, are about three feet in span. Total weight is about 1,000 pounds.

The guidance system is in three phases—a pre-set, initial guidance, like aiming a gun in the general direction of the target; a "command" mid-course guidance which uses radio and radar to steer the missile toward the approximate area to which an enemy bomber is approaching; and a "terminal" phase system in which the missile strikes home by following radar signals bounced off the target.

Brigade Wants 'No Smoking' Ban Lifted

By IAN McEWEN

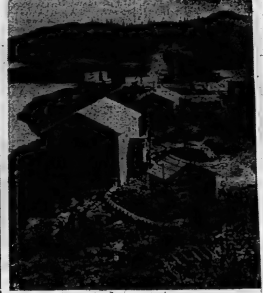
LONDON (Reuter)—The Household Brigade, Queen's Elizabeth's bodyguard, wants the "no smoking" ban at one of Britain's royal palaces lifted next Friday in honor of Princess Margaret.

Story has it that no one has dared light a pipe, cigar or cigaret at Hampton Court, biggest of the Queen's palaces, since Sir Walter Raleigh introduced his "noxious weed" there for the first and last time nearly 400 years ago.

The brigade's officers, drawn from the aristocracy, hope to end the ban when Margaret, 22, attends their Coronation ball in the great hall of the palace.

Siding with the princess in a current hue and cry over her smoking in public, the officers have laid the problem on the doorstep of the Earl of Scarborough, the lord chamberlain, who heads the royal household.

Guests will watch Margaret carefully at the ball. If her cigaret-holder appears, it will be the signal of royal consent, probably from the Queen herself. Everyone will then be able to "ignore the no smoking" notices scattered around the palace.



But officials at Hampton Court Palace, 15 miles west of London, are sure the rule will stand.

No member of the royal family now lives in the palace. Built in 1515, it has over 1,000 apartments. Some of them are occupied by "grace and favor" tenants—people who get an apartment in return for some special service to the sovereign or the state.

Uranium Miners Move to Oust Reds

Miners at North Saskatchewan's Uranium City have petitioned the Saskatchewan Labor Board to decertify the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers as their bargaining agent with the Nesbitt-Labine mine. The miners living in this rugged community protested the actions of the UMSW mostly on be grounds that the union is communist dominated. The union was expelled from the Canadian Congress of Labor for appearing to follow the party line. — Central Press Canadian.

Eleven Bands Will Take Part In Mass Concerts

OTTAWA (CP)—Eleven bands comprising 230 navy, army, air force and RCMP musicians will take part in massed concerts here June 1 and 2 celebrating Queen Elizabeth's Coronation.

Highland pipe bands, bugle, trumpet and military bands will be heard in front of the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill. First concert is set for Monday, June 1, between 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. and the following day between 8 and 9 p.m.

Conductor of the massed musicians will be the supervisor of music for the RCMP, inspector E. J. Lydall, 38, formerly of Edmonton and Vancouver.

Flaring Trumpets

Trumpet fanfares will start each program, and in addition a fanfare will be sounded the afternoon of June 2 during the official observances when the royal standard is raised on the Peace Tower.

Participating in the marmoreth event will be the RCN band from HMCS Cornwallis, Halifax; Royal Canadian Corps of Signals military band, Kingston; 2nd Royal Canadian Signals Regiment trumpet band, Toronto; Royal Canadian Regiment military band, Petawawa; Black Watch pipe band, Montreal; Argyll and Sutherland pipe band, Hamilton; Cameron Highlanders pipe band, Ottawa; the Central Ordnance Depot bugle band, Ottawa; RCAF central band, Ottawa; RCAF pipe band, Rockcliffe, and the RCMP band, Ottawa.

Program for June 1 follows:

Massed bands will play "O Canada" after a one-minute trumpet fanfare by a combined 15-man RCAF and RCCS group which will play facing south from atop the east section of the Parliament Buildings centre block. Then bands will play "Passing of the Regiments," followed by a trumpet band display by the 2nd Royal Canadian Signals. All bands then combine to play "Waltz Dal Masque" from Parisienne Sketches, and Vaughan Williams' "Folk Song Suite."

A bugle band display follows by the 26 Central Ordnance Depot group, then the bands again take over with the "Fast Horse Galop" featuring soloists from the RCR and RCCS.

Carillon Music

Ten minutes of music by the Dominion carilloneur, Robert Donnell, breaks the program at this point, bands again picking up to play "March Imperial Echoes." Then comes a massed pipe band offering followed by military band playing "Souvenir de Quebec," the march fantasia "Col. Bogey on Parade," and "Road to the Isles."

Program for June 2:

The trumpet fanfare is followed by massed bands playing "O Canada" and the "Knightsbridge March" from London Suite by Coates. RCCS then present a trumpet band display followed by all bands playing the "Hallelujah Chorus" by Handel.

Bugle band of 26 C.O.D. plays before military bands offer "Marche Patriotique," "Canadience-Francaise Carillon" and "Pomp and Circumstance No. 1" by Elgar. Again the pipe bands play, then massed pipe and military bands render "Road to the Isles." The military bands will play on a newly built stand in front of the Peace Tower.

The trumpets being used for the fanfare are believed to be the only two sets of fanfare trumpets in Canada.

New Appointment

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme commander of North Atlantic defence forces, announced Monday the appointment of Admiral William M. Fechteler as commander-in-chief of Allied forces in Southern Europe.

The announcement was made in a statement issued at the White House with the approval of President Eisenhower.

The announcement means Fechteler and Admiral Robert B. Carney will swap jobs.

Carney, now commander-in-chief of Southern European forces, has been nominated by Eisenhower to be chief of naval operations, the post now held by Fechteler.

Elder Statesmen Of Commonwealth Pledge Loyalty

Historic Scene Witnessed In Homage to Elizabeth

LONDON (CP)—The Queen met today with the elder statesmen of the far-reaching British Commonwealth and received their pledge to go forward with her "in a spirit of devotion."

It was the first time that representatives of the Commonwealth parliaments feted a British sovereign about to be crowned, the occasion was a luncheon at Westminster Hall.

Standing in the hall where King Charles I was condemned to death for treason 300 years ago, the 27-year-old Queen was reverently received by 700 guests including Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada and 60 members of Commonwealth legislatures.

Dominant Figure

A diminutive but dominant figure among her counsellors, she appeared unawed by them as she promised to carry on the traditions of her father, King George VI.

"It is a stirring thought that all those legislators have come here from the assembly which first met under this roof nearly seven centuries ago," she said, a brief response to the homage of the Commonwealth representatives.

"We stand here in the Palace of Westminster which is the home of the mother of parliaments. Of that many ties linking this family of nations and its 600 million people of parliamentary g o v e r n m e n t which I, as Queen of the Realm of Elizabeth, dressed in a blue ensemble, sat with the Duke of Edinburgh.

The Queen's address was broadcast to all Commonwealth countries.

Dawn of New Age

The birth of a new "Elizabethan Age" was the theme of the luncheon, and Harold Holt, the chairman and Australia's minister of labor and immigration, gave this pledge:

"Your Commonwealth is responding, as you have counselled us, to the spirit of adventure. We feel the urge to develop our great resources, and as the young countries of our Commonwealth grow in strength, so it strengthens the whole.

"The greatest days of this Commonwealth are still ahead of us. May it be the task of our time to make Queen Elizabeth that we attain them."

The Queen was moved as Prime Minister St. Laurent toasted her in these words:

"That the Crown has today such high prestige and such unique power is due to a selflessness and the conscientious devotion to essential human values of our sovereigns of the last 200 years and more."

Prime Minister Churchill, proposing a vote of thanks to Elizabeth, said: "Your task is difficult but we submit 50 or 60 Parliaments —and one Queen."

Churchill Rapier

Churchill, whose own political career began under another queen —Victoria—was in a reminiscent but in a happy mood as he went on:

"Some members of the Commonwealth countries might say we want to have it all ways at once. I see no reason to urge it is needless to the best of all worlds and certainly we have got the best of all worlds.

"The key thought alike of the British monarchy, the Commonwealth and the republic of the United States of America is the hatred of dictatorship. Both here and across the ocean over the generations and the centuries the idea of the division of power has lain deep at the root of our development."

Churchill's fine rhetoric had he added:

"We feel that Her Gracious Majesty here with us today has entered upon her life in full of peoples in all her realms and we are resolved to prove on the pages of history that our sacrifices shall not be in vain.

"Like nature we follow in theme the paths of variety and change and not pain that in the mercy of God things will get better and better if we all try our best."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: After four very wet days during which up to three inches of rain fell over southern Ontario, the sun finally broke through the overcast this morning and during the day clouds will gradually disappear. Thursday promises to be a fine day for most parts of the province although temperatures will remain a little on the cool side.

Three Retired Generals Will Help Staff

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The army has picked three retired generals to tell it what to do about a big problem: what to do with the force.

Establishment of a three-man board to advise Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, chief of the general staff, on reserve force matters was announced Tuesday.

The board will visit reserve units across Canada "to gain first-hand knowledge of the current attitude and problems" of the part-time force which in two world wars was the foundation of Canada's overseas fighting effort.

The three members are Major-Generals Howard Kennedy, CBE, MC, of Ottawa, new head of the government's eastern Rockies forestry conservation board, H. F. G. Letson, CB, CBE, MC, of Vancouver, former secretary to the lieutenant-governor of British Columbia, and Major-General Bert Hoffmeister, CB, CBE, of Montreal, former officer commanding the Canadian military area with Montreal as headquarters.

The problem of the reserves, which has already been under study for months at army headquarters and various areas, is far more serious than has been put forward. The idea now appears to be to keep the three generals to take a long, hard look for themselves and then to give their views on these proposals.

$7,000 Robbery Carefully Planned By Bank Bandit

TORONTO (CP)—A tall gunman who wore a mask and carried what as he bended a bank staff of seven at gunpoint in a quick robbery from the suburban Newtonbrook branch of the Dominion Bank with an estimated $7,000.

He fled by getting on a bus which was passing the building nearby Thornhill. He left his raincoat on the bus.

Police said the robbery was carefully planned and executed with the coolness and nerve of a veteran work of a professional.

The man entered the bank a few minutes before closing time and forced the staff into a rear customers' left. He then pulled the automatic pistol from his pocket.

"All right everybody get in the vault. I'm not fooling," he shouted.

He herded the staff into the vault, collected the money and fled."

ATE INFECTED FORK

SUDBURY, (CP)—Seven Indigenants here have been stricken with tularemia, a rare infection caused by eating insufficiently-cooked infected pork. Two are in serious condition, Dr. J. B. Gordon, medical health officer, said today.

This is the fifth successive year in which tularemia has been reported here. In January, a research was made to find the origin of the cases, and all pigs on one farm were slaughtered.

'Duke in a Hurry' New Nickname For Air-minded Consort of Queen

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Edinburgh took off in a helicopter from Buckingham Palace here again today to review colonial troops at Woolwich. He made his first hop off the royal grass Tuesday for a similar mission.

A palace spokesman said the duke had the Queen's approval although some of her advisers officials have frowned at his air gallivanting. Crowds outside the gates cheered as the helicopter rose into the air.

Danger?

A palace official explained "It is felt the duke while is taking no greater risk than travelling by road."

Hoorahs came, too, from the air-conscious Brions who have nicknamed him "Duke in a Hurry."

Ground Parties Search Missing Canadian Bomber

Apparently Crashed With Ten Men Aboard

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ground parties moved today into the Oregon wilderness believed to have been skimmed by an RCAF bomber in its last terrifying minutes of flight.

They were checking on the report that the plane, carrying 10 men, apparently crashed after shearing into the 140-foot trunk of a dead tree.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver, the RCAF announced the names of nine of the crew members. The plane was on a scheduled 1,250-mile flight from its Vancouver Island base to San Diego when it disappeared after reporting its position off the southern Oregon coast.

Search swung the coastal Port Orford area of the state late Tuesday after observers had heard a low-flying plane and the still more ominous report concerning the possible crash.

Apparently Struck Tree

George Montgomery of Salmon Mountain, 17 miles east of Port Orford, told of a multi-engined plane apparently crashing after striking the tree.

This happened, he said, between 10 and 11 p.m. Monday. Search-ing Lancaster was last heard from at 8.32 p.m. when reported leaving its Comox base on Vancouver Island.

Port Orford, Point, 30 miles northeast of Port Orford, there were reports of a low-flying plane and the United States Coast Guard said it was ordered to pilot its route from teleprinted reports of those who heard it.

The Lancaster had cracked along the Oregon coast shortly before the Lancaster disappeared as continued unsettled weather made conditions unfavorable for search flights.

Captain of the plane, which was en route to Alaska to pick up parties in joint exercises, was FO. Kenneth Dixon Baker of Kye Bay, B. C. The co-pilot was FO. Harry Charles Maddick of St. John's, Nfld.

The other seven crew members identified were: FO. Robert Jean Calder, Dundas, Ont.; FO. David Fair Ellis, Bienfait, Sask.; FO. Joseph Bourgeois, Verdun, Que.; FO. John William Brownie, New Glasgow, N.S.; Sgt. Joseph Alfred Gordon Spence, Comox, and LAC. Walter Stanley Wilson, Vancouver; Waldron, both of Puntledge, B.C.

The search was being directed by Lt.-Col. Bourgeois, father of one of the pilots.

Search was being concentrated Tuesday over the Port Orford area.

Assign Small Part to Prince

LONDON (Reuters) — Reports that Prince Charles will pay homage to his mother at her Coronation were vigorously denied today by a Buckingham Palace spokesman.

He will attend as a spectator only," the official said.

The four-year-old prince will not kneel before the Queen and pay homage like his father and the rest will do.

"It would be ridiculous to assign him a part in a ceremony which could possibly grasp the meaning of the homage ceremony," the palace spokesman said.

"It is completely untrue that Prince Charles asked to be allowed to take part in the ceremony. He will not even be present during the entire Coronation but for only a small part of it."

Taft Asks U.S. to Break Away From United Nations In Talks for Korean Truce

CINCINNATI (AP)—In a surprise... simply because we are so outnumbered in fighting a land war on the continent of Asia it would bring about complete exhaustion even if we were able to win."

Then he said the United States should give itself a completely free hand in the East and forget about working with the UN there.

Going to Shock People

"This statement," he conceded, "is going to shock many people who still believe in the United Nations. I believe in the United Nations myself, but not as an effective means of preventing aggression.

"But no one should be shocked at my suggestion about the United Nations in Korea because in Europe we have practically abandoned the United Nations.

He pointed to the North Atlantic Treaty, saying its adoption was without United Nations' leave and the Korean intervention.

The treaty "substitutes a military alliance for the United Nations as a means of preventing Soviet aggression."

Taft said he always has been a "skeptic" on the subject of the military practicability or the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"I have always felt that we could not successfully defend Europe on the ground on the continent of Europe," he said, "from the inevitable attempt to fight China on the continent of Asia. I have always felt that the only defense could be undertaken by those who occupy Western Europe."

Against Yete Power

The senator said he pointed out at a time last year that the United Nations "could not possibly prevent aggression because of the veto power which could be used by any one of the five powers to veto unfavorable action by themselves or against any one of their satellites."

He said the United States should call a conference for amendment of the UN charter "and work out with the Soviet Union on a reasonable chance of preventing aggression and eliminating the veto power."

St. Laurent Pays Tribute To Empire in Toast to Queen

LONDON (CP)—An eloquent tribute to the "human value of British institutions" and to the vital significance of the Crown came today from Canada's Prime Minister St. Laurent, standing in the hall in which, he said, "did not come into the Empire by chance."

The French-speaking prime minister spoke in seconding a vote of thanks to the Queen at a lunch of Prime Minister Churchill at a Commonwealth Parliamentary Association luncheon in honor of Her Majesty. It was the first speech since arriving to attend the Coronation.

Mr. St. Laurent said:

"To outsiders it is frequently a great puzzle to understand what is an association like the Commonwealth, whose members are so widely separated over the globe, who have such diverse interests, who consist of such different elements, can possibly survive as a harmonious international entity.

"If they who are thus perplexed could have been with us this afternoon they would have come to understand why this achievement of the Commonwealth has been possible.

Common Loyalty Strong

"We never have had to overlook the differences that exist. We endeavor, in our relations one with another, to emphasize those things which tend to unite rather than to divide.

"Of course, the unifying forces of the Commonwealth include our common loyalty to the Crown, but of which this association has grown. But of that which binds it together, nothing stronger than our common loyalty to the Crown and to the person of our sovereign, even where the most intimate consideration of devotion has to be found in the recognition of Her Majesty as the head of a Commonwealth broad enough to include a state whose people get their life from the Republic.

"Surely the Crown has today such high prestige and such unifying powers is due to the selflessness and the conscientious devotion to essential human values of our sovereigns of the last 100 years and more.

Assembled 36 Years Ago

"Fifty-six years ago, peoples from all parts of the British Empire assembled here to pay homage to a great queen, who had reigned for 60 glorious and fruitful years. It was the British way. The human values of British institutions that the man who came as leader of the Canadian delegation to honor the Queen Empress was of a race which had become part of the Empire by choice, but indeed had fought gallantly for another institution in the days of the British king.

"It is precious on that occasion of delegations from those great peoples of Asia with their broad and ancient cultures was equally significant. There have been tremendous changes in the Empire since Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues assembled to celebrate the diamond jubilee.

"Over 90 per cent of those peoples who were then under the British world in 1897 have assumed and exercised the right themselves for the management of all their internal and external affairs. For them, as for us, the word "Empire" has been changed to "Commonwealth. But the change in the word implies no change in the spirit and the recognition by all members of the head of the Commonwealth still proclaims that there has continued to be a sharing of common ideals and common institutions, a sharing at times of common perils and on occasions such as this of common rejoicing and thanksgiving.

"And I do not think it would be presumptuous to add a sharing of common affection. It is indeed not only our own peoples but free mankind throughout the world."

Acting Premier Describes Damage In Telegram

TORONTO (CP)—Acting Premier Dunbett has sent a telegram to Premier Leslie Frost, now in London for the Coronation, describing the damage caused by last Thursday's tornado in Sarnia and township, Lambton, Kent, Perth, Oxford and Middlesex counties.

He reported that the townships appear to have suffered greater damage than Sarnia on the basis of information received by him. An admirable spirit of persons in front of the storm and those who were withheld until Sarnia's exact situation was clarified."

He said federal efforts are in progress in the stricken areas and that Ontario Hydro personnel is working on clearing the wreckage in most rural districts.

Storm Flattens Barns and Trees, Power Is Cut

Crews Work Around Clock to Repair Damage

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Telephone and hydro services were still knocked out in the London and Stratford areas early today after Monday night's rain and high winds, a Canadian Press survey showed.

The storm, which cut across Huron county from Lake Huron, flattened barns, damaged farms and orchards and uprooted trees. Telephone crews worked round the clock to repair lines near London and in Morris township.

Hydro gangs from Stratford, Lis-towel, Clinton, Elmira, Exeter, Seaforth and Goderich went out, but power is expected to be out in some areas for about three days.

Clearing skies coming across Ontario from the Windsor area were predicted by the weather bureau at Malton. The storm was expected to be moving rapidly eastwards.

The storm, which caused more than $1,000,000 damage, struck inland at Hiis, Amherst, Blyth, Dalgrave, Brussels, Cranbrook, Ethel and Wingham. Three houses in the Stratford district were knocked off their foundations and several damaged.

Hail affected some areas. Rain was heaviest at Hamilton, which reported 3.18 inches, a record for 24 hours. Some basements in the city were flooded.

Communications were cut in many districts. In some instances telephone calls from the heart hit areas in Huron county were re-routed Tuesday night through Toronto towns and cities south of the county.

Czechs Sentence Four to Terms For Espionage

LONDON (Reuters)—Communist Czechoslovakia Tuesday night announced the first spy trial behind the iron Curtain since Stalin's death.

The trial opened and closed in a single day, instead of the drawn-out slowly procedure usual in Russia.

The defendants were convicted but none was sentenced to death.

The official Czechoslovak news agency CTK said the defendants were Richard Slansky — brother of the executed Rudolf Slansky, former secretary-general of the Communist Slovak Communist Party.

Richard Slansky was sentenced to life imprisonment, together with Richard Goldstucker, formerly attached to the Czech embassy in London.

The other defendants, Pavel Kavan and Karl Dudek, were sentenced to 25 years.

The charges against the four accused were treason and espionage on behalf of three made against Rudolf Slansky, former foreign minister Vladimir Clementis and 12 other former top party leaders who were executed in secret trials in Czechoslovakia last November. All but a handful of those accused in the trials were executed.

Celeka said the four men sentenced Tuesday all pleaded guilty.

Moscow Charges U.S. Implanted Four Men, Tried, Executed as Spies

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet government charged the United States today with parachuting four spies, three members of Ukrainian or Russian origin, into the Ukraine a month ago. A communique said the four admitted they jumped into the Ukraine, one of the republics of the Soviet Union, April 26 from an unmarked American plane.

It said they confessed they were sent on espionage, terrorist and espionage assignments.

The communique said the men claimed they were immediately arrested by police and ordered them to settle in Kieve and Odessa and had equipped them with radios for making contact with American spy centres in West Germany. Re-said they were ordered to murder Soviet citizens, if necessary, in order to hide their espionage activities and to replace forged papers they carried when they jumped.

The men, executed by a firing squad, were identified as Alexander Lahkov, Alexander Makov, Sergi Gurbonov and Dmitri Remnev.

The communique charged they collaborated with German invaders during the Second World War and that they had been trained before advancing Red armies. Arriving there, it said, the four were ordered to "investigate and avoid diversionist school of the American intelligence" near Munich.

Liberals in N.S. Re-Elected With Reduced Majority

All Three Party Leaders Returned to Legislature

HALIFAX (CP)—The Liberals were returned to power in Nova Scotia's general election Tuesday, but Progressive Conservative gains cut their majority in the legislature to six seats, the slimmest since the party started its reign in 1933.

The results, compared to the 1949 election:

	1953	1949
Liberals	29	30
PCs	23	7
CCF	2	7
Total	37	37

Following the 1949 election the Progressive Conservatives gained a seat from the Liberals in a by-election made necessary when the voting in one riding was declared void.

All three party leaders—Premier Angus L. Macdonald of the Liberals, Robert L. (Bob) Stanfield, 39, of the Progressive Conservatives and Michael McDermott of the CCF—were re-elected Tuesday.

The popular - vote tabulation put the Liberals with 49.7 per cent of the total. The Progressive Conservatives had 42.9 per cent.

The 1949 Liberals won with 51 per cent of the vote. The Progressive Conservatives had 23 per cent.

Progressive Conservatives, forming their strongest Opposition since losing the government to Mr. Macdonald in 1933, will have a strong voice in the new legislature.

Lose Vote Through Speaker

With 22 of the 37 seats, the Liberals will lose one vote in naming a Speaker. That gives them 51 votes against 15 for the Progressive Conservatives and CCF.

The make-up of the House, however, may change with recounts, and at least two seem possibilities. In Hants East, PC Jean Stillwell retained his seat by one vote and in Pictou West, Liberal Stewart Proudfoot was returned by five votes.

Highways Minister Merrill Rawding, one of the youngest members of the cabinet, and Speaker Alfred Romkey, senior member of the House, led as Progressive Conservatives when returns had hit eight Liberal seats. On the other hand, Liberals won contests formerly held by Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Macdonald and Russell Cunningham, the two CCF members re-elected, were the official Opposition from 1945 to 1949 after the Progressive Conservatives were reduced to five seats.

The 63-year-old premier and his party said the only issue was the Liberal administration's record.

The CCF contended that the government had failed to meet the working classes and promised efforts to establish low-rental housing.

The PCs highlighted their campaign with charges that Liberal party agents were operating in the province, contrary to provincial law. Mr. Stanfield also said that Health Minister Harold Connolly had served on the board of a company which sold wine to the government's liquor commission.

Liberals Poll 49.7 Per Cent Of Popular Vote

HALIFAX (CP)—Tabulation by The Canadian Press of the popular vote in Tuesday's Nova Scotia election shows that the Liberal party was re-elected with 49.7 per cent of the popular vote, compared to 51 per cent in 1949.

Progressive Conservatives candidates polled 42.9 per cent of the total vote to elect 21 of the legislature's 37 members. In the 1949 election, the party's candidates polled 36 per cent and seven were elected.

The CCF vote, which elected the same two members as in the last House, dropped to 6.4 per cent from 10.

Liberal votes elected 22 members compared to 28 four years ago.

Liberals and Progressive Conservatives entered candidates for every seat as they did in 1949. The CCF had 16 candidates compared with 21 last time.

Highways Minister Merrill Rawding, one of the youngest members of the cabinet, and Speaker Alfred Romkey, senior member of the House, led as Progressive Conservatives when returns had hit eight Liberal seats. On the other hand, Liberals won contests formerly held by Progressive Conservatives.

Mr. Macdonald and Russell Cunningham, the two CCF members re-elected, were the official Opposition from 1945 to 1949 after the Progressive Conservatives were reduced to five seats.

The 63-year-old premier and his party said the only issue was the Liberal administration's record.

Factory Salesmen Adopt 'Wait and See' Attitude

Factory representatives boarding cheese on the Belleville Cheese Exchange adopted a "wait and see" attitude Tuesday night when they decided to wait before purchasing the offer of the Canadian cabinet to purchase five million pounds of 1953 cheese at 30 cents a lb. per pound.

No cheese was sold on the board Tuesday as no comments from officials of the Cheese Producers' Association pending official confirmation of the report, and government officials late last night were still in their hands.

The announcement that Ottawa was prepared to purchase the five million pounds of 1953 make was made during the meeting of the cheese exchange.

"At least we are getting a bit closer, they are starting to talk," commented W. O. Coon, cheese producers' representative on the board when he learned of the offer.

"Tied in with the government offer to purchase the five million pounds of last year's production was a suggested offer of a 34-cent guarantee for 1953 cheese under the support price stabilizing plan, providing the provincial governments would agree to guarantee a further six cents, the same as last year.

This had previously been turned down by the provincial government.

A total of 8,630 boxes of cheese was offered on the board and only 861 of 25c per pound was received. No sale was made and factory men were asked to adjourn the board until Wednesday, June 3.

Refers to Meeting

Speaking briefly to the meeting, Mr. Coon referred to the meeting of cheese men Monday evening at Finch, which was attended by producing representatives from all the eastern counties and by both federal and provincial government men.

"Nothing concrete had come out of that meeting," he said, and the meeting was closed off without mention or farmers receiving any idea whether there would be a floor price for cheese this year.

Cheese Inspector D. Cossons noted that with a lack of any government support, looked to the supply and demand market for cheese.

Mr. Coon replied, however, that something had to be done. "Somebody has to support the price of cheese, otherwise on the open market, the thing would break badly," he said.

Charles N. Heath, producer association secretary said the announcement - from Ottawa was complicated and the association would need a day or so to figure it out. He said the association had received no official word from the government office.

There was considerable discussion by salesmen whether in view of the 30 cent government offer for the balance of this year's cheese, it would be advisable to accept the 25c bid for current cheese offered on the board.

Frank Gallagher, U.E.L. factory polnted out that the association would still lose money on 1953 cheese if it was sold for 30 cents as it had paid that much after July of last year. Carrying charges would boost the cost since then.

It was noted that the marketing board had been asking 36 and 37 cents per pound from the trade for last year's cheese.

Could Not Force Price

George Thompson, Rawdon township, said he was sure that no one would agree to 25 cents for cheese when others like the Phil Carr, Stirling, mild it alien ment started taking 36 cents for it. Government must pay farmers were satisfied.

"Then we might just as well all separate our milk," he said.

Mr. Coon pointed out that farmers could not hope to force a floor price for cheese by crowning their milk and turning it into butter.

Comparing butter purchases by the government under their price support scheme, Mr. Coon noted that so far this year only a very small percentage of butter available in other parts had been bought so far this year.

He said that in 1949 the government had bought over five million pounds of butter, while to the middle of May only 840,000 pounds had been purchased. He noted that the government knew exactly how much butter was in storage at all times.

The floor price on butter has a two-fold action," he said. "It maintains the price at all seasons, protecting the consumers in the winter and the producers in the summer."

Two motions came from the floor, one to adjourn the board for two weeks and the other to adjourn for one week. Eventually turned down the motion for a two-week adjournment and approved the motion to meet again on June 3.

'Mr. V' Amazes Shriners, Guests With Uncanny Hypnotic Power

By GEO. H. CARVER

It is just as well perhaps that the Shrine Club decided to have "Amazing Mr. V" as the chief feature of entertainment at a stag party instead of a ladies' night.

Mr. "V" showed amazing control over the mere male of the species, making certain specimens do his will at a sway of the fingers, a word, or a gesture. What the distaff side would give for this almost uncanny power cannot be estimated in mere dollars and cents.

"Mr. V" is a master of hypnosis. And upwards of 100 Shriners and their guests enjoyed the stag party staged at the Shrine Club last night.

Some seven members out of twenty survived the original test. But the actual performance simply exceeded all. one who proved the "hero" of the evening. His name cannot be mentioned for obvious reasons.

As for Mr. V pointed out "morons and idiots" cannot be hypnotised, which drew amid laughter from the crowd comment to the effect that "you won't get many prospects here."

He induced sleep through softly spoken words again and again, beating of steamy piano music played by Noble Charlie Cawker, and by the use of the amazed audience the "subjects, or some of them, to rise to their feet and then fall into the arms of a waiting guest.

Only four of them sat heads on chest in their chairs.

Concentrating his will power on selected victims, he set becoming rigid and will reach shoulder height" some six sturdy-spoiled conventions. Four arms rose gradually to a horizontal position.

Not Embarrassing

Then began what proved to be a hilariously funny sequence of events. It was pure comedy and never at any time did "Mr. V" cause any embarrassing situation.

He pictured a race track. Each subject had a horse. He suggested they cheer their nags as they neared the finish. Roars of laughter rang out as one subject thought he was a jockey and pictured as such. Another used the whip on his own leg.

Concentrating his attention on two of the most pliable subjects, "Mr. V"—told them they were seven years old and they didn't like their teacher. He offered fifty dollars to the one who could make the "worst face" at the teacher when her back was turned. The effect was terrific.

He told them they were on a beach under a blazing sun. "The heat" he said "is terrific. Loosen your collars." Handkerchiefs came up to mop sweating brows. One took off a shoe to remove the sand. Then they were told the weather changed. The wind was cold, it was freezing. And the subjects shivered and turned up coat collars.

One of the funniest sequences took place when Mr. V told his subject he wanted to be a dog-catcher and must make a speech.

He did. He started off "Ladies and Gentlemen" and ran off a humorous monologue that had subject had a horse. He suggested a popcorn, and he promptly strolled through the crowd offering "popcorn and peanuts" in no uncertain voice.

"Mr. V" then told his subject that he himself would make a speech and at the mention of the word "gentlemen" the subject got up and shout "Aw, Shaddup". This he did at the top of his voice while the Shriners gasped with laughter.

Hot Seat

On another occasion, at the mention of a word, the subject was told the seat of his chair would get hot. Mr. V started to talk and as he spoke the chosen victim, being unable to keep in the air clutching the seat of his pants shouting "It's hot."

He was told that a picture of himself in the nude hung over a mantel. At a given count, he rose and took the picture off the wall, hiding it behind his back. "I cannot show it," he said, naked," he whispered. He was told it was no such thing and look the picture. ment came over his face when he looked at it and saw it was nothing of the kind.

The subject was told to forget his name. He accepted another, "Mr. Cheesicracker," and signed it. A cigarette was supposed to taste like "burning garbage" and the amazed audience the "subjects, or some of them, to rise to their feet and then fall into the arms of a waiting guest.

Only four of them sat heads on chest in their chairs.

Concentrating his will power on selected victims, he set becoming rigid and will reach shoulder height" some six sturdy-spoiled conventions. Four arms rose gradually to a horizontal position.

and he staggered and fell into the arms of a nearby Shriner. He was awakened by a brief count, but could not leave his arms from a horizontal position. Another snap of the fingers and he was "normal."

It was a grand show, proving the marvellous powers of hypnotism and evidencing the work of a master hypnotist.

In brief re-show address, "Mr. V" explained that hypnosis is being used by many medicos in the United States. Chlichbirth was performed in England last year while the prospective mother was under the hypnotic influences. Smoking and drinking habits can be "cured" but not by a single treatment. Mr. V" said.

"If you ask me to stop your smoking habit, the effect would last for about two days. But with your own abstinence through this medium and successive treatments for a month I think the habit can be cured."

Ten minutes' hypnotic sleep, he said, was equal to two hours' normal sleep. Asked if it were impossible to wake a "subject" after being subjected to hypnotic influence, "Mr. V" said, "definitely not. It has never been done in history. If I should leave, the subject would be normally awake within a half-hour."

He has appeared in many large cities in the United States and Canada and on television.

Shrine president Noble Orlitt Lloyd welcomed the members and guests and afterwards expressed the club appreciation of the show! "Mr. V" was brought here through the club entertainment committee under Chairman Wohlp Jack Bush. Midnight refreshments rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Fire Hazards Discussed At Kiwanis Club

Fire hazards in the home, how to fight such fires if and when they occur, and things to do to avoid fires in the home, were discussed by Harry Jordan of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office at the Kiwanis luncheon on Tuesday.

Mr. Jordan outlined briefly the factors which will cause fire. He explained in detail the requirements for fire, listing them as fuel, source of oxygen and heat. He said, "I always think of it as a three-legged stool. Remove one of the legs and the stool collapses. The same with fire, take away one of the three requirements, and you have no fire."

"Fire," he stated, "is the physical evidence of combustion." In 1951, there were 18,000 fires in the Province of Ontario. The fires caused 23 million dollars damage and took 123 lives. That is in only one year."

Following Mr. Jordan's talk, he showed a movie depicting the proper methods of escape from a burning building.

Harold Craig reported the sing was a great success. It was held on Wednesday, May 20 at the Country Club. This is an annual event. Members of other Kiwanis clubs are invited to attend.

The speaker was introduced by Bud Punchard and the appreciation of the club was extended by Stu Robb.

THE READY WORD

In Windsor there is never anything but unequivocal loyalty to successful local politicians. As quick as not, the Windsor Star will criticize any government or any party. But you will never see the Star whipping up a harsh word against the Hon. Paul Martin, or David Croll, K.C. The fact that both of these men are prominent liberals is only incidental. The Star says nice things about anyone who it feels is entitled to a kind word. But is particularly partial to local boys.

Recently one of the Star's several columnists, W. L. Clark, had something complimentary to say about Dave Croll. Although Mr. Croll has ceased to be a citizen of the border city, anything he does is still news, and if he does it well, it is good news. After all, he sold newspapers so that city's streets and he became the mayor of the city before he went forward to larger things in the political sphere.

In one of his more recent assignments he happened to do a very good chore for the government in Ottawa as chairman of the committee of the House of Commons who investigated the Currie report. And a few days ago, Mr. Clark had occasion to comment in his column, in the following words:

"When the Liberals want to give Lieutenant-Colonel Dave Croll a title, they call him the Gekter-Outer-of-Jams. The federal M.P. for Toronto-Spadina wrote the resignation speech of Austin E. Dewar, who quit as M.P., for Qu'Appelle.

"Col. Croll was also effective in the defence committee by getting all the horses into the proper stables. He did so well on that, that anyone can mention horses in the Commons now without bringing down a lot of neighs. Many man is often an efficient pilot in steering his party out of trouble is a good chap to have around."

That's what Mr. Clark said, and you can be sure that Mr. Croll will say as much for Mr. Clark, and the Windsor Star, and the City of Windsor, whenever the opportunity might present itself.

We, in the Quinte area, at the time when Mr. Croll was credited with one of the most memorable quotes in Canadian political history. When he resigned as Minister of Labor in the late Hepburn Liberal administration in 1938 at Oshawa strike he was reported as having said: "I would rather walk with the workers than ride with General Motors."

This gem gained him the plaudits of a great many. But it was a moot point in the Press Gallery at Queen's Park of those days whether those were the words of the Minister of Labor or of his private secretary, who had been a former member of the Gallery, and was known among his colleagues as a quick man with a neat and pungent phrase.

A DIM VIEW IS TAKEN

We notice that the Montreal Star takes "a very dim view" of a bill now in history between a politician and an editor, and ponders what it might lead to.

The Star reminds us that it is only a matter of a few centuries since governments could order that editors' hands could be cut off if they wrote something objectionable. Almost within living memory, the writer recalls, enraged characters used to wander the streets with horse-whips looking for editors.

We suspect the writer recalls an incident which involved a man travelling from Hamilton to Toronto to do a little shopping. He was that unfortunate victim of the also a newspaperman who wielded the whip. In straitened financial circumstances he had felt obliged to become a correspondent for a Hamilton weekly sheet of some 30-odd years ago and was then betrayed by the editor as the man who had written a particularly offensive and scurrilous story involving politicians in his own city. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the moral virtues on either side. It is sufficient to recall that the incident occurred.

Of some years earlier, about the turn of the century, there is the recorded case of a vigilant and particularly objectionable editor who was shot in the back in a small town by a local politician he had taken to task in somewhat harsh terms.

But about the Uruguayan incident the Montreal writer comments that the editor in that case was silly enough to have accepted the challenge when he might easily and more sensibly have taken to the hills. The Star suggests that if editors do not have enough to do that there should be a bill which provides them the protection of a permanent closed season.

There is no possible moral in all this but it reminds us of an Essex man in Time magazine a week or two ago. It reported a case in the Middle East of the inept Casanova who was found in his neighbor's house when the husband returned home. The wife had the presence of mind to cry: "Thief." The intruder had the presence of mind to plead guilty.

In Iran—or was it Iraq?—the admitted thief suffers his right hand to be cut off at the wrist. The penalty for adultery is death.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

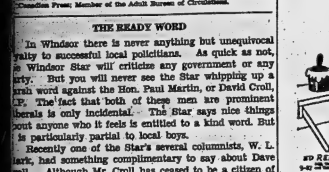
JEALOUS

A lovely, fascinating blonde,
Of whom, I'm told, I'm over-fond,
Will brush me off as time goes by
Who is a younger man than I.
And, when that happens, will it be
The captive she has made of me.



Her name is Marjorie, and her hair
Is spun of finest gold leaf-rare.
Here eyes are blue as summer skies
It troubles me to think those eyes
With joy will twinkle when they see
Some younger man, instead of me.

Jealous of him so far away?
I sit and jealous mean to stay.
I sit and wonder who is he-
My rival for her heart—to be!
And, when that happens, will I care
To be about.
Though none as yet have found him out.

My favorite blonde. It must be told.
As yet is not quite two years old.
And be, with greater charm than mine.
May possibly be eight or nine.
But this I pray to God on high
That he will love her as do I.

Horse Power on Farms

(Farmer's Advocate)

According to United States figures agriculture uses, at the turn of the century, had about five horsepower available for use. Now every agricultural worker has somewhere between 30 and 40 horse power at his disposal. That may go higher, much higher. The problem now is to use horse power to reduce the number of man hours required, and do it economically.

They Get Exercise

(Hamilton Spectator)

Have the oldtimers who complain that modern youngsters are soft because they no longer walk miles to school ever stopped to consider how far the 8 o'clock in a day inside one of those new hard-long single storey buildings?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The suburbs of cities have, in the past eight years, expanded enormously. But, within the suburbs, are the rural regions. Not only cities but towns are on the make. Garlands of pretty modern bungalows wreath all the old communities round.

Apart from sundry confusions created by taxation, the erection of complex municipal structures in the formerly simple townships around cities, the farmers have one fairly reasonable beef. These suburbanites, having as yet no garbage disposal, save their old tin cans, bottles, rags and junk of various kinds, and every now and then, a little group of neighbors bands together, hires or borrows a truck, and, under cover of darkness, goes for a ride into the surrounding countryside, picking a quiet sideroad; and there, in what looks to a bunch of bungalow boys like an abandoned spot, quietly dumps the load of rubbish off on the side of the road. And the farmer on whose land this indignity was heaped passes the next day to see a garbage pile on his property. A sideroad is never a nameless lane. It is never an abandoned place. It is somebody's road home, somebody's love.

The mischief of it is, if the farmer is not prompt in removing the trash, others coming past, seeing for a place to unload, will dump theirs there too. No farmer in the world has time or patience to dispose of other people's rubbish.

There are township and county laws, as well as provincial and federal public health regulations forbidding the random dumping of rubbish. But a drive around the countryside perimeter of our cities will reveal a most disagreeable situation developing in these hazard and obviously willful unloadings of unsightly junk.

It Merely Sounds Easy

(Windsor Star)

It isn't only in the "welfare state" that people lose their initiative. It can occur in primitive places, too, where there is welfare at all in the sense we know it.

The Little Andaman Islands located in the Bay of Bengal off the coast of India, are an example. The Onges, the native people, even though they have supported themselves by fishing, by harpooning sea turtle and by hunting the wild pig for them, this was much too easy a routine until someone imported a pair of dogs, which multiplied rapidly.

The natives took kindly to the dogs, which hunted the wild pigs for them. This

Drama Director Faces Busy Week in Producing Two Plays

The week of June 1 to 6 will be for Della Wilken, Middleton Park's female stage director, the busiest weeks of her life.

On June 1 and 2 she will lead the cast of two plays, "So Wonderful (In White") and "The Voice of the People," through their final and full dress rehearsals. On June 3 and 4, the same act plays will be presented on the stage of the Air Chief Marshal Brendcor School auditorium, with Miss Wilken back stage issuing final instructions. On June 5, she will play the leading role in a successfully important rehearsal—that of her own wedding to be held the following day, June 6, in the RCAF Station Protestant chapel.

The busy week will end for the RCAF Women's Auxiliary Service Canada drama director with a honeymoon in Florida. Behind the scenes activities for the future groom, FIJ/LL Reg Anslow, of RCAF Training Command Headquarters.

Miss Wilken was educated in Redvers, Sask., where her interest in drama was confined to acting in several school plays. Later, during her studies at the University of Saskatchewan, she took a short course in dramatics. While a teacher of commercial subjects at Carlyle, Sask., the budding director spent off-duty hours coaching amateur aircrews and actors. During her three year stay at Carlyle, Miss Wilken directed a play that won the annual inter-school drama festival.

At Headquarters

Until recently, Miss Wilken was a stenographer at Training Command Headquarters. She came to Trenton from Carlyle in July, 1953, to live with her sister-in-law, Mrs. C. D. Wilken, whose late husband was the victim of an RCAF air crash outside Calgary in December 1951.

The cast of "So Wonderful (In White") includes: Mrs. R. F. Murray, as Margaret Shipman; Mrs. Ross Reid, as Janey Reid; Mrs. J. E. Labrash, as Eleanor De-Witt; Miss Agnes Ward, as Ginny Brash; Mrs. A. K. Ogilvie, as Gail Stevens; Mrs. F. H. Watkins as Miss Cresson, and Mrs. A. M. Halkett as the new girl.

The cast of "The Voice of the People" includes: Mrs. N. A. Rumsey, as Aggie; LAC Lance Butler, as Sam; Sgt. C. A. Rouse, as Shorty, and Mrs. R. G. Boorman, as Myrtle.

The production staff includes: Miss Della Wilken, director; Mrs. W. Weiser, producer, FIJ/LL J. F. Robertson, stage director; Mrs. R. Thompson, make-up; Mrs. A. M. Halkett, wardrobe; Mrs. J. F. Robertson, business manager, and Mrs. H. A. Stratton and Mrs. A. M. Halkett, prompters.

FIELD DAY

LETHERIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Fourth annual co-operative field day for southern Alberta is being held at the Dominion experimental station here June 20. Entertainment includes a square dance and band music.

From her vantage point, Miss Wilken surveys the stage carefully watching for correct or incorrect positions of cast members on the platform. They must stand so that the audience will be able to see each and every face from any seat in the hall.

Actors Well Skilled

Important, too, are the actors' actions and facial expressions. Voice, timing, positions, actions, expressions, scenery, costumes and many more important details add life to the play—the life so necessary to delight any audience.

Miss Wilken reported at a rehearsal that: "The members of the two plays are well suited for their parts."

The two casts are entering the last week of a six-week rehearsal period. Already, they have begun to live their parts, which Miss Wilken states is important "to keep the plays from falling apart."

Ontario Cheese Milk Producers Receive Letter from Officials

To Ontario Cheese Milk Producers:

We are writing this letter to all known cheese milk producers so that you may have a first hand record of the position of your organization as to the marketing of the 1953 make of cheese.

With the reported improvement in the British dollar situation, we, early in the year, pursued the idea of an export contract for this season. To date no encouraging results can be reported.

We also pursued the proposition of the 1953 operation, when the Ontario and Federal Governments co-operated in making available a 30c payment to the producers. The Ontario Government has turned down the six cent credit guarantee for this year. We pursued the idea of a split on any loss that would occur in the 1952 operations as the Ontario Government had advised us to sell to the United Kingdom 3,330,000 pounds this year at a lower price than the 30 cents. This they turned down.

With no export market in view, and the Ontario Government out of the picture financially, your executive requested the Federal Government to grant 7 30 cent floor price. The response to this request was that the Government of Canada was prepared to give us the same agreement as they granted us last year, which, as you recall, was security so that the producers could be paid on an initial payment of 24 cents at the factory, which is the co-operative plan, and is based on 80 per cent of the average wholesale price for the past three years. This was the plan under which we operated through April, May and June of last year, and as a considerable number of factories by-passed the exchanges and sold direct, the plan did not operate sufficiently until the Ontario Government came in with their six cent guarantee to correct this practice.

We are being informed that if there was a floor price it would be low, in keeping with world cheese prices, we pursued the co-operative plan further with the Ontario Government as to whether they would give us protection under their legislation to make this plan work so that a large share, if not the entire crop, be negotiated for the domestic sale. We were told by the Ontario Government that no such effective marketing plan was unworkable, with the indicated increased production in the country this year, and that we should continue to press for a floor price.

We have not accepted the co-operative plan, because unless orderly marketing is enforced by the Ontario Government, whereby all factories must sell their cheese through a cheese exchange, the probability exists that the trading price would be the same as the initial payment price, which is too low for cheese to trade at in Canada when the cost of milk production is taken into account. Your organization believes also that the consuming public, with the high wage levels in this country, should not be entitled to buy cheese based on a 24 cent price.

We again requested the Federal Government to consider a floor price, or some other plan whereby the producers would be paid a fair price for their milk. With nothing forthcoming, we were forced to open the exchanges, where cheese could be offered for sale by auction on the open market.

The Marketing Scheme remains in effect, the only change being that no minimum negotiated price has been established.

Be assured you first hand a record of recent experiences of the Ontario Cheese Producers' organization, we believe you can readily see the cheese milk producers' position. In short, it is this:

(1) No export market presently in sight.

(2) The Ontario Government financially out of the picture for 1953.

(3) The Federal Government prepared to give the same agreement as last year and suggesting the co-operative method of selling our cheese is better than a floor price plan.

(4) Ontario Government states co-operative plan is unworkable. Floor price the only thing.

(5) Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board not willing to accept cost unless orderly marketing in the Province is enforced whereby a higher price can be negotiated for the domestic market.

Your question may be, "So what should I do about it?" You can decide with your opinion is going to give you the most money, a floor price, or co-operative method of selling. When you and your neighbors have decided, give it to your Member of Parliament or your Member of the Legislative Assembly, or if you wish us to carry your decision to the government, please send it along to your Belleville office. We exist to serve, as best we can, the cheese factory patrons, and our chief objective is to get the best possible return for our farmers, regardless of what method is used to get the return.

Yours very truly,
The Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board.
W. O. Coon, President.
Ivan Heath, Secretary.

P.S.—If further information or clarification of the contents of the above letter is desired, your head office will be glad to reply to your questions.

Traffic Subject Of Discussion In City Council

Relative merits of parking as against no parking, left-and-right-hand turns at busy intersections and split phase traffic signals, came up for discussion in city council Monday when aldermen were addressed by Ed. A. Kellaway, Bridge Street grocer.

For the second time in recent weeks Mr. Kellaway told council that the split phase traffic signal at the corner of Bridge and Coleman streets was dangerous, particularly for pedestrians. Also he claimed that council had failed to secure the approval of the highways department before the lights were installed, as was required by the Highways Act.

Mr. Kellaway had a complaint against the regulation ruling out left-hand turns at the corner of Front and Bridge streets, which he claimed slowed up traffic rather than expediting it.

Other general complaints by the local merchants covered no parking regulations and the parking of a city policeman directing traffic on Dundas street at the entrance to Loblaws.

Has Speeded Traffic

Alderman Robert Temple as chairman of traffic had an answer for most of Mr. Kellaway's remarks. Later in connection under general business he said that elimination of left hand turns at the main intersection had speeded up traffic as was borne out by traffic counts.

He pointed out that the traffic committee had little to do with complaints of double parking. That being left to the police department. He observed that the committee was criticized regarding what action it took with

City Aldermen Get Part of Pay In Expenses

An example of how an individual's salary can be reduced and at the same time be better off financially, was demonstrated in city council yesterday when councillors passed a by-law declaring part of their annual remuneration as expense allowance.

City aldermen receive $400 per year and previously income tax was paid on the whole amount, but by recent federal legislation they are now permitted to declare one-third of their remuneration as expense allowance. The concession is similar to that enjoyed by members of the House of Commons and provincial legislatures.

Under the new system councillors will be able to declare $133 of their yearly salaries from the city as tax-free expense allowance. Depending on the income tax bracket, councillors will thus be saved anywhere from $37 up.

On Thursday evening, Belleville Chapter, No. 435, of the Women of the Moose, held its first meeting of the month in the Moose hall on Victoria Ave., with Sr. Regent Mary Peoples presiding.

After the roll call balloting on nine candidates took place with ballot favorable. The new members will join the defending circle at the next meeting.

Two appeals were read, from the Salvation Army at Belleville and Port Hope, with Port Hope's being answered and to be delivered by Sentinel Luella Bull, and Belleville's to be sent later. A vote of thanks memorials to be bought to make drapes for the hall, with Kay Donovan, Mary Van Dusen and Mary Peoples to purchase same and Mary Van Dusen and Kay Donovan to make them up.

Dep. Grand Regent Amy Winkworth will pay the chapter a visit next meeting night and Peggy Mintz and Mary Mallette are to buy a gift to be presented to her.

As it is hospital month, chairman Mary Mallette will look after refreshments and entertainment. Sr. Regt. Mary Peoples gave a report on the banquet held, expressed thanks to co-workers who had helped and turned the proceeds into the chapter. She also suggested to buy flag holders for flags and that the girls clean and wash flags with all those helping who wished to do so.

Mrs. R. Robson Gives Talk on 'Citizenship'

Mrs. R. Vanderwater and Mrs. R. Kruglin were hostesses Thursday evening to the members of the Pine Grove Women's Institute.

The president, Mrs. H. Detlor, was in the chair and in keeping with the topic "Citizenship," the roll call was answered by "Name a former governor general, prime minister or member of parliament."

Delegates chosen to attend the West Hastings district annual convention, which is to be held Wednesday, May 27, at Scott's United Church, at the residence of Sidney township, were: Mrs. G. Bartendale and Mrs. C. Rose. Those attending this convention were also asked to bring articles for a hobby display.

Mrs. G. Bartendale told the highlights of the district meeting which she had attended at Blackstock in the West Durham district.

It was decided to donate $10 toward the work of the Salvation Army.

Mrs. H. Detlor gave current events after which Mrs. R. Vanderwater, citizenship convener, took charge of the program.

A quiz on "Canada" brought the members' attention to many historical facts of importance since the discovery of America right up to the present time.

Mrs. H. Collier read "What is a Canadian?" and Mrs. C. Rose, "Ten Rules for Rearing Children."

Guest Speaker

Mrs. R. Robson, president of the East Hastings District Women's Institute, was then introduced. Mrs. Robson spoke on "Citizenship," mentioning that this was indeed a suitable topic for Convention year. "Everyone's idea of what is a good citizen may be different. However, our horizons are now widening and we must be aware of all that is happening nationally and internationally. It is a great honor for Canada this year to entertain the Associated Country Women of the World.

"People in the more settled parts of our dominion do not realize how far country we are. There is much still to be developed."

Mrs. Robson then read an interesting article, "The Cats That Moved a Town," from the book "Forward With Canada," and concluded with a poem on Canada."

Mrs. Vanderwater thanked Mrs. Robson for her inspiring address.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bartendale Wednesday evening, June 18, with Mrs. A. Tanner and Mrs. R. Coulter as conveners.

Quints, Nineteen Next Thursday, Will Not be Home for Birthday

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Dionne Quintuplets, 19 next Thursday, will be spending their first birthday away from home.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, two sisters, Pauline and Mrs. Maurice Gerard of Wallaceburg, Ont., and seven-year-old Claude, will join the quints at a summer cottage near Nicolet, Que.

The cottage, located in an attractive maple bush, is owned by the nuns who operate the girls' College Institute Familial, which the quints are attending at Nicolet.

There will be the usual birthday celebrations and cake, although this time it will be for six Dionne girls—the quints, Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie, and Yvonne, and Pauline, who celebrated her 20th birthday last month.

The five girls have already received a large number of birthday cards, many of them from Europe and the United States.

Will be Given Cash Gifts

Mr. Dionne said Monday: "Though we will be giving them some clothes, our main birthday gift to the girls will be in the form of cash. Spending for years they need."

He said none of the girls has a boy friend. "They have been much too busy with their studies for this sort of thing. I am sure they will stay in school for two more years, probably longer."

He said they are considerably slimmer, especially with their short bob hair styles. "They are in exceptionally good health, he added. "When I saw them recently they looked much more refreshed and relaxed than they have for a long time."

The girls have been taking a course in home economics, comparable to first year at university. They have been given the privilege of taking whatever subjects they choose and Mr. Dionne said they may choose art next year as a result of their interest in Pauline's work. Pauline is studying art at Montreal and plans to become an art teacher.

Main Hobby Music

The quints' main hobby still is music, and all five are good at it. Al Nicolet, Marie has been taking singing lessons and she, Annette and Cecile have also been taking piano lessons.

As for their future, Mr. Dionne said: "Pauline and I are still leaving it entirely up to them. With the education they have received now and the confidence we have in them, they are well equipped to choose for themselves."

The quints will be out of school in June and will spend the summer vacation at the family home.

"We have had some heartaches during the last 19 years, but we are happy now and I am thankful to God that things have turned out so well," Mr. Dionne said. "Mrs. Dionne and I are very proud of all our family."

Isobel Wallbridge Heads B.P.W. Club

The Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville were guests on Monday last at the home of Mrs. D. W. Rendell, Crescent Avenue. Mrs. Rendell opened her home to the entire club and served a banquet which will long be remembered by the club members.

Spring flowers decorated the head table as well as individual tables.

Miss Norma Aylen, presiding over the last meeting of her tenure of office, thanked members of the club, who during the past year had helped her in many successful club activities. Speaking briefly on the pending Convention, Miss Aylen said:

"When the curtain rises on the Coronation it will be a curtain rising on a deep vista of history. The forms are ancient, but the spirit is the solemn recognition of the sacred character alike of royalty and loyalty.

Knowledge Brings Understanding

"The late King George VI, in speaking of the great British Empire as a family, said this, and it may apply equally as aptly to any nation, or group or club such as our B. and P. Club: 'It is only by getting to know one another better that closer sympathy and understanding can come. Only so can we realize that we are all members of one family'."

Continuing, Miss Aylen quoted from the writer, Leslie Church, "let us now put away envy, malice, and malice, and all uncharitableness. Let us share with the world the ideals of truth and freedom which our fathers gave us as an inheritance. In humbleness and in all sincerity let us pledge ourselves to love things in the world a little better than we found them. So shall we help to bring peace on earth and by the grace of God, this shall be our finest hour."

Letters of thanks were read from the Children's Aid Society for the club's financial and material help as well as the Y.M.C.A. for patronage.

An invitation from the Sorptimist Club to attend their tea this coming Saturday, at the home of Mrs. Georgia Smith, was extended to the club.

Winner of a sunshine prize donated by Evelyn Coulter, was Shirley Hinchey.

Officers Installed

This was followed by an inspiring candle ceremony of the installation of officers for the forthcoming club year. Conducting the installation was past president, Eva Doolittle. Incoming executives are: past president, Norma Aylen; president, Isobel Wallbridge; 1st vice president, Dorothy Brown; 2nd vice president, Grace Houston; recording secretary, Marjorie Sherman; corresponding secretary, Irene Rasey; treasurer, Ann Wannamaker; assistant treasurer, Evelyn Coulter.

Committee heads are as follows —Press and publicity, Simone McFadden; ways and means, Muriel Johnson; program and entertainment, Mildred Mouyson; membership, Eva Doolittle; emblem, Marion Nichol; telephone, Nell Morley; international, Helen Vivian; pianist, Edna Johson.

The incoming president, Isobel Wallbridge, thanked the club for the trust placed in her. She spoke briefly on tentative plans for the forthcoming year.

A motion was passed to send congratulatory messages on their appointment to the senate to Madame Maurice Beauchamp Jodoin, of Montreal, and Mrs. Muriel McQueen Fergusson, of Fredericton, N.B.

Marjorie Sherman expressed the club's thanks to Mrs. Rendell for a generous and delightful evening and the club members joined in with a warm chorus of "She's a Jolly Good Fellow".

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Teen-age problems are important, too

However, trivial teen-age problems may seem to adults, no one who remembers back his or her own adolescence—and don't we all?—will deny that heartaches are as hard to bear in youth as in later life. In fact, they are often more acute in the young, since few teen-agers are able to believe what the truly adult person comes at last to understand, which is that no grief or pain, however heart breaking, last a lifetime.

All this is by way of saying that it's only fair to give teen-age problems serious attention, if for no better reason than to try and get the young people to take the first step toward acquiring the adolescent knowledge that, however dark life may seem at the moment, the sun will definitely shine again.

The letter which I would like to discuss today, then, is from a high school girl who is going through the painful experience of "breaking up" with her boy friend. It says:

"I have been going steady with a wonderful boy but a year older than I am. We broke up because he said we weren't seeing enough of each other. He had baseball practice every afternoon and we could only have dates on Friday nights.

"Now I hear he is paying a lot of attention to another girl. I often see him walking her home, and it kills me. When we bump into each other, I have a hard time thinking of things to talk about.

"I'm a few weeks, I'm moving away from here and going to live in another state, and I'm having a farewell party. I would like this boy to come very much, but I don't know whether he's going steady or not with this other girl. If so, should I invite her? Also, if he came to the party and we danced together, I am afraid I would burst into tears and spoil everything. I don't want him to feel sorry for me, but I do want him to know I love him.

"Another question is, I would like to write to him after I've gone away from here. Should I do this, and how often?

Lucky To Be Leaving

Now, factually, this girl is far luckier than she knows, in the fact that she is going away and leaving her boy behind. She doesn't believe, of course, that she will leave him behind. She thinks that, in her thoughts, he will go right along with her, and that for the rest of her life she'll be carrying a torch for him and never again will care to look at another boy.

This, however, I can definitely assure her, is not going to happen. For the truth is that, if she will refrain from trying to keep him a live issue in her mind by writing him after she has left town, she will get over him pretty quickly, once she has started to make new friends in the new place. She says she wants him to know that she loves him, but I think she will be glad, later on, if she keeps herself from telling him, by word or action, any such thing. Some day, and some day not too far off, he is going to be just another teen-age memory, and a much pleasanter one if she can remember him without the embarrassment she would certainly feel if she had humbled her pride by trying to hang on to him after he has shown that he has lost that particular kind of interest in her.

If he should write to her after she goes away, and she wants to send him a casual, friendly letter, there's no harm in it all in that. But if she feels she must write him back a burning declaration of undying love, she had better send him no answer at all.

As for the farewell party, why not make a fine big gesture by inviting both the boy and the girl, and exerting enough self-control so that she does not make their presence the occasion for an outburst of tears?

Here she has the opportunity to display maturity instead of childishness. If she chooses to demonstrate the former instead of the latter, it will not only be better for all concerned right now, but she will do herself a good turn by starting a habit that will help her many heartaches as the years go on.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

Cream of Asparagus Soup
Sliced Baked Ham Bacon or Midget Roll
Mustard Pickles
New Vegetable Salad
Hot Potato Chips

Hot Parkerhouse Rolls
Fresh Crushed Pineapple and Sliced Strawberry Fruit Cup
Pound Cake and Coffee

Recently I seem to be surrounded by determined redheads. We had our monthly meeting of the Press Club and the dessert was chocolate eclairs—plus three servings of fruit cups for the personal reducers on the club. I should have been the other way round—fruit cups for most of us and the eclairs for the two or three lovers of rich desserts, for looking eyes were cast on those fruit cups by most of us.

The above meal is designed to give a choice of dishes allowed by reducers, but you can choose the bacon, vegetable salad and fruit cup, and, if their calorie-allowances will stretch for it, the soup. It is a Jack-Spratt-and-his-wife menu.

Cream of Asparagus Soup

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon grated onion or finely chopped green onion or chives, 2 cups milk, 1 cup liquid in which asparagus is cooked, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, shake of pepper, 1-2 cups very finely sliced asparagus cooked 10 minutes in 1 cup boiling water, 1-2 teaspoon bottled condiment sauce or MSG, shake of paprika. Melt the butter in double boiler, add the onion or chives and cook over direct heat gently for 5 minutes. Do not brown. Add the flour, stir until smooth, then stir in the milk and asparagus liquid, then cook over boiling water when thickened, for about 10 minutes. Stir it a few times. Add remaining ingredients and heat through. Sprinkle with paprika when served. As a variation use 1 cup canned consomme in place of 1 of the cups of milk.

Baked Stack Bacon

A 2-lb. piece of back bacon, if sliced thinly will serve 8. Sprinkle over the 1st surface 1-2 cup brown sugar mixed with 1-2 teaspoon mustard and 1-8 teaspoon cloves. Place in small open pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. allowing 35 minutes per lb. — about 70 or 75 minutes in all. This does not require basting. This is delicious sliced cold. Sometimes I bake a piece of bacon like this to have in the refrigerator to slice cold for lunches or sandwiches.

New Vegetable Salad

One cup each small cubes unpeeled red apples, finely cut celery, cooked new peas, cooked chopped green beans, 1-2 cup each finely chopped ripe olives, (do not leave these out—they give this salad its character), finely chopped sweet pickles, finely chopped walnuts, mayonnaise. Mix apples, celery, olives, pickles, walnuts. Arrange alternate layers of peas, beans and spoi mixture in salad bowl, sprinkling each layer with salt as you go. Dot with the mayonnaise and mix in gently. Garnish with small inner lettuce leaves or sprigs of watercress. This amount will serve 8 or 9 and is a very popular salad with the men.

Pound Cake

Whole eggs are low in cost I thought you might be tempted to make this. It keeps well and slices neatly and is an ideal accompaniment to the fresh pineapple and strawberries now in season.

Three and three-quarters cups sifted cake flour, 1 1-3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 2-4 cup butter or margarine, 2 1-4 cups sugar, 8 eggs—yolks and whites separated. Sift together the flour, and baking powder 3 times. Cream the butter with the rind and nutmeg until fluffy then add sugar gradually and beat well after each addition. Turn into two loaf pans (6x3x2 inches which have been buttered, paper-lined and buttered again) in 325 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour and 20 minutes or until cake shrinks from sides of pan.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

ALL THE WORLD LOVES AN ENGAGEMENT RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my fiance comes home on his next leave, we are going to announce our engagement. Will you please answer some questions for me?

1. Am I supposed to show my diamond engagement ring to my friends, or should I wait until they mention my engagement and offer their best wishes?

2. Should I write thank-you notes to friends who send cards of congratulations? Or may I wait until I meet them to thank them?

3. What is the correct pronunciation of fiancé? I believe I remember that I once read in your column that fiance and fiancee are pronounced alike. True?

Kate R.

1. You probably won't have to worry too much about this decision for I'm quite sure that your close friends, the moment they see your left ring finger, engagement has been announced, will begin to talk about your engagement and will want to see and admire your ring. (All the world loves an engagement ring, you know.) However, when you meet your not-so-close friends, you'd better wait until they speak of your engagement before you show your ring.

2. When you receive notes or cards of best wishes you should at once write friendly little notes of appreciation of these good wishes. Don't ever fail to write a card at once with your appreciation that you want to thank friends as you chance to meet them.

2. True. fiance (masculine) and fiancee (feminine) are pronounced alike. fee-ahn-say.

THEATRE ETIQUETTE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I have to pass in front of people to take my seat in a theatre or in a concert hall, what is the correct thing to say?

Worried T.

Say "I'm sorry" or "I'm so sorry," and say it loud. If you really mean it, not in the cold, cold hand way we hear so often, too often. And if a person is so polite as to get up to make it more convenient for you to pass, you should be so polite as to say a most gracious "Thank you."

"MRS. JOHN ROBINSON" THE CORRECT FORM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a reporter from a newspaper is asking for the names of the guests at some public or social occasion, should I when she asks for mine, give my name as "Mrs. John Robinson," or "Mrs. Mary Robinson?"

Give your name as "Mrs. John Robinson." Socially, the form "Mrs. Mary Robinson" is never correct

Esther-Lillian Studio of Ballet Presents 'Spring Dance Revue'

The Esther-Lillian, studio of ballet, again presented a program with aesthetic appeal, at the dance recital on Friday evening at the Collegiate.

Th. artistic skill was apparent in the clever, choreography, set to the music of the masters, the attractive stage settings, and the outstanding beautiful costumes. Seldom is seen a more lovely or colorful performance, by so young and talented a group.

Esther Hughes and Lillian Laichford are to be congratulated for maintaining a high standard of classical ballet. They have endeavored to produce something more than mediocre entertainment, and have succeeded in stirring the imagination to an appreciation" n of the poetic loveliness of movement in music, the art of terpsichory.

In the opening number, one is treated to a peek behind the scenes in the studio. Ballet at the Bar, an interesting demonstration of intricate steps, turns, and movements, which are part of the training of a Prima Ballerina. The tiny first and second year students were most appealing in th's number.

Coronation Court, a timely number, symbol of Coronation day. From the tiny satin pages, to the tall soldier and the lovely ladies in waiting, to the charming court it was a scene of Royal splendor. Brigid Hughes' young voice added a fitting touch to this scene, when she sang, "Here's Health Unto Her Majesty."

Stately Waltz and Minuet danced to such famous music as "Le Roi S'Amuse." Shubert; "Gavotte Antique," F. J. Gossec; "Gavotte Imperial," Corelli, and Minuet by Mozart were delightful.

MARMORA

St. Paul's Observes Whitsuntide Festival

Marmora — The festival of Whitsuntide was joyfully observed at St. Paul's with a special service at 11 a.m. in which the junior choir, gowned in their new robes, under their trainer, Miss Ruth Thomas, took part, singing "Beautiful Saviour" and "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus."

Canon J. M. Brownlie who officiated, gave an impressive sermon on the ministry of the Holy Spirit, stressing the fact that its bestowal upon the apostles and others was no passing event but is an experience obtainable today.

The altar was beautifully decorated with tulips and lilies.

Canon Brownlie was able to announce that as a result of his sitting in the church the previous day from 10.30 a.m. to 9 p.m. the amount of $349 had been brought in by members of the congregation towards the parish hall renovations and others would be subscribing in the near future to bring that total nearer the $1200 needed.

Bonds of Commonwealth Seen By Elizabeth as Australians Take Guard from Grenadiers

LONDON (CP)—The far-distant lands of the British Commonwealth were represented in the thoughts of the Queen today as Coronation preparations swirled even faster.

From Buckingham Palace this morning she saw an odd spectacle. Gone were the black bearidns and red tunics of the Grenadier Guards, and on sentry duty were 24 smart Australians in khaki uniforms and norwest slouch hats. They are the pick of an Australian military contingent here for the Coronation next Tuesday.

Troops from Pakistan were to take over from the Aussies, the guards from the other Commonwealth nations following.

The changing guard symbolized a day being devoted by the young monarch to the widespread lands her crown links with England. It symbolized, too, their continued devotion to the Crown, continuing despite the nationalistic strains of recent years.

In historic Westminster Hall, where Britons once celebrated victory at Agincourt and put Charles I on trial for his life 300 years ago, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh lunched with some 700 guests, including Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada and 60 members of Commonwealth legislatures.

It was in this hall, at coronations of long ago, that the Sovereign's Defender, a helmeted man on a horse, offered to fight personally anyone challenging the sovereign's right to reign.

The Sovereign's Defender has gone out of fashion lately, but in his place today was H.E. Holt, Australia's minister of labor and national service, to propose the principal toast to the Queen.

To millions tense with Coronation excitement, the high spot was the Queen's reply—to be broadcast to Britain, the Commonwealth and the colonies. Her last overseas broadcast was at Christmas.

Prime Ministers Churchill and St. Laurent were to thank the Queen for her speech.

In keeping with a Commonwealth occasion, the menu had an Empire flavor—maple syrup from Canada, sherry from South Africa, cigars from Jamaica, salmon from Scotland, and on down the list.

Canadians invited to the luncheon besides the prime minister, included W. Ross Macdonald, Speaker of the House of Commons, Elie Beauregard, Speaker of the Senate, and Leon Raymond, clerk of the Confmons.

The function was one of the largest gatherings of Commonwealth statesmen and lawmakers ever held.

Meanwhile, Buckingham Palace again was besieged by Coronation enthusiasts. Westminster Abbey, where the crowning will take place, attracted crowds which almost overwhelmed police. The magnet at the abbey was the uninterrupted rehearsal going on behind guarded doors. Tuesday afternoon the Queen herself came to rehearse the climactic moment of the ceremony—the actual crowning.

Rehearsals Tuesday night concentrated on music. Conductor Sir Adrian Boult and composers Ralph Vaughan Williams and William Walton attended while massed choirs, an orchestra and trumpeters went through the 22 pieces of music to be heard during the service.

Cabinet May Buy 5 Million Pounds Cheese at 30 cts. Pound

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet Tuesday agreed to buy 5,000,000 pounds of cheese from Ontario producers at 30 cents a pound.

Under the $1,500,000 deal, the federal government will take over the 1952 stocks held by the producers and offer them for sale at cost.

It may take some time to sell the cheese. Meanwhile the producers, hard-pressed for cash, will get funds quickly to tide them over until the situation is clarified on their 1953 production.

Producers have a lot of cheese on hand, but few buyers. Under the Co-Operative Marketing Act, the federal government has offered to renew the 952 guarantee of 24 cents a pound on the cheddar, providing the Ontario government will renew 1952 guarantee of 24 cents bringing the guaranteed price to producers to 30 cents a pound.

But the Ontario government is reported to have declined to grant the six-cent request.

Canada's No. 1 Fighter Wings Britain's First Defence Line

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NORTH LUFFENHAM (CP)—Canada's No. 1 Fighter Wing here is not only part of Britain's first line of defence. Its also the first line of the first line of defence.

This is to say that the three squadrons of Sabre jets are unmatched by any British planes. Officers claim that Prime Minister Churchill down, want to keep Canadian fighter pilots in Britain in case it is attacked.

Real Fighters

A recent exercise demonstrates that the Sabre is probably the best fighter plane now available in Britain. The Canadian Sabres staged a dummy dog-fight, or were supposed to, with British Meteors.

The Meteor pilots complained the Canadians hadn't shown up in strength and that they had seen only three Sabres. However, the Sabres brought back films showing they had "shot down" 21 Meteors of the 24 sent up. All 24 Sabres had taken part in the "attack."

Twenty - four "best-in-Britain" Sabres will take part in the Coronation fly-past June 2. The rest of the armada will comprise 144 Meteors in the all-jet fly-past just east of Buckingham Palace.

Group Capt. E. B. Hale, DFC, of Hamilton, 36-year-old commander of the wing, says the wing's aim is "to learn and to serve." After nearly a year at this base 9 miles north of London, the wing is a compact, highly skilled striking force. It is still learning new tricks and is ready to serve if needed.

Test Operations

One of the wing's exercises with the Meteors is "Operation Yalu," named after the Yalu river between Manchuria and North Korea. The Sabres play the villain of the piece, biting as MiGs.

The single-east Sabres also exercise with British bombers and carry out strafing, air-to-air and air-to-ground firing exercises off the east Anglian coast.

There are about 1,000 personnel on the field, 73 of them pilots. The base, which overlooks the green Anglian countryside for miles around, was built as a permanent station by the RAF in 1941...it was also used by American bombers during the Second World War and as a glider training field.

Operational fighters have never based here before and the Canadian wing is almost lost on the huge field. The field is so big, in fact, that there's a small farm in the centre of it.

MAN ELECTROCUTED

COLBORNE (CP) — Runaway horses ripped loose power lines Monday night which fell across the shoulders of Edgar James Fogley, 19, and electrocuted him. Fogley and James Knight, a friend, were leading the horses away from an electric light pole into which the team had bolted, when the lines were fell. Colborne is 60 miles east of Toronto.

Ottawa Prepared To Guarantee 24c. Cheese Price

FINCH, Ont. (CP)—The federal government is again prepared to guarantee Ontario producers 24 cents a pound for cheese, Transport Minister Chevrier said Monday night.

But he added that the federal guarantee should be accompanied by a further guarantee of six cents a pound by the Ontario government.

"We are prepared to guarantee the 24-cent price this year," Mr. Chevrier told a meeting of district farmers. "This should lead to a 30-cent price for cheese."

The federal government, under the co-operative marketing scheme, last year provided the 24-cent guarantee, to which the Ontario government added six cents, giving the producers a virtual 30-cent support price.

However, this year, the Ontario government was reported to have balked at renewing the six-cent guarantee. As a result producers have been selling cheese without government support.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who accompanied Mr. Chevrier to the meeting, advised the producers to market their own cheese and promised federal support to these efforts.

Peterborough Pilot Has No Idea Number of Times He Broke Barrier

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NORTH LUFFENHAM, Eng. (CP)—Fellow pilots here say Flt. Lt. Dean Kelly of Peterborough, Ont., puts his Sabre jets through manoeuvres which the manufacturer never intended that the plane withstand.

How many times has he cracked the sonic barrier? Kelly answers this way:

"I haven't any idea. Dropping the boom (breaking the sound barrier) is so common now that you might as well count the number of times you raise or lower your wheels."

"I was reading in the paper that some guy in California has dropped the boom 40 times. I was thinking he can't have much to do if he counts the number of times he's gone through."

Flying 12 Years

Kelly, 33-year-old ace aerobatic pilot of the RCAF's No. 1 fighter wing, is a big, black-haired man with wrists like stanchions who almost blushes when somebody speaks to him. He has been flying for 12 years, including Spitfires in Malta early in the Second World War.

Kelly gags aside almost every question about his flying ability. "Any of the other pilots here can do what I do," he says.

That's not the way the other pilots tell it.

"He pulls off stuff I wouldn't even attempt," says FO. Len Pappas of Toronto, who won the Distinguished Flying Cross in Bomber Command during the Second World War.

During the recent visit of the Duke of Edinburgh, Kelly used only a small end of the field to make a tight turn at nearly 700 miles an hour, 50 feet above the deck. Other RCAF pilots claim this was never matched by the late John Derry, British jet ace.

Timing Uncanny

One trick of Kelly's is to do a slow loop over the field, come out of it with wheels down and land immediately. It's a stomach-lurching performance, not for Kelly but for the spectator.

Other pilots say his timing is uncanny. A matter of moving the stick a fraction of a second too late could cost him his life. Wearing a G-suit helps Kelly withstand the enormous pressure on the body in lightning turns. It helps prevent all the blood in the body rushing to the feet and consequent black-

MARMORA

Karl Clemens Wins School Speaking Contest

Marmora — Organized by Inspector G. Nelson, of the Central out by the pilot.

Cracking the sound barrier means beating the speed of sound—760 miles an hour at sea level, less at higher altitudes. A boom accompanies it. Kelly sometimes throttles back and scoots through the sound barrier a number of times in a few seconds, resulting in a series of booms.

There have been so many complaints from surrounding residents here, however, that pilots now rarely dash through the sonic barrier.

How does Kelly's English wife take her husband's aerobatics?

"It leaves me a bit weak at the stomach," she says. "I don't see him operate often. Maybe it's just as well."

DOUBLE FOUR:

Had you gone into any sergeants', corporals' or gunners' mess shortly after the beginning of the war, or as soon after some of the boys got back home, you would have seen a strange sight and heard a strange jargon.

You would have seen one of the swaddies tossing a steel-pointed dart at a ringed target and muttering something about a "double-two, double-eight," and such weird savings.

And had you gone into the "Elephant and Castle," the "Load of Hay", the "Pig and Whistle," or in fact any other pub in England years ago, you would have seen and heard the same goings-on.

For the boys brought back from overseas something besides brides, souvenirs, shrapnel and memories. It was the jolly old game of darts, an inspiration and a sedative to every average Englishman much along the same line as "bowls" in the days of Sir Francis Drake. If you saw the picture "Mrs. Miniver" you know what is meant.

Darts, no doubt, enjoyed some popularity in Canada before the war, but since the boys have returned interest in the game has increased in leaps and bounds and today dart clubs are established in many places in Canada. In fact, in some circles there is talk of a Dominion tourney.

Perhaps there isn't the same environment as overseas, for over there "beer was nothing more pleasant to the eyeballs" and, that a pot o' bild-and-bitters, a Guinness, or sar'-n-sar and a game o' "dabs."

And the young-old "sweats" of Belleville "frill" for the game as much as their counterparts in other centres. In fact, today one of the most enthusiastic leagues in the district holds forth every autumn and winter in the various service messes and war service organization clubrooms.

Sergeant Arthur Hobb, of the Nasty Fees, started or revived the league. It was only a few years ago that Hobb and another old "swaddie" sat in the sergeants' mess of the Nasty Fees and the pair decided to form a darts league. For two or three weeks the two were inundated. Hobb will president, worked on the idea with little success. The ministers harpoon game was not very well known here.

However it gradually "took holt". Jack Lee became the secretary and later donated the J. J. Lee Trophy. As the boys trickled back from overseas enthusiasm in the game started to increase. A few teams were organized and games were played at the Armed Forces and the Nasty Fees sergeants' mess.

Soon the "bomebrews" evinced interest. The league grew in size and the game in enthusiasm. Four-team loops saw action for a year or two. The league blossomed into a six-team affair and the last two or three seasons, eight have seen normal action.

The last four years the league has been well looked after by its various presidents and the secretarial effects of Charlie Featherstone. The records of the league prior to Charlie's debut as the "dehydrat" unfortunately were lost and a complete archive of the league since its inception is not available.

However, thanks to the efforts of a few and the interest of many Belleville Darts Club has a franchise in the fledgling organization. One of its charter teams, the ANAF, has travelled to various parts of the province in darts competition, and if our memory is correct has held the ANAF championship in Ontario on more than one occasion. Such veteran "old sweats" and "harpooners" as Joe Schaub, Bill Ford, Norm Mills, Bill Ray, the late Frank Sedore, Cec Reid, and others have carried high the darts banner for the club and in the course of their careers have shown many an aspiring youngster how to "pink" a triple twenty.

Friday night the league conclaves another highly successful season with the annual dance and presentation of trophies and prizes. The Nasty Fees, 1952-53 league champions will receive the J. J. Lee trophy, the Big "A", top section playoff winners, will receive the CNE Firemen trophy, with the Cenotaph getting the LaHatt trophy as winners of the lower division. Roly Wigstanley and Art Jinks, singles and high-three champions, respectively, will receive individual awards.

Royals Take Lead From Toronto In International

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals took a one-game lead over Toronto Maple Leafs in the International Baseball League race Tuesday night by sweeping a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles.

Rain and wet grounds washed out the balance of the schedule. Rain prevented games between Ottawa and Springfield at Pettes field and Toronto at Syracuse. Wet grounds forced postponement of a doubleheader between Rochester and Buffalo.

Montreal set back the Orioles 7-2 in the seven-inning opener at Ball Stadium and blasted the Birds 14-9 in the nightcap, a 10-inning affair.

The Royals got to Dick Starr and Ken Heintzelman for 13 hits in the first game. A big six-run fifth settled the issue. The Orioles were held to six safeties. Both their runs were unearned, scored by Roy Weatherly and Stan Jok.

Bob Ludwick held Baltimore to six hits in the second game, won when Don Read worked, advanced on a sacrifice by Edmundo Amoros and went home on a single by Dick Williams.

It was Ludwick's second win against one defeat. Don Mossi also limited the Royals to six safeties, fanned seven and walked the same number.

Baseball Marathons Are Atrocities, But Nothing Can be Done About It

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick, looking coldly from his office window, said Tuesday he would do everything within his power to prevent baseball games that last more than 15 innings.

Frick made the statement after he was hanged if he knew how to speed up baseball games and wished that he did.

"Such atrocities as that three-hour, 23-minute game between the Yankees and the Red Sox were people out," he said. "They are bad enough in the daytime, but even worse at night. How is a man who's got to get up and go to work going to sit a game out until 12:30 in the morning? I know I wouldn't.

"But what can we do about it? We can't tell managers how to run their teams. We can suggest, but as long as they stay within the rules there's nothing else we can do. One thing I wish they would do is move in the bullpens in closer. Those slow walks eat up a lot of time when there are eight or 10 pitchers in a game."

How did he like the idea of bringing the relief pitchers in by car, as they do in baseball?

"That's just the latest idea," Frick said. "It doesn't save a bit of time. I've clocked it. I only wish the solution were that simple."

Commissioner Frick thus never appeared to be brightening somewhat, the commissioner turned to a more cheerful topic—Milwaukee.

"What's happening out there is not the answer to those who oppose the transfer of franchises from one city to another," he said. "They said Milwaukee was too small to support a big league club, pointing out that it drew under 200,000 as a minor league city last year. What they overlooked was it's vastly different thing when you offer people a chance to see the best."

"I think they're really in that National League race, too. That's a good ball club, and those fans are amazing."

Here's Gorgeous George, who wrestles Whipper Billy Watson in a return match here Friday night, in one of his 127 elaborate dressing gowns. He is chatting with Burt Lancaster, movie star. Gorgeous got on quite a show here last Friday, and with both boys on edge following the decision, the second show might be quite a brawl.

Chicago Bear Back to Lair

Owner-coach George Halas of the Bears announced that Blanda, who recently signed with Hamilton Tigers, has decided—with outside help—to honor his contract with the Bears.

Blanda was quoted by Halas as saying:

"After consulting with an adviser, I became convinced that the Bears' contract and option is valid."

Sport in Brief

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will send a coach and at least 10 athletes to the newly-organized Canadian National Exhibition track and field meet at Toronto Sept. 5.

Lloyd Swindells, B.C. Track and Field Association president, announced this Tuesday after meetings with George Duthie of Toronto sports director of the CNE. Duthie told track officials that B.C. probably would be advanced $3,500 to take its track stars to the Ontario city.

Financial assistance for the meet will come from Toronto sportsmen's donations. Athletes from every province are expected to compete.

It will be a fine thing for us and for all track and field in Canada," Swindells said.

Duthie, on a coast-to-coast tour to help organize provincial meets leading to the Dominion competition in September, suggested that this year a limited number of events should be scheduled. Track officials balked at this and urged that a full list of men's and women's events should be on the card and that Labor Day, Sept. 7, should be included in the meet.

"Women athletes are definitely in the plan and events for them are scheduled," Duthie said.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) —Appointment of Alex Shibicky to Coach the Westminster Royals in the Western Hockey League was announced Tuesday by owner Ken MacKenzie. Shibicky, a former New York Rangers centre, coached the Royals in 1947-48 and 1948-49 season. Since then he has coached the Flin Flon, Man., junior Bombers.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four Football Union announced Tuesday night acquisition of two top-flight end receivers from the United States.

They are Jim York, 20, of Duke University, North Carolina, known as his team's best receiver, and Bill McElhannon, 20, from Tulane University, who last year placed fourth in the Southeastern Conference in receiving.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Nationals Tuesday swapped outfielder Ken Wood to Brooklyn Dodgers for outfielder Carmen Mauro. It was announced as a straight player trade. Wood is to report to Montreal, Brooklyn's farm team in the International League.

Ward, Stranahan Score Wins In British Amateur

HEYLAKE, England (AP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta, Ga., scored an impressive victory and runner-up Frank Stranahan of Toledo a weird one as the second round of the British amateur golf championship was completed Tuesday.

But another top-flight United States golfer, veteran Jack Munger of Dallas, suffered the same fate as three of Britain's front-line players. He was beaten, 2 and 1, by A. M. Bocher of Scotland in the third round.

Three of Britain's top entries, Gerald Micklem, John Langley and David Blair—were upset by fellow Britons.

Ward, who beat Stranahan last year in the third straight all-American final by the margin that smothered Irishman John Caldwell, 7 and 6.

Stranahan played six-foot, four-inch Ian Patey of Chester, England, Stranahan finally pulled out a 2 and 1 decision in a match where long putts were conceded and short ones missed by both players.

Gordon Whitehead, a Manchester fishmonger, turned on Micklem, the 1933 English champion, and won 2 and 1, in the day's biggest upset.

Scotsman David Blair was beaten, one up, by a fellow Scot, Graeme Patrick.

Langley, already named to the British Walker Cup team which will meet the Americans at Marion, Mass., in September, lost by the same margin to Alec Gray of Scotland.

Vancouver Plans $1,365,000 Stadium For Empire, Commonwealth Games

By DON MATHESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 1954 British Empire and Commonwealth Games here are responsible for probably the world's biggest divot.

Sometime next month after the honorary games chairman, mayor Fred Hume of Vancouver, returns from the Coronation, that divot will be dug.

After appropriate ceremonies, the diggers will slice into a neat little nine-hole golf course to dig the foundation for the games' big site—a $1,365,000 stadium.

With 26,511 permanent concrete seats, the horse-shoe shaped stadium is to be built on the grounds of the Pacific National Exhibition. The PNE gets "sole custody, control and management" of the stadium after the games.

And if there's a thought that Jones, MGI, is none too soon to start construction of such a giant stadium for use at the end of July, 1954—that's one reason work can be carried out the year round in balmy Vancouver.

On top of the 26,511 permanent seats now available, the end of the horse-shoe may be closed in with temporary bleachers if necessary, boosting the capacity to 35,000.

As an indication of progress in coping with the million-and-one details that go into such a world-wide sporting carnival as this—each seat now has a number, the tickets are designed and printing will soon begin.

And—details again—your B. E. G. ticket will be printed on watermarked paper, like a cheque, so that a ticket bought from the Fiji Islands guarantees that someone from South America, say, won't be sitting in your seat when you get here.

Buying a ticket from Fiji is not just a dream, either. Send Fiji a postal money order, get a receipt and pick up the tickets on arrival. The actual ticket won't leave the country for bookkeeping reasons.

Details, too, when the approximately 600 athletes from an expected 25 countries show up for the eight-day event starting July 30, they'll find the new stadium, a new cycling track, a new 4,700-seat swimming pool, separate boxing, wrestling and weight-lifting arenas in existing buildings and an Empire Games village on the University of British Columbia campus.

"Scaramouche"

Stewart Granger a carefree rogue living in Paris in the 18th century, is in love with Eleanor Parker, actress with a band of strolling players, but he meets and is intrigued with Janet Leigh lady-in-waiting to Queen Marie Antoinette, who has announced her bethrothal to Mel Ferrer, a marquis. When Granger's best friend, Richard Anderson, author of a political diatribe which attacks the monarchy, is killed by the sword of Ferrer, he swears to avenge his friend. To escape from Ferrer and the queen's soldiers, Granger joins Eleanor's troupe and poses as the masked "Scaramouche." Meanwhile, he takes fencing lessons and, eventually, meets Ferrer at the opera and conducts a duel all over the boxes and the stage. He allows Ferrer to live and later learns that they are half-brothers. Realizing that Janet is his real love, Eleanor gives Granger up.

Leo (July 24 to August 23)—Duties you not spend any effort neglected. Big none-too-favorable period. Be tactfully careful with expression and acts.

Virgo (August 22 to September 23)—Watching trends and actions will eliminate much trouble for you, practical ones. You would be smart to change method when things get too annoying.

Libra (September 24 to October 23)—Important affairs vital prospects loom now. Be on lookout; mind the little instances and you'll big ones will be easier to handle. P.M. offers better aspects.

Scorpio (October 24 to November 22)—Less than average assistance, especially for money ventures. Stay reasonably within your sphere; improve business or profession where possible, safe.

Sagittarius (November 22 to December 22)—Success hinges on how thoroughly, consistently you carry on. Indications good for literary, professional work, skilled and special detailed tasks.

Capricorn (December 23 to January 21)—Solicitous, when difficult, disturbing, antagonistic incidents. Irritability may crop up. They can be eased by geniality, humor or right kind.

Many Contests Being Arranged For Festival

TRENTON (Special) — Up until last night the mayor and council were up to their necks in the Trenton Centennial celebration. Last night they decided to try to go in over their heads.

Councillman Eben James, the chairman of finance, announced that he would sponsor a $25 cash prize in a log rolling competition between the mayor and council. His colleagues agreed to support the feature.

Today Mr. James sent his cheque to G. G. "Buster" Alyea, the centennial chairman.

Mr. James stipulates that the cash must go to the first prize and must go to the last entry standing on the log. It has been suggested there be other prizes awarded for all those who fall in the water.

The competition among the town fathers will be staged one day during the festival. The one pulling which every one must abide by insists that footwear must have no spikes on the soles.

Fishermen Vet Permission

The Centennial committee have not forgotten the fishermen.

One of the most enthusiastic contests may be the fishing competition open to all from July 1 to July 4 at 12.00 noon. There are substantial prizes awaiting the sportsman who hauls in the largest pike, bass or pickerel from the Trent River or Bay of Quinte during that period.

Dick Bird, one of the well known sport enthusiast, heads the angling contest. Official rivalries are at Lake's Bunker Shop on Front Street, where the big catches will be weighed in. Entry forms will be available at this shop in a few days.

The prize list included Bata made Trent Valley fishing reels for the winners.

Either the deer are in abundance in the north or else they have decided to migrate into populated areas as a self-preservation measure.

The other day a four-legged prize crashed through the back and front windows of the hydro office in Brighton, running up the main street and out of sight.

The day before yesterday, Art Holsey, Sr., saw a large doe on the continuation to the Hugh O'Rourke Road, off the Carrying Place road. The driver of the bus, on which he was riding, drew his attention to it. He watched it dash north toward the swamp and disappear.

Mr. Holsey was hunted in these parts when he was younger, advises hunters who keep hounds in the area that the dogs chained up while deer are roaming around the district. He explained that hounds giving chase would be noted to get lost. He notes that deer as close to Trenton as the one he saw Monday is a very unusual happening.

Called Moscow to Health

Two days before ratepayers go to the polls to decide upon the expenditure of $500,000 on a modern sewage disposal system Dr. A. E. Berry, the provincial sanitary engineer, called Trenton's present system a menace to health, which had to be eliminated. He said that the province was insisting that the new system be adopted.

A handful of ratepayers heard John Arps, B.Sc., representative of Gore and Storrie, consulting engineer, why the the proposed sewage treatment works had been recommended for Trenton.

The half a million dollars will be spent to build the treatment plant and the first stage of the system. Another $133,000 will have to be spent to bring it to completion, capable of accommodating 13,000 people. The eliminaties from the treatment plant can be sold as fertilizer.

RAWDON

St. Paul's Holds Second Service of Centennial

Rawdon — St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was filled to capacity Sunday evening for the commemoration of the work of the Salvation Army in Stirling, and visitors from all the surrounding churches were in attendance.

The Salvation Army band from Belleville, assisted by Tweed members, filled the choir loft. Bandmaster Green was conductor and the group rendered "Coronation March", "Glorious Freedom", "Hallelujah" and other selections throughout the service and also accompanied the old gospel hymns, such "Oh, Boundless Salvation."

2nd. Lieut. W. Brown, officer stationed at Tweed, contributed a vocal selection, "Alone."

Previous to the church service a half hour open-air service was held at Stirling War Memorial Park. Old time gospel hymns were sung by the Belleville Corps delighted with several musical selections. Rev. A. E. Baker, U.E., pastor of St. Paul's United Church, welcomed the group to Stirling.

Missionary Work

Lieut.-Col. W. Effer spoke briefly on the missionary work of the army in several countries. Lieut.-Col. W. Putt pronounced the benediction after which all marched to St. Paul's Church for the evening service.

Rev. A. E. Baker opened the second service of St. Paul's centennial on Sunday evening, May 24th, at 7.30 p.m.

The historic Ridge Road public school pupils, S.S. No. 1, Rawdon, with their teacher, Mrs. Eva McGee, were seated in a group at the front of the church. In the recent Bible competition this school won the 1953 pennant with 90 points and Riverside school was a close second with 89 points.

The pupils repeated in unison "Books of the Bible", "The Ten Commandments", and other Bible passages and they were also asked for one individual selection.

Pupils

The pupils of the school are: teacher, Mrs. Eva McGee; Ruth McCurry, Allan Fargey, Carol Fargey, Evelyn Cooke, Ronald Munroe, Pauline McCurdy, Jean McGee, Reggie McCurdy, Beverly McInroy, Grant Reid, Basil Browning, Bob Burrell, Bernice McCurdy, Kenneth Fargey, Bonnie Browning, Donna Hammond, Adrian Denomme, Sherron Hammon, Bob McGee and Bob Taylor.

A large chart containing their names, each with a silver star, was displayed in the vestibule of the church.

Lieut.-Col. Effer, Divisional Commander, presided and introduced Lieut.-Col. W. Putt, who served as editor of "The War Cry" for many years until his retirement.

"God Through the Years"

Lt.-Col. Putt spoke from the theme "God Through the Years" and said: "Today is Whitsunday. There is nothing that the church needs more than a rekindling of the gift which God gave to it at Pentecost. May 24th, 1953 is also marking 100 years of Christian service in Stirling and we also celebrate 250 years of John Wesley and Methodist history.

"On May 24th, 1853, the Salvation Army began work in London, Ontario, with General William Booth as the great leader of Army work and his favorite Army hymn "Who's on the Lord's Side" was sung during the service at St. Paul's.

In 1883 an outpost was established in Stirling and they used the old Methodist church as a citadel. This group served Stirling for nine years and many of their followers became members of St. Paul's after the Army moved to Tweed.

Col. Putt paid tribute to the pioneers of old and what their Christian service had meant to Christianity. He said: "the old issues of 'War Cry' carry many stirring messages of what was accomplished in years of long ago by the staff officers who worked with few assistants."

The speaker gave several graphic pictures of individuals, who in the time of deep trouble, gave their lives to the Lord. He also referred to the work of his mother and of his daughter, who is proud to wear her grandmother's Army bonnet.

The Salvation Army officers firmly believe that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever and that the simply story of redemption is the one test that has been most effective "Through the Years."

Lt.-Col. W. Effer, who recently arrived in Canada from Australia, conducted an "appeal for surrender to Christ," using a hymn of consecration.

Mr. George Carlisle, clerk of session, visited Dundas.

Old-Fashioned Offering Plates

The offering was gathered in long-handled collection boxes and the closing number was a trombone solo by Bandsman Woods entitled "Priceless Gift."

Following the church service a fellowship hour was held in the Sunday School rooms with about 150 people in attendance, when several members of St. Paul's W.A. served tea and cookies. Lt. Brown sang with Mrs. A. E. Baker as accompanist; the band delighted with music and Col. Effer spoke briefly.

The town of Stirling is now served by officers resident in Tweed.

Thus closed the second service of St. Paul's centennial year and those privileged to attend the two services had some special thoughts to carry home with them.

Russia Appoints Civilian Boss In East Germany

Withdrawal of Troops May Be Next Move Eventually

By TOM REEDY

BERLIN (AP)—Russia took its control over East Germany out of the hands of the military today. It could mean withdrawal of troops, eventually.

The announcement said the Soviet control commission is abolished, Gen. Vassily Chuikov will handle only troops henceforth, and Vladimir Semyonov returns to Berlin as "supreme commissar" for the Soviet Union.

Semyenov thus becomes civilian boss of affairs for 19,000,000 East Germans. He was there before as political adviser to Chuikov.

Gen. Chuikov, hero of Stalingrad and lifter of the Berlin blockade, insisted he will not remain here long merely to direct the 300,000 occupation troops. It might be, Allied sources said, that his last job in Germany will be to "take Ivan home."

Western circles heard last February that the Russians had fixed May 1 as a target date to withdraw troops.

The selection of Semyenov to be top man in East Germany is in some respects an imitation of the Western system of sending "ambassadors" to West Germany.

As soon as the Bonn-Paris defence treaties are ratified by all six participating nations, the British, American and French high commissioners will be "ambassadors" to what amounts to a sovereign state.

The Russian action was regarded in Allied and German quarters here as an enriching that of the West. It could mean that Moscow is convinced the European treaties will be ratified by all, including reluctant France, and therefore it must in effect recognize the Bonn Russian zone of Germany as an autonomous state, too. In so doing, it would be virtually necessary to withdraw the 300,000-man Red army which has lived off the fat of East Germany since 1945.

8,500 Chinese Reds Open New Drive on Allies

By FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL (AP)—Violent fighting erupted along the Korean battle line today as more than 8,500 Chinese attacked Allied positions on the east-central and western fronts.

The Reds threw elements of three regiments, about 6,500 men, into an assault along a 20-mile sector in central Korea before dawn and overran five outposts from South Koreans.

A few hours later three Communist batallions—more than 2,000 men—struck five strategic outposts on the west front. Savage close-in, quarter fighting was reported under way at all the outposts.

On the central front, South Koreans drove the Reds from five outposts in a full day of fighting, some of it hand-to-hand. Fighting still raged around four other outposts.

The Chinese swarmed across no-mans-land in the wake of a roaring artillery barrage which sent an estimated 12,000 shells screaming into Allied territory.

"It could have been a limited offensive or maybe to take outposts for an eighth army briefing officer said. Yet it could have been a large-scale harassing action."

Allied fighter-bombers streaked across the battle front to bomb and strafe attacking Red troops and Communist artillery and mortar positions.

Fewer Supply Convoys

Other fighter-bombers pounded Red supply centres northwest of Pyongyang and north of Sinchon in western Korea, the air force said. Pilots reported 13 buildings destroyed.

Sabre jets prowled North Korean skies without finding a Communist MiG willing to fight.

Fourteen B-29 Superforts dumped 160 tons of bombs on three railroad areas near Wonsan on Korea's east coast Wednesday night.

The attack followed a new bombardment of the battleship pocket pot by the battleship New Jersey and other naval warships and carrier planes.

The navy said the New Jersey destroyed two coastal defence guns and heavily damaged another. Hits were scored on five shore batteries.

SEEK WOUNDED MOOSE

Sudbury (CP) — A moose, gun shy after being shot by a poacher, is being tracked by Ontario Provincial Police at Chelmsford, is being hunted in the bush today. The wounded animal was staggering when it went out into the bush. Darkness prevented a game overseer from tracking it.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Mainly cool and showery all over Wednesday as front northerly winds, cool and foggy on the coast, remained stationary over the province. Today will continue showery and cool but with diminishing winds over most regions. Although some clearances will persist across the north. With a return to southerly winds on Friday, temperatures will rise slightly, and some cloud is expected to edge into western regions during the day.

Has Evidence British Ships Transported Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department confirmed today it has evidence that two ships owned or operated by British Commonwealth firms transported Chinese Communist troops from North China coast during the Korean war.

It named them as the Perico, registered by Wallem and Co. Ltd., and the Miramar, then owned by Whetham Ltd., both of Hong Kong.

The report was made public at a press conference by Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S. D.), acting chairman of the Senate investigations sub-committee which had requested it.

Mundt said the report leaves the "next step up to the British now". He said he answers the contention that prior testimony concerning the ship incidents was too vague.

To his brothers he is known as Gla-Wiay-Algiax, chief of the Kwakiutls. Others know him as a businessman, a fisherman and trapper named Sam Scow.

Chief Scow—to use a compromise term—has been speaking for the province's natives in many matters for the last nine years at presidents of the B. C. Native Brotherhood.

He left Vancouver by air early Wednesday, stopped briefly in Montreal Wednesday night and

PREMIER CRISIS IN EIGHTH DAY; REYNAUD IS OUT

Bidault and Marie Will be Approached

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP)—The French political crisis dragged into its seventh weary day today and President Vincent Auriol turned once more to the moderate centre parties in his search for a new premier.

The Assembly turned down right-winger Paul Reynaud early today and Auriol was expected later to ask either Georges Bidault or Andre Marie — both middle-of-the-roaders—to try the cabinet-forming task. Bidault was foreign minister in the government which fell a week ago and Marie was education minister. Both have served as premier in the parade of cabinets—18 since the 1945 liberation—which have governed France.

Auriol has already asked Parliament to try a left-winger—Socialist Guy Mollet—and one of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's followers—Andre Diethelm.

Put in Big "If"

Reynaud, 74, who was premier just before the surrender to Germany in 1940, put a big "if" on his acceptance of the job. He demanded that the Assembly modify the constitution to guarantee a premier 18 months in office. The average was four months.

Reynaud said he would not be most disposed "to accord you these powers for 18 months, nor for 12 months, nor for six months."

Reynaud proposed that the fall of governments be made difficult in office be followed by the automatic dissolution of the Assembly and new elections. Reynaud said this would give France political stability.

Reynaud received 276 of the 314 votes he needed for confirmation. Most de Gaulle followers abstained and 225 deputies voted against him.

Other factors in his defeat were the opposition of the powerful Communist peas anry and his gloomy picture of French conditions. He called the country the "sick man of Europe."

Reynaud told the Assembly it must decide between "a powerful army and an independent German army. It could be preserved the integrated European force.

Criticizes Parties

OSHAWA (CP) — Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada, today criticized "wild drinking parties" during the Christmas season.

He told the Oshawa and District Quinte conference that Christmas and Easter are too widely regarded as holidays instead of holy days.

The religious significance of Christmas was described as "buried under a few Church homes in both city and rural areas.

"This indicates the trend to-wards paganism," he said in a message.

Mutchmor said the result is that the central figure of Christ becomes obscured."

The conference asked all elders to support their ministers in a voluntary abstinence pledge plan.

South Korean Govt. Charges Appeasement, Sellout in Korea; Will Send Vote to Harrison

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP) — Bristling with charges of Allied appeasement and sellout, South Korea's anti-Red government today spelled out its opposition to the latest United Nations proposal in a note to the United Nations commander.

Maj.-Gen. Chol Duk Shin, South Korean truce delegate, left Seoul late today to deliver the message to Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison, senior Allied negotiator, at Munsan.

Contents of the note were not made public. But a Republic of Korea spokesman described it as "very important." He said it gave detailed expression of the RoK government's recommendations, but would not be unconditional.

Much Opposition

The note emphasized an increasingly unanimous opinion—that of opposition from leaders of this war-battered country.

South Korea's foreign minister, Pyun Yung Tai, threatened to resign if his government approved the still-secret Allied proposal for breaking the prisoner-of-war deadlock submitted to the Reds Monday.

Referring to two Red satellites—Poland and Czechoslovakia—nominated for a five-nation commission to handle prisoners who refuse to go home, he said:

"Our country will fight troops from such countries."

The National Assembly vice-chairman, Yoon Chi Yong, said Harrison has been told the proposal infringed on RoK sovereignty because it would secure forced entry. RoK government until just before the proposal was made to the assembly and new elections. Reynaud said this would give France political stability.

Reynaud received 276 of the 314 votes he needed for confirmation. Most de Gaulle followers abstained and 225 deputies voted against him.

Other factors in his defeat were the opposition of the powerful Communist peas anry and his gloomy picture of French conditions. He called the country the "sick man of Europe."

Reynaud told the Assembly it must decide between "a powerful army and an independent German army. It could be preserved the integrated European force.

Unable to Crack Canadian Smuggling, Lack Manpower

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—The United States bureau of customs says it hasn't the manpower to halt smuggling of liquor from northern New York border to crack down on Canadian bootleggers.

The Syracuse Post-Standard, in a special story Wednesday from Washington, reports the north parts for the bureau of customs as stating that if additional manpower were available, the Mexican border would take priority over the Canadian. The spokesman was not identified.

"But cuts in congressional appropriations for the bureau make it impossible to add new agents to combat the situation," the spokesman was quoted as saying.

The spokesman added in connection with a series of stories the newspaper is running about an increase in smuggling on the northern New York-Canadian border.

Gold smuggling, the newspaper says, amounts to about $3,500,000 a year, most of it coming from mines in Ontario and shipped through the U. S. foreign ports where higher prices are paid.

Liquor smuggling is mainly the problem of Canada, and not our concern," the Washington customs official was quoted.

The customs bureau is more worried about the illegal export of gold from the U. S., than about the import of the contraband."

The Post-Standard said that abolition of the U. S. border patrol in 1947, and lack of personnel, have resulted in a sharp increase in illicit trade across the U. S.-Canadian boundary.

The newspaper has not disclosed its sources by name, but states that it will include what has been obtained from official sources in the United States and Canada.

The articles have quoted the narcotics division chief of the RCMP as saying Canada's addicts crosses the northeastern frontier, the majority of it in northern New York. No narcotics traffic south from Canada has been uncovered, recently, the paper says.

Cigaret smuggling is blamed, to a large extent, on northern New York residents, the Post-Standard sources said, "are either actively engaged in it, or guide it."

Border illicit traffic listed by the paper includes more than $125,000 worth of cigarettes smuggled across crossing the northeastern border, stolen automobiles and new and used television sets, traffic in precious lithes and furs, and counterfeit currency of both nations.

Fails in Attempt

Kaimanalu, Nepal (AP) — Reliable reports reaching here today said the British Everest expedition failed in two attempts to reach the top of Mount Everest, the world's highest peak. No man ever has scaled it and returned to tell about it.

The expedition now is returning from the Himalayan giant, with plans to make another try after the monsoon season.

OFFICIALS WONDER IF TAFT SPEECH MEANS CHANGES

Trying to Measure Ultimate Impact

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried Allied diplomats wondered today whether Senator Republican administration may seriously consider radical changes in Far Eastern policies if Korean truce talks collapse.

Their concern arose from efforts to measure the ultimate impact on future decisions by President Eisenhower of ideas which Senate majority leader Robert Taft put forth in a speech which he let slip at Cincinnati Tuesday night.

At Vancouver, External Affairs Minister Pearson of Canada said if Taft's advice "became U. S. policy it would be disastrous" and a terrible blow to the United Nations.

Taft said if armistice negotiations fail the U. S. should tell British and other Allies that we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

He also asserted the U. S. "might as well withdraw" from all dealing with the United Nations in the East and reserve to ourselves a completely free hand."

These and related proposals he made apparently without bothering to suggest a change of direction or a severing of ties between the U. S. and the United Nations. But the Eisenhower administration has so far denied any observed and protected.

In Show Down Stage

The proposals come from a powerful figure in the governing party and at a time when truce negotiations are in what may prove to be the showdown stage and the need for new decisions may be almost at hand.

Taft's speech found no endorsement from his colleagues on the Senate foreign relations committee of whom he is a member. Chairman Alexander Smith (Rep., Ala.) said it "may have unpredictable effects for a truce in Korea. . . And it may even have the effect of driving into the big three talks in Bermuda."

President Eisenhower, French Premier Joseph Laniel and British premier are scheduled to meet in Bermuda next month.

Sparkman called the Taft speech an "elemental contradiction" of Eisenhower's policy.

National Holiday

TORONTO (CP) — Coronation Day in Canada has been proclaimed a national holiday.

That means federal government offices will be closed. So will most provincial government buildings and schools.

It is up to merchants and operators of other commercial firms to decide whether they will keep their places of business open on the holiday. It is expected most will close.

Whether the day is a paid holiday for workers is a matter of contract between employer and employee.

Eisenhower Says U.N. Must Be Given Full Support

Wide Divergence of Opinion Between President and Taft

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower told a press conference today the forthcoming Big Three meeting in Bermuda will not necessarily lead to a Big Four session with Russia.

Developments would have to justify a conference with Soviet leaders, he said.

Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier plan to meet in Bermuda early month to discuss world conditions. The talks are said to be topic it will be followed by a top-level meeting with Soviet representatives on East-West tensions.

May Cause Postponement

Eisenhower said the conference may have to be delayed as a result of the difficulties France is having in finding a government to replace the one headed by Rene Mayer which was ousted last Wednesday. The conference was expected to be held about June 17.

Asked on another question, Eisenhower said he disagrees with the statement of Senator Robert Taft that the United States "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Eisenhower's declaration that he disagrees with Taft was the widest divergence of opinion that has developed between the President and the Senate Republican leader since the new administration took office.

Taft's Statement

Taft made the statement in a speech in Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Taft also said at that time:

"I think we might do our best now to negotiate this truce (in Korea) and if we fail, then let England and our other allies know that we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

Eisenhower, after replying with a single negative to the question, said he wanted to explain his position a bit.

He went on to say he has had a great deal of experience in dealing with coalitions and that it is always a difficult task.

He said it might be easier in certain cases for any one nation to act by itself.

Co-Operation Difficult

But, Eisenhower added, you can't give co-operative action in these great crises except in unified cases.

Eisenhower also told the press conference:

He does not believe Red China should be admitted to the United Nations but, it would be a drastic step to withdraw U. S. financial support from the UN if the Chinese Communist Reds were admitted.

Withdrawal of U. S. money had been suggested by a member of a Senate appropriations sub-committee.

S. International trade is a great influence in the hands of diplomats, and security is a matter of contrast between employer and employee.

That's the day Annapolis Kentville, where it gives over a domain of lush fruit-growing country of 100,000 population, to the town of Windsor, some roughly 100 miles westward to Digby along the Bay of Fundy.

This coming of age of the Annapolis valley apple blossom festival is significant in that it comes at a crossroads in the life of the once-lucrative apple industry.

There was a time, before the war, when the apple Eden of Canada turned out 3,000,000 barrels of apples a year and easily sold the whole crop.

The United Kingdom market was lost during the war and immediately overnight the industry was faced with the problem of finding new outlets. The valley, caught unawares, has been quite mobility successful in its quest and its forest dream continues to be that the Annapolis valley will eventually be re-opened.

Through these difficulties, the blossom festival has continued to grow in popularity.

Festivities started Wednesday with the opening of the four-day

Wide Divergence of Opinion Between President and Taft

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower told a press conference today the forthcoming Big Three meeting in Bermuda will not necessarily lead to a Big Four session with Russia.

Developments would have to justify a conference with Soviet leaders, he said.

Eisenhower, Prime Minister Churchill and the French premier plan to meet in Bermuda early month to discuss world conditions. The talks are said to be topic it will be followed by a top-level meeting with Soviet representatives on East-West tensions.

May Cause Postponement

Eisenhower said the conference may have to be delayed as a result of the difficulties France is having in finding a government to replace the one headed by Rene Mayer which was ousted last Wednesday. The conference was expected to be held about June 17.

Asked on another question, Eisenhower said he disagrees with the statement of Senator Robert Taft that the United States "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Eisenhower's declaration that he disagrees with Taft was the widest divergence of opinion that has developed between the President and the Senate Republican leader since the new administration took office.

Taft's Statement

Taft made the statement in a speech in Cincinnati Tuesday night.

Taft also said at that time:

"I think we might do our best now to negotiate this truce (in Korea) and if we fail, then let England and our other allies know that we are withdrawing from all further peace negotiations in Korea."

Eisenhower, after replying with a single negative to the question, said he wanted to explain his position a bit.

He went on to say he has had a great deal of experience in dealing with coalitions and that it is always a difficult task.

He said it might be easier in certain cases for any one nation to act by itself.

Co-Operation Difficult

But, Eisenhower added, you can't give co-operative action in these great crises except in unified cases.

Eisenhower also told the press conference:

He does not believe Red China should be admitted to the United Nations but, it would be a drastic step to withdraw U. S. financial support from the UN if the Chinese Communist Reds were admitted.

Withdrawal of U. S. money had been suggested by a member of a Senate appropriations sub-committee.

Lineman Contacts 2,200 Volt Line, Instantly Killed

DESERONTO — Larry Roebuck, 22, public utility overhead section worker, was instantly killed Wednesday when he came into contact with a live 2,200 volt power line while making a test.

Roebuck was working on a transformer and was disconnecting the test clip at the end a pole 30 feet from the ground. A fellow lineman, Carol Grant, standing on the ground below him told Roebuck he would until he got a fresh stick.

Grant turned around, heard a cry, looked up and saw Roebuck hanging from his safety strap. He was thrown from the pole and over the cross-arm. Deseronto Volunteer Firemen brought Roebuck down a ladder.

Artificial respiration treatment from the Napanee Public Utility Commission worked on Roebuck for nearly two hours. The Napanee Red Cross resuscitator was also used.

Roebuck leaves his wife and a six-weeks-old child, Larry Jr. McVicker, Hastings County coroner, said an inquest will be held June 5.

PICKEREL FISHING NOT TOO GOOD

Generally speaking anglers in this district were not very successful during the opening of the pickerel just were not biting. It is believed that is owing to cool weather and high water levels. At least one fisherman cannot report dull fishing as it returned from a visit to Hay Bay caught a small pickerel which was seized by a large manikinooge before a landing net could be placed under the pickerel. Result, a very startled angler and the loss of an excellent rod and reel.

DOGS BOTHERING NANNY GOAT, CALVES

The nanny goat and two young calves kept by Trinidad Leasebolds to keep the grass mowed on their property on South Front St., are not being left in peace to do their work.

Dogs in the neighborhood take exception to the strangers in their midst and according to reports frequently chase the goat and calves.

The whole matter has even come to police attention with a complaint that the fence about the oil company property is being deliberately cut. It is through the man-made hole in the fence that the dogs apparently make their entrance to chase the goat.

TEN MOTORISTS FACE SPEEDING CHARGES

Provincial Police traffic officers are cracking down on speeding offenders, it was revealed in county magistrate's court today when the names of ten motorists appeared on court dockets charged with exceeding the speed limit on the highways.

Fines and costs ranging from $8.50 to $23 were assessed, the majority of the cases being settled out of court.

Another traffic matter that is receiving close attention by traffic officers is passing when the highway is not sufficiently clear. Police point out that cutting in is an unnecessary dangerous practice and one which often leads to serious accidents.

The bearers were: Jack Jones, James Sandercock, Walter Norris, Ray Oldrey, Tom Cooper and Norman Chambers.

Part of Panter's Park May Be Used for Parking

The old axiom about robbing Peter to pay Paul will have some practical truth for the local city council if a suggestion from that body is approved by the city fathers tonight.

The idea is to provide parking for part of Panter's Park on Coleman street through utilizing the north end of the park as a parking area, and to give city-owned property at the south over to the parks board to compensate for this area lost.

Whether or not the idea will be acceptable to the parks board remains to be seen but traffic committee members are finding it to be a good one.

Alderman William Argue brought the matter up at Monday afternoon's meeting of the traffic committee with the observation that many picnickers and bathers and workers used Panter's Park for eating their lunches. He said if utilizing the park for parking autos would interfere with use by picnickers then he was opposed to it.

Alderman Thomas replied the plan under proposal would not reduce the park area. He said the north end of the park would be used for cars, while city-owned property nearby would be developed as a park to compensate for any loss in area.

Hastings-Prince Edward County Presbytery Holds 21st Convention

The 21st annual convention of Hastings and Prince Edward Presbytery of the Women's Association of the United Church of Canada met in St. John's Church, Tweed, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, and visitors at 9.15 a.m., community singing at 9.30 conducted by Mrs. Hodgins, with Mrs. Pace at the piano.

The devotional period was under the leadership of Holloway W.A., the theme being, "Following Jesus Today." The scripture was taken from St. Luke 8:1-3. Owing to the absence of Miss H. Murphy, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Hodgins. The address of welcome by Mrs. E. Hodgins, president of Tweed W.A. and the reply by Mrs. O. L. May, of King Street Church, Trenton.

Greetings Brought

Mrs. L. Elliott brought greetings from the Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S., stressing the necessity of prayer, caring, sharing and daring for the kingdom of God.

The president, Mrs. Morley Davidson, gave a stirring report of the highlights of the Dominion Woman's Council meeting in Toronto. Her special interest was the growth of every department of the work, commending the leaders as well as for the members. The great work done across the Dominion by the Woman's Associations was reported and many answered at the extension service work accomplished by the W.A. women. Prayer for guidance with good will toward all creatures.

Year's Story

Mrs. Mehlejohn gave the secretary's report which was followed by the roll call and a solo "Consecration" by Mrs. Pace with Mrs. A. Fyear at the piano.

The story of Ruth and Naomi by Mrs. Earn Dobbs, of Belleville, after which the appointment of a nominating committee was conducted by Mrs. M. Davidson, Picton, with Mrs. Bates, Mrs. B. Jose and Mrs. C. Stevens, being named.

Reports of the following committees were given, and the presentation of books which are recommended for study groups: Mrs. H. Elliott gave the personnel committee report; the visiting committee's, which is an interesting and important one, Mrs. Don Spencer gave the report of the devotional committee, outlining the emphasis on the devotional period at every W.A. meeting.

Mrs. Marsh was called upon to introduce the guest speaker, Mrs. C. Sleep, to whom a corsage of lilies-of-the-valley was presented by Mrs. Marsh. Mrs. Sleep's most graciously expressed her appreciation to Mrs. Davidson, who pinned the corsage on her.

Psalm 121:1

The text chosen by the speaker was "I will lift up mine eyes," she said, let us go into the House of the Lord." (Psalm 122:1). "Why do people go to church?" was the first question, and "why do people worship?" cultivating the art of worship to make it a helpful force in our lives, bringing out the truth that because people are not interested in worship, is no fault of the church. The trouble lies in the individuals who come to church on Sunday after too much living on Saturday night, which makes them tired, flighty and indifferent, and the faggots they bring church are sogg, heavy and cannot burn with zeal for the Lord."

The speaker was humorous as well as solemn and repeated a prayer, which a very reverend gentleman had said: "God bless all those who are in their places; give grace to those on the way; and have mercy on those who are still getting ready and may never arrive."

Lack of Reverence

"How often when we go to church do we see people sitting in a hushed and reverent attitude because something happened in church to touch their hearts and the silence? felt the Power of God. In peace and love. Something happens in every worship service when we prepare for it and practice what is there. A mother said she was glad she had two sons; one a doctor and the other minister, so they could practise and the other could preach."

The speaker referred to the fellowship of the church as that family inside the church and an invitation to all to come in and worship.

Mrs. Sleep was thanked by the president for her fine address. A message of greeting was read from Mrs. A. A. Crowle, president of the Bay of Quinte conference.

Dinner was enjoyed by one of the best meetings of the Presbytery, and the ladies of Tweed's St. John's W.A. excelled in the meal served.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with quiet music and the singing of the Hill W.A. took charge of the devotional. Mrs. A. Campbell sang a solo and Mrs. H. Gunter read the Scripture.

Mrs. Spracket spoke briefly on the "Church" and Mrs. R. Reid closed with prayer.

A skit was presented by the Massassaga W.A. called "Visiting." "When and how to receive," and "Whom not to receive," a lesson in the proper approach when visiting and the moral of the skit.

The offering was received and dedicated by Mrs. Hodgins. Mrs. Pyear conducted the Junior session when many questions were answered and help rendered. The Picton W.A. was represented by two members and both favored with a musical selection.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker of the afternoon was introduced by Mrs. Mc. M. Wood, and Mrs. Vanskicle took her place on the platform and began immediately to speak with ease and freedom. She presented the work of the Dominion Council and the connection of the Presbytery and Conference branches of the Woman's Association, paying tribute to the constant untiring efforts of the retiring members of the Dominion council. Mrs. Vanskicle spoke also of the new work that has been started through the department of Christian Friendship.

Mrs. Davidson tendered appreciative thanks to the speaker.

Officers Elected

The report of the nominating committee was presented by Mrs. H. Elliott, and Mrs. Wood conducted the election of officers, and Mrs. Ketcheson the installation, which has been her regular custom for past 28 years. The list of officers is as follows: past president, Mrs. Earn Dobbs; president, Mrs. Morley Davidson; 1st vice president, Mrs. A. Pyear; 2nd, vice president, Mrs. W. Kiser; 3rd vice president, Mrs. W. Elliott; 4th vice president, Mrs. E. Mather; recording secretary, Mrs. G. Mehlejohn; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. W. Adams; treasurer, Mrs. K. Jones; press reporter, Mrs. A. N. Hillman; literature secretary, Mrs. H. Crawford; christian friendship, Mrs. S. Young; parsonage, Mrs. M. Elliott; organization, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs; visiting, Mrs. A. N. Hillman; devotional, Mrs. D. Spencer; girls' work, Mrs. W. Sherry.

The report of the courtesy committee was then given, and followed by an invitation from Coleman Street United Church, Trenton, to meet there next year for the convention.

Red Shield Appeal Quota Almost Reached

The Salvation Army Red Shield Appeal has almost reached its quota of $7000.00. The drive which commenced on Monday May 4th., will go 'over the top' this year, as there are still a number of canvassers who have not yet reported their results, but are making the necessary call-backs to complete their totals.

Splendid co-operation and careful planning has brought this about, as well as the generosity of the general public who have been willing to make their contribution to the work of the Salvation Army.

"We of the Salvation Army owe a great debt of gratitude to the many busy men and women who not only give of their money, but of their time and energy, to assist Senior Captain Fred Brightwell today.

The general public, who have not yet donated are invited to make their donation to The Salvation Army, 256 Pinnacle St., or phone and an officer will call for the contribution.

Fall Wheat, Rye, Meadows In Excellent Shape

Fall wheat, rye and meadows are in excellent condition it is reported by Ralph Graham, district agriculture. Rye is already heading in many fields, he states.

Orchard men report a heavy set of blossom and fruit apple trees and spraying is being carried out with difficulty due to frequent rains. The promise for the fruit crop is satisfactory, it is stated.

In Prince Edward County fine little headway was made with seeding during the past week and due to the wet weather few farmers made much progress in filling land for tomato plants.

Pastures are reported very discouraged with cheese milk price prospects for this year.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices continued to drift lower today in light stock market trading. A weakening influence was the fact that today is one of the largest ex-dividend days of the year.

Industrials faded again with few issues moving. Senior and junior golds dipped slightly. Base metals were weak with some interest in lower-priced stocks. Western oils recorded a wide majority of small losses in a ratio of 5-1.

Utilities withstood the easier trend in industrials but foods and liquors had a small group of losers.

In uranium, Gaitwin, New Delhi and Radiore dropped pennies. New Brunswick base metals were firm in slow trading with Brunswick and Bathurst leading.

Canadian Williston bucked the trend in western oils to chalk up a 13-cent gain.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 25-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 99 5-16 cents. Pound sterling $2.79 1-2, against $2.79 1-4.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO. (CP) — Churning cream and butter-print prices were unchanged today in light trading.

Sales were quiet with prices about steady at the egg market. Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases were: A large 30 1-2; A medium 29 1-2; A small 28; grade B 27 1-2; grade C 27. Wholesale to retail: A large 60 1-2; A medium 59 1-2; A small 52; grade C 47.

Butter solids: first grade tenderable 58 nominal; non-tenderable 57½ western 58 nominal.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Trading was active and prices were firm at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: cattle 230; hogs 280; calves none; sheep and lambs none; hogs, over, 50 cattle.

Choice steers 29.50-31 one load at 31.75; good 29.50-29; medium downward to 28; good heifers 28.50-28; choice fed cattles 29.25-31.75.

Grade A hogs were steady at 34; dressed were 24.

The market will be closed next Tuesday.

Pearson Expresses Concern Over Taft Statement

VANCOUVER (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson expressed concern Wednesday over the suggestion by Senator Robert Taft that the United States abandon the United Nations in Korean peace talks and conduct them on its own.

"If this became U.S. policy it would be deplorable and a terrible blow to the UN," said Mr. Pearson.

Senator Taft, Senate Republican leader, said in a Cincinnati speech Tuesday: "We might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Mr. Pearson, UN general assembly president, in an address to 400 members of the Canadian Club here warned that the danger of world war would rapidly increase if there were any major splits in the western alliance.

Great efforts were being made to divide the democracies and to convince them that there was no threat to their security.

He did not think it would be wise to agree for a general Pacific security pact at this time.

The United States was not ready for it, he said, and other countries in the Pacific were not ready either. Some were not convinced communism was the only danger in the Pacific.

"But," he emphasized, "security —like peace—is indivisible."

Three Ordained Into Ministry

OSHAWA (CP)—Two young men from Kingston presbytery and one from Cobourg presbytery were ordained into the ministry of the United Church of Canada here Wednesday night.

They were David Donald Davidson and Charles Edgar Clarke of Kingston, and Leslie Joseph Hardy of Cobourg. The ordination ceremony, attended by some 400 persons was filled almost every pew in Simcoe Street United Church, was held in connection with the Bay of Quinte conference of the church.

West Side Stopped

OSHAWA (CP) — The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada urged Wednesday that steps be taken to stop the sale of salacious literature on bookstands.

Some 300 clergy and laymen are attending a four-day convention. They came from seven presbyteries, from Pickering near Toronto to Renfrew, west of Ottawa.

Director Says Punishment Is Useless

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. A. W. MacLeod, assistant director of Montreal's mental hygiene institute, said Wednesday that punishment is useless as a deterrent or reformative influence on criminals.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council that punishment was treating only the symptom and not the social disease which lay at the root of crime. Crime was a form of social deformation but a group phenomenon.

"The group, not the individual, is the source of the crime problem."

There was no evidence that segregation of criminals in large groups achieved the desired protection for society or reform of the individual. To do so was said corporal punishment in relation to physical pain had no reformative value at all.

Birth of Wood Institute Outlined by Col. E. A. Baker

It is not what is lost that is important, it is what we still have," said Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, when he addressed the annual meeting of the Hastings County Advisory Board for the blind in the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed on Wednesday night. "We are not God-given talents and we are expected to use them whether we have one talent, a little ingenuity, a little understanding and progress is made. Some have to get along without sight and others have other disabilities to contend with. Some of these are obvious and others have disabilities which they do not realize they have. There are different kinds of blindness, physical and mental, and many have blind spots in their outlook. It depends on one's point of view," said the speaker.

Colonel Baker was blinded in the First World War, when he said that a shell exploded with a rifle altering his point of view. "One is somewhat aghast when his sight is first gone. In the early days there is a feeling of frustration and you tend to concentrate on what you have lost. Too often there is this negative approach to concentrating on what you cannot do. The motto which the Institute uses is the beginning is: nothing is impossible until it has been proven so.

Exceptional Help

"A system of receptionists was developed to meet the newly-blind and show them what to do and how to train and employ their talents. At the beginning of the C.N.I.B. in 1916 it was found that over eighty per cent had lost their sight in adult life. Blindness among infants is now almost a thing of the past. There was no prevention program then, no field workers or home teachers. It was an awful struggle until they were able to carry out the program and show how the blind can handle jobs.

"We decided to select jobs in industry and place our people. No blind person was to be placed until he had developed the same level of production and could earn the same kind of wages as a sighted person. That has been done and in the past twelve years the number employed who had jobs has increased from 30 to 230.

"The Institute looks for the rehabilitation not only financially and economically but also in the social and recreational spheres. Blind people are not hopeless and helpless and plenty do not patronize them," the Colonel stressed. "It helps the morale of the blind. They are prepared to make a contribution to other handicapped societies, so that any disability will not prevent anyone from being in the stream of life.

"Of the nine million blind in the world less than one million have an effective program, and there is a big job to be done in setting up a world of trainees. We could not have reached the place we have without the help and contributions of our many faithful friends, and we like to think we may have justified our confidence God-given talents and we are expected to use them whether we have one talent, a little ingenuity, a little understanding and progress is made. Some have to get along without sight and others have other disabilities to contend with. Some of these are obvious and others have disabilities which they do not realize they have. Liberals Meet To Elect Officers, Other Business

The wheels of organization for the general federal election expected some time in August began turning last night, when the Belleville Liberal Association meeting, at the residence of Herbert McCabe, held a meeting at the Kiwanis Centre. The meeting was well attended, a great deal of work was accomplished and Frank S. Fulford, M.P., for South Hastings gave a short address outlining the work to be done.

Robert Temple, executive vice-president of the Young Liberals in charge of organizing new Young Liberal clubs throughout the province stated he was of the belief that the Young Liberals in persons are employed by the C.N.I.B. for theatre passes and other ways using free passes to Rawson bus lines, twenty-four used the concessions obtained by C.N.I.B. in getting passes and travel; ten received emergency assistance in cash, fuel and clothing; all received Christmas gifts, and ten received eye care, examinations, glasses or artificial eyes.

Officers Elected

Election of officers resulted in the following: Honorary Chairman, S. E. Goodwin; chairman, George Hall; vice-chairman, Mark Tripp, Mrs. F. Houchin; secretary, R. S. Fairman; treasurer, Miss Elinor Roblin; campaign chairmen, H. J. Fuke, A. J. Bourne; convenors of welfare, Miss Myrtle Peck; public relations, Miss F. Vandervoort, Mrs. M. C. Ward; new members appointed to the board, Mrs. R. H. Lennox, S. I. Cox, J. E. Lambert.

The campaign report for last year, read by H. J. Fuke, showed a total of $6,717.20 raised in the county, a substantial increase over the previous year. Miss Roblin read the statement of expenses and disbursements.

The Building Fund, which was the main effort of the past year for the establishment of a home for the blind in Kingston has reached a total of $6,192.24. While this is below the objective for the county it was felt that it was a worthy effort. The total for the whole district concerned now stands at over $172,000 with Prince Edward County still to make its contribution. The amount raised is $200,000 but the actual work will be started this summer. The plans for the home were on display at the meeting and proved most interesting to those who attended.

Resolutions of appreciation were read by A. J. Bourne of the many organizations and individuals.

every riding could assist the older organizations. "With your experience and our vitality", he said, "I think we can be victorious in the coming election battle". Mr. Temple also outlined the work of his organization and asked for the co-operation of the elder societies.

The meeting was thrown open for discussion before Ward and Poll chairmen were elected and divergent views were expressed as to how best to elect these officers. The meeting came to the decision that the workers in the different wards, should meet and elect among themselves their officers and then meet to elect the executive for the Association.

Wards Hold Meetings

At this point the meeting broke up into several groups, representing the various wards and elections were held and reverted to the secretary, S. J. Gilmour. Poll-ing Wards 1, 2 and 3 will meet at the home of George Seamen on Friday night to complete their election of all workers in that ward are invited.

The president explained there would be forty-two ballot boxes for the city and names of enumerators, deputy returning officers and poll clerks should be submitted at the earliest possible time on order that the deputy returning officer for the riding will have the complete list.

Mr. Fulford thanked his supporters for the confidence placed in him at the last election and felt that with continued cooperation, the riding would again be put in the win column. He announced that the annual meeting of the South Hastings Liberal Association would be held in the Club rooms on June 4, when that the Liberal nomination meeting would be held at the Collegiate Institute auditorium on June 17, at which time, the Hon. L. B. Pearson, Minister of External Affairs, and chairman of the General Assembly of the United Nations would be the chief speaker along with Messrs W. A. Fraser and J. J. Duffus.

10,000 More Voters

The speaker stated there were 10,000 more voters in the riding than in 1949 and it should be the aim of the organization to personally contact every newcomer and acquaint him or her with the record of the administration during the past four years. The problems during the past four years have been many but I think the my record in the decision of these problems will be vindicated at the polls. Fulford made no prediction as to the actual date of the election but thought it would be held some time in August.

Other short addresses were given by Dr. R. H. Rosa, Peter Mackoir, Phillip Flagler, James Keegan, S. J. Gilmour and Ald. Claude O. Tice. The large number of women workers in attendance showed that interest was warming up and all those present offered to help in any way possible.

Car Hits Tank

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ernest Aiken's car hit a tank Wednesday night.

The car, with Anderson driving, collided with another at an intersection. Both vehicles mounted a curb and Anderson's hit a Stuart tank mounted on concrete on the armory lawn.

WE CAN BE RATHER PROUD

There is probably no schoolboy familiar with our tongue who has not read or heard the lines:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself has said:
'This is my own, my native land . . . .'"

Trite they seem. But we must conclude that there is something awry with the thinking processes of any man of British stock who is not recalling some lines such as these, and being rather proud that he can recite them, when we read of the great and historic pageant which is now being performed in London.

Some comment on it already upon us. It is by reason of our access to means of modern communication that nearly all of the quarter of a billion people inhabiting this globe will be aware of it. All will know that nothing which could happen to this nation is of more moment than the single event which occurs next week in an ancient abbey in that small island across the seas.

No curtain of ignorance; no curtain of ideological iron, will obscure from all the world that great thing that has come to pass at a time in the history of mankind when we were never so bereft of hope for the future of the human race. It could not have come at a more propitious moment.

Of course it means much more to those of us in this world who are of British stock, or have been nurtured in the intangible realities with which we identify ourselves with the British Crown. But it must give many wise men, of whatever tongues they speak, to pause and ponder that this is, indeed, the greatest thing which has happened to man since he first began to worship something greater than himself.

This is not to say that we deify our incomparable young Queen of this time. But it is to acknowledge that to us she symbolizes all the eternal verities which today's mankind sums up in the Ten Laws of Moses, the Sermon on the Mount, the Magna Carta. How unhappier might this world have been today without these moral and civil precepts by which we live.

But of all the importance surely is the example that this mysterious monarchial system of ours sets before all peoples, demonstrating that it is possible to achieve a common bond of understanding and sympathy among the most diverse racial groups in the world.

All people who are born with an inherent sense of decency and good manners in all things there is no flouting of this achievement. But there is a very deep-down feeling of pride in it. It is as much of us as the things that tie us to church and family. It is not the sort of thing we are ever required to explain to outsiders. And it is something we wear on our sleeves—unashamed!

This week Canadians could be particularly proud of the footsteps in our history which was written by our Prime Minister in London. It was an unprecedented occasion in Westminster Hall when all the leading statesmen of the Commonwealth were gathered together to pay homage to a British sovereign not yet crowned.

It is our thought that the words of Mr. St. Laurent then will find a lasting place in our history texts. He said:

"To outsiders it is frequently a great source of wonderment how an association like the Commonwealth, whose members are so widely scattered over the globe, who have such diverse interests, who comprise so many ethnic elements, can possibly survive as a harmonious international entity.

"If they who are thus perplexed could have been with us this afternoon they would be better able to understand why this achievement of the Commonwealth has been possible.

"We never have had to overlook our differences, but we do endeavor, in our relations one with another, to emphasize those things which tend to unite rather than to destroy.

• • •

". . . But of the forces which bind us together, nothing is stronger than our common loyalty to the Crown and our devotion to our sovereign, even where the most formal expression of that devotion has to be found in the recognition of Her Majesty as Head of the Commonwealth. Broad enough to include a state whose people prefer it to be called a republic."

• • •

These few words express the indefinable essence of our formula for commonwealth harmony. And, of course, Mr. St. Laurent went on to recall something that put his position, and the position of many other Canadians, clearly and precisely in these words:

"It was a tribute to the human values of British institutions that the man who came as leader of the Canadian delegation to honor the Queen Empress was of a race which did not come into the Empire by choice, but indeed had fought gallantly for another monarch against the arms of a British king."

This certainly expresses our becoming humility as loyal subjects to the British Crown. Let it never perish with us.

WE'RE GOING OUT TO DINE

Some wise old woman, years ago, But love must happy make two Voiced just one simple plan lives
When asked by one who wished And here's a hint of mine:
to know Men, now and then, to please
How best to please a man. their wives,
"If you would keep his love," said Should take them out to dine.
she
"From soup to nuts and fruit— It pleases wives when husbands
At night when home from work say:
comes he "Tonight, no spuds to boil,
Be sure to feed the brute." No evening meal to plan today,
No chops to fry or broil;
I'd say there's more of right than No dish to wash, no plate to wrong scrape,
In what the old dame said. No tableware to shine;
Wives will not hold their men for From all these chores we'll both long escape,
Unless they keep them fed. We're going out to dine."

It was twenty years ago on May 28th since the letter carrier system was introduced in this city and the routes started out on their routes for the first time. Prior to this time it was necessary to go to the post office to get mail and the lobby of the office was generally filled with people waiting for the mail to be sorted. It was often a noisy gathering with the raised voices and laughter that when the noise became too much for the postmaster to endure, he would be heard from inside the office, asking for "less noise out there, please." Those days are gone for ever; now one keeps a lookout for the coming of the postman.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is travel that makes a year stretch out. It is travel that, by doing the same things week in, week out, makes the years pass by in incredible speed for the stay-at-home.

We might suppose it would be the other way round. How long and interminable must time seem on the hands of people who never have their familiar scene, who have to escape from a routine that never changes, spring, summer, autumn, winter. But it is not so. It is for them the fifty-two weeks, the twelve months, rush by at a terrifying rate. Hardly have the screen doors been put on before they have to be taken off again and the storm windows brought up. It seems only yesterday that the winter blankets were brought out of the moth bags. And here they go back into them again. When little, familiar things are the measure of the passing of time, time moves nimbly.

But travel puts a horizon, a perspective, into time. If you go for a week-end trip to Mexico in February, by June it seems not three months, but a long long time ago that you visited a strange and curious land. The memory of small, familiar things is dimmed by travel. The memory of far-off, strange things is swiftly dimmed and washed out. And it is in memory that we have the normal awareness of the passage of time.

A person who has travelled a great deal never remarks on how time flies. I have a friend who was prevented by poor eyesight from partaking of either first or second war. His work has confined him almost entirely to one neck city, and his visits to other Canadian and United States cities have been few and far between. In his sedentary life, he has come to know the speed of the years. It seems to him only yesterday that he was a boy, a youth, a young man on the sill of life. It is astonishing to him to learn, if ever I was a boy, it must have been before my time.

The onset of Summer brings a form of mobile warfare that is recognized as a universal disease to mankind. The ubiquitous house fly has already made its appearance and to the fly swatter which the householders who have labored to put up screen doors and wash down, the odd fly can now be seen making its first reconnaissance. Whether it is this year's model, or is one of those that has the answer to the question of where the flies go in the wintertime, it is not a problem that interests us until we pursue it with swat and sweep.

Pain in the Neck

(Toronto Star)

A doctor says that a large number of neck ills are traceable to the mouth. And he may be right, since many a conversationalist past can give one a pain in the neck.

Goose In The Garden

(Boston Post.)

Farm notes from a cotton patch in New Mexico bring the disquieting news that a cotton farmer has discovered that geese are the best weed-killers ever—they eat the weeds and grass and leave the cotton plants untouched.

Our memories of geese, although confined to a lone disgruntled goose, do not bear out the experience of the New Mexico cotton farmer. This goose would eat anything, including the leg of the hired man's overalls. It tore into the truck garden as if it hated all vegetables. It came to an ultimate end through a surfeit of unripe asparagus plume.

There is an ingrown streak of cussedness in the goose which can be cured only by a sharp hatchet. A goose and a goat teamed up can denude a garden of all vegetation except weeds in a trice, which is better than any spell from a witch hazel doctor to a vegetable patch so stricken.

Those who are inclined to be sentimental about the geese should just look one of the wretches in the eye and note the diabolical cunning gleaming there. It would also help if they were bitten by one, too.

Clay Pipes Seldom Seen

(Windsor Star)

It's not so long ago in terms of decades, when cigarets weren't in fashionable use, that everybody smoked cigars. Pipes were the smoking custom, and by great-grandma's time clay pipes were the mode.

It's a long time since we have seen a clay pipe. They never were as popular in this country as in some other places, for instance, Ireland. But they weren't unfamiliar.

Apart from the quality of smoke and cool drawing, the clay pipe had disadvantage. They would break easily. If one left a clay pipe lying on a shelf or anything the stem would snap. Offhand against this was the price. One could buy a dozen for two bits, or less.

In the old days, indeed, the corn-cob pipe was preferred. It likewise was cheap, and much more durable. Some people still will say a well-ripened corn-cob provided the best smoke of all. There are a few of them today.

Those were the days of the plug tobacco, which would be sliced off and rolled between the palms to fill it up. Smaller pieces of plug tobacco store since have been available.

Irrigation Gets Results

(Lethbridge Herald)

Some people write down irrigation in the world and these tied 10 per cent of the world's 2½ billion people. There are in the world 1,000,000,000 acres of agricultural holdings, almost equal to the whole world under irrigation.

Efforts are being made now to irrigate 200,000,000 acres. Another 200,000,000 acres with about 80,000,000 acres in China, over 40,000,000 acres in India and Pakistan, and another 25,000,000 acres in United States. Canada and Australia eventually will contribute another 2,000,000 acres to the irrigated acres of the world and that will be about our limit.

With world population growing at the rate of 30,000,000 a year, there is little chance of irrigation development being overdone.

Hobbyist Angered

(Windsor Star)

It is a caution the furore a seemingly slight error can cause—especially in the case of a newspaper. Offence is taken out of all proportion to the error. Even otherwise pleasant people become quite unreasonable.

We note the letter written by an obviously angry man to the editor of a Toronto newspaper which he advertently had described him as a collector of stamps, instead of being flattered by the suggestion that he possessed enough of these expensive, highly flavored and potent drinks, he was highly incensed.

"I do not collect liquours (which) I drink," he wrote angrily. "I drink more than I collect Han figures," he declaimed. What he did collect and of which he was proud, was 78 different kinds of whisky! Many people would regard whisky as a proletarian beverage compared with liqueurs, but the very idea put this connoisseur into a dudgeon.

Even just as if a matchbox collector had been accused of collecting old stamps, or vice versa!

Reporting Not Spying

(New York Times)

Under the laws of Czechoslovakia as construed when William Oatis was a correspondent in Prague for the Associated Press, a man could be convicted of espionage if he so much as sent out a weather report. Or, as Mr. Oatis put it in his own moment made public Wednesday night, "Some things that generally are considered as innocent activities to be normal news-gathering procedure can be construed there to be espionage."

Sometimes, following this "normal procedure," Mr. Oatis went to the United States Embassy to check stories reported from other sources. He did this to get information, not to give it. Mr. Oatis, in his almost painfully careful fashion, said that "at no time did I act as an espionage agent of the embassy in the sense that this term is understood in Western countries within the range of my experience." Clearly, Mr. Oatis had no spy at all, in any sense whatsoever of the word. He was what all good newspapermen do, in all countries whose Governments have not chosen to cast back into the dark recesses of pre-history barbarous practices. With this point decisively settled Mr. Oatis is entitled to a rest. We shall await his release with interest, but in no doubt as to what will be revealed in it.

To Save The Birds

(BBC Bulletin.)

Britain's Royal Society for the Protection of Birds is trying out a new idea for reducing the loss of its adopted migrant birds at the lighthouses and lightships on the coast of Kent.

Tens of thousands of the birds that spend some months in Britain or pass through the country every year migrate at night. When it is foggy or there is a low cloud they are attracted by the powerful illumination and are then attracted by the fog signals. Confused and dazed in the same way as a moth to a candle.

Many birds dash themselves against the lighthouse lantern glass or the masonry of the tower below it and fall dead. Others are injured by fearful toll of bird life the RSPB has tried many ways to help lighthouse keepers avoid the lives of the birds. Now the RSPB is trying out a method first used in Heligoland; floodlights have been fixed at the base of the Dungeness light and the lighthouse keepers will try to see if the birds see to fly round instead of into it.

Horses Never Bet on Men

(Courier-Journal)

The great horse Citation, now retired, won more than a million dollars in purses in the exact days his brilliant record is grim testimony to the fact that the bettors already are aware of: Only horses beat horses regularly; people rarely beat them.

Citation went to the post 32 times in the course of his career and won 29 times. He finished in the money often enough to buy a pair of shoes. Citation ran in 43 betting races, won 31 times, finished in the first four in all but two of the others.

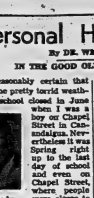
Citation was the first horse to win $1 million. He was the exact opposite of his bettors. He finished first in only 29 races, you would have made a profit of $13.50

If you deposited $86 in the credit union of the place where you work on April 22, 1941—the day Citation won his first race—the sum would have grown to $14.38 by July 14, 1951, the date of Citation's last race. Thus, the credit union at four per cent paid $1.08 more than Citation.

Somewhat Exaggerated

(Montreal Gazette)

Mark Twain, on his journey through England was overjoyed to discover that he was dead. He made his celebrated reply: The report of my death was greatly exaggerated.



Perhaps the same exaggeration has occurred in the rumors that are being spread about inflation being dead. Perhaps inflation is not quite what it used to be. But it may well have within it a remarkable degree of vitality.

Wages, for instance, still keeps up with earnings, or exceeds it. It may prove hard to keep inflation away from Canada's door.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME

Dr. Brady

I am reasonably certain that we had some pretty torrid weather before school closed in June when I was a boy on Chapel Street in Canadaigua, Nevertheless in every Spring right up to the last day of school and even on Chapel Street where people were closer to nature than anywhere else in town we kids had to drag around our heavy underwear until the calendar said it was summer.

But, shucks, our parents, grandparents, uncles, aunts, teachers and doctors knew no better. They took the almanac for gospel and the instruction there was in those days—seriously. And, the quacks and bootrun vendors who distributed the admanacs employed the same salesmen they employ on radio and television today, except that what they didn't supply each with barber cost, microscope and stethoscope.

I haven't visited Canadaigua for the first day of summer since I left there to enter medical school so I know anything about human nature, Canadaigua kids still drag around their winter underwear, far into spring and risk pneumonia if they venture to go barefoot or go in swimming before the calendar says it's summer.

Although I'm sure the I.Q. of the population of Canadaigua is not above the average of society at large, I doubt whether 5 per cent of the population (over 15 years of age), and that's physicians—say 400 persons—believe what I believe and teach, namely, that exposure to cold, wet, sudden change, drafts, insufficient clothing, chilling or dampness may be uncomfortable but neither causes nor predisposes to illness.

Mind, now, soil troddles, I do not say that exposure to these everyday environmental conditions is beneficial but merely that it is harmless.

Frostbite or freezing, or stiff and sore muscles may be the direct consequence of exposure, of course, but not illness.

I quote a British authority, Dr. Leonard Hill, in reference to coddling:

"It is absurd to put on an overcoat when going out for a walk. It is good to go out and be braced by the cold and so be impelled to take vigorous exercise."

Cut this out and paste it in your hat, soil troddle.

Four hundred persons? Wishful thinking. Probably it would be hard to find a dozen adults in Canadaigua who do not worry a bit about the over-confident who "exposure." To tell the truth, I'm a bit doubtful, throughout the United States and Canada only occasionally do I dig cases in the truth is too painful. Instead, I'm calling it a day and starting it for the bowling green just in time for the 1 o'clock draw.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HOW ARE YOU CLOTHED?

People wear ideas, thoughts, and attitude toward life somewhat as they wear their clothes. How you clothe yourself in winter seems to be totally clothed with unhappiness. You meet them and they have a wailing air in their voice. They have cheated them. They weren't treated, anyway, as they were entitled to be born—and so on.

Then you meet a man that people are all dressed up in unhappiness—and don't know where to go! On the other hand, there are those who seem to be forever clothed in happy garments, radiating their love of life, scattering their innate sunshine and warmth of heart. They are the welcomed ones, whether rich or poor.

No matter how a man may be dressed, His tailor may have made him a veritable model, but if he has a dirty mind, the rags will show through, mud clodding each hanging fringe, and people will shunning his presence. I never look upon any portrait of Lincoln without feeling the nobility of the man in his attitude toward life as much as ther wear their clothes. How he clothed him

RCAF Coronation Contingent Enjoying Excellent Health

The RCAF Coronation contingent is enjoying excellent health.

The report comes from S.L. K. H. Running, senior medical officer in charge of the contingent, in the form of a letter to Mrs. K. H. Running who will leave here Thursday night to join her husband in England.

Mrs. Running, of 64, Hewson Boulevard, Middleton Park, will travel to Montreal on Thursday. The following day she will fly to London where she will be joined by her husband, Senior Medical Officer of RCAF Station Trenton.

The couple will live in London and will enjoy Coronation festivities from a seat somewhere along the route," added Mrs. Running.

In a letter to his wife, S.L. Running reported that the contingent enjoyed a tour through Windsor Castle. The group was looking forward to a tea at Buckingham Palace and a visit by the Duke of Edinburgh to their base at Princess Alice Camp, near London.

Except for administering to a few seasick members on the trip across the Atlantic, S.L. Running reports that he is not too busy doctoring since the personnel are in good health.

S.L. Running joined the RCAF medical branch in February, 1940. During his tour of duty overseas he served as senior medical officer with No. 6 Bomber Group at Station Thelthorpe and later was attached to 426 Alouette Squadron and 428 Snowy Owl Squadron. Following his return from the continent, he joined No. 127 Spitfire Wing. After "V-E Day he was sent to the report depot at Torquay to await his turn to be officially repatriated to Canada in 1945.

Following S/L Running's retirement from the RCAF he practised in Carleton Place where he lived until his re-enlistment in the RCAF in July 1952.

Mrs. Running who has never been to England is looking forward to the trip which includes a flying trip over the Alps, a first hand view of the Royal occasion, jaunts about Europe and a return trip to Canada to June 29 by ship.

Mediterranean Cruise

Another wife to join her service husband in England for the Coronation is Mrs. K. W. Joy of 126 Liberty Street, Trenton.

Following festivities, WO1 Joy will take his annual leave and then join his wife for the Mediterranean where they will remain for two weeks prior to returning to Canada.

Warrant Officer Joy has been stationed at No. 4 Repair Depot Rockcliffe since 1950, however, when he returns to Canada following his leave and tour of duty with the contingent he will take up new duties at Ottawa.

The Coronation tour and the transfer to Ottawa means a round of family re-unions for the Joys. Mrs. Joy, who is an English war bride, joined her mother in London at the beginning of April. When the couple returns to Ottawa in the summer, WO Joy will be back to his home town.

Enlisting in 1942, WO Joy qualified for his bombardier's wing in 1943 at Winnipeg. In March, 1944, he went overseas and joined No. 77 Squadron, No. 4 group, attached to the RAF. One year later, he was shot down and taken prisoner of war. Finally freed, he was sent to Bournemouth, where he met Mrs. Joy. Prior to coming to Trenton as a draughtsman, WO Joy served at Ottawa.

Immunization Day

The immunization clinic for pre-school age children will be held Friday, May 29, in Alr Chief Marshal Breadner School, and not June 5, as previously announced by the RCAF Women's Auxiliary Wing. Mrs. R. N. Newton. The inoculation parade will be held between the hours of 2 and 3 in the afternoon.

Social Notes

Miss Jean Millward, daughter of Millward, RCAF Station, Trenton, of Group Captain and Mrs. J. H. will leave Saturday for a two-months' trip to the European countries. The fifteen-year-old student will sail from Montreal and will be accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. R. N. Newton. Their travels will commence with a flying trip to England from where they will remember for a sight-seeing trip through Norway, Denmark and Sweden. They will attend the Bergen Music Festival and stop over for a short time in Bonn, Germany.

Col. and Mrs. H. L. Harris, of 63 Meyerside Boulevard, returned from Montreal where they visited with Mrs. Harris' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Farquarson, in honor of their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Mrs. R. Hall, formerly of Windsor, arrived from Hamilton recently, to visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Murray, of 1EB Brandon Avenue.

Sgt. and Mrs. Frank Woldnick, of 8 Nassau Drive, have returned from Port Colborne where they attended the wedding of Sgt. Woldnick's brother, Mr. William Woldnick.

Tribute Paid To E.P. Bernstein At Presentation

E. P. Bernstein, former general manager and now consultant with Mead Johnson Laboratories, was honored recently by the presentation of a number of fine gifts. Mr. Bernstein has been with the firm for the past 23 years.

Present at the ceremony was D. Mead Johnson, vice-president, Indiana, president of the company, who gave a brief history of the Belleville branch and outlined plans for the future of the organization.

Tracing the history of the Canadian branch back to its origin in 1925, Mr. Johnson stated that all indications point to an expanding field not only in the infant nutrition field but in the field of specialty pharmaceuticals as well.

"Nothing is more important to the future success of Mead Johnson of Canada," he said, "than that it be adequately and aggressively organized to function as an independent company. Only in this way will the organization be able to take advantage of its known future opportunities and reach its corporate objectives," Mr. Johnson said.

The organization in Canada, Mr. Johnson said, had reached its present successful position through the efforts of Mr. Bernstein, it having been under his direction at the right which had made this possible, he concluded.

David L. Menzies, who succeeds Mr. Bernstein as general manager was born in India. He is a Bachelor of Science graduate from the University of Wichita, Kansas, and came to Canada and started working in 1932.

His business life has been spent in the pharmaceutical industry. Before joining Mead Johnson he was manager of the pharmaceutical division of Ciba Company of Canada in Montreal.

A director of the Canadian Foundation for the Advancement of Pharmacy, he is also a director of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association.

Married to the former Emilie Stocker of Regina, he has three children. His hobbies are golf, sailing and photography.

Downtown Area Taking On Festival Look

With Coronation day less than a week away the downtown area of Trenton is taking on a festive appearance with flags and pennants floating in the breeze. Streamers have appeared across the street and City Hall is decorated with bunting and a huge replica of the Royal crown.

Most of the decorations have been placed by the Coronation committee with the actual erection by the firemen and the public works committee under the direction of D. Kingdon, secretary of the Coronation committee.

Most striking of the decorations erected so far are those on the front of the City Hall with the masses of bunting setting off the huge gold tinted replica of the royal crown.

But many of the merchants and other business houses are beginning to show the Coronation spirit and decorated windows are beginning to appear. The Army and Navy building on Front street is a blaze of color with the new front of the building well spotted with flag clusters.

Private householders are asked by the decoration committee to decorate as much as possible in order that the city may appear at its best for the Coronation celebration on June 2.

Foremen's Club Hears Address On Relationship

In an address before 88 members of the Quinte District Foremen's Club in the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday evening, F. R. Manuel, vice-president of the Simpsons and Kellogg Ltd., endeavored to explain the relationship of industrial engineering to foremen and management.

He pointed out, the foreman's job in many cases, has become too large for one man to handle all alone. The speaker said, "dealing with people is the foreman's work. He is expected to control wages, transfers, promotions, sometimes separations from the company itself, equipment, safety, and the making of what is required when it is needed in the quantity and quality as economically as possible." "That", he observed, "is a big job."

"To do all these things, and do them well," Mr. Manuel said, "is difficult. Management realizes this fact and has therefore set up means of assistance in the form of the industrial engineer.

"His job is to help, not interfere. He is what is sometimes called, staff assistance to the line organization." In defining what industrial engineering does, the speaker noted it is basically a fact finding job in that it analyses planned observation, studies then analyses the findings and later establishes and organizes the findings.

Mr. Manuel described industrial engineering as a means of benefit members had to foreman. "We are not primarily concerned with time study and rate setting, these may think," the vice president stated. "Actually," he added, "that is the last thing the industrial engineer should attempt."

To Study Methods

One concerning factor in the engineer's job is the study of operator's work methods. Another is the study of the flow of work from one department to another. By finding a system where the time for an operation may be cut down somewhat, either by work flow or work methods, we approach nearer to standardization, it was pointed out.

"Only through understanding will acceptance follow," the speaker said. "In my attempts to describe and explain industrial engineering, I have perhaps been broad in my terminology."

"But I hope, I have been able to show that the industrial engineer's purpose is in reality, intended to assist the foreman in finding and holding better methods of doing things," Mr. Manuel concluded.

Entertainment at the meeting, the last for the season, was under the direction of William Reynolds and Gerald Taylor. Mr. Reynolds sang two interpretative selections accompanied by Mr. Taylor on the piano. Several items of business speaker's talk, a movie, "Big Four Rugby" was shown.

Mr. Manuel was introduced by Fred Pellow and a vote of appreciation was extended by Gilbert Wansbold.

'Y' Leaders' Conference Held At Peterborough

The first eastern Ontario Y. M. C. A. leaders conference was held in Peterborough over the week-end with approximately 50 Y.M.C.A.s represented by twelve leaders. The Y. M. C. A.'s of Kingston and Peterborough were also well represented. Over 40 leaders participated.

Highlights of the conference were the gymnastic competitions on tumbling, low and high horizontal bar, parallel bar, 2 rings for junior, intermediate and senior leaders, followed by a "workshop" during which expert gymnasts helped leaders to learn various gymnastic skills: a swimming and diving instruction period; two basquets, speakers of which were Mr. Stan Payne, president of the Board of Directors; Jack Wolstenholme, past president of the Board and Mr. Ken Kingston, chairman of the Physical Education department of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A.; devotion periods, and three discussion sessions on the following topics: (1) what is expected from a leader in the way of character, personality, ability personal appearances, service and physical fitness, (2) training required to turn out a leader, (3) how can leaders help in the physical education department.

All the visiting leaders stayed in Peterborough leaders' homes for Saturday night and Sunday. The conference was over on Sunday three o'clock when the whole leadership group for a car ride to show the Y.M.C.A.s some outstanding spots of the city.

Next year's leaders' conference will be held in Belleville where completion in swimming and water safety will be added to the program.

Trenton Lassies Defeat Northern

Trenton RCAF softball lassies handed the Northern Electric softball girls their second successive defeat at the Alemite Field last night, defeating them by a 5-3 score. The "fly-girls" won their first win by the identical score of 19-5 score.

The game, a Lakeshore Ladies Softball League fixture, was won in the fifth when the visitors showed over all five of their runs. Northern scored their runs in the third and a single in the eighth.

Three hits, two of them home runs, by pitcher Ann Allan, accounted for the flyers' quintet of runs in the fifth. Ray Northern hurler, held the visitors to three other hits over the rest of the route.

Wilman started for the RCAF and lasted until the fifth when she gave way to Lawson. The former pitcher fanned seven while Lawson held the homesters to two hits for the four innings she toiled.

Ray led the Northern hitters with three singles, with Hardes and Butler getting two each. The flyers' line-up: Trenton softball team: RCAF — Rose, Lehman, Anderchuck, Backus, Edmonson, Baker, Widdick, Caulson, Wilman and Lawson.

Weed of the Week

Sow Thistle

TORONTO — Like many of our noxious weeds, Sow Thistle is another immigrant from Europe that is doing well for itself in Canada in spite of efforts to control it. Another appropriate name for this hardy creeping rooted perennial is Creeping Sow Thistle. Its roots spread in every direction under the soil and also above every joint. Wind-borne seeds add much to spread the weed over wide areas. Seeds have even been collected on windows of aircraft flying high above the earth.

The yellow scourge is persistent after it gets a foothold. Its presence is marked by showy yellow flowers in late July and August. These appear in grain and cultivated crops, roadsides and other moist waste places at any time from June through September.

Grasshoppers are fond of the plant but their efforts at eradication in this part of the country have been meagre. Usually hard work and constant and careful cultivation are required to control it.

Persistent cultivation or black summerfallow are effective in reducing the infestations. The disk should not be used, however, as it cuts the root into small sections, each of which may grow into a new plant. Cultivators and spring toothed harrows help in bringing the roots to the surface to dry out.

Chemicals are effective in controlling top growth and seed ripening. One application of 2, 4-D at 3 ounces actual acid per acre will usually accomplish this but several applications at 16 ounces actual 2, 4-D acid per acre will be required to kill the roots. Small areas can be cleaned with sodium chlorate but this method is expensive and also has the effect of sterilizing the soil for some time afterwards.

'Lord's Prayer' Theme Of Talk at W.A.

The May meeting of the Women's Association of Holloway Street United Church was held Thursday afternoon in the Sunday school auditorium with 31 ladies present. The president, Mrs. C. Smith, opened the meeting with prayer after which she welcomed the members and the guests.

Mrs. Outingdyke and her group had charge of the worship service and program, the theme for both being "Prayer." Mrs. Potter, Mrs. Law and Mrs. Baxter each read a portion of Scripture, followed by a short meditation by Mrs. McMillen.

Mrs. Weese introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Rowley, of Tabernacle United Church. In keeping with the theme, she gave an impressive talk on the "Lord's Prayer".

In her closing remarks Mrs. Rowley pointed out that the home would pray more for guidance as we would have stronger Christian homes and a stronger nation.

Mrs. Bantor thanked Mrs. Rowley for her fine address.

Mrs. Smith then conducted the business period. Miss Norma Aikins and Mrs. McDonald with Mrs. Hubbs at the piano, rendered two duets, "Sweet Night" and "I Passed by Your Window."

Mrs. Outingdyke expressed the thanks of the Association to the singers.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge.

On Friday, eighteen ladies from Holloway United Church attended the W.M. Presbyterial in Tweed. The guest speaker for the morning session was Mrs. C. Sleep, who took for her text, Psalm 122: 1, "I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord."

Mrs. Vanzicle, of Brantford, was the guest speaker in the afternoon. She presented a vivid picture of the growth of the Dominion Council since its organization.

Weddings

VALENTINE — EARDLEY

On Saturday, May 16, at 2:30 p.m., Bridge Street United Church was the scene of a lovely all-white wedding when the Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of the church united in marriage Helen Darlene Eardley, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Eardley, of Frederick, N.B., and the late Alfred Valentine, White candelabra and white flowers formed the background and white satin bows designated the guest pews.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. Bob Lacey, who sang before the ceremony "Ave Maria" and during the signing of the register, "O Lord Most Holy."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white nylon lace over taffeta. Fitted bodice with molded bodice having a Queen Anne collar and long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The gown had full skirt ended in a slight train. She wore a coronet headdress encrusted with pearls and carried a shower bouquet of pale, pink carnations.

Miss Marie Boyce, of Belleville, attended the bride as maid of honour, wearing a lavender gown of nylon net and lace over taffeta, made with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt, and Miss Maureen Ferguson, of Montreal, bridesmaid, in yellow nylon net over taffeta. Both were made on similar lines as that of the bride. They were floral bandeaux with shoulder-length veils and carried old-fashioned nosegays of yellow pansies, pink and blue forget-me-nots.

Little eight-year-old cousin of the bride, Donna Martin, of Montreal, was flower girl, frocked in pale blue taffeta with full skirt in ankle-length, and wearing a tiny corset and carrying a shower of pink, blue and yellow flowers.

Mr. Ronald Nason, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Douglas Lawson, and Mr. Douglas Hale, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, for sixty guests, where the bride's mother, wearing a French crepe, taffeta-trimmed, navy gown with white and navy accessories, and corsage of pink roses, received.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride wore a pale mauve suit with mauve accessories and orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal and St. Lambert, Quebec.

BURD — BRENNAN

The Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, Ontario, was the setting for a pretty wedding on Monday, May 18th at 9:30 a.m. when Mary Monica Brennan, of Marysville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick J. Brennan, became the bride of John Frederick Burd, of Foxboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Burd. The Rev. I. F. Donoghue officiated with the Rev. M. Murphy, of Arnprior, present in the sanctuary.

Miss Ann McAlpine provided the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly attired in a ballerina length gown of white net over taffeta with shoulder-length veil, and carrying a cascade of red roses.

Miss Jean Brennan, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in mauve net over taffeta in ballerina length, with matching shoulder length veil and carrying a spray of sweetpeas, pink roses and fern.

Mr. Bruce Burd, of Nakina, Ontario, attended the bridegroom.

A reception for the immediate families was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, following which, the happy couple left for Penetang, via the Grand Canyon route, returning by Canadian Rockies. The bride travelled in a navy and white ensemble. Mr. and Mrs. Burd will reside in Belleville.

Soroptimist Club Holds Birthday Dinner

Highlighting the year's activities of the Soroptimist club of Belleville was the birthday dinner held on Monday evening at Maple Haven. This is a yearly event in the club and the members sat down to a delicious chicken dinner followed by the traditional birthday cake and ice cream.

Owing to the nearness of the Coronation and fashion shows being held on the grounds or Mrs. Georgia Smith's home, a short business session was conducted by Mrs. Lazietta Stirland, chairman of the Ways and Means committee. Last minute details were discussed and tickets for the draw on the lady's suit, bathing suit and umbrella were distributed among the members. Prior to this, tickets were to have been sold at the tea only, but due to the widespread interest in the prizes being offered it was hurriedly agreed by all that tickets should be made available to the public before the tea date.

Mrs. Stirland gave a brief summary of the well laid plans for the tea—the models for the fashion show, the nursery plans for the tiniest, and the home-cooking booth.

In case of rain, it was decided that the sale of home-cooking would be conducted on the market square. The business session over, the members adjourned to the living room where all enjoyed an evening of Court Whist.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Georgia Smith, and Mrs. Laura McLauchlin. President Frances Bennett declared the meeting adjourned, after which all that had been an enjoyable social evening.

TO REPRESENT INDIANS

MONTREAL (CP)—Chief Gladys Whay-Giles of the Kwakiutl tribes of northern B.C. here Wednesday night for London and the Coronation at which he will represent Canada's 130,000 Indian resident of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia. He carries with him the symbolic Chilkat blanket, which when placed around the shoulders of Queen Elizabeth will make her spiritual mother of the Pacific coast Indians.

New Canadians Hold Birthday Dinner

An enjoyable evening was spent again Monday night at the Y.M.C.A. when a group of new Canadians and citizens of the future numbering in all about 150, met for a social time, with Mrs. Lyle Jones presiding.

Among the new Canadians present were, Norwegians, two of whose number delighted the assembly with a flute duet; Russians, forming a choir of eight, also favored with songs in their own language and Greeks, whose specialties were lively and distinct; Others present were Swiss, Belgians, Italians, Germans, Dutch, Danes, Poles, Serbians, Bulgarians, English and Scots, as well as Czechoslovakians.

The highlight of the evening was a pantomime, "The Lady Hangs Out Washing" depicted, amid gales of laughter, by Miss Florence Fitzgerald and Mrs. Fred Bevan, whose talents as actors have hereto been sadly overlooked.

These meetings are held each Monday evening in order to make the new Canadians feel at home and welcome; to show them that they are one with the native born Canadians, who share in their joys and in their sorrows, and who wish them to teach them the ways of Canada and the great freedom it offers to the oppressed.

Following the close of the meeting, refresh ments were brought in and a friendly happy evening is at close.

Mrs. R. M. Sherk Visits Training School

Sponsored by the central committee of Home and School Associations of Belleville, a Leadership Training School was held at Prince Charles School on Tuesday evening. This training school enabled Home and School officers and interested members to become better acquainted with Home and School policies.

The school opened with a delicious potluck supper which added greatly to the friendly atmosphere of the gathering. Proper arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. F. Beetey, Mrs. Chapelle, Mrs. H. Rosen and Mrs. P. C. Gilsthorpe, who graciously received the gracious hostesses.

Mrs. W. J. Follwell and Mrs. K. F. Rowe were in charge of registrations, providing name tags for the families of nine associations of the city and district.

Following the supper a welcome was extended by the chairman, Mrs. Ralph Morden, to representatives from the following associations: Queen Mary-Prince Charles, Queen Alexandra, Hillcrest, South Victoria, Trinity, Prince of Wales, Avondale and the Collegiate.

Appreciation Expressed

Appreciation was also expressed to Mr. Ken Bird, the principal of the school, Mr. E. Bateman, and to Mr. W. Jackson, president of Prince Charles Home and School Association, for allowing the use of the school facilities.

Mrs. R. M. Sherk, vice-president of the Ontario Federation, was speaker and gave a most inspiring address on "Wishful—Poor, Fair or Good." She pointed out how psychology applies to parent-and-teacher, parent-and-child, child-and-teacher may be improved when interested parents stand by to study these relationships. Speaking of the International Conference, sponsored by the Canadian Federation and the United States Parent-Teacher Congress, and held at Lansing, Michigan, over a year ago — Mrs. Sherk showed how representatives from 32 countries came together as parents and learned how to break down barriers of race and color.

Following this stimulating address, the group, under the direction of Mrs. W. H. J. Follwell, divided into workshop groups.

Presidents and vice-presidents met under the leadership of Mr. L. A. Kells to study the proper conduct of meetings.

Mrs. Macdonald, of Toronto, Federation secretary who had accompanied Mrs. Sherk, dismissed with recording and corresponding secretaries the duties of their offices.

Mrs. W. A. Powell was leader of a group to discuss publications and Mrs. J. E. Pugh was in charge of a group interested especially in membership.

Program and program planning, led by Mrs. Sherk, attracted a large number of those in attendance.

Upon returning to the auditorium a question period was conducted. The group was keenly interested in Mrs. Sherk's explanation of the way the 20 cent per capita fee is spent by the Ontario Federation. After six cents per member is sent to the Canadian Federation to help carry on its work, the remaining 14 cents is carefully budgeted. Federation officers give freely of their time and energy without remuneration, and with only partial payment of expenses incurred in travelling to assist individual associations.

On behalf of central committee, Mrs. W. Gunder presented a Coronation cup and saucer to Mrs. Sherk as a memento of her visit to Belleville.

Operation Graduation Reception

By Mary Moore

You folks have such handsome ideas. Good gracious, do I have to whip myself up into a froth when Marianne graduates from nursing school and invite seventy-five people!

If things rush along as they have been for the past twenty years she'll be lucky if I make the graduation exercises in time to wink at her as she crosses the platform.

None of the rush dilutes my love for my two latest thoughts and I'm tickled to pieces that there are several mothers in this audience like the writer of the following letter:

Dear Mary Moore: I would like your advice on how much food to serve at about 75 people, for a buffet lunch. My daughter is going to graduate for a nurse. . . and I would like very much to know what kind of salads and things to serve, and if you have any recipes, and also what sort of dishes.—Mrs. John C.

Graduation Reception

(For 75 people.)
Chicken Salad
Tomato Jelly on Lettuce
Buttered Tiny Hot Rolls
Celery Olives
Raspberry Mousse (or Quality Commercial Cream)
White Graduation Cake
Reception Punch
Salted Nuts Coffee

Direction:

Chicken Salad (for 75)

Five Imperial quarts (25 cups) cooked diced chicken, 3 Imperial quarts chopped inner stalks celery, 1 1-2 tablespoons salt, 1-2 teaspoons pepper, 2 cups French dressing, 12 cups (3 quarts plus 2 cups) mayonnaise (or cooked salad dressing), 12 hard-cooked eggs; lettuce. Combine chicken, celery, salt, pepper and French dressing. Let stand in cold place—6 hours to marinate. Add salad dressing or mayonnaise. Mix. Serve on delicate lettuce leaves garnished with the egg cut into wedges or slices. If desired some chopped ham or veal may be substituted for some of the chicken.

Seven and one-half cups canned condensed tomato soup, 3 cups cold water, 3 tablespoons (1-3 cup) best quality gelatin, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 3 cups lemon juice, drained, cooked new peas or shredded cabbage or chopped green pepper are optional. Heat tomato soup to boiling. Soften gelatin in cold water 5 minutes, then stir it into the hot soup until dissolved removed from heat. Add salt and lemon juice and pour into shallow oblong pans. Chill until firm then cut into 75 squares. Serve on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise. Peas, cabbage or peppers are good additions, but should be added as dry as possible and sparingly.

If you want to make your own ice cream or a Raspberry Mousse as I have suggested, write to me Mrs. John C. and enclose stamped envelope and I will mail you the methods.

Reception Punch (for 75)

Six cups sugar, 6 cups water, 1-2 cup crushed mint leaves, 6 cups orange juice, 3 cups pineapple, grape or berry juice, 3 cups lemon juice, 6 cups freshly brewed tea, 3 Imperial quarts ice water, 2 large bottles ginger ale, orange and lemon slices and mint sprigs and maraschino cherries, etc. Boil sugar and 6 cups of water together for 5 minutes. Add crushed mint. Cool and strain. Add fruit juices, tea, and remaining water. Just before serving add ginger ale, and then pour over ice in punch bowls. Garnish with slices and sprigs and cherries.

From my viewpoint these are what I would call detailed instructions but if anyone who reads this is going to ask for a description and needs still more detail write to me and enclose stamped envelope.

THOMASBURG

THOMASBURG — It was with regret the community learned on Rev. R. P. Gardam's removal from Roslin Parish to a charge in Detroit, Michigan. To Rev. and Mrs. Gardam and family go best wishes for continued success in their work and happiness in their new home.

There was a good attendance at United Church Sunday School on Sunday. There was no public church service in the evening. There will be service May 31st at 8 p.m.

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. J. Webb from Thomasburg United Church was largely attended. Rev. W. K. Pace of Tweed conducted the funeral service. Members of St. John's Church choir supplied the music, with Fred Porter as organist. Interment was in the Thomasburg cemetery.

The many friends of Mrs. Morton Were sorry to hear of her illness and all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart, Tweed, were callers on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Martin.

Mr. Arthur Brough, Mrs. Shay and Tony, were Toronto visitors over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Parkyn Richardson are making alterations and redecorating in their new home in Belleville prior to their taking up residence in the near future.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's 18, she's 15—could they be in love?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 15 years and I'm in love with a girl back home. I am 18 and she is 15, and I have known her since we were young children so that we grew older, we came to love each other. She has promised to marry me when she turns 18. I will be 18 in a few months.

Do you think it is right for a boy my age to be in love with a girl so young, even though I really love her very much, or do you think I should find another girl closer to my own age?—J. J.

Dear J.J.:

Since you and this girl have known each other such a long time, it is very understandable that you might have a special feeling about each other, and want to be married some day. On the other hand, whether or not you love this girl enough to want to wait until she is a few years older is something that only you can decide. What you say about wondering if it would be better for you to find a girl closer to your own age makes me feel that possibly you may not be quite as much in love as you think, for most people who are in love would rather wait for marriage almost any length of time rather than give the other person up.

As I see it, your best plan would be to tell the girl that perhaps it would be better if both of you had other friends for awhile in order to make sure that what you feel for each other is really love. Don't you think this might be wise?

Why does this man neglect his eldest child?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a married woman of 28 with three children. My husband and I have been married ten years and he spent nearly five of those years in the army.

Our first girl was born while he was in service, and was two years old when he got home. After he got out of service, nearly four years later, our son was born. We also have a baby girl not quite a year old.

My problem is that my husband doesn't seem to care much for our oldest girl, who is now eight. He makes a great fuss over the boy, and tells her not to bother them when he is playing with him, which hurts her. He also plays with the baby, and so the oldest feels left out altogether. She isn't doing so well in school and I told my husband it is his fault because of the way he treats her.

Do you think it is because he wasn't here when she was born, while he has been with the other

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Concerning one of the strictest rules in the world of etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister has just become engaged, and is to be married in October. Now I am wondering which is proper: for us to invite the fiance's family to our home, or for them to invite us to their home? Which is correct?—P.M.

This question is a little bewered directly. For more important than the order-of-invitation is the order-of-calling. What I mean is that one of the strictest and most important rules in the whole world of Etiquette is that the parents of an engaged man must call on the fiance and her parents just as soon as they possibly can after their son has told them of the engagement. If, because of distance or other reasons, they cannot make this welcome-

two from the very beginning!—Mrs. J. J.

Dear Mrs. J. M.:

I think it is very possible indeed that you have put your finger right on the most possible cause here. Undoubtedly your husband feel much closer to the two children who were born while he was at home than he does to the girl who had reached the age of two before he ever saw her.

Have you tried getting this child to do little things for her father that might please him and make him notice a change of her? It seems to me that at eight years old, you might be able to take her a little into your confidence about the whole thing, explaining, as gently and understandingly as you can, that it is sometimes a little hard for fathers to get acquainted with children they haven't seen as little babies, and that you and she are going to try out a little plan. Then, each day, have her do some one thing for her father that will bring her to his attention in a loving way. She might offer to run an errand for him, or bring him something that she has made in school, or, with your help, make him some special little treat for his breakfast—anything at all will do that won't make any demand on him. She is pretty hard for any father to continue ignoring a child who wholeheartedly tried to help and please him.

I suggest also that you might discuss the whole problem with your daughter's teacher, explaining to her that the child's own emotional problem may be responsible for the fact that she has not been doing well in school, and asking the teacher's help in working things out.

It is a very pathetic situation that you have on your hands, but I believe that if you do these things that I have suggested, things may, in time, definitely improve.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister has just become engaged, and is to be married in October. Now I am wondering which is proper: for us to invite the fiance's family to our home, or for them to invite us to their home? Which is correct?—P.M.

This question is a little bewered directly. For more important than the order-of-invitation is the order-of-calling. If, because of distance or other reasons, they cannot make this welcome-into-the-family call personally, they should write a welcoming letter, or telephone, if they wish. The girl's family return this welcoming call promptly or reply enthusiastically to the letter. These so-significant gestures establish the relationship between the two families.

Then either the fiance's family may invite the fiancee's family to dinner or lunch or other occasion, or the girl's family may invite the young man's family. It really isn't important who gives the first invitation. . . after that first welcoming-into-the-family formality has been observed.

A strange plan . . . to "eliminate" ushers at a church wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married at a morning church wedding. I plan to have a maid of honor and six bridesmaids. Is it necessary to have six ushers to pair off with the bridesmaids? I thought I might eliminate the six ushers by having the bridesmaids walk up the aisle in three pairs, and the same plan for the recessional, is this correct? If not, would you please suggest an alternative?—Jane.

I wonder why you are even considering such a strange plan. Aren't there going to be any wedding guests? If so, it is the important responsibility of the ushers to escort the guests to their seats. If you are to have a large church wedding, you should at least have two ushers, preferably more, for every hundred guests invited. For a medium-sized wedding, one usher for every twenty-five guests is usual. The bridesmaids are decorative, but ushers have an important job to do. Better "eliminate" the bridesmaids rather than the ushers!

A toast in response to a toast?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I had an engagement party, and someone proposed a toast to my fiance and me. Were we supposed to give a toast in return?—Nancy S.

No. It was not necessary for either of you to give a toast in response to the toast proposed to you. But generally at least, after everyone has drunk to the toast and set down. . . the fiance rises and says a few words of appreciation.

I.O.D.E. Sound Financially Report Shows

EDMONTON (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire reports receipts of $861,340.97 and disbursements of $909,575.98 during 1952-53.

In a report prepared for delivery at the opening business session of the 32rd annual meeting of the national chapter here today, Mrs. Peter Robinson, Toronto, national treasurer, said these amounts represented 329 chapters (one national eight provincial, 23 municipal, 873 primary and 13 junior chapters).

Cash and investments on hand Jan. 15, 1953 amounted to $1,336,-228.42, the bulk of which is held in trust for First and Second World War memorial scholarships and bursaries.

Mrs. Robinson reported that two study bedrooms, costing $1,500 each were endowed in London House, a residence in London, England, for British, Commonwealth and Empire students.

Imperial Year

Mrs. R. M. Walkey, Toronto, national organizing secretary, said that the order's total membership for 1953 was 21,656.

"Coronation year, should have special meaning to those interested in the objectives and expansion of the IODE," she said.

In the report of the national publicity committee, Mrs. O. L. Robb, Toronto, said that provincial annual reports showed an increase in publicity during the past year.

"The value of publicity to an organization such as the IODE can never be overestimated. If we are to develop its many undertakings and increase membership we must keep the public informed as to our principles and accomplishments," she said.

Reporting for the national hospitality committee, national convener Mrs. Hugh D. Aylward, Toronto, said the order now has representatives in the Victoria League (a British Commonwealth women's organization) in Africa in Johannesburg, Durban, Southern Rhodesia, Pietermaritzburg and in Adelaide, Australia.

"They have expressed their eagerness to extend hospitality to Canadians," she said.

From Down Under

An increase of visitors to Canada from Australia and New Zealand was reported by this committee.

Official welcomes were extended during the year by various chapters, to such persons and groups as:

Governor-General Vincount Massey; Prime Minister St. Laurent; Lady Baden-Powell, world chief guide; the Countess of Limerick, vice-president of the Uoffo# Kingdom Red Cross; students from abroad and new Canadians.

National secretary Mrs. C. G. Sinclair, Toronto, said in her report on the national executive committee that Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone, has consented to be honorary president of the IODE and to continue as the order's representative in Great Britain.

Mrs. Sinclair gave a brief summary of work done by the IODE chapters in Prince Edward Island, the Yukon, Newfoundland, Bahamas, Bermuda and the United States.

'ChristianAssociation' Topic at Study Guild

"Christian Association" was the topic of discussion at the regular meeting of the Women's Study Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. H. C. Selden, Bleecker Ave.

The worship service, dealing with the appropriate theme, "Triumph Through Faith," was led by Mrs. S. D. Scripture, and the business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Wm. Hurst, president.

"How men apply Christianity to their vocations?" — "there is nothing new about this," stated the program leader, Mrs. Harry Mills, "but we all need to consider the conscious application of God's purpose."

The testimony and experience of several men in various vocations were related by Mrs. Mills' assistants, Miss O. Elson, Miss A. Heasman and Mrs. W. Hunter. A noted physicist declared Christianity and scientific investigation went together most satisfactorily. A famous teacher felt the vocation of teaching was to felt the vocation of teaching to provide ecreatic opportunities to help others discover their vocations and in doing so to consider their responsibility for service to mankind.

A salesman, as manufacturer's agent, found outlet for Christian service in many live duties in the church of his choice.

Christian Calm

The owner of a structural steel business declared the practical application of Christianity could re-vitalize business, as that is its main purpose was to serve people.

This was demonstrated in the sale of its product at reasonable profits, the relationship of employer to employee and the occasion to show a Christian calm when "pushed around for time."

In conclusion it was pointed out that each one, in his more humble vocation, can demonstrate his Christianity to all those with whom he comes in contact by means of understanding, appreciation and kindliness, the first of these leading toward the other two.

"Let these qualities become second nature to us and we are achieving Christian evocation." Seven Aids

Seven aids of sources towards this goal were enumerated in summing up—the need for sharing Christian experience; the importance of an early Christian background; the power of prayer; the gift of the Holy Spirit; the need to work at the life of the Spirit at all times; the importance of setting a Christian example, and the fact that to serve God is the purpose of existence.

The Mizpah benediction closed the formal program, but informal discussion continued while the hostess and her committee served refreshments.

Duke, Duchess of Gloucester Have Big Part in Coronation

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The publicity-shy Duke and Duchess of Gloucester who share a residence toward big state occasions will be separated for a great part of the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

The petite, Scots-born Duchess will reach the abbey ahead of her husband, taking her place in the royal box before the Queen's arrival. The Duke will ride behind the Queen's carriage from Buckingham Palace to the abbey, and walk in the Queen's procession down the aisle behind Her Majesty. He will then take his place with the Dukes of Edinburgh and Kent.

The Duchess' ermine - trimmed purple train will be carried by a niece, Lady Caroline Gilmour.

At Three Coronations

The tall, soldierly Duke of Gloucester is, however, no novice at such ceremonies. When the young niece he has known from babyhood is crowned Elizabeth II, it will be the third British coronation he has witnessed in his 53 years.

As an 11-year-old schoolboy in 1911, he watched from the royal box at the coronation of his father, George V. In 1937 he walked up the aisle with his young wife to take his stand with the Royal Dukes at the coronation of his second brother, George VI.

The military Duke, whose regiments include the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps and Royal Winnipeg Rifles, has, however, always suffered from his shyness that has been characteristic of most of the Windsors. This kept him in the background even in the flapper days of the 1920s, when his older brothers enjoyed London's night life.

Collects Antiques

Then and now, the Duke prefers spending round back-street antique shops, building a collection that one day may approach in standards set by the rich collection gathered by the late Queen Mary. The Duke shared his mother's interest in antiques, learned much from her, and now is the most knowledgeable member of the Royal Family on the subject.

Such hobbies were not calculated to win popularity among the debutantes of his bachelor years. In fact, one flighty flapper dubbed him "the debutante's despair"—a title his brothers did not let him forget in a hurry. He was 35 before a childhood friendship led to romance and he married Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas - Scott, nearly two years his junior.

The Duchess' existence matched that of her husband, and they have established a quality of self-effacement whereby they take a full part in royal engagements, yet remain comparatively unnoticed. Few people not intimately connected with royalty, for instance, appreciate that the quiet figure stepping up behind the Queen on many state occasions is the Duchess of Gloucester.

Counsellor of State

As a senior Royal Duke with a powerful vote in all Royal Family matters, the Duke of Gloucester takes part in behind-the-scenes activities. When the Queen and her husband leave on such trips as the royal tour of Canada, the duke is senior counsellor of state.

The Gloucesters spend as much time at their country home, Barnwell Castle, Northamptonshire, as royal commitments permit, but with other members of the Royal Family they have a heavy schedule of public activities. Activities that will keep them at their London apartment in St. James's Palace.

They will take their place at such state functions as two Buckingham Palace garden parties, June 3 and 4, luncheons and dinners for overseas diplomats and royalty and a gala performance at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, at which the Queen will be present. They will preside at a dinner to be given by the Overseas League and Victoria League and for racing at Ascot they will stay with the Queen at Windsor Castle.

Coronation Kermis Nears Completion

With the Coronation Kermis now less than a week away, the recent meeting of the Contact Club of Christ Church was one of hustle and bustle and last minute arrangements. After a short business meeting, conducted by the president, Florence Lennox, Catherine Roulet, bazaar convener, then gave details of explanation of the pourpon of the booths and asked the booth conveners to make any special remarks about their own booths.

Unusual Exhibits

Besides the bazaar booths, refreshment, bar, popcorn booth, and games, an unusual and varied group of exhibits has been arranged. They include a sewing machine display of fashion stitches; floral arrangements; fishing lures and tackle; photography, and painting. Children will love the clown puppet, who will be there to talk to them.

To mark the theme of the Coronation Kermis, the superbly beautiful replica of the crown (by Paul Mercier) will have a prominent place, and will be flanked by a display of Canadian flags.

To Be Officially Opened

A most important feature of the Kermis will be the official opening. The Contact Club is happy to announce that Frank Folwell, M.P., has graciously consented to perform this office.

Every member of the club is looking forward to an enjoyable evening, the culmination of many weeks' work, and they hope the Kermis will be well received by the public.

This last meeting before the Kermis was marked by another farewell to a member. Jeanne Jackson made the presentation to Betty Fraser, who is leaving Belleville soon.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Evelyn Wareham, Marnie Meades and Joan Taylor.

YOUNG TRAVELLER

HALIFAX (CP)—Among Canadians sailing for the Coronation was 14-year-old Peter Burbury, son of Col. and Mrs. T. E. Burbury of Barss Corner. The boy, travelling alone, will spend Coronation week in London before visiting his grandfather's home in Surrey.

Romance of Queen, Philip Said To be Real Love Match

When Elizabeth II is crowned next Tuesday her husband will kneel before her and speak his homage as her "liege man of life and limb." Here is the story of the romance that made Philip the Queen's consort. This is the third of five articles on the Queen's life.

By JAMES F. KING

LONDON (AP)—Elizabeth was only four years old when the first speculation about her husband-to-be began under the ungrammatical headline in a London newspaper: "Who will the princess marry?"

The publicity on her heart affair never ceased until millions by radio heard her soft-spoken marriage vows.

In spite of this the romance of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip of Greece was a real love match by all accounts. The intriguing by political matchmakers, which so often has beset royal romancing down through history, in this instance was all in the direction of making love's path smoother.

Just when it began no one is quite sure. The chances are that Elizabeth and Philip had met even before the first headline appeared speculating on her future husband.

Both Are Great-great-grandchildren of Victoria

Both are great-great-grandchildren of Queen Victoria. They grew up in the same circle and undoubtedly attended the same children's parties. But Philip, five years older, was more interested in ships than girls at that age.

"When I grow up," he was said to tell everyone, "I'm going to be a naval officer like my uncle Dickie."

Uncle Dickie is Admiral Lord Mountbatten, dashing cousin of Elizabeth's father.

The princess was only 16 and Philip was a cadet at the naval college at Dartmouth when they made the first important date together. Elizabeth went with her parents for the presentation of the "King's dirk" to the prince as the top member of his class. The fair-haired, six-foot prince and the princess saw a lot of each other that weekend, and out of the exciting grew a letter-writing relationship that continued through the war years.

Philip was careful to arrange his naval leaves so that they coincided with parties the blue-eyed princess might be attending.

Have Handicaps

"But royal romances have their handicaps. Even after Elizabeth was sure Philip had won her heart, protocol dictated that they must not be seen together in public too often. Post-war night-club visits usually in groups of six or more—meant only a couple of dances together.

Word leaked out that an autographed photograph of the bearded Philip in his naval lieutenant's uniform had a prominent place on her dressing table.

Philip had none of the drawbacks of the German, Prince Albert, who became the consort of Queen Victoria. Nevertheless there were some political considerations to overcome.

Philip was a refugee, a Greek prince, and he was baptized in the Greek Orthodox Church. He was sixth in line for the Greek throne.

Philip was born in Corfu but has no Greek blood. He is a grandson of Prince William of Denmark who accepted Greece's throne in 1863 as George I. He is a descendant of Queen Victoria on the maternal side.

Philip was brought to England as a one-year-old by his uncle Dickie after a rebel Greek government forced another uncle, King Constantine, to abdicate. He was brought up as a typical aristocratic school boy and in the Anglican faith. In the Second World War he took part in Mediterranean fighting in a number of ships and served on convoy duty around the world.

As a 20th - century princess, Elizabeth was free to marry of her own free choosing with two restrictions. The throne's ties with the Church of England barred her from marrying a Roman Catholic, and she could not marry without the King's consent.

Taken For Granted

Close friends took the engagement for granted when Philip spent his summer holiday with the Royal Family at Balmoral Castle in Scotland, and then took out British citizenship and renounced his Greek title in the winter of 1946-47.

But palace officials, sensitive about the private life of the heiress presumptive to the throne, were issuing denials of any impending marriage.

The only palace announcement was that Princess Elizabeth was going on a four-month tour of South Africa with the King and Queen. A love-sick girl took off on the battleship Vanguard for the long journey to meet Zulu warriors and other polyglot future subjects.

She carried off her role well, in line with her training, and won the affection of the South Africans, though there were times when she was bored. She complained about meeting so few young people.

"One would think they almost forgot that Margaret and I were coming when they planned the program," she said.

The cold war was beginning and Elizabeth came of age during the South African tour. In a broadcast from Capetown on her 21st birthday she gave this pledge:

"My whole life, whether it be long or short, shall be devoted to the service of the great imperial family to which we all belong."

Anxious to See France

Like any young girl in love, she was anxious to see her fiance, now just plain Lieut. Philip Mountbatten. And she let out with a few dance steps on the quarterdeck and hummed, "People will say we're in Love." When the Vanguard docked at journey's end.

Elizabeth was sure in her mind, and within two months, on July 10, 1947, the palace officially announced the engagement.

Winston Churchill sounded the theme in the House of Commons: "Millions will welcome this joyous event as a flash of color on the hard road we have to travel."

On the eve of the wedding, the King conferred a title on his future son-in-law, "His Royal Highness, the Duke of Edinburgh."

A world radio audience heard the ceremony in Westminster Abbey Nov. 20, 1947. Elizabeth promised with trembling lips in the traditional words of the Church of England service "to love, cherish and to obey" her husband.

MEXICANS STRIKE

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP)—A strike by 60,000 foundry workers threatened today to paralyze Mexico's iron and steel production. Company officials blamed Communist agitators for the strike call. The workers voted Tuesday night to reject a contract their leaders had signed and announced they would quit their jobs at noon. The contract provided a 15-per-cent salary increase and other benefits.

Moira Camporee For Boy Scouts Most Successful

Last Saturday some sixty Scouts, Rovers and Leaders assembled at Point Ann for a week-end camping. The Moira Camporee swung into action at 4 o'clock with the patrols selecting their own camp site and erecting their tents and preparing the camp sites. The purpose of the camp was to see how well Scouts use their training and to what practical use they put their camping knowledge. A Camporee is first and last the boy's show. The leaders being on hand merely to observe, to act as judges and to test the boys in the various methods they carry out. Each unit is self-contained, and under the supervision of patrol leaders carry out their program erecting shelters, building stoves, lighting fires, cooking their own meals, compass work, signalling, safety, first aid, nature study, etc., and working on projects of their own.

Regional Field Commissioner, Art Jackson, visited the camp with a view through to another Camporee at Christie Lake and remarked to Camp Chief and District Commissioner Don Allan that the patrols were doing an excellent job.

District Commissioner Archie Lewis of Belleville visited the camp both days. The commissioner addressed the boys and congratulated them on the fine Scout spirit they were showing. In a few excellent manner in which they had prepared their camp sites and the demonstration of their practical knowledge of scouting low. Mr. Lewis welcomed the patrols from Corbyville and Carrying Place and expressed the hope that the next year would see several more patrols taking part in the Belleville and district camporee.

Enthusiasm Not Dampened

One of the highlights of any camp is the council fire held after sundown at which each unit contributed a song or a skit. The cool evening did not in any way dampen the enthusiasm or high spirits of the boys or the quality of their performance. Scouter Bernard Fox contributed to the program with his Oompah section. After the council fire, the boys were served hot cocoa and cookies and were rewarded by Scouter Willis Jackson with several lively rubs on his heels. In spite of an ample supply of fresh milk at camp, a considerable herd of Holstein cows attended the boys and, wandered from tent to tent to see if the boys were properly provided for.

The boys were up early Sunday morning and at 9:30 had their Scouts Own'open air service ably conducted by Scouter Bill Fetter assisted by Scouter Willis Jackson. The Roman Catholic Scouts attended Mass at the Point Anne Church. After the church service the boys were kept busy on their projects until one o'clock.

Carries More Than It Weighs

A new world record for loads carried by a single-engine aircraft was believed to have been established by a Skyraider attack bomber at the Dallas, Tex., station before 500 members of the Aviation Writers' Association attending the national convention heard. The Korea-famed bomber carried a useful load of 14,941 pounds, which included three 2,000-pound bombs, six 250-pound bombs, and six 500-pound bombs, plus guns and ammunition — a load greater than the plane's basic structural weight. — Central Press Canadian.

Shortly after lunch camp was struck and camp sites were cleaned up. Late in the afternoon the patrols gathered in a horseshoe to hear the results of their competitions. Scouter Bill Fetter then called on Camp Chief A. D. C. Don Allen, who addressing the assembly said that he wanted to thank Mr. Leggett of the Canada Cement Company for the use of their property and to express his own appreciation and the sincere thanks of all Scouts, Rovers and Scouters for the use of this grand campsite.

Don Allan said that it was through the splendid co-operation of all Scouts that this camporee was made possible, and he thanked every Scouter for the efforts that he put into the camporee, particularly Scouters Bill Fetter of the 8th Belleville and Bernard Fox of the 5th Belleville, who handled the organization of the camporee; the Rovers and Scouters who assisted at the camporee, and Rover Harry Smith for providing transportation for the headquarters equipment and setting up and looking after the first aid camp. He also thanked the friends of Scouting who aided in bringing the Scouts to the camporee in their cars. The results of the camporee were then announced and the 1st Corbyville Beaver Patrol, 2nd Belleville Snake Patrol, 4th Belleville Beaver Patrol, each earned a Class "A" award.

The 1st Carrying Place Wolf Cub Pow-wow Patrol, 1st Belleville Wolf Patrol and 5th Belleville Moose Patrol earned Class "B" awards, while the 5th Belleville Owl Patrol, 4th Belleville Chicks-See Patrol, 3rd Belleville Eagle Patrol earned Class "C" awards. Don Allan then called on the District Commissioner to make the presentation of the Pollwell Trophy to the patrol attaining the highest number of points at the camporee.

The Commissioner before making the presentation told the boys that it was the wish of the recipient for Hastings, Mr. Frank Pollwell, that the trophy be put up for annual competition at the camporee and that it would be open to boys not only in Belleville but boys from the surrounding area. Archie Lewis then called on Patrol Leader George Mapes, Scouter Bill Fetter then called on Beaver Patrol to step forward for the presentation of the trophy and said that he was very pleased to know that the recently formed Corbyville Troop under Scoutmaster Ken Richards had been able to make such good progress in so short a time. After giving out crests to all the boys who attended the 1953 Moira Camporee, Don Allan said that it had been a privilege to have been Camp Chief and to have lived with the Scouts during the week-end. "Your scouting spirit and co-operation have been of highest calibre and my congratulations on the fine showing you have made. Good luck and good scouting." Then with the flag flown-ing and a prayer, the camporee was closed.

PICTON

10th Anniversary Of Rotary Club Is Observed

Picton—Tenth anniversary of the founding of Picton Rotary Club was observed at the week's meeting when the early days and the record of progress were recalled. The charter president, K. F. Williams, and charter secretary, Ross Attersley, were asked by president Gordon Campbell to take office for the meeting. Minutes of the original meeting were read. It was revealed that there were 18 charter members, ten of whom are still members, three have died and the others resigned due to ill health or removal.

Charter treasurer John Arnaud reported that during the ten years, net receipts had totalled $51,016, of this, $16,041 was expended for underprivileged children; $13,672 for community work, $13,163 for other expenses.

Many Projects

Work included $1,861 for overseas cigarettes and parcels; $1,450 for rural and urban projects including calf and poultry clubs; $1,700 to the community centre; $2,016 to boys' camps; $440 for Christmas boxes; $1,826 in various donations.

Chairman of the Crippled Children's committee, A. R. Grindrod who has held that office since 1946, succeeding the late Dr. Carl Bronson and A. F. Brown, of the $18,043 expended, individual cases had ranged in cost from $25 to $875, $985 and $1,400, patients ranging from 4 months to 15 years of age. Cases included amputation, bow legs, crossed eyes, deformed feet, various injuries also providing of glasses, special shoes, splints and plasma.

Some special cases which required treatment at the Hospital for Sick Children on the recommendation of local doctors included removal of tonsils and adenoids, followed by a heart operation; tubercular knee successfully taken care of at a cost of $1,397; heart operation for "blue" condition on girl of 15 successful; fatty growth on spine removed.

Cases Cost More

Due to increased hospital costs, cases now take more money, Mr. Grindrod said in urging support of this fund.

Tribute to Mr. Grindrod's efforts were paid by Mr. Williams. This work has been recognized by Mr. Grindrod's appointment as a director of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Clare Morgan, Belleville who with H. W. Ackerman, also of Belleville, was instrumental in forming the Picton Club, introduced guest speaker W. J. Morrison of that city, a past president of the Belleville club and former principal O.S.D. The ideals and benefits of Rotary were stressed by the speaker. The motto, "He profits most who serves the best" does not mean returns in money but personal satisfaction in putting service before self. While the latter is difficult to get into, it is easy to get out of, since it is no place for drones or those who join for personal advantage.

Mr. Morrison recalled that Stan Mortial started in the National Baseball League in 1941 at a salary of $4,000. In the last two years he has received $80,000 a year. When young he played for nothing and was glad to have the chance. This led the speaker to believe that there is a tendency today to do too much for people. If places are provided and a certain amount of supervision provided, boys are able to do for themselves, he said.

Appreciation Expressed

Expressing appreciation, R. L. Perkin said he could recall in speech ten years ago by Mr. Morrison, which had been titled, "Litters and Leaners" few speeches are remembered that long.

Prince Edward cheese were presented to Mr. Morrison and to Mr. Morgan.

H. W. Ackerman was also present and congratulated the club on its work.

Acting president of the Belleville Club presenting a minute book to the local club. It was recalled that the same club gave Picton its gong.

Members of the local club were invited to meet at Belleville on June 11 when Watertown, Alexandria Bay and Clayton, N.Y., Rotarians will be guests.

President Campbell expressed thanks to charter members and past officers who had contributed to the success of the club during the year.

Text of Queen's Address To Parliamentary Assoc.

LONDON (AP)—The text of the speech by the Queen to the luncheon of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association in Westminster Hall yesterday:

I thank you all most sincerely for the kind way in which you have drunk my health. I thank you also, Mr. (Harold R.) Holt, for this most interesting book, which you have just given me on behalf of your fellow members of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

I was delighted to accept the invitation of the association to be their guest today, for it gives me this opportunity of welcoming my prime ministers and ministers and the many other parliamentary representatives from our great Commonwealth of nations.

On the eve of his own Coronation, 18 years ago, my dear father also met in Westminster Hall those who represented the legislatures of the Commonwealth. I am indeed glad to follow his example.

It is a stirring thought that all these legislatures are descended from the assembly which first met under this roof nearly seven centuries ago.

We stand here in the palace of Westminster which is the home of the mother of parliaments. Of the many ties linking this family of nations not the least is that system of parliamentary government which is common to us all.

I have vivid memories of my visits during my father's lifetime to Commonwealth parliaments overseas, and I am looking forward with pleasure to seeing others during my forthcoming tour.

To this great association I offer my best wishes for the success of their coming deliberations. I hope that all of you whose homes are overseas will have a very happy and enjoyable stay in this country.

Cutworms In the Garden

TORONTO — Practically all field and garden crops are subject to attack by cutworms in the spring. Vegetable and flower seedlings and transplants, newly emerged seedlings of shrubs and trees, young shoots of various corms, bulbs and perennial flowering plants, all are eaten by these pests, says C. H. Gonnald, Entomologist, Insect Laboratory, Saskatoon.

Spring cutworms are fleshy, softbodied, dull-colored, hairless caterpillars that usually curl up and remain motionless when disturbed. When full grown they are about 1¼ to 2 inches long. The upper half of the body is generally a darker shade than the under half and may vary with the different species from nearly colorless to almost black.

Most damage is caused by cutworms feeding on the stems or shoots at or just below the soil surface, and either severing them completely or damaging them so severely that the stems fall over and die.

Poisoned bran bait is the common material used in controlling most spring cutworms that feed on the surface at night to feed. The bait is easy to prepare and apply, and when properly used is very effective.

Bait Formula

A satisfactory bait for all parts of Canada is prepared as follows: 1 gallon bran, 2 tablespoons paris green, water, to moisten, about 1½ to 2 pints.

Mix the dry bran and paris green together slowly thoroughly. Then while stirring the poisoned bran, slowly add water until moisture will ooze between the fingers when a handful of the bran is squeezed.

Experiments in Saskatchewan indicate that chlordane and chlorinated camphene are better poisons than paris green for the redbacked cutworm, and baits are easier to prepare. Dr. McDonald believes they should be just as satisfactory in other parts of Canada, and probably for any species for which the paris green bait is recommended.

With this bait, paris green is replaced with chlordane, 40 per cent emulsion, not less than 3 tablespoons or 1½ fluid ounces. Or, if chlorinated camphene is used, the quantity is 4½ tablespoons or 2½ fluid ounces of a 50 per cent emulsion. Mix the water and liquid poison together thoroughly and then stir into the bran as described above.

The fresh bait should be spread just before dark on a warm evening when the temperature is 60 degrees F. or higher. If temperatures are suitable, baiting soon after a rain or an artificial watering has soaked in is especially satisfactory. Cutworms come to the surface more readily when it is damp than when the soil is loose and dry.

Bait should be broadcast thinly and uniformly over the area. The quantity given will cover about 400 square yards of garden. When spread in this way and without lumps, there is no danger to livestock, poultry or pets.

IODE Executive Says Polish Legation Forming Red Centres

EDMONTON (CP)—A national president of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire charged Monday night that the Polish legation in Ottawa has been instrumental in forming new communist centres throughout Canada.

Following a speech to the national IODE convention here, Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, MBE, referred her claim to an article which appeared recently in the "Reader's Digest." The monthly publication, edited by Kenneth Dancey of London, is published simultaneously in London and New York.

Mrs. Detwiler, convener of the IODE's special research committee formerly tagged the "anti-Communist committee" — stated that Communists infiltrating throughout Canada considered the country now to be "in a state of agitation which culminates revolutionary Strength Increasing

The strength of the Communist movement in Canada, she said, was increasing through warterist activities and what she called "front groups." There were now well over 50,000 Communists in Canada.

Referring to a February, 1953, issue of the "National Affairs Monthly" journal of the Labor-Progressive party in Canada—she said Canadian Communists were strongly opposed to any proposed amendment to bill 93 of the Criminal Code.

An amendment to this bill would make Communists liable for prosecution for alleged subversive activities in the country, a plank which had existed in Canada only as a result of special wartime restrictions.

Established in 1947

The first Communist-sponsored school, she said, was not among those exposed recently in Winnipeg areas, but was established in Saskatchewan in 1949. Asked later to explain her statement, she again referred to the National Affairs Monthly.

Mrs. Detwiler said the Labor-Progressive party is the Communist party in Canada. Its procedures were based on those of the Soviet Union and it took its orders from Moscow.

Communists in Canada had openly declared that they were ready to proceed with the "gradual transition" from what they called "socialism" to communism, she said."

The main communistic influences throughout Canada were to be found among Hungarian groups in Toronto, Czechoslovak groups in Montreal and Finnish groups in Winnipeg. However, she added it declared that these were only generalities.

The vice-president concluded by saying that no Canadian organization was so well equipped to combat communism as the IODE.

RED CHINESE IN ACT

TAIPEH (AP)— A Chinese Nationalist news agency said today Chinese Communist soldiers took part in the Vietminh invasion of the Indo-China kingdom of Laos last month. Hospitals in Kwangsi province bordering Indo-China were crowded with wounded Vietminh and Red Chinese troops, the interior ministry's Ta Tao news agency said.

Ont. Assessment Act Criticized

HAMILTON (CP)—Criticism of Ontario's 'Assessment Act was voiced yesterday by Martin H. Laird of St. Catharines, president of the Association of Assessing Officers of Ontario, as its annual meeting opened here.

His address followed an invocation and welcomes from acting mayor Leslie Parker and warden William E. Dunham of Wentworth county. M. G. E. Danby of Sault Ste. Marie responded.

Mr. Laird criticized Section 33 of the act for telling assessors to assess land at its present actual value but at the same time suggesting that other factors, such as normal rental value, normal resale value and present use, be taken into consideration.

JOINT CELEBRATION

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Celebration of this city's diamond jubilee is being combined with Coronation festivities June 2 and 3. The provincial government contributed $2,000 and the city provided $1,500 for a program of parades, fireworks, sports events and dances.

Must Have Iron Nerves, Will To Remain Batsman on Carrier

ABOARD MAGNIFICENT (CP) —A man must have iron nerves and iron will to become and remain a batsman on an aircraft carrier.

If the operation of a warship could be said to hinge on one man at all, that man on this flattop would be either Lieut. Bob Williamson of Port Stanley, Ont., or Lieut. Bob Falls of St. Thomas, Ont., the two batsmen aboard.

Though Fort Stanley and St. Thomas are only some 10 miles apart, Williamson and Falls hadn't met until they took up "batting."

The batsman, standing at the after corner of the flight deck, signals the carrier's aircraft home. With two brightly-colored paddles he tells the pilot whether he is too high or too low, too near one side or the other, whether he is approaching too fast or slow, when to cut the engines for the actual drop on or whether he should go around again for another try.

A batsman never is allowed as much as one mistake. He must always, without fail, be right. Not only may a mistake cost lives but it will wreck the pilots' confidence in the batsman and possibly destroy the effectiveness of the squadron's standards.

Matter of Temperament

Williamson claims that it's all a matter of temperament. Even to think of becoming a batsman, a man must have had the flying experience, and have such confidence in his knowledge of aircraft that he knows he's going to be right every time.

Details of all the landings on the Magnificent are noted by the batsman who carefully goes over details with the pilot concerned if is painstaking work but it helps to maintain confidence in the two-way operations.

Williamson, who has been flying for more than a decade and trained in his present job for six months in Florida, says the batsman strains every nerve to get every plane in on its first approach.

Often there are split-second decisions to be made, decisions which must be right.

Williamson and Falls both keep flying so that they are familiar with any type of plane which might settle on the carrier.

Main Street Becomes Royal Mile as Canadian Communities Decorate for The Coronation

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Main Street across Canada is taking on the appearance of a royal mile as Coronation Day approaches.

Most communities, a Canadian Press survey found today, are hanging out their banners and bunting with a lavishness that in some cases surpasses the decoration for the royal tour of 1951.

The bright finery on civic buildings, business places and citizens' homes is designed to shine in the spring sunshine with all the splendor of the new reign whose commencement it marks.

Many more flags, pennants, coats of arms and illuminated displays are due to be set out before the celebration reaches its climax Tuesday with march-pasts, artillery salutes and fireworks spectacles.

Clubs Lapped Plus

The Winnipeg Free Press claims today the Union Jack flying on its Carlston street buildings for the Coronation is the largest in the Commonwealth. Measuring 27 by 54 feet, it was specially made in Liverpool and flown for the first time on the occasion of Canada's diamond jubilee at nationhood, July 1, 1927.

Floodlights with huge reflectors illuminate Quebec City's main provincial legislative building on the Grand Allee, adding nighttime brilliance to the display of flags and coats of arms.

A giant fireworks display over the historic Plains of Abraham, where Gen. James Wolfe won Canada for Britain in 1759, is scheduled for Coronation night.

New Standards Wave

New flags and standards wave from light posts along Windsor streets. Department stores and other business places in that western Ontario city opposite Detroit are going all out on patriotic decoration.

In Ottawa, red, white and blue bunting have been draped about the Peace Tower on the Parliament Buildings. Gaiety is the keynote of Montreal's decorations. Downtown Toronto is ablaze with flags and bunting on a scale larger than that seen during the royal visit. A long line of flags across three storeys of the Ontario legislature building.

Banners and drapes of royal purple and gold appeared this week on Alberta's legislature buildings and on two large government administration buildings in the same areas. In a prominent place in the display section of the legislative buildings' rotunda are large portraits of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Channel Given For TV Station At Kingston

OTTAWA (CP)—The transport department has cut the number of available television channels in Toronto, Montreal and ottawa in a move to provide channels for three smaller centres—Kingston and Kitchener in Ontario, and Sherbrooke, Que.

The shuffle, announced Wednesday by Transport Minister Chevrier, also involved Hamilton, which gained one channel and lost another.

All the channels involved in the transfers were on the standard VHF (very high frequency) band. In effect, the changes gave a VHF channel to the three smaller centres, which formerly had only UHF channels on the less-used UHF (ultra high frequency) band.

The transfers were: Channel 11 to Kingston from Ottawa; channel 11 to Hamilton from Toronto; channel 12 to Kitchener from Hamilton; and channel seven to Sherbrooke from Montreal.

The only television stations now in operation in Canada are single stations in Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa, all operated by the publicly-owned CBC.

Mr. Chevrier's statement indicated the channel switches are designed to ease the establishment of privately-owned TV stations in Kingston, Kitchener and Sherbrooke. The CBC has had planned stations at those points.

START FOREST SPRAYING

CAMPBELLTON, N.B. (CP)—This year's spraying campaign against the spruce budworm in northern New Brunswick forests began Wednesday when 20 aircraft sprayed 14,000 gallons of insecticide in three hours. Only one of six wilderness airstrips was used for the start of the $3,000,000 operation. As it continues, 77 spraying planes will be aloft at various times. About 1,500,000 acres are to be covered.

New Agreement With Chrysler Is Completed

By GLENON ENGLE

DETROIT (AP)—A new agreement with Chrysler Corp. has all but wrapped up the CIO United Auto Workers' drive for wage and pension improvements in the union's five-year contracts with the auto industry's big three producers.

After only nine hours of negotiations, Chrysler and the UAW came to terms Wednesday night on a contract amendments matching the best granted within the last five days by Ford Motor and General Motors.

Chrysler, as Ford did on Monday, went beyond the pace-setting General Motors terms of last Friday by boosting maximum pensions to $137.50 a month and companies pay everything above primary social security benefits of $85 a month.

Otherwise the Chrysler amendments are virtually identical to those made by both GM and Ford. Rejected First Round

After the new Chrysler changes were announced the UAW got in touch with General Motors again and asked it to bring its pension plan up to the Ford and Chrysler levels. GM, which has maximum $130-a-month pension, rejected the union's previous demand for a boost to restore the pensioners' purchasing power as of 950, when all three contracts were signed.

A tight secrecy was clamped on the latest GM-UAW talks.

The Chrysler contract improvements, effective June, will apply to 114,000 hourly-rated 6,000 salaried employees and to about 7,000 pensioners. Robert W. Conder, Chrysler vice-president in charge of industrial relations, said they will add $7,000,000 a year to the payroll.

$2,000 BANK HOLDUP

MONTREAL (CP)—An armed man walked into the Peel street branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia Wednesday and took about $2,000 from a bedly-frightened girl teller. Bank officials said the holdup took place so quietly that the girl, Jacqueline Julian, was the only person who noticed it.

SHORTHORN SALE BRISK

LUCKNOW, Ont. (CP)—The annual Scotch Shorthorn sale, consigned by W. T. Gilbert and Sons of RR 1, Dungannon, Andrew C. Grant and Sons, RR 1, Lucknow, and Clifford H. Keys and Sons, Varna, was well attended and buying was brisk.

The 37 cattle offered by auction brought $64,350. Top female sold was for $1,000 and was bought by W. H. Merry of Oakville.

London's Tornado Relief Fund Being Organized

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Ida Lead, 72, of East Nissouri township, near Kinloss, became the fifth victim of last week's tornado when she died in hospital here Wednesday.

She suffered severe shock after seeing the home of her two sons, with whom she lived, and their large barns blown away, and had been in serious condition since.

London's tornado relief fund will go to those who need assistance regardless of where they live, officials said as Western Ontario organized on a town-to-town or more to aid storm-blasted homes and farms.

Mayor W. C. Nelson of Sarnia said that all contributions received by Sarnia would be kept for the city's own relief fund unless donors specified that they were to be used by the central London fund for general relief purposes.

London Club of Canada decided at Strathroy to set up a fund for financial assistance to the storm victims.

Besides donations from the 15 clubs in the region, money will be sought from other clubs across Canada. While no definite object was set, it was noted that Lions in Canada raised $70,000 for European Flood relief.

Dr. Ivan Wyatt, director of Industrial Relations Counsellors, New York, warned that a guaranteed basic annual wage for labor in industry would destroy the economic conditions necessary for prosperity.

Employers should protect their workers' jobs, but they should also make sure the workers understood the effect of wage concessions upon their businesses.

Dr. French said that joint union-management administration of guarantee funds may lead to labor demand for; authority in areas of action which have previously been those of management, such as plant location, capital investment and even pricing and purchasing.

English and French trade terms should be taught to immigrants by Canadian industries if they wish to make full use of the immigrants skill. Col. Laval Fortier, deputy minister of citizenship and immigration, said.

More than 800,000 immigrants had entered Canada since the end of the Second World War, he added, and the government's policy has always been to bring skilled and professional workers to Canada as quickly as they could be absorbed.

CURTAIN FALLS

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (CP)—The annual performance of Hamlet at Elsinore, where Hamlet lived and died, has been cancelled. The theatre company said it lacked sufficient cash and government subsidies.

Scientist Predicts Advances In Peace-Time Use of A-Energy When New Reactor Is Built

TORONTO (CP)—One of Canada's top atomic scientists said today that Canadian scientists will "make even greater advances" in the peaceful application of atomic energy when a new reactor is built at Chalk River, Ont.

Dr. D. A. Keys of Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, a Crown corporation, said:

"Our NRX reactor (at Chalk River) has been described by leading authorities in the United States and Great Britain as one of the most advanced designs in existence."

Speaking to the 42nd annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, he said atomic energy offered a challenge to engineers and scientists to develop a new source of fuel. "It has been estimated that if the present rate of consumption of our natural fuel continues, then by the year 2000, much of the oil, gas and economically-recoverable coal will have been consumed."

Member Says Govt. 'Ruined' Export Market

ST. THOMAS (CP)—George Hees, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Northview, charged Wednesday night that the federal government has "ruined" Canada's export market by its "short-sighted policies."

"Undoubtedly the reason why the government is planning a summer election for the first time in almost 100 years is so that the people will not have a chance to realize the seriousness of its blundering export trade policy before they go to the polls," Mr. Hees said.

In a speech prepared for the Elgin County Progressive Conservative Association, he said the government should call for a Commonwealth conference to discuss trade issues specifically to prevent further discrimination in Canada's foreign markets.

JAILED FOR CATTLE THEFT

BRAMPTON (CP)—Stanley Hayes 37, and Murray Butler, 48, both of Toronto, were sentenced Wednesday to six months in reformatory on charges of cattle theft. A third man, John Perdue, 38, of nearby Caledon East, received a stand trial in higher court on the same charge. Police said Hayes admitted theft of 12 head of cattle from the farm of Elgin Banks last Nov. 9 and 25 head from Murray Bros. Butler was convicted of taking part in the theft from the Banks' farm.

Commissioner Says Hog Cholera Epidemic Not Over

GUELPH (CP)—Thousands of pigs have been sold through the community sales where the, cholera epidemic apparently had its beginning, livestock commissioner W.F. Watson said Wednesday.

He told a meeting of agricultural representatives it is "quite possible" that Ontario has not seen the last of the epidemic.

All sales are quarantined and probably will be for about three months after the last outbreak. Some dogs which m..y have been exposed to the disease have gone as far away as Quebec and are scattered throughout the province.

Some sources predict that restrictions will be in effect until the fall. At present, movement of hogs outside Ontario is banned from counties west of Hastings.

BANCROFT

Col. Widdifield Inspects H.S. Cadet Corps

BANCROFT — At the third annual inspection of the North Hastings High School Cadet Corps held on Friday in the school grounds, Inspecting Officer Lt.-Col. Widdifield, O.C. of R. and P. E. Regt., expressed himself as pleased and proud that such a fine group was affiliated to his regiment.

After taking the salute at the march past, the colonel showed great interest in the groups' display of fieldcraft, map reading, small arms drill and first aid.

Postal Department Planning New Set of Stamps

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office department, somewhat discouraged by its new postage stamps of the Queen, is planning a new set.

The stamps currently on sale in one-to-five-cent denominations, and the special Coronation four-center which goes on sale Monday have drawn numerous complaints and considerable criticism. Walter Turnbull, deputy postmaster-general, said Tuesday.

"We can't say we're entirely happy about the new stamps," he said in an interview.

The department doesn't plan to withdraw the issue and has approximately a six-months supply. The stamps probably will last until November, but it may be well on into the new year before there is a new Queen Elizabeth issue to replace them.

It took 18 months to produce the present issue. One week after the death of King George VI, post office officials conferred on selection of a paragraph of the Queen from which a model of the stamp could be produced.

They chose a photo by Karsh of Ottawa and checked it with the Queen, who is reported to have been delighted. There were consultations with the Canadian Bank Note Company, which holds the contract for producing all Canadian stamps, with artists and photographers of good standing, and with officers of the National Gallery.

Reinstatement Refused

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—An umpire Tuesday ruled against the reinstatement of Cornelius Steers, one of 32 Ford of Canada employees fired during the widest strike in 1951. Steers' case was the last to come before the umpire.

The decision was handed down by Judge Harold E. Fuller of Welland, who was called in to settle this final case.

Of the 32 cases, 20 discharges were substantiated, nine employees were ordered reinstated with penalties and three ordered reinstated without penalties.

Steers, a plant committee man, failed to appear before the umpire earlier although an appeal was entered on his behalf by local 200, United Automobile Workers, (CIO). The charge against him and several others who were dismissed was that they sabotaged the company powerhouse and cut off power supply.

Five were killed and two were injured. All were employed by the Meteor Air Transport Company of Teterboro, N.J., which operated the airliner. CMA Head Sees Bright Future For Canadian Economy Even If Defence Spending Sharply Cut

TORONTO (CP)—G. K. Shells, CMG, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, today predicted a bright future for the Canadian economy—even if defence spending is sharply reduced.

In a speech prepared for the 53rd annual general meeting of the association here, he answered the question: "What is going to happen to Canada's economy when the support of defence orders is withdrawn?"

He said he does not believe that Western statesmen are so gullible as to cancel or substantially reduce arms spending "merely because the Kremlin is making certain conciliatory gestures."

But if arms spending were cut off "the end result would be tremendously beneficial."

The federal budget for 1953 earmarks 42 per cent of all tax revenues for defence purposes—roughly about $2,000,000,000. Without defence spending, the government could effect a substantial reduction in taxes.

"The relief which would thus be granted to the consumer taxpayer would make it possible for him to increase his purchases of a wide range of articles." Manufacturers would have more funds to expand and reorganize to meet the increased demand.

If defence spending were cut sharply in the United States, a similar reduction in taxes might be delayed because the U. S. now is spending more money than it collects in taxes, he said.

U. S. manufacturers then might ask for more "protection" to keep out foreign—including Canadian—goods and try to sell more goods in Canada. If U. S. "protection" involved the use of "internationally illegal quotas or prohibitions" the Canadian government "must actively contest itself with writing notes of protest."

Dr. Shells did not suggest what specific action should be taken.

Canada had "lived well within the spirit and the letter of her understandings" in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, but the United States continued to use its Customs Act to prevent "any serious competition from Canada or any other 'foreign' nation."

Canada should "at the very least, 'mark time' in her march toward the Elysian fields of international free trade until the stragglers caught up with her."

SEEK PAY INCREASE

OSHAWA (CP)—The United Auto Workers of America (CIO-CCL) opened negotiations at the General Motors plant here Tuesday for a supplementary pay increase. Under a five-year contract which runs until June, 1955, GM employees receive a guaranteed annual increase of three cents an hour. The union wants the guaranteed annual increase boosted to four cents an hour.

Weekly Earnings In Ont. Higher Than Last Year

TORONTO (CP)—Industrial employment, payrolls and average weekly earnings in Ontario so far this year are all higher than the record level for the same period last year, the Ontario bureau of statistics and research announces.

In its economic review of Ontario, the bureau reports that production of most goods is well above 1952 figures, notably in the electrical appliances and automobile fields, with increases of 36.7 per cent and 16.7 per cent respectively.

Prices at retail and wholesale levels are lower to date than for the same period last year.

Farm prices show a drop of 11.4 per cent. Retail trade in the province for the first quarter of 1953 was eight per cent higher than for the same period last year. Largest dollar increases were in appliances and radio, 36.7 per cent, and furniture, 16.8 per cent.

Employment in manufacturing industries at the beginning of March was 8.3 per cent higher than at the same time last year, average weekly earnings were $62.36, up $3.79, and payrolls were up 15.3 per cent.

Clothing Found Believed Worn By Gunman

PORTLAND, Ont. (CP)—Police, combing this eastern Ontario area for a "paper bag gunman" who robbed the local branch of the Royal Bank of $4,676 Monday, found a bundle of clothing Tuesday believed worn by the fugitive.

The clothing was found at the side of the highway running through the village, between the bank and a nearby church.

The bandit entered the bank just before closing time, ordered two customers to lie on the floor, shoved a paper shopping bag through the teller's window and ordered the acting manager, John Coulter of Montreal, to fill it with money. He then fled.

23 Trawlers of Portuguese Fishing Fleet in Harbor

By STEVE HERDER
Canadian Press Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Twenty-three salt-stained trawlers of the Portuguese fishing fleet have arrived here to take on supplies, bringing their annual complement of high-spirited sailors to lend a romantic flavor to this cold seaport.

Bright yellow dories bob over harbor waters as crew members visit friends on other ships and go ashore to buy clothing and other luxury items for the folks back home.

Foreign vessels have been coming here for centuries to take on supplies prior to renewing their search for cod on the Atlantic fishing banks.

Two hundred years ago, square-rigged barquentines rowed nearby waters and they're still coming. One square-rigger, the Garelia, is believed to be at least 100 years old.

Like the other ships in the fleet, she is salted white and has auxiliary power. The ships ring harbor berths and lie anchored in the harbour.

They add coke to the watering scene as some 1,000 fishermen, taking advantage of a week-long layoff to catch up on their washing, hang shirts and other garb out to dry in the rigging.

After taking on fuel, salt and provisions, the vessels will head for the Grand Banks, where they'll spend a brief spell before moving to waters off Greenland.

In September they return here for more supplies, put in some more time on the banks and then sail for home in time to avoid the cold Atlantic autumn storms.

As usual, their holds will be filled to capacity with prime cod, each ship having about 300 tons to show for the seven-month search.

Can Reduce Taxes If Elected Says George Hees

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — George Hees, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Broadview, said Tuesday night his party can reduce taxation without impairing essential defence or social security.

It could be done, Mr. Hees said in an address prepared for delivery to a nomination convention of the London Progressive Conservative Association, "by applying to government the same principles that apply to industry."

Mr. Hees promised efficient by continually bringing in new blood to positions of responsibility, ensuring that members in each department are continually under review.

Robert W. Mitchell, local lawyer, was named candidate for the riding in the general election. Mr. Mitchell defeated James Currie, railroad conductor for the nomination.

Gardner Praises Work of Govt. For Agriculture

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday night that the Liberal government spent more than $100,000,000 on agriculture last year, about $25,000,000 more than originally estimated.

But two Conservative governments which had preceded the current Liberal regime had reduced spending on agriculture "almost to the vanishing point" while in power the minister said in a speech prepared for the CBC's political broadcast, the Nation's Business.

In a direct appeal to the farmers' vote, Mr. Gardiner said that "this is election year again in Canada" and predicted the basis at the polls will be a straight battle between the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

While Mr. Gardiner criticized the Progressive Conservatives on the English network, Postmaster-General Cote criticized the Progressive Conservatives on the French network. He said the party lacked principles and had no policy.

The Progressive Conservatives spoke in favor of lower taxes, but at the same time would increase them to pay for new projects and outlays, Mr. Cote said. They said the army was inadequate, but recommended a cut in army and equipment. The Progressive Conservatives, he said, suffered from "political vandalism."

How Fast Does a Fish Grow?

How fast does a fish grow? The question has been the subject of inquiry and debate among fishermen and fish biologists for a long time. Dr. Kenneth D. Carlander, writing in the Wyoming Wildlife Bulletin, says it depends on many things—conditions, climate, individual variations in the same species and even in the same hatchery trough, and also on population density.

Dr. H. H. MacKay, of the Fish and Wildlife Division of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, here reviews Dr. Carlander's article.

Given here, too, is a growth table compiled from obviously extensive research.

Maskinonge leads the growth parade, growing from 7.9 inches at one year to 58 inches at 20 years as compared with the next longest, the northern pike, whose length is given in the annual growth table as 43.6 inches in 20 years and 48.4 at 24 years, starting at a one-year length of 7.3 inches. In his review of the article, Dr. MacKay says:

"Investigations have proved that the marks borne by a fish's scale indicate the length of life and the rate of growth of the fish in different years. A fish keeps the same scales throughout its life, and the growth of the scales keeps pace with the growth of the fish.

"To study age and rate of growth, it is necessary to magnify the scale with a good magnifying glass, microscope or slide projector. When a scale is examined in this way, circular ridges will be seen at intervals on the surface of the scale. When growth is slow, the ridges are close together, and when growth is rapid the ridges are farther apart.

* * *

Nearly all fish grow very little, if at all, during the winter as compared with their more rapid growth in summer. Because of this, there is a clearly marked zone for each year of life.

"From the scales, it is possible to tell the age of a fish, how big the fish was at different ages in its life, and, therefore, how fast it has grown. The growth of the scale is proportional to the growth of the fish and the rate can be calculated by scale measurements because the scales cover the body throughout life.

"Dr. Carlander made an extensive survey on the growth rates of fresh-water fish. Average growth rates were determined from a study of thousands of fish from various parts of North America. The data in the table give an idea of the average length that should be attained by a fish at various ages. These data may be used to estimate the age of fish caught, and examination of the scales will tell whether the fish in the lake or stream are growing fast or slowly. The average are merely guides because the growth rates of individual fish vary greatly. As Dr. Carlander points out: 'The fact that a largemouth black bass is twelve inches long does not mean that the bass is a little over three years old. Some twelve-inch bass are only six months old, while others have been found to be over nine years old!

"The table shows that maskinonge grow fastest and are the largest. Others follow in this order: Northern pike, sebago, salmon, rainbow trout, lake trout, walleye pike, and largemouth black bass.

"The lengths in the table are total lengths, measured in a straight line (not over the curve of the body) from the tip of the snout with the jaw closed to the end of the tail with the lobes compressed. To receive total length to fork length, multiply the total length by 0.96 in the case of a moderately forked tail and by 0.93 in the case of a deeply forked tail. The total length method of measurement will be used in Ontario next year.

* * *

"Positive answers as to why fish grow at different rates cannot be given in all cases but the following explanations are valid.

"1. Each species has its own inherited growth characters and, clearly, no type of feeding or no manipulation of the habitat will make a bluegill grow like a northern pike.

"2. There are individual variations in growth rates among individuals of the same species in the same hatchery trough or pond or in the same lake because of heredity and because of success in finding food at the right moment. Those that find food first, grow fastest.

"2. The average growth of fish varies greatly from lake to lake. Nearly all fish grow faster in the south than in the north. For example, in the northern states and provinces, walleyes must make all their growth in four months, while in the south they have seven months in which to grow. In general, growth is faster in waters that is cold water, but when the optimum is passed, growth may slow up or stop. For example, trout cannot live when the water temperature exceeds eighty degrees Fahrenheit, but black bass show optimum growth when the temperature is eighty degrees plus." Group rates:

Clashes on Picket Line Sends Two To Hospital

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Picket-line clashes sent two sheriff's deputies to the hospital and resulted in the arrest of five pickets today as a salaried employee continued to cross the lines at two General Electric Company plants.

It was the third day of a back-to-work movement of 4,000 white-collar workers at the invitation of the company. The plants had been closed since April 6 in a strike by the International Union of Electrical Workers (CIO).

Cars attempting to enter the gates were rocked back and forth and mails were scattered on the ground.

Sheriff Albert Stone said he had 200 men on duty.

Those arrested were jailed without charge. They included John Maurillo, a sub-regional director of the CIO.

It Happened Too Fast for Him

Gerald Edwards doesn't remember much of what happened to him after he fell 50 feet off a railway bridge at Huntsville, Ont. Spectators saw him fall off his bicycle while riding over the bridge, strike his head on a steel girder on the way down and swim a few yards to cling to a girder. Canoeists rescued the dazed boy, who was soon in a hospital bed none the worse for his experience, but a little bit vague about how and why he is in hospital. — Central Press Canadian.

Says Canadian Cities Targets for A-Bombs

TORONTO (CP) — Maj-Gen. F. F. Worthington, Canadian civil defence co-ordinator, said Wednesday many Canadian cities are "prime targets" for atom bombs.

"The possibility of attack on North America is very real," he said at a fire-protection conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here.

Gen. Worthington suggested that the possibility of attack would continue for years to come. "If we were to commence the careful location of our industrial sites now, our cities would reshape themselves and, within 50 years, very few suitable atom bomb targets would exist in Canada," he said.

MARMORA

Marmora — The dedicatory service of the first Pilgrimour United Church, which is in the St. Ola pastoral charge, took place on Sunday afternoon.

The event attracted a large number of former residents of the district as well as relatives of present residents; the weather conditions also being ideal.

Due to the hospitalization of his wife, the pastor Milton C. Wright, was unable to attend. His part in the service was taken by the supervising pastor, Rev. Kenneth J. Crawford, B.A., B.D., of Marmora.

Miss Jo-Anne Jenkins was organist and was supported with a goodly sized choir. The church was choicely decorated for the occasion with spring blooms. The service commenced with the call to worship and invocation being taken by Rev. K. J. Crawford, who also took prayers and thanksgiving following the opening hymn, "All People That on Earth Do Dwell."

Rev. J. F. Lane, of Madoc, convenor of Home Missions for the Belleville Presbytery, led in the responsive reading of the 84th Psalm and participated with the superintendent of the Board of Home Missions, Rev. J. J. MacKay, D.D., in the dedicatory service.

The hymn of dedication was "Breathe on Me Breath of God."

Dr. Mackay read the Scripture portion from Luke 4 following which a former member of the congregation, Mrs. Mel Johnson, rendered "Bless This House."

Guest Speaker

An address was given by Rev. Duncan McTavish, of Bridge St. United Church, Belleville, wherein he dwelt upon the meaning of the church, first, as a building and next as the society of individuals banded together for the worship and service of God.

The supervising pastor made announcements and followed with the offering the hymn "Faith of our Fathers" was sung. The sermon on "The Purpose of the Church", was delivered with fervor by Dr. Mackay. He challenged his listeners to look into their hearts as to their purpose in following the Christ. The closing hymn was "The Church's One Foundation". Rev. K. J. Crawford pronounced the benediction.

The service was a memorable one, the attendance being greater that the overflow almost filled the basement of the church. Through a loud speaker system those worshipers followed with accord those to whom the dedicatory acts were visible.

In course of the service, Rev. D. McTavish on behalf of the Church Extension Committee, presented the gift of $500.

On Monday evening the W.A. of the church held a turkey din-

CROWN CAVALCADE

The PREDECESSORS of ELIZABETH II

Victoria, Queen of the United Kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland, Empress of India, 1837-1901.

Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha from a daguerreotype taken about the time of his marriage to Victoria. It was a genuine love match, and his death in 1861 was a blow from which she never recovered.

Seal of the Dominion of Canada. Dominion status was first achieved by a British possession under the liberal rule of Victoria.

Victoria's coronation was married by embarrassing publicity. She had to be recalled to the ceremony after the service was mistakenly brought-to an end. The coronation ring was too small and had to be forced on her finger.

Born: 1819, daughter of the Duke of Kent, niece of George IV and William IV. She was also niece of Leopold I, King of the Belgians. Victoria came to the throne at a time of low ebb for the monarchy. Her charm and propriety soon won the affections of her subjects and her fruitful marriage to Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg solidified her position. The marriage of her nine children into various reigning houses made her "the grandmother of Europe." Her reign, which produced such able prime ministers as Palmerston, Gladstone and Disraeli, was accompanied by the rise of Britain to its greatest power and influence. Probably no woman in history ever occupied a more formidable position than Victoria.

PICTON

Cleveland Yacht Drifts Helplessly In Lake Ontario

Picton — Five residents of Cleveland, Ohio, drifted helplessly in Lake Ontario in a damaged yacht, for six hours early in the week. The yacht, owned by A. J. Grigsby had left Black River Bridge, where the party were staying, for a fishing trip to Bagott's Bay. On the return trip, the craft struck some submerged object and the rudder and propeller were disabled. It was soon dark and no one on shore was able to see them. Three flares and signals by the ship's lights attracted the attention of Ernest Roth of Cressy. He signalled that he had noted their signals by flashing a barn light on and off. He then notified Provincial police at Picton who secured the services of Donald Thurston, Indian Point fisherman to go to their aid. He towed them to Black River Bridge, a distance of seven miles as they were stranded in the lake off Wanpoos Island.

Except for being chilled and hungry, the men were little affected by their experience, but were thankful the storms had come up.

The same craft, Jacllyn, suffered engine trouble a year ago and was adrift on the lake for several hours. In 1947 it was damaged off Point Traverse when it struck a submerged object, and had to be towed to harbor.

Accepts New Post

Mathematics teacher at Picton Collegiate for the past six years, Sidney A. Owens has accepted the position of principal of the high school at Harrow, Ont. He will take over his duties in September. During their residence here, Mr. and Mrs. Owens have been active in church and community work. Mr. Owens is superintendent of the United Church Sunday School, and principal of the night school classes. A popular and able member of the teaching staff, his departure is much regretted.

Arousing Interest

Returning this week from London, after a seven weeks' visit to England, Rev. C. P. Heaven says he believes the June 2nd Coronation will be a super one. There is an amazing interest in the event and everywhere I went in England preparations were being made, he said. Visiting London just before flying home, Mr. Heaven said that the decorations were impossible to describe with words. The great crowds which came to see the preparations for the event are no dense that traffic moves at a very slow pace, he found.

On two occasions he had the opportunity of seeing Queen Elizabeth at various functions and describes her as lovely.

In England he visited members of his family and was guest preacher on several occasions in churches in the district where he spent his boyhood.

The gathering of the ships, including those from Canada, for the June naval review off Spithead, was an impressive sight, Mr. Heaven said.

The trip home was non-stop from Prestwick, Scotland to Montreal, and required 13 hours. On the trip over, the plane had gone a thousand miles when it was forced to return to Montreal due to engine trouble. They left the following day. Mr. Heaven was high in his praise of the pilots of these planes and of the service provided.

PALACE GUARD DUTY

Sgt. W. G. Andrews of Winnipeg is the first Canadian soldier in history to have been posted to guard duty at Buckingham Palace. Winnipeg Sergeant First Canadian Soldier to Post Guard at Palace

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sgt. W. G. Andrews of Winnipeg was the first Canadian soldier in history to be posted to guard duty at Buckingham Palace. He admits it was accidental.

The incident occurred at the time of the coronation of King George VI when Canadians mounted seven guards each at Buckingham Palace and St. James's Palace on May 8, 1937.

Sergeant Andrews, an instructor with the Royal Canadian Army Cadets of Prairie command, recalled the incident when he learned that next month the Canadian Coronation contingent would mount a full guard at Buckingham Palace for the first time in peacetime.

"It was accidental that I was the first guard to be posted," he said with a broad smile.

"Actually, I was to be the second soldier posted. The guard was being marched alongside the palace fences to the first sentry box. As we reached it the guard commander shouted 'relief halt.'

"All of us were to halt except the soldier next to me. He was supposed to take four or five paces smartly forward and position himself at the box. Well, he halted too and didn't move. I waited a split second watching him out of the corner of my eye. When he still didn't move, I did and took over the first post."

That occasion was the first time in history that Dominion troops took over from the Brigade of Guards one of the most highly prized duties in the British Army. Next month Canada will mount a full guard at the palace.

Sergeant Andrews joined the army in 1939 and served for three years. From 1942 to 1939 he served with the Royal Winnipeg Rifles and rejoined the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in 1938. During the Second World War he served overseas from December 1939 to December 1943. Married, he lives with his wife and two daughters in Winnipeg. Both daughters are members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

LONDON (CP)—The Duke of Westminster, who is worth around £120,000,000—give or take a few millions—is to establish Canada's third industrial estate on Annacis Island in the mouth of the Fraser river.

Slough Estates of England is setting up its first at Aldec, Ont., Canadian millionaire E. P. Taylor the other at Toronto.

The 16-year-old duke, whose fortune was founded nearly 300 years ago, intends to use the British Columbia estate to help British firms tackle North American markets.

The first industrial estate in Britain was established at Trafford Park, Manchester, just before the First Grid War. Companies leased land along the Manchester ship canal to build fac tories. The estate supplied roads, water, electricity and gas.

Will Lease Land

The second type of industrial estate was established after the First World War. Slough Estates took over a tract of serviced land 20 miles west of London. It rented warehouses on the land as factory sites, saving the manufacturer both the price of land and the erection of a factory.

The Duke of Westminster's Estates, agency for the duke's vast industrial plans to combine these two types of estates on Annacis Island. It will lease land for factory buildings and also build factories itself for renting.

The estate will probably press the government for establishment of a free port on the island. A free port is a site where imported goods may be stored or processed until needed and on which duty is not paid until they are moved out of the site and into the country for sale.

During the depression, the British government became alarmed at the depopulation of certain areas, such as northern England, Scotland and the coal valleys of Wales, and the mammoth expansion of London. Twenty-five per cent of all British industry is concentrated in the London area.

Twenty In Scotland

The government sponsored industrial estates before the Second World War to try to stop the population drift to London, Manchester, Birmingham and Liverpool and give people jobs in their own districts. Today there are around 20 industrial estates in Scotland alone. She has attracted thousands of small or secondary industries from the Continent.

Many areas of Canada, including British Columbia, are faced with the problem of attracting secondary industry. Many towns in B. C. for instance, depend on only one crop or industry: apples, lumber or fish.

The duke's plans for 1,200-acre Annacis Island are big. But he does everything like that.

For instance, he "rents" a river in Norway each summer for £1,000 to get in a spot of salmon fishing. One time in the 1930s, he transported 400 guests to his French estate for a boar hunt.

Will Not Be Short

Buying an island isn't likely to leave the duke short of cash. The golden 600 acres he owns in London's fashionable West End are valued at £40,000,000. Besides that, he owns another 160,000 acres spread over 10 counties. Of his £1-000,000 ancestral 100-room home in Eaton Hall, Chester. He owns estates in Ireland and southern France.

The duke spends so much money that at one point in 1951 he had 41 building contractors and nine firms of architects working for him. He spent £200,000 to improve dairy herds at his 11,000-acre Eaton Hall estate.

At the same time, he has spent thousands of pounds to build flocks of flats for middle-income families in London's Pimlico.

The duke has been married four times. His first three wives divorced him. His fourth and present wife is a 33-year-old Irishwoman. They were married in 1947.

Poet Laureate Will Not Produce Traditional Ode

ABINGDON, England (Reuters) —John Masefield, Britain's unconventional poet laureate, will not produce the traditional ode expected from him for the Coronation June 2.

Masefield said Tuesday he is writing only a short poem.

It is considered the duty of the poet laureate to write an ode—a poem of exaltation intended to be sung—on big royal occasions. The laureate gets £100 a year for his poetic services.

Frail, silvery-haired Masefield, who will be 75 June 1, has changed all that.

"I am by profession a storyteller," he says. "I find the writing of odes to be outside my particular talents."

He is also against the principle that a poet laureate should have to write to order on royal subjects.

The laureate refuses to discuss his Coronation poem. He wants to keep it secret until Coronation Day and hopes the Queen will read it as a surprise.

NEWER AND BETTER

LONDON (AP)—The Vickers Armstrong Aircraft Company said Tuesday it is now jet fighter with "climb, endurance and manoeuvrability unsurpassed by any fighter in the world." The plane is an improved version of the Supermarine Swift, a one-jet fighter with swept back wings that already has broken the sound barrier. The swift is a direct descendant of the wartime Spitfire.

1,016 Stricken Hogs Slaughtered

OTTAWA (CP)—The number of hogs fatally stricken and slaughtered as a result of cholera now has climbed to 1,016 with the discovery of two new cases of the disease in Waterloo county, the agriculture department reported yesterday.

This brings the number of infected premises to 20, but the department emphasized that the disease still has not spread beyond the quarantine. All cases have been traced back to the sales barn where the hogs originally infected were sold.

About 6,300 hogs were sold through this barn before it was closed and some 70 veterinarians are trying to trace and examine all of them.

TWO NUNS ARRESTED

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German police have arrested two nuns and closed down another Roman Catholic children's home, church officials announced Tuesday. They accused the nuns of caning 20 children in the home at Oebisfelde, near Magdeburg, and of making them work for their living.

BANG 'EM AND BASH 'EM

If on Saturday night you hear a racket like a couple of jungle-juiced Apaches running wild in a bolter factory armed with twelve-pound sledges, don't be alarmed. It will only be Burrows "Wreck 'Em" special event being staged at the stock car race down Shannonville way. They tell us this new innovation in thrills (the bigger the rip, the wider the lip) is guaranteed to make the spine of a deep-frozen dinosaur ripple like the hips of a hula dancer. Two of 'em was bad enough, or good enough. But Burrows says he'll toss six or eight in the carnival of crash some Saturday evening. And as an appetizer and chaser will be the regular heats and feature races of the previous year's record. Which, this should be your Saturday night dish. Starts at eight-thirty.

SHOULD BE GOOD!

The Ole Clucker has been feeding his softball cockerels of the Northern Electric plenty of booster feed this week for tonight they meet the formidable crew from Point Anne in a scheduled softball tilt at the Aicmie Field.

All right, all right, Herby, control your tall feathers. This Ox Point crew can be beaten, but you'll need more than eggs on that scoreboard to turn the trick. Yeah, yeah, we know your Sidney Street Maidas have yet to be short-circuited but by the same token the Ox Pointers have not been letting their cement set without stirring up sufficient runs to cop the node.

This tilt has all the earmarks of one of the best, if not the best softball clashes of the season. Neither team has been defeated and while the Pulsiters have the strength on paper and stifeld the Hennesy Flock has shown surprising power in all departments in the games they have played thus far. Game starts at 6.30.

JUNIORS IN ACTION!

Somewhat disappointed over their inability, due to rain, to show their wares to a hometown crowd Tuesday night, the Recruit Juniors carry the baseball war to the RCAF tonight on the fly-busy-field at Station Trenton. The youngsters have been practicing hard since their setback in the opener at Trenton last week and feel confident they can take the measure of the boys in blue. The kids can do with a little support and baseball fandom, at least some of it, would help a lot by making the short trek to the air station and giving these game encouragement. Game at 6.30.

SHORT ONE!

While the Yankee fans went into raves about Mickey Mantle's mammoth 563-foot home run a few days ago, few if any recall the shortest homer on record.

It happened quite a long while ago when St. Paul was playing Minneota in a twin-city battle. A player named Oyler was at bat when a foul came and turned the field into a near quagmire, but an hour later the game was resumed.

The pitcher threw a baseball at Oyler, who promptly ducked. The ball struck his bat which was still on his shoulder and Oyler scooted for first. But the ball was not where in sight. The catcher scanned the skies, the first baseman looked under the bat. Fielders stared in surprise and meanwhile Oyler was pumping his way around the basepaths.

When he crossed the plate he pointed out the location of the ball. It was buried in the muck two feet in front of the plate.

FRANTIC FRANKIE!

Those of you who read the sports pages every day know that there has been a big turnover in the players for the Chicago White Sox. Chicago, St. Louis and Philadelphia have done some mighty swapping of players in the last couple of years.

What's behind all the activity in Chicago? The answer is not what, but who. And this "who" is Frank Lane, general manager of the White Sox.

When frantic Frank became general manager of the White Sox in 1948 he had a team that had finished last in the league and had drawn less than 800,000 spectators. Then Frank began trading. Today he doesn't have a single player that he had in 1948. Most of his trades were of little consequence. Few of them really hurt but some of them have been definitely advantageous. Last year his team, managed by Paul Richards, finished in third place and brought over a million and a quarter fans surging through the turnstiles.

What sort of a guy is Frank Lane? This week's Saturday Even'ng Post has a good piece on him. Read it!

Blasts Three-Run Four-Bagger In 9th to Snatch 5-3 Victory; Yankees Make Up Lost Ground

By BEN PHILGIAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

No sling shots for Roy Campanella—when it comes to killing Giants he clubs 'em to death.

Going into Wednesday night's game at Ebbets Field New York Giants knew they had the secret formula for whipping their hated Brooklyn rivals. It was simple—stop Campanella.

The formula was right. But the Giants forgot how they were supposed to make it work.

The New Yorkers were nursing a 3-1 lead in the fourth inning. Roy promptly planted a Jim Hearn pitch in the left field seats to tie it.

With two out in the last of the ninth the Giants were leading 3-2. A walk and an error gave Campanella another chance to bat. A single would have tied the score. A double probably would have given Brooklyn the win.

Was He Tired?

The performance was no one-night fluke. The powerfully-built Brooklyn catcher with the deceptive, waddling walk has been living up the cover off the ball all spring. The homer were his 15th and 16th, considerably ahead of the pace Babe Ruth established the year he hit 60. The four runs he drove in increased his league leading total in that department to 51. And he raised his batting average to .328. Of his 45 hits more than half have gone for extra bases.

Campanella's one-man rampage brought the Dodgers' season record against the Giants to .500—four victories in eight games. But it didn't gain them any ground in the National League race where Milwaukee Braves kept ahead with a 9-4 decision over Chicago Cubs.

The second place St. Louis Cardinals also won, 6-3, over Cincinnati for their eighth success in their last 10 starts. The Cards trail the Braves by a 1½ games with the Dodgers another half length behind. Philadelphia sandwiched between the Dodgers and Giants in fourth place, smothered Pittsburgh, 14-2, in a twilight game but lost a night contest to the Pirates, 8-4.

15-Innings Tie

In the American League Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers battled 15 innings to a 2-2 tie and had to quit because of the league curfew. No inning can start after 12:59 a.m., local time. Even without a decision the White Sox took over second place in pursuit of New York Yankees since St. Louis Browns ended a nine-game losing streak by stop Cleveland Indians, 5-1. The loss dropped Cleveland into third.

Philadelphia Athletics edged Boston Red Sox 4-3 on Gus Zernial's eighth-inning home run and the Yankees defeated Washington, 3-1, on Eddie Lopat's three-hit pitching. Lopat held the Senators to a double and two singles.

Royals Nip Birds To Retain Lead; Leafs Whip Chiefs

Montreal Royals dropped Baltimore Orioles again Wednesday night to retain their position atop the International Baseball League, but Toronto Maple Leafs kept on their trail.

The Leafs played beautiful ball in downing Syracuse Chiefs 9-2 to remain a game behind the Royals. Rochester's double victory over Buffalo Bisons—10-4 and 8-3—dropped the Leafs into third place one percentage point behind the Red Wings, but the Birds are 1½ games behind the Royals.

Montreal's 3-1 victory over the Orioles came on two unearned runs in the eighth inning.

Highlander Gerry Fahr of Toronto hurled a masterful three-hitter as a disappointed Syracuse crowd watched, for his fourth victory against one loss. His teammates pounded three hurlers for 12 safeties, including a two-run homer by left-fielder Lew Morton in the seventh.

At Baltimore, Ben Flowers gave up but three of Montreal's four hits but threw his own game away in the eighth. After Ken Wood got on base and Walter Moryn walked, Ed Roebuck bounced the ball to Flowers. The pitcher threw the ball past Damon Phillips at first, and Wood and Moryn scored.

Rochester's victories at Buffalo were the Bisons' fourth and fifth straight defeats.

Don Richmond and Lou Limmen slammed homers in relief in half the Rochester tilt-ies in the ybbreviated opener. Cal Deal coasted to his fourth win against two defeats.

The Wings turned out 11 hits in the first four innings of the second contest to assume a commanding lead. Southpaw Bill Harris went all the route to score his fourth triumph.

Springfield Cubs and Ottawa Athletics split a twin-bill at Spring field, the Ar's taking the opener 8-3 and the Cubs the nightcap 14-6.

Effective relief pitching by Bob Trice, who got credit for his third win, and extra base hits gave Ottawa the opener.

The Cubs broke loose with an 11-run sixth inning rally to take the second game.

Odds, Tradition Against Big Payoff In 1953 Running of Queen's Plate

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Bettors who take a flyer on a long-shot winning the Queen's Plate this year may just be tossing their cash into the feed box. The odds—and tradition —are against the big payoff.

In the last 39 years, only four outsiders have gone to the winner's circle in Canada's richest stake race and kicked back more than $8.70 on a $2 ticket.

The plungers can't expect much more this year when a crack field goes to the post in the 94th running of the 1¼-mile plate next Tuesday afternoon. Except for a "sleeper" in this one have little to go on from the betting point of view.

The charts all add up to this: Come rain, shine, a record or a handful of touts, the 1853 galloping thoroughbred to win the plate, the top turf event in the country, will be short-priced.

Who will it be?

Well, a bettor might get $2.10—which would equal the shortest price ever paid in recent plate history—on Canadians if the big bay filly goes in the race. Or he might get anywhere between 8 and 1 and 12 to 1 on Lively Action and Blue Scooter, winners of the two divisions of the Plate Trial last Saturday.

But if he's looking for a big price he might get a lead on the few exceptions down through the years.

The most recent one was Epigram, 1952 Plate winner. Epigram, owned by the Three V's Stable of Toronto, romped over a sloshy course, delighting in the heavy going, and won going away by the cop, a share of the $30,000-added purse and the Queen's 20 guineas. His price: $25.05.

Then there was Moisky in 1947. The bay offspring of Teddy Wrack and Oblivion, owned by the late Col. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, returned $36.30 for $2.

Another was Paolita, who won 10 years ago. Jockey Pat Remillard hooked her home at odds better than 37-10-1. The filly paid $76.20.

The biggest price was made by Maternal Pride in 1934. He gave his few followers the whopping total of $183.35 in the first and only race he ever ran.

Rocky Marciano, Fighter of Month, Charles, La Starza, Walcott Follow

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano is Ring Magazine's "fighter of the month" and Jersey Joe Walcott drops to No. 3 challenger in the heavyweight division in the new rankings.

Ezzard Charles, the champ from Cincinnati, who is on a two-bout win streak, gets the No. 1 place behind Rocky, followed by Roland La Starza, of New York.

Although Jim Norris, boss man and Al Weill, Marciano's manager, have not reached an agreement on a September fight, it is expected that the champ will defend against La Starza in New York in September.

Walcott is being pressed for third place by Bob Baker of Pittsburgh and Danny Buccerosi of Philadelphia, who has outgrown his lightheavyweight class.

In the top second division Harry Matthews, consistently listed as a top contender, has been moved into the No. 4 position. As a result of his draw with Freddie Beshore, Matthews was not listed among the 10 top heavyweights. Tampa Tom Modica is 5.

Larry Watson of Omaha, Neb., shoved into the lightheavy ratings on his win over Jimmy Slade. Mingling with a heavyweight, Watson was hopped by Charley at Milwaukee Tuesday.

With the middleweight division approaching a showdown, Randy Turpin is listed as the leading contender and Charles Humez of France, his June 9 London foe, is placed third. The two boys who fight for the American version of the Crown June 19 drew second and fourth spots. Carl (Bobo) Olson of Hawaii was No. 2 and Paddy Young of New York is 5.

Langlois of France, upset by Jon Hindoe, fell a peg to fifth.

Johnny Saxton, the fourth straw won him the No. 1 spot behind welter champion Tod Gavilan with Billy Graham dropping to second.

As a result of the bad beating he took from Jimmy Carter in Boston, Tommy Collins was dropped out of the lightweight ratings. The featther class, where he is ranked third.

Carter's leading contender is George Araujo of Providence. The pair meet in the Boston Garden Square Garden June 12.

As usual the welter of New York leads the lightweights. Fourth place is held by Arthur King, Toronto, and fifth by Armand Savoie, Montreal.

Red Sox Down Oshawa 4-1; Terriers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Terriers didn't pull out of the cellar in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League Wednesday night but they did give an indication they might. That is, if beating the fading Waterloo Tigers could be taken as a sign.

The Terriers survived a Waterloo triple play, the first of the season, to edge the Tigers 3-2. In other league games London Majors defeated Kitchener 7-5 after a 5-5 deadlock, Guelph Royals edged St. Thomas Elgins 10-9, and Brantford Red Sox downed Oshawa Merchants 4-1.

Galt combed three Waterloo hurlers for its hits, including a triple by Jerry Cline and a double by Jack O'Connor in their battle. Galt's righthander Joey Jessup held the Tigers to three scattered singles and the only two runs Waterloo got were unearned.

The Tigers' triple play came in the sixth inning. Mike Postarelli walked and went to second on John Rumble's single. Bill Manning grounded to York who forced Rumble at second. Bob Schefter's throw nipped Manning at first base and Hank Biasutti fired the ball to Irish Mahlmeister who tagged Postarelli sliding into the plate.

The Majors rallied for five runs in the last of the eighth to trip the Kitchener Panthers. Tommy White pitched five ball for eight innings for the Majors. He was lifted for Lorne Schaefer in the eighth and Jerry Burke finished.

Kitchener handed the fine pitching of Chuck Fedoris, held a 3-0 lead entering the eighth. Errors played a decisive role as Klein ecer's loss.

Guelph's St. Thomas outhit Guelph 11-8 they couldn't seem to get anywhere. Coach manager used four pitchers, Cecil Kaiser was the winner and Bob Stormes the loser.

Manager Ken Bennison of St. Thomas was put out of the game in the 8th for arguing a close play at first base which resulted in Guelph's two winning runs crossing the plate. Manager George d'Addario paced Guelph with a double and a triple, driving in three runs.

The league-leading Brantford Red Sox strengthened their position with their win over Oshawa. Ken Hamilton had all the way for Oshawa. Nig Parker, who relieved Gerry Dunn in the fourth, was given credit for the win.

Roy Lefevre, with three singles, was leading hitter of the night. Two hits, three walks and two errors by Canadian R.E.G. in the second frame gave Brantford the lead. Oshawa got a run back in the fourth but Bob Thornton's double followed by a walk to Loud Loudon and Lefevre's single tied it up in the seventh.

Tonight Brantford is at Oshawa in the only scheduled game.

Ward Defeats Stranahan In British Amateur

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Horvie Ward of Atlanta sank a lifesaving eight-foot putt Wednesday to defeat Frank Stranahan on the 19th hole in the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship.

The spine-tingling match saw Stranahan right back to within a whisker of defending the defending champion. Ward's victory put him in the fifth round.

All square coming down the 18th fairway, both hit superb approach shots. Stranahan was 12 feet from the cup. Ward was eight feet away. Stranahan putted and got down on his knees for a second as his ball came within an inch or two of dropping in. Ward sighted his putt and sank it.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., joined Ward in the fifth round by ousting the United States 4 top-ranking star in each half of the draw.

In his afternoon round, Campbell blazed around this long, waterlogged, seaside course in 70-par Hoylake course for a 6 and 5 victory over Bruce Thompson of England.

In their third - round matches, Ward meets Joe Conrad of Chicago over John W. Howard of England and Campbell was hard pressed to beat Dr. F. W. G. Deighton of Scotland, one up.

Ireland's Joe Carr, the only internationally known Briton left in the meet, was defeated by W. V. Hughes, England, 4 and 2, to a fourth round. Carr already has been named to the Walker Cup team which plays the Americans at Marion, Mass., in September.

St. Kitts Wallop Hamilton 15-4

HAMILTON (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics jumped into a first-place tie with Peterborough Petes Wednesday night when they walloped Hamilton Tigers 15-4 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Skip Dan Dineen in the cage and Al Frick each nipped three for the victors, as the hapless Tigers were able to show little in the way of power. Don Moore and Don Frick, with two apiece, Dorey Davies and Emil Uhrynuk were the St. Kitts marksmen.

Ron Brown got two for Lefty Jordan's Tigers, Tony Cupola and playing coach Arnold Smith scoring the others.

Tennis Club Plans Tourney For Week-End

After several setbacks due to inclement weather, the Quinte Tennis Club has now been open for the current season about a week. Prospects for a successful season appear promising as several new members have put in an appearance and most of the members have signified their intention of coming back.

The club is entering two teams in the Bay of Quinte Tennis Tennis League so that all members interested should find plenty of scope for competitive play.

The "Open Tournament" this year will take the form of a Coronation event and will be played on Sunday, May 31st. A good entry list is expected from members and from clubs in the district. Men's doubles and mixed doubles will be run with consolation events being run in both groups.

Some attractive prizes have been secured and with the courts in their present good condition and good weather prevailing, a fine day's tennis seems assured.

Eric Eden and Mrs. Eden, co-chairmen of the games committee are working hard for the organizational fi e of the tournament. Any not receiving an application form and who desire to enter the tournament are asked to contact either of the chairmen.

The men's doubles event is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. with the mixed doubles slated for 1 p.m.

Queen's 'Aureole' Joint Favorite To Win Derby

LONDON (AP)—London bookmakers Wednesday night made the Queen's chestnut colt Aureole joint 4-1 favorite with Sir Victor Sassoon's Pinza to win the Derby at Epsom Downs June 6.

At the call-over at the Victoria Club Aureole and Pinza—which will be ridden by champion jockey Gordon Richards in his annual attempt to capture the coe prize which has eluded him so far—were way out in front of Brigadier W. P. Wyatt's Premonition, third favorite at 7-1. William Hamblin's Nearula, fourth favorite from last November until reported lame, moved backward in the betting to 10-04 although trainer Capt. Harvey said he is showing signs of improvement and kept him in the final acceptance list published in London. His place as favorite was taken over by Aureole last week.

Final acceptances whittled the field down to 34 starters from the original 446 entries last November.

Johnny Saxton Verdicts Miceli In Lively Scrap

DETROIT (AP) — Unbeaten Johnny Saxton, a punishing body puncher, landed enough shots to the head Wednesday night to preserve his perfect record with a unanimous 10-round decision over Joe Miceli at Olympia Stadium. Saxton, a slight favorite, weighed 147¼ to Miceli's 147½, in the lively battle between the two New Yorkers.

There were no knockdowns but the action became so furious that both fighters fought after the bell rang in the fourth and eighth rounds.

All three officials voted for Saxton. Referee Johnny Behr scored 54 points for Saxton and 46 for Miceli. Judge Joe Lenahan scored it 53-48 while the other judge, Bill Appleton, had it 51-49.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Toronto may be the site in August, 1954, of a dual track meet between outstanding athletes of the British Commonwealth and the United States and Canada track team.

The meet would follow the British Empire and Commonwealth Games here July 30-Aug. 7.

Dublie will meet approach Col. George Maclaurin, president of the Canadian B.E.G. committee, and secretary Jack Davies. Final approval, if present negotiations are successful, would have to come from the B.E.G. games secretary Sandy Duncan, who will come to Canada next month from London.

If approved, the meet would be held at the CNE on the opening day of the 1954 exhibition, Aug. 27.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The soundness of a bridge partner will depend on his general knowledge and belief of signals. Each type of signal begins with a basic purpose. Its embellishments depend on where used.

A jump bid takes root in the fact that it shows partner there is a game in the pair. The amount of jump shows the kind of strength or weakness it includes, the place shows lack of additions.

You may remember its quality better by knowing that the higher the jump, the weaker the strength. Thus, the one-jump shows more strength than does a double-jump; a triple-jump is weakest.

Are you worried about this seeming paradox? If you are, take a bit of reasoning of the jump purposes. It will give you a slant on the subject that will change your outlook.

Look at it like this: The higher the jump, the less chance it gives partner to give information. Consequently, an unusually high jump is for the purpose of stopping partner from telling more.

The lower the jump, the more chance partner gets to reveal any other strength he may contain. Consequently, the lower the jump the more information is invited from partner.

When would you need less information? When you are content to go to a game contract and not beyond. When would you need more dope from partner? When you are anxious to see if slam is worth a try.

Take the north hand shown here:

♠J 10 9 8 7 6 5 3

♦Q
♣K J

Your partner in south has opened the bidding with one club. You would not want to jump at once to four spades. This would shut out partner or make it dangerous for him to offer further advices.

The combination with an opening partner you would like to know more about his hand; anything additional he might tell you. He may tell you enough to show stuff for a slam.—Take it easy.

Korvin's arm wound Dale, who returns, but is ordered by the French commandant to return to Boston. Korvin, who had hoped to marry Anne, tries to shoot him as Dale comes to take her away with him; the shot instead kills his son, and Dale and Anne leave for the U.S.

"Deadline U.S.A."

Just as Humphrey Bogart, managing editor of a big metropolitan newspaper, is beginning to uncover evidence that Martin Gabel, alleged boss of a powerful vice ring, is responsible for the murder of an unnamed blond found floating in the river, he learns that the paper is to be sold by its owners, Ethel Barrymore, widow of the founder, and her two married daughters. The employees hold a wake at a nearby saloon and, afterwards, Bogart decided to visit his divorced wife, Kim Hunter, with whom he is still in love. Later, he is summoned by a reporter who had been beaten up by Gabel's henchmen and he starts printing editorials exposing him. Miss Barrymore relents and tries to get a new buyer for the paper, but after Gabel's killing is proven, the presses roll on with the paper's last sensational story on Gabel.

ENJOYS FREEDOM

LONDON (CP)—The badgerigar that escaped from some household was spotted among sparrows in a public garden alongside the Thames. The colorful bird was apparently quite at home in the open spaces.

BEAUTEOUS BRIDES

LONDON (CP)—Two Canadian hockey players in Britain led handsome brides to the altar. Vic Krekiewetz of Yorkton, Sask., married Sylvia Miller, former festival beauty queen of London. Gyle Woods of Bowman, Man., married skating starlet Lyn Russell.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Some things unfriendly, but up-to-the-minute planning and doing can offset that. Keep trying.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Especially favorable rays for you who are able to forget little troubles and use your inborn ability. Be extra careful in financial and business matters.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—This is one day when you can't take chances with important issues. Planetary configurations say to be most astute, rate actions carefully.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer)—Apparent perfect day for achievement, but you must do your very best. Some news is very good.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Today can be profitable, with pleasant personal happenings, attractive hard to achieve. Stay within your ability to handle things.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—One of those periods that may try your patience, give you plenty to think about. But you are equal to it, so knuckle down!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—By adding new energy to work you can make appreciable progress this on whole favorable day. Romance, marriage especially favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Don't go hot, then cold; you will accomplish more and feel less strain. Your mind sometimes sets ahead of schedule. Control it!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — May look somewhat uninteresting for business matters, but with closer observation a better view looms. So tackle job with vim. Your gains will be good.

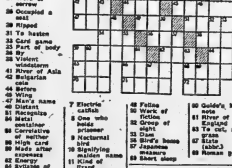
December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You may be called upon to investigate before going ahead or agreeing to offers. Do so—carefully. Don't fear losing and you won't really lose.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Achievement today will depend upon personal conduct and how astutely you manage duties. Mars warns against irritability; other star aspects helpful.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune offers good day on whole, perhaps a memorable one if you exert more where you feel it is needed. Personal interests advance.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are bright, but tend to be changeable in disposition; sometimes too fond of praise. You have fine talent, but don't scatter energies. See your shortcomings, faults in their true light, and you will be more patient with others. Pray daily for patience, guidance. Birthdate: Patrick Henry, Amer. statesman, orator; Gilbert K. Chesterton, Eng. journalist, author.

FIRE DESTROYS NEW HOUSE



CHESLEY, Ont. (CP)—Fire Tuesday destroyed a newly-completed seven-room home on First street owned by Henry Henkel. Loss was estimated at about $8,000. The fire, which broke out after a severe electrical storm, may have been caused by lightning

Jury Decides Deaths Caused By Strychnine

ALIKA CRAIG, Ont. (CP)—Death of an Alika Craig mother and her two daughters on April 3 was caused by strychnine poisoning, a five-man jury decided here Wednesday following a four-hour inquest. The jury's findings said the husband, Alvin Leslie Lewis, was not to any blame in the tragic deaths.

Drress Rehearsal Goes Off Without a Hitch

LONDON (CP) — The final full-dress rehearsal of the Coronation went off without a hitch today. And Queen Elizabeth II knows her part so well she left it up to a stand-in to play her role.

Crowds outside Westminster Abbey got a good preview of the rich pageantry surrounding next Tuesday's big show, though the trial run was behind closed doors.

More than 1,200 persons took part in the 2½-hour practice, carried out with all the trappings under the watchful eye of the Duke of Norfolk, who as Earl Marshal is directing the Coronation.

The duke's wife played the role of the Queen.

Outfits Displayed

Outfits which the six maids of honor will wear Coronation Day were seen by the crowd for the first time: full-length white satin dresses with gold and silver sequins and tiaras ornamented with pearls.

Extra mounted police had to be called to clear the way for the procession into the abbey and to keep an eye on St. Edward's Crown, which was brought to the church.

The long rehearsal brought its first casualty. Sir Thomas Innes, 59, one of the heralds who will precede the Duke of Edinburgh in the procession, collapsed during the ceremony. He was carried from the abbey on a stretcher.

The Queen was busy with affairs of state at Buckingham Palace during the rehearsal.

Excited Crowds

Early morning crowds looked on excitedly while cars and taxis drove up with Coronation guests in court dress and brilliant medieval uniforms.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, wearing evening dress, arrived by taxi.

Throughout the 2½-hour rehearsal, he was in the choir stall, the section reserved for Commonwealth prime ministers. Just to about 15 yards from the raised throne where homage will be paid to the Queen.

Rehearsals for Tuesday's ceremony have been held on three past weeks, mostly in workday clothes. But the Duke of Norfolk and the robes were out of their tissue paper and mothballs.

Staff Officers on Hand

The gold staff officers, who will direct 8,000 abbey guests to their seats, were there with gold sticks tipped in jade.

In scarlet, blue and gold, the guests arrived in a stream of cars. They drew up at the door at the rate of six a minute.

With the royal family, including the Crown of England, they rehearsed the entire 2½-hour service.

The rehearsal included the playing of 22 pieces of music to be heard on Coronation Day, and a practice march by the 260 persons taking part in the procession to the altar, which will lead the Queen to her crowning.

Four hundred men and boys of the choir rehearsed their hymns, the 48 trumpeters for the fanfares. Fifty pipers marched in procession up the walls of the abbey annex, just as they will on Coronation Day.

Crews of cameramen, however, were not on hand.

The crown jewels were taken into the abbey for the rehearsal. They were delivered in a station wagon under police guard.

Soon afterwards came the Duke of Norfolk and Earl Alexander, who will carry the orb, the golden globe surmounted by a jewelled cross, the symbol of Christ's sovereignty. The Queen will carry it herself when she leaves the abbey.

Viscount Simonds, lord chancellor of the royal standard, came in a blue limousine and hurried to a robing room to make a quick-change into his ceremonial robes of white and velvet cloak. His page boy carried his coronet on a velvet cushion.

Rehearsals for the robed and uniformed high state dignitaries were scheduled to end shortly after noon, finishing touches to abbey preparations.

The increasing breathlessness of the Coronation atmosphere was pointed up by a front-page banner headline in the morning News Chronicle. It said simply:

"The Queen looks radiant." To Britons, that was THE news of the day.

Housing Costs Partly Due To Help Shortage

TORONTO (CP)—The high cost of Canadian housing is partly the result of the shortage of skilled artisans, Joseph Piggott, president of the Piggott Construction Company, Hamilton, said Thursday at the 82nd convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The contractors are partly to blame for the shortage, he said, for their lack of interest in apprenticeship training, he added.

Mr. Piggott said cities there are only 15,000 young men in apprenticeship training under provincially and federally-supported plans, 2,800 in Ontario.

Contractors were indifferent to training plans, mainly there were enough young men willing to undertake them elsewhere, when an insufficient force of skilled labor was available for new construction, when new designs, materials and processes had to be used—at greater expense.

Same Situation Exists

J. L. Sparrow, supervisor of apprenticeship training for the Canadian General Electric Company at Peterborough, said a similar situation exists in the manufacturing industries.

In three industries employing 300,000 workers, only 2,000 were receiving organized trade training, and to 739 factories surveyed, only 96 plants had training programs.

J. D. Ferguson, president-elect of the Association, said at a press conference he believed Canada will be self-sufficient in steel by the end of 1953. Canada now produces 75 per cent of its needs.

C. E. Sisley, retiring president, criticized the United States for not carrying out its promises under the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade.

He told the press conference: "To date we have not seen a very large measure of implementation of these promises."

NO BRITISH SHIP CARRIED RED TROOPS IN EAST

Ambassador Answers Charges by Senator

WASHINGTON (Reuters)

The British ambassador in Washington, Sir Roger Makins, says there is no evidence that any ship sailing under the British flag and operated by British law has transported Chinese Communist troops in the Far East.

Makins made a last-minute addition to a speech he had prepared for delivery Saturday to a health and welfare conference. He referred to the statement by Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) that the state department had confirmed reports that two British-owned ships had carried Communist troops along the China coast in 1951 and 1952.

Threatens Retaliation

Makins said he had decided to mention a matter "which threatens to stir up further Anglo-American discord."

Mundt has alleged that British or British-owned ships have carried "thousands" of Chinese Communist military personnel in Chinese waters.

"How does this matter stand?

"In the first place, on all the information available, the British ship, that is to say no ship under the British flag and subject to British law, has done any such thing.

"The question turns on two things of Panamanian registry and flying the Panamanian flag, in which British interests had ownership or an interest."

7 Sales Barns Hit by Epidemic

OTTAWA (CP)—Hog cholera, which has led to the death of 1,420 pigs, has spread to seven community sales barns in south western Ontario, the agriculture department reported today.

Spreading out of sales barn was reported hit by the infection, but a spokesman said that 200 men have placed seven barns under quarantine.

The department declined to locate the barns but said all were in the area bounded by Toronto, Windsor and Owen Sound. Most of the infected cases have been reported and thus well within the quarantine limits.

Report of the spread of the infection to sales barns followed an early departmental report of three outbreaks in farms in southern Ontario, bringing the total number of infected barns to 25.

Hogs which had travelled in the seven barns was not disclosed. However, the department officials have threatened to boycott the truce talks and possibly fight on alone unless the plan is filled or revised.

In his letter to Harrison, Choi specifically called on the UN truce negotiator to:

1. Transmit to "the policy making authority" the opinion and recommendation of the Red delegation.

2. Withdraw the latest Allied truce proposal and submit a new proposal after the talks are resumed Tuesday.

3. Grant "full consultation" well in advance to the Republic of Korea in the proposed new Allied proposal.

Choi made clear that the letter represented "my personal point of view." However, it was known that the letter was approved by President Syngman Rhee and was taken by South Korean government leaders to represent the views of the republic.

Choi boycotted the Monday truce session in a move unprecedented in the two-year history of the negotiations.

Express Unhappiness

U. S. and other Western diplomats in Seoul said Choi expressed unhappiness with the South Korean position. They said the boycott had been cleared with major Allied nations in France, the Netherlands, United States and other countries.

Choi wrote, Harrison he boycotted Monday's session because "my conscience did not allow me to change my position to go along with you."

Choi listed as the "first major reconsideration" in the new Allied plan the dropping of the May 13 Allied proposal to release 34,000 North Koreans in South Korea immediately after a truce. Under the new plan, these prisoners along with 14,500 Chinese prisoners would be turned over to the custody of a five-country neutral repatriation commission.

As a "second concession" Choi cited the lengthening of the period of explanation to 90 to 90 days, and the provisions calling for turning over the POWs to a political conference and the UN general assembly.

Choi also wrote, is "nothing but a material substitution to the original and a violation of the principle for which we have been fighting so long."

Majority Vote to Rule

Still a "third concession" listed by Choi was a provision calling for a majority, rather than unanimous vote on the repatriation commission. The commission would be made up of Poland, Czechoslovakia, India, Sweden and Switzerland.

Choi argued that three of the five countries "are on the Communist side."

"The Communists are sending armed forces from India, a pro-Communist nation, against our troops. The members from four nations, two of which are Communist states, have to come into our territory under guaranteed extra-territorial. It is, I feel it necessary to inform you that this is not practicable without the consent of my government. In addition to the above mentioned armed forces more than 100 repatriation from two communist nations will come to Korea enjoying free movement under the UNs protection. I can not assure that there will be no consequences of the action by the Korean people against them."

MIG Pilot Ejected From Plane

Made by the gun cameras of an American F-86 Sabre jet, these pictures show the pilot of a communist MIG-15 being ejected from his plane after it had been hit over North Korea. Credit for the kill goes to Lt. Edwin Aldrin or Monticair, N.J., and it was recorded during the recent six-day air drive to smash enemy jet defenses. At left, the red craft has been struck and the pilot has touched off an explosive charge to catapult his ejector seat from plane. At right, ejector seat with pilot strapped (arrow) clears the cockpit wing. — Central Press Canadian.

Communists Reject Outright At Least Part of Allied Plan Submitted at Secret Meeting

MUNSAN (AP)—The Communists rejected outright at least part of an Allied truce plan submitted in a secret meeting at Panmunjon Monday, it was disclosed today.

The plan had been called a "new-or-never") offer by many sources.

There was no indication whether the Reds would change their minds at next Monday's meeting, the first after a week-long recess.

The Reds object to release of any Red prisoners as civilians in South Korea, or leaving to the United Nations general assembly the ultimate disposition of prisoners unwilling to return to communism.

These "can not be agreed to by our side," North Korean Gen. Nam Il told the Allies. His reply was released in excerpts from the record of Monday's meeting.

Labelled Belligerent

Nam said it is "inconceivable" that the Allies recommend turning over any Red prisoners to the UN which he labelled "a belligerent itself."

The UN general assembly Dec. 3, 1952, approved an armistice plan drafted by India which provided that final disposition of unwilling prisoners be left to the UN.

The excerpt was revealed in a letter Maj.-Gen. Claude Ent, Gen. Shin, South Korean truce delegate, delivered Tuesday to the senior Allied delegate, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison. Although not made public, the letter was obtained from reliable sources.

Sun Under Secrecy

The Allied plan, still under official secrecy, has rankled South Korea's Rhee. Government officials have threatened to boycott the truce talks and possibly fight on alone unless the plan is filled or revised.

In his letter to Harrison, Choi specifically called on the UN truce negotiator to:

1. Transmit to "the policy making authority" the opinion and recommendation of the Red delegation.

2. Withdraw the latest Allied truce proposal and submit a new proposal after the talks are resumed Tuesday.

3. Grant "full consultation" well in advance to the Republic of Korea in the proposed new Allied plan.

Terrorists Fell Trees to Thwart British Drive

NAIROBI (Reuters)—Mau Mau terrorists felled trees across roads and trenches across others and destroyed four bridges today in an effort to thwart a threatened British offensive in central Kenya.

The offensive, coupled with an announcement from Sir Evelyn Baring, governor of this British Colony, that 6,000 square miles of the terrorist - infested territory will henceforth be sealed off to all civilians from outside without special passes.

The territory contains the Kikuyu tribal reserves of Kiambu, Fort Hall and Nyeri, and the Meru and Embu districts immediately north of Mount Kenya. The Kikuyu, the vast area of forests, farms and plateaus includes all districts where Mau Mau campaign to drive whites out of Kenya has operated.

Mau Mau gangs earlier had been issued "for security reasons in view of the present operations against terrorists."

FIND SPORTSMAN MISSING FIVE DAYS IN BUSH

Famished and Weary But in Fair Condition

RAPIDES DES JOACHIMS, Que. (CP)—Famished and weary, 47-year-old James F. Russell of Ottawa was found Thursday by two searching guides after he had been lost for five days in rugged bush country 14 miles northwest of here.

The Ottawa sportsman, with one foot accidentally burned, said he had eaten no food and drunk only water since he and a fishing companion became lost Sunday.

The companion, Morris Honeyman of Ottawa, reached safety late Monday after he had lost touch with Russell.

Found Close to Spot

The missing man was found by 78-year-old Edmond Robitaille of nearby Stonecliffe, Ont., and Ed Chamberlain as they pushed their way through the dense underbrush growth, shouting as they went. Russell heard them and replied.

Russell said he had stayed close by the spot where he became lost, knowing searchers would be sent for him and fearing to wander away. He was found 2½ miles from the Aberford Fish and Game Club, in the bush country north of this village 40 miles northwest of Ottawa broke, Ont.

A Canadian Air Services plane, one of a number of private and RCAF planes which had been hired, picked Russell up at a lake after the two guides signalled he had been found. He was flown here and taken to a hotel to rest.

He talked briefly with his wife in Ottawa. She said he sounded "fine and normal." She thought he had been a little outside the area where the main search, begun about 1,500 years, in the bush. Russell left by car to join her husband.

Russell, a federal civil servant and son-in-law of Senator J. J. Kinley of New Scotia, was found just as searchers' hopes had begun to fade.

Extra Men Sent In

Extra men had been sent into the bush Thursday, including forestry workers, RCAF and police and forest department employees of both Ontario and Quebec, together with a number of Russell's fellow members of the Ottawa Fish and Game Club.

Russell and Honeywell became lost while fishing Sunday. They wandered all day and lit a signal fire at night, but it failed to attract seen. The next day Honeywell left Russell near the Big Lake and struck out on his own to find a farm in the area, but failed.

He found the trail, but when he returned to the lake Russell could not be found.

Two helicopters and two RCAF planes then were flown here together with special RCAF rescue crews, were thrown into the search.

U.S. And Turkish Troops Withdraw From 2 Positions

Five-Mile Front Clouded By Smoke, Exploding Shells

SEOUL (CP)—United States and Turkish troops withdrew from outposts Vegas and Elko Friday night as a big Chinese drive rose in fury along the ancient invasion road to Seoul, 30 miles to the south.

A front-line report said Allied artillery at once loosed a furious bombardment on the two scarred heights. Chinese guns replied and the artillery duel raged beneath a full moon.

The Chinese, striking with 8,500 men in the west while mounting a 6,500-man drive in the centre, thus had seized three key outposts east of the truce town of Panmunjom. The third was Carson, which fell Thursday night.

His London the war office said British troops inflicted a "crushing defeat" on Red forces attacking the Hook, a key western front stronghold near Panmunjom. The Communists were thrown back mainly by the Duke of Wellington Regiment, the King's Regiment and the Royal Artillery.

The Americans and Turks pulled back on orders after more than 24 hours of blocking fighting that broke, Ont.

Mounties Probably Have Best Spot in All Fevered London

BY DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Canada's Mounties probably have the best spot of all in fevered London—including the wire enclosure in Hyde Park where the public can get at them.

All week, the local citizenry and the tougher tourists have perched on the thousands of Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, or any other vantage point to watch some lesser notable might show up for the Coronation. They got a glimpse of Princess Margaret leaving a ball or the Queen Mother coming to a banquet.

In fact, any handful of men in uniform—soldiers, police or the Mounties practising their musical ride for the Coronation—is an Australians mounting guard at the palace, is apt to draw a multitude. But the Canadians in the Canada Hyde Park's Knightsbridge barracks that the Redcoats had to withdraw behind a high wire fence. Hundreds still gather outside to watch the Mounties exercising their horses, giving them mane hairdos and hoof polishes between runs or polishing harness.

Londoners don't just stand around for an hour or so and then leave if the disguise doesn't appear. They stay and stay, rain or shine, night or day. They bring lunches and eat them standing or sitting on the curb. The ones who tend to break under the strain—only momentarily, of course—appear to be in for a few minutes in the Coronation crush and then catch their breath.

Another favorite, gruelling pastime is walking around the 5½-mile parade route for the greatest show on earth to see the ever-changing gaudy streamers and banners, flags and pennants, cardboard crowns and pictures of the Queen.

There is the constant ground of bandstands of every description shuffling on hot pavement.

Nothing the Queen Mother's garden party. As the royal family drives to the palace, there is no hope of catching a glimpse of any of them. But the mobs assemble anyway.

The traffic pile-up was prodigious. Bus and taxi riders found walking faster.

Admirals, archbishops, baronets in grey toppers and richly-gowned women had to elbow their way through the Coronation crush on Mall.

London is holding its breath. It has to. There's no room to let it out.

Spirit Not Changed Says Medical Officer

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The spirit of communism has not changed no matter what Malenkov or Dr. B. T. Rose of Guelph, medical officer of health for Welington county, said Thursday.

Dr. Dale, who spoke at a Rotary Club meeting, was born in Poland and imprisoned by the Russians for seven months as a spy before he managed to escape to England and join the British Army in 1940.

He outlined how Communists seize power and said: "We do not understand the Russians. They have some more ruthless and governed by dictators."

Kinette Club To Raise Money For Swim Pool

In preparation for another season of swimming and fun to be enjoyed by the local kiddies last year, members of the local Kinsmen club have been putting in a few hours of overtime recently to get the Kinsmen Swimming Pool on the Dundas street ready for opening for another season.

The main feature of fun and enjoyment which Belleville children of school age and older, realized from the pool last year would be difficult to measure, but it is sufficient to say that local boys and girls are again waiting patiently for the opening of the pool.

The pool proper has received its spring cleaning and filtration equipment and other facilities are being checked in readiness for the opening date.

In support of this worthy service club project, members of the Belleville Kinette Club are holding a special tag day on Saturday next, June 6th, when the public is urged to give generously. Kinsmen club members will assist the Kinettes in tagging.

The entire proceeds of the tag day will be turned over to the swimming pool.

Police to Check Story of Accused

A story of getting into a state of intoxication through taking of pain killing tablets leaned on the prescription of a reputable local physician, was told in city magistrate's court today by a man picked up by police on a drunk charge.

Officers said the man smelled strong of intoxicating liquor, staggered as he walked and exhibited which Belleville children of school age and older, realized from the Kinsmen club members last year would be difficult to measure, but it is sufficient to say that local boys and girls are again waiting patiently for the opening of the pool.

The pool proper has received its spring cleaning and filtration equipment and other facilities are being checked in readiness for the opening date.

SERIOUS SIDE

Feature Edition On Coronation Appears Monday

The Ontario Intelligencer is pleased to be able to include in Monday's edition a special section of 12 pages devoted to the Coronation.

It will present comprehensive coverage in stories and pictures of the background of this historic event. It is a presentation which is designed to have a special appeal and it is thought that some readers may desire to preserve the copies of it for preservation. These may be had by notifying the circulation department. The phone number is 4000.

Of course complete coverage of the Coronation ceremonies Tuesday will appear that day and subsequently. The limitations of time and transportation impose some handicaps in securing the best pictures as quickly as it would be desirable but these will be available, it is expected, for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday publication.

Through the services of The Canadian Press, The Associated Press and Reuters agency the written coverage will be most complete.

C of C Nominates G. A. Freeman As Director

G. A. Freeman, a director of the local Chamber of Commerce, on Thursday was nominated by the directors to represent the province on the National Board of Directors of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Three men are elected to this office from Ontario. The nomination came as a result of a letter received by the chamber requesting support to two other men.

Mr. Freeman's name was added to the list which will be mailed back to its source and the local chamber will begin a campaign to obtain the support to their nomination of other chambers in the area.

The parking resolution presently under discussion of the Chamber, of Commerce board of directors, whereby the money realized from parking meters be utilized for providing parking space in the city, came under discussion again at the meeting of the directors in the Shrine club on Thursday.

The directorate decided to gather and organize factual material on this question and prepare it for presentation at the first council meeting in September. Alderman Lattimer presented a motion before the directors to the effect that council is not prepared to accept this scheme, the directors will attempt to bring the motion before the people in the form of a question at election time.

Trash Cans Painted

Secretary-manager Don W. Kingdon announced the city ash trash cans have been received and set out on the street again.

More than 200 letters have been sent to retailers, resort owners, hotel owners, etc., in the district requesting support for the map and directory folder which has been planned by the body for the chamber.

Frederic Burrows, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Don. Kingdon, secretary-manager, were appointed to march in the Coronation parade on the city on June 2.

Both will represent the chamber in the parade.

One new member was admitted into the chamber at the meeting. He is S. A. Targon, of the Targon Motel, on Dundas St.

The river flows slowly at that point, about four miles above the falls.

DRESS REHEARSAL

Meanwhile, it was made official that Elizabeth will be the first crowned British sovereign ad mod-em times to possess a "domin-ion."

The Privy Council, which advises the Queen in matters of high policy, erased the word "dominion" from the precise description of the sovereign's relationship to various elements of the British Commonwealth of Nations and the Queen signed the proclamation Thursday.

Although everyone has known about the change for months, publication of the order today made Her Majesty officially:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland and of her other realms and territories, Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

The Old Style

The old style was:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas Queen, Defender of the Faith."

The Queen now reigns over the Commonwealth states separately as the Queen of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Ceylon.

Pakistan regards her as "Queen of the United Kingdom and her other realms and territories." India, a republic, is a full member of the Commonwealth and acknowledges the Queen as "Head of the Commonwealth."

The new styling also makes more precise the relationship to Ireland, specifically stating the Queen's dominion is over "Northern Ireland." The Irish republic is excluded.

But the new style insists it is "Elizabeth II" and not a mere note of the contention of many Scotsmen she should be known as "Elizabeth I" because the 17th century Elizabeth was queen of England but not of Scotland.

Excitement Growing

With such technicalities cleared away, London and other cities displayed growing excitement.

Thursday night Londoners who stayed up late had some rewards. Electrical engineers tested by fits and starts the lighting of public buildings, government offices and the ornately decorated Mall—the wide street leading to Buckingham Palace.

Shortly before midnight the palace itself was ablaze with brilliant light for 20 minutes.

Turn Down Appeal

TOKYO (AP) —A Japanese district court today turned down the appeal of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company for an injunction to block the sale of 18,000 tons of Iranian oil by a Japanese firm.

The Hamilton Keana Company apparently will be allowed to dispose of the oil any way it wishes.

Judge Ryuichi Katamura handed down the ruling after three hearings.

Kyodo news service said Kiam-ura ruled that Iran's oil nationization law is valid and that Iranian oil in dispute was pumped up and refined after the nationization law went into effect.

In its request for ad injunction Anglo-Iranian charged that Japanese the interests of foreign without compensation.

DESERVED TRIBUTE

Gerrymandered out of his old seat of Lake Centre in southern Saskatchewan, John Diefenbaker, M.P., has flatly accepted a nomination in Prince Albert in a four-way contest. . . . Although it is his home town, Mr. Diefenbaker was chosen a riding which has voted down Conservative candidates for federal office for as long as most people can remember in the prairie provinces.

Since 1896 it has been solidly Liberal with one exception. The C.C.F. took the seat in 1945, defeating former prime Minister Mackenzie King by a narrow margin. But the little riding had returned a Progressive member for two terms when the farmers' movement was riding the crest of a popular wave following the First Great War.

In the circumstances it is expected that the man whom many Conservatives consider to be one of the ablest parliamentarians Ottawa has seen in a long time will capture the constituency on June 4, as soon as it was known that a redistribution eliminated his Lake Centre seat, he had invitations from coast to coast to accept a nomination. There is no record of any other except a Prime Minister being offered such a tribute as this.

In his home town on this occasion John Diefenbaker has certainly running as an official Progressive Conservative candidate but an active organization of Diefenbaker clubs, which has been functioning for some time, is supported by prominent citizens who have previously been identified with Liberal and CCF-ers. . . . This must be highly gratifying to Mr. Diefenbaker in the riding where he was reelected more than once before a succession of defeats in the prairie constituency which bears his name. . . . He will go with his spurs in the Commons with such marked distinction.

One of the first to concede a win for Diefenbaker has been the CCF leader, J. Coldwell. . . . He was recently quoted as stating that party picnics in his Rosetown-Biggar riding, which formerly attracted Lake Centre, were unusual experiences.

"Scores of my old friends, known as loyal CCF supporters from across the constituency boundary in Lake Centre, would attend," Mr. Coldwell related. "They'd tell me, of course, they stood four-square for the CCF cause. They would even show me their membership cards. But they would always add with a grin that I'd still, at this time they knew, have to vote for Diefenbaker."

We rather imagine that the people of this country, by and large, would agree that a person would have to be pretty cynical to refuse to vote against John Diefenbaker in the light of his parliamentary performances.

LIKE A REVOLVING DOOR

The French National Assembly has turned down Paul Reynaud for the premiership. . . . It has done considerably more than that, comments the Montreal Gazette.

The Deputies of France have refused to support a constitutional reform which would have ended France's chronic political instability and the resultant chronic economic instability.

The vote meant-both. Reynaud, an expert at both economics and politics, who was Premier of France in the dark days of 1940, had declared he was unwilling to undertake the task of forming a government unless the constitution be changed to give a government a minimum life of 18 months.

This would be done by an amendment which would dissolve the National Assembly and call for national elections—whenever the Assembly passed a vote of non-confidence in the government.

Reynaud, under the present constitution, votes governments in and out, after a day or a week or an hour, without any discomfort to itself.

Reynaud's proposal was that such an amendment be passed if he were made premier, otherwise he would not accept the post. The Assembly voted down both Reynaud and his amendment.

There is the condition which has existed in France ever since liberation continues, a condition in which there is no central government with any power. The Deputies run the constituencies and care for local politics and a complete disregard for world affairs.

A new government is required for almost every bill that is passed, a condition which supports it on the one bill, then votes non-confidence on the next.

As a result there have been 18 governments in France since 1946. The monetary problems, under which they move in and out of office is called the "revolving door system."

In calling for his amendment, Reynaud illustrated boldly how this affects French foreign policy.

Reynaud said he could not go to the Bermuda conference with Sir Winston Churchill and President Eisenhower and "have one of them whisper to the other about me 'Do you think he will still be in office in another 15 days'?"

A government which may exist only days or weeks cannot enter into major contracts with other nations.

A worn description of irresponsibility is the proverb about Nero fiddling while Rome burned. . . .

The present Deputies of France may be remembered in a similar proverb—if there is any France left to need proverbs.

THE NEW HOUSE

I passed a new built house today, Now rooms upon the builder's plan
The last bright touch applied.
Twas ready to display
And all was gay inside.

But how their story go one can
Till after many a year.

I knew that soon it would be known
To people young and old.
And wondered what that house would own,
When it was labeled "Sold."

It is a pleasing house, thought I,
But homes need tender care,
And love must last or there must die
Who buy
Won't find contentment there.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An elderly banker who can remember when all bankers had side whiskers told a graduate of the dealer and the dealer assistant courses of the industry. When you order goods delivered, the first concern is the conscience of the supplier.

"In the business world generally," he said, "this sold old bank-er," "excuses are considered equally as good as deeds" in the matter of delivery of the goods. This is the era of the adequate excuse. It is eloquent to accept the excuses in lieu of the goods. Excuses are inexpensive. They are intangible. And it is hard form to get angry and refuse a perfectly good excuse."

The gathering of newspapermen in Ottawa was told a good deal more to him to try and raise a comfortable sum of money for the new home of incorporating, renting and furnishing a nice new club house.

"The conclusion is gentlemen," he said, "nothing doing!"

Origin of the Stuff

(North Bay Nugget)

A vigilante committee has been set up at Cochrane, Ontario, to curb drinking among teenagers who, it is alleged, are getting most of their liquor from authorized quarters. The question is where do the bootleggers get their supplies, there not being much evidence these days of bath tub distillers or kitchen sink mash.

Britain Makes Some Changes

(Winnipeg Free Press)

A report published recently in Britain describes some of the changes that have taken place in British factories during the past half century. Although the report applies directly to Britain, similar changes have taken place in other industrial nations of the western world. The report, of the Chief Inspector of Factories in Britain is summarized in The Economist as follows:

"Within the factory, the most obvious change is the almost complete disappearance of the forest of shafting and pulleys, belts and driving straps that used to provide motive power for each machine in the factory from one main steam engine, the pride and joy of the engine-man, endowed with almost human personality by the workers. Electricity has gradually been superseding most other forms of industrial power for a long time; more factories individual drives on each machine. And they have taken the place of any main prime-mover. A more diverse and widely spread technological change is the application of mechanical power to numerous more operations formerly done by manual labour. The large bakery, which in 1901 was advertising all bread made by hand and by machine, has almost disappeared by the human hand, may exemplify this; the mechanical baker has had a profound swing in public attitudes towards machinery.

"Not all the outstanding changes concern the conditions of employment. The large bakery, lighting, ventilation, cleanliness have improved greatly, washing and especially canteens have become fairly general since the pre-war days when the Scottish manager said that the greatest difficulty he had to contend with was between the workers themselves: it was hardly possible to get girls to eat in the same room with girls of today the puny, ill-clad factory 'hands' who used to come to the office and ask for work."

Scholar Appreciated

(Winnipeg Free Press)

The sunshine of true scholarship will burn a little less brightly in Edinburgh with the passing of Prof. Carleton W. Stanley who is leaving for Ontario after completing a seven years' teaching assignment at Unified College. His departure is the loss of scholarship that is passing with the arrival of the specialist in the academic scheme of world. Prof. Stanley is one of those rare but delightful scholars for whom the unity of knowledge is a tenet of faith and in whom other-knowledge finds a personal expression.

Primarily a classicist, with a deep knowledge of English and European literature, Professor Stanley came at home in the realms of biology and mathematics, and has a keen interest in current information on every conceivable subject. Before he settled on the study of Latin in the business world, his career has been that of a teacher and lecturer. He taught English at Victoria College, Toronto, and was for a time after that Lord Bessborough's secretary. Welldon called to the presidency of Dalhousie, and when he resigned from that position, it was thought that his academic career might be over.

Winnipeg owes much to the persuasion which induced Principal W. C. Graham of United College that this was not the case. In his seven years at United, Prof. Stanley has made a rich contribution not only to the academic life of university at large but to the community, and it is to be hoped that he have been rich and good years for him.

The tribute marked by Roman know-how rather than Greek is probably based on a changing of those phases of our culture whose affinity is more directly to the perfect for this reason that he looks on Prof.W. J. Alexander (whose daughter he married) as the ablest literary critic Canada has produced and on Frederick Philip Grove as Canada's outstanding novelist. It is also unquestionably true that, after nine years in the textile industry, he returned to the classics again when he went to teach Greek at McGill.

In his "retirement" he projects the most extensive piece of research work he has yet done. Winnipeg will remember the gracious influence of one who "settled in" things" and never lost the uncommon touch.

Lucky Fugitive

(Ottawa Citizen)

A suspected thief was grabbed recently by Mr. David Slim, deputy minister of national revenue, but the man was released when it was found out in Mr. Sims' hands. The fugitive kept the rest of his clothes, however, when he raced into some citizens retain after the assessor has apportioned and through with them.

Was One Of The Family

(Montreal Gazette)

He was only a boy when he read in a church paper that Bishop Holmes of Moosonee had met Eskimos with the view to appeal for missionaries to the Arctic. After two years correspondence with Bishop Holmes he came to Canada to offer himself for the work. He was ordained and set out into the northland which was to become the immense parish in which he spent his life.

He died as Rt. Rev. Archibald Lang Fleming, the first Anglican Bishop of the Arctic. But his story will never die. It will always be part of the story of the Canadian north. Scarcely anyone living in the outposts of that vast land did not see him at some time or other. He was known as the "Flying Bishop," or he was one of the first to take advantage of air travel in his synods and to save time. Sometimes he would cover more than 5,000 miles by air on a single tour.

But he never spoke of himself as "visiting" his flock. He would speak only of its opportunities and responsibilities. He was one of the more appealing to him because it seemed to offer so wide a field of service.

His strangely remote diocese of "Arctic Canada" was at least it was' red from Aklavik, in the western extremity of the Mackenzie River and stretching south to Fort George on James Bay.

Into this vast and confidence of the Eskimos, because he had their confidence, Bishop Fleming was a wise missionary, who saw the danger of trying to change the whole white man's ways. As he once said: "One of our problems today is how to help the Eskimo from being civilized to a dependent people, to preserve primitive identity."

What gave such zeal to Bishop Fleming was the conviction that the simplicity of the Eskimo's life was receptive the Christian message with startling directness. Many of some Montrealers will remember a talk on his work which he gave in the Y.M.C.A. many years ago, in which he spoke of the finest experience of his life as being an hour he had spent with an aged and blind Eskimo talking together about the light of the soul.

Many fine tributes will be paid to Bishop Fleming for all that he had accomplished in his far-flung diocese. But the greatest tribute of all came from the people he served. They called him lovingly "Ookpik" or "one of the family of Eskimos."

Investigating Mark Twain

(Christian Science Monitor)

The Moscow radio a few days ago was broadcasting "news" it published in America, suspects that Senator Joseph R. McCarthy is about to investigate Mark Twain.

It could be, of course, that the Communists have either read or learned of Samuel Clemens' cable to the Associated Press of Hartford, Conn., long - famous reports of his demise were "greatly exaggerated." Such an investigation into the world-famous American author's writings would be a good thing. And, thinking that the senator might not get around to it soon, we proffer a small one of our own.

We found that in the Book of Joan of Arc Mark Twain had recounted with delight the notion, implied by the Inquisitions into what one thinks and believes.

In Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," we discovered how he had delighted in the "sivilizing" influence and the workings of the mob mind.

Within the pages of "A Yankee in King Arthur's Court," we came across a grim statement against himself (torture), why it requires that any accused be put to the question, given an open trial, and why it provides the safeguard of habeas-corpus (writ of habeas corpus).

And in "The Prince and The Pauper," we were pictured for imagination some things that used to happen to those who voiced opinions that were not popular to liefs or official interests.

By all means let us investigate Mark Twain. It would make aliterary relishing for Russians and Americans, too.

IT TAKES PROTEIN TO MAKE AN ADEQUATE BREAKFAST

IT TAKES PROTEIN TO MAKE

If child or youth is to enjoy the kind of breakfast that will include (1) undernutritious cereal, (2) fresh fruit and (3 one of the protein foods — milk, egg, meat, fowl or fish.

DR. BRADY

Protein food must be the most essential for growing children and youths than it is for mature adults. It is necessary not only for growth but also for constant repair of worn and tear.

Protein is an essential component of every living cell in the body. It makes up the largest part of it ; solids in muscle cells.

The protein in the lean meat and in foods of plant or animal sources are compounds of carbon, hydrogen oxygen and nitrogen, some containing phosphorous, sulphur and iron. All contain carbon.

Proteins of plant and animal origin are not identical in composition. Their suitability as food or as ingredient in human nutrition depends on the combination of amino-acids of which they are composed. Chemically there are about 22 amino-acids in food and body proteins. A food protein such as casein (in milk or cheese) may contain as many as 18 amino-acids or as few as such as the zein of corn.

Some amino-acids which are not present in the zein of corn, for example, are indispensable for growth. Young animals fed only corn not only fail to grow but lose weight steadily. Two of the amino-acids absent from corn (lysine and tryptophane) are present in whole wheat flour, milk, cheese, eggs, lean meat. Therefore addition of any one of these to the animal's feed will restore lost weight and enable the young animal to grow.

The same thing holds true for the feeding of children or adults.

Regardless of the adequacy of the breakfast in calories or, as some uniformed persons are persuaded to believe, "nourishing" quality, such as white bread, toast, cake, cookies, honey, syrup, waffles, jelly, rolls, crackers, sugar and a morning beverage, the person in the habit of eating such a breakfast inevitably suffers from nutritional deficiency. The ultra-refined, "purified," processed and doctored diets of our food nowadays it is difficult for the nutritionist to select items which will supply what the body requires for functional health, even if he has limited choice. If breakfast consists entirely of such cheat-foods as those mentioned, Dr. Paul Dudley White, individual is bound to be a victim of what has been described as "bountiful lunch club boys call malnutrition.

There ought to be a law, or anywhere an American tradition, that the breakfast of every man, woman and child be supported by every growing child—and children grow up to the age of 25 to 27 years— include at least an egg, cooked as the individual prefers, or raw if he likes, or two rashers of bacon, or a slice of ham, or a bowl of porridge, or some salt pork, or some fish, or fowl or at least some cheese.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WHEN DO WE FAIL?

When we fail, we fail as a person—no one else need be involved. The stars shine as usual. Birds build their nests. Flowers grow in the wet and bloom in isolated spots and scatter their perfume, though unseen. Life goes on, mysterious and unknown. We are an entity of ourself.

We have heard people speak of one as a great person, which the interpreted means that he has done obliviously to the forces about him, and where only of the measure of ability to himself for his own salvation. Nor has such a one made any reductions his self-command and power!

No one else makes us fail. We, as persons highly endowed, are the only ones capable of failure. Human life we remain largely alone. Emerson spoke of such a one as compensating greatness. And greatness is just as common among the unknown as among the famous and proclaimed. We are not failures because we had love what money we had in life earned immortality!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

THE MAN BEHIND THE WHEEL

All during these summer months, millions of Americans are riding in their automobiles along the highways of the nation, hurrying to and from a vacation. Every day, tragically, some of them will die in senseless accidents.

Driving a car is a phase of human conduct like every activity in life. The rest of our conduct, it reflects perfectly. Driving a car may be inconsiderate, thoughtless, reckless, or even wicked; it may be courteous, kind, and admirable. All of us express our natures in our daily living, and in driving a car, that is merely one form of expression.

It can, however, be a very dangerous form. Ordinary rudeness, if not ignored, one's fist or crowding ahead of others through a doorway, may be annoying but it is seldom fatal. But when a man becomes rude and aggressive with a ton or two of steel moving a mile a minute, the consequences may be tragically serious.

Human life is not only sacred: it is divine. Only God can give it, and not all the science of scientists have ever found a way to create it, or restore it when it has been destroyed. No amount of money, good will, or remorse can replace a life once taken by violence. Remember that, when next you sit behind the wheel.

Ejector Seat Saves Edmonton RCAF Pilot

The Sabre jet plane of Flying Officer Carruthers, right, is a burned-out wreckage in a field near Breckenridge, Que., but he suffers no greater injury than a bruised neck. When the plane went into a spin, Carruthers, an Edmonton, Alta., pilot training at Uplands, Ottawa, used his ejector seat to escape the inevitable crash. He parachuted safely to earth and flagged a passing motorist.—Central Press Canadian.

Queen Approves Styles of Titles In Commonwealth

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen signed proclamations Thursday approving the style and titles by which she will be known in the various countries of the Commonwealth after her Coronation June 2.

She first held a meeting of her Privy Council—body of advisers on high constitutional issues — and signed the proclamation affecting Britain.

Afterwards she received individually Prime Ministers Louis St. Laurent of Canada, Robert Menzies of Australia, Sidney Holland of New Zealand and Dudley Senanayake of Ceylon. Then she signed the proclamations they submitted for her titles in their respective countries.

Separate forms of the royal style and titles, containing a substantial common element, were agreed by the Commonwealth prime ministers at their conference here last December.

The proclamations for overseas Commonwealth countries, which took effect at once, vary in recognition of their different constitutions, and, in some cases, religions.

Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Ceylon each name Elizabeth as their own Queen.

The Canadian form is:

"Elizabeth the Second, by the Grace of God of the United Kingdom, Canada and her Realms and Territories Queen, Head of the Commonwealth, Defender of the Faith."

Nehru of India Holds Parley With Naguib

CAIRO (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India, after a 90-minute conference with Egypt's Premier Mohammed Naguib, said today there was a "good settlement" for the bitter Anglo-Egyptian dispute over military control of the Suez canal.

Nehru, who stopped off briefly in Cairo en route by air to the Coronation, did not specify what it was.

Nehru said he believed in the possibility of a solution despite the recent breakdown of talks between Britain and Egypt on the issue.

The meeting at Cairo airport was the first between the two statesmen.

Nehru told reporters he felt the world situation was "certainly better" and said international tension would ease further if there were an armistice in Korea.

Nehru said that the right of peoples to national independence "generally speaking" takes precedence over considerations of regional security but added:

"The best way of approaching the problem of security should be by pushing out the danger of war. Then the question of security would be largely solved."

DANES WILL ACCEPT QUEEN

COPENHAGEN. (Reuters)—The Danish people in a referendum Thursday approved a new constitution which will enable a Queen to mount the throne of this country again after 4½ centuries of male monarchs. As a result, Princess Margrethe, 13-year-old daughter of King Frederik, is next in line for the throne instead of the king's brother, Prince Knud.

SHANNONVILLE

Catches First Fish On 78th Birthday

SHANNONVILLE — An interesting visitor from western Canada is Mrs. C. Liffey of Zillingdon, Sask., who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Sagar. This is her first trip to Ontario and she says she is much in love with the province.

In an interesting interview with Mrs. C. Liffey she tells her life history in part.

Born in Austria

"I was born in Austria on May 10, 1873, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Shirley. I was married at the age of 18 years to Mr. Liffey, who was a carpenter by trade. My mother died when I was seven years old and most of the "housekeeping" fell to me.

"Six years later after my marriage in 1899 we sailed for Canada and settled at Fox Hills, Sask. Later we moved to Zillingdon, where my husband farmed and also followed his trade of carpentry. He built six houses in his career in the vicinity of Fox Hills and Cupar. Our nearest neighbor when we settled was two miles away, and the next nearest one was 23 miles distant. Needless to say we didn't do much visiting.

Nearest Town Day's Journey

"Our nearest town was Cupar and the trip to and from Cupar took two days with oxen which, compared to modern day travel, was painfully slow.

"We had nine of a family, six of whom are still living. I have two daughters and two sons in Vancouver B. C., one daughter in Chicago, Ill., and one in Shannonville, Mrs. Sagar.

"In religion I am Pentecostal and enjoy the services. My hobby is making fancy mats and crocheting along with other fancy work.

On May 10 I was 78 years of age and had never been fishing. I went out and had the pleasure of catching my first fish on a hook and line on my birthday."

All wish Mrs. O. Liffey many more birthdays and hope her stay here will be a pleasent memory for years to come.

Joining Forces

TORONTO (CP)—Travel Minister Louis Cecile of Ontario said Thursday that the department of travel and publicity has been in harmony with the attorney-general's department are piloting forces to stamp out "riotous and undesirable" conditions at some summer resorts in the province.

Areas at Balmy Beach and nearby Georgian Bay have been the scenes of disgraceful episodes of drinking and lawlessness by hoodlums from the Toronto area who have turned the usually-peaceful districts into brawls on week-ends, Mr. Cecil said. These will be the first points of attack, the minister said.

BIG CATCH

VANCOUVER (CP)—Skipper Olaf Bjorge collected a new hat by being the first to land a catch of halibut this season. His boat Tanaa [illegible] 6,000 pounds of halibut from the fishing grounds off Scott Island.

FAITHFUL DONOR

Bertrand Granted 11th-Hour Stay Of Execution

OTTAWA (CP)—Rheal Leo Bertrand, scheduled to be hanged today for the murder of his 55-year-old wife, has been granted an 11th-hour stay of execution to June 12 for a mental examination.

A statement issued Thursday by Justice Minister Garson said:

"Within the past 48 hours representations have been made to me that Rheal L. Bertrand is insane and has been insane for some time past.

"These representations have been made by one who is of unquestioned integrity and standing in the community. The question of Bertrand's possible insanity was not raised in either of the two trials.

"In these circumstances a stay of execution until June 12 next has been granted in order that the prisoner may be examined by a competent alienist. . ."

Bertrand, 37-year-old self-styled psychologist, was to have been hanged in Montreal last Friday for killing his bride of two months, whose body was found in a hunting cabin at Lac Ste. Marie, Que., 60 miles north of Ottawa, in December, 1951.

He was granted a week's postponement to seek leave to appeal before the Supreme Court of Canada on the ground that the trial jury was allowed to go to confession.

Mr. Justice Robert Taschereau refused leave.

Mounties Escort

The horses in the escort have undergone no special training for the event, as such functions are considered routine for the well-trained animals. The escort will consist of members of the RCMP's riding staff here and from Regina.

Two riders will be in advance of the party. Then will come six escorts riding in pairs ahead of the coach; next will be the two officers, followed by a trumpeter riding centre behind the carriage. Another section of six riders will follow with two outriders behind them.

When the coach halts in front of the Peace Tower the RCMP escort will form up at right angles to the Governor-General's Foot Guards who will be inspected by the governor-general.

The escort retires following the inspection to return when the national ceremonies have ended to escort the governor-general back to Rideau Hall.

CAMPBELLFORD

Travelling Gavel Presented to I. O. O. F.

CAMPBELLFORD — The local lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows was chosen to receive the travelling gavel which was presented at the regular meeting on Friday evening last. A group from Bowmanville were present to make the presentation and visitors were present from the immediate area. A social time was held afterward and refreshments were served in the dining room.

On Sunday, the Oddfellows and Rebekahs attended divine service at St. John's United Church. P.G. Hon. George Lacy took the solo part in the anthem, "Seek Ye First the Kingdom," rendered by the choir. The Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith, pastor of St. John's, preached a very appropriate message on the parable of "The Good Samaritan."

The Oddfellows marched to the music of the Campbellford Citizen's Band under the direction of parade marshals Vern Spencer and, Bob Bateson. Mr. Fred Hunt, district deputy grand master of the Bay of Quinte district, was present, along with other visitors. The visitor from the farthest point was from Swift Current, Sask. There was a good representation of the Rebekah Lodge present.

SHANNONVILLE

H-S Association Plans Field Day

The Shannonville Home and School Association held its monthly meeting on Monday evening and reviewed the executive meeting which had been held recently at the home of the president, Mr. Jerry Dafoe. This meeting made definite the plans for the trip to Peterborough as well as the date for the field day, an annual affair which will be held in June in the agriculture grounds. Preparations are well underway to make this day a big success.

It was reported that the Association was 62 members strong.

The names of those nominated for office for the ensuing year were as follows: president, Jerry Dafoe; vice-president, Mrs. Kilburn; secretary, Helen Louie; treasurer, Ron Stewart; executive members: Mrs. Edna Louie; Mrs. Percy Howard; Mrs. Clarence Bill; Mrs. Gordon Johnson and Helen Spencer. The election will take place at the June meeting.

The guest speakers for the evening were Mrs. L. A. Page and Mrs. Hazelton, who would like to introduce a year book into the school.

Refreshments were served by the monthly conveners.

BIG ORNAMENT

LAHAVE, N.S. (CP)—One of the largest ornaments in Nova Scotia is the large-scale model of the RCN corvette Halifax, decorating the lawn of Capt. Archie Publicover's home in this Lunenburg village. The replica was presented by the builders to the well-known skipper, who intends to place it on a permanent concrete base.

Weddings

SCRIVER—HAJNIK

Nuptial mass was said at Sacred Heart Church, Kingston, on Saturday morning, May 9, for Mary Theresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hajnik, and Mr. Albert Dick Scriver, of Kington, son of Mr. Clarence Scriver, of Toronto and the late Mrs. Scriver.

The Rev. Fr. F. M. Grant celebrated the Mass and performed the marriage before an altar decorated with spring flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose an original gown of white nylon tulle and lace with small matching jacket. The full bouffant skirt, with tiers of lace cascading down, either side, extended into a cathedral train. She wore a handbeaded tiara of rhinestones and seed pearls, and her fingertip veil was of nylon illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis.

The matron of honor, Mrs. G. F. Rowan, of Toronto, wore an off-the-shoulder gown of pale blue nylon net and tulle over taffeta.

The bridesmaid, Miss Anne Hnuh, of Belleville, and the flower girl, Miss Evelyn Hajnik, of Peterborough, wore syrga of nylon net over taffeta in pink and yellow, respectively. The bride's attendants carried nosegay bouquets of pink and yellow roses, gladioli and tulips.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Bernard Cassidy, of Kingston. Mr. F. E. Scriver, of Toronto, and Mr. Carman Hyland of Kingston, were ushers.

Receiving the guests in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel, was the bride's mother, Mrs. J. Hajnik, wearing a gown of French moonlight cloth, white costume hat and corsage of yellow roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. Herbert Jamieson, wearing a two-piece dress of navy silk shantung, pink straw hat and corsage of pink carnations.

Following the reception, the bride and groom left on a honeymoon trip to Florida, the bride wearing a two-piece suit of linen in the deepest blue shade, white hat and navy accessories.

On their return, they will live at 363 Concession Street, Kingston.

Makeup Chosen By Elizabeth

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen has chosen the makeup she will wear at Coronation Day, after more than six months of trial-and-error experiment.

Mrs. Thelma Holland, her beauty consultant is to use these shades. She will comprise:

1. Peach-tinted liquid foundation.
2. A touch of red-blue powder rouge over the foundation to enhance her own healthy coloring.
3. A new red-blue lipstick specially created to tone with the vivid red parliamentary robe the Queen will don travelling to Westminster Abbey, where she will be crowned, and with the purple robe of state she will wear during the 60-mile drive afterwards through London's festive streets.
4. Peach-tinted face powder.

Mrs. Holland explained that a model with coloring similar to the Queen's was guinea pig in the experiments.

Graduating Nurses Present Picture of Loveliness As Medals, Diplomas Awarded

Presenting a charming picture of efficiency and loveliness the graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital School of nursing entered in a processional each carrying a sheaf of red roses tied with broad red satin ribbon at the Collegiate on Thursday evening for their graduation exercises. The platform arrangeos were arranged on the stage where the officials of the hospital board, the school choir, guests and the graduates were seated.

Mr. J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors, presided and offered the good wishes of the Board to whatever sphere of service the graduates chose. Tee chairman remarked that he was gratified with the high level of preparation of the hospital personnel, and that he had been glad that from the educational point of view this hospital was the finest in the province. He emphasized the need for more experienced registered Ausilliary nurses.

The nurses' choir was heard in three numbers under the direction of Alfred Evans, "Holy City", "Bless Thou House", and "The Lord's Prayer". The accompanist at the piano was Miss Lois McGregor. Mrs. Harry Deacon presiding at the organ. The invocation was pronounced by Canon J. B. Creegan.

Alderman Cecil Hyde brought greetings from the city in the absence of the Mayor, offering congratulations to the class on achieving their goal, and wishing them success in their chosen careers.

Expresses Best Wishes

Best wishes from the medical staff were expressed by Dr. R. C. Potter, who told the graduates that they could feel justly proud of their achievement. He hoped they would have pleasant memories of their years in the hospital, and that by deeds and words they would help the public relations between the hospital and the community.

In giving her first report as Director of Nursing, Miss M. L. Peart, noted that as the population and industry had expanded in Belleville the need for more room at the hospital had grown. At present they were overcrowded and Belleville in need of more sick beds. The hospital had received capable and efficient nursesservice. Miss Peart expressed her deep appreciation to the board and to the Auxiliary, who have supplied valuable and necessary equipment. It is considered by the inspectors to be one of the better schools of nursing in Ontario. At present the student body numbers forty-one. The director outlined the course of study and mentioned many of the lectures and personnel who had contributed to its success.

Warden Introduces Speaker

The speaker of the evening, Dr. Karl S. Bernhardt, was introduced by Warden J. Elwood, Madoc, as a Professor of Psychology from the University of Toronto, director of the Institute of Child Study, author and lecturer.

Dr. Bernhardt assured the graduating class that the most prominent characteristic of their profession was the dedication to the service of people. It was a profession with a great tradition and they had become members of a distinguished company.

"We live in an age of miracles," the professor continued. "We have conquered time and space, and have split the atom. But in spite of miracles we have many persisting human problems. These are the unfinished business of the world. It is important to take stock of those things we value. Nothing is more important than human happiness, friendship, love, sympathy and service, these in no greater gift than kindness and unselfishness. We can learn how to live at peace with our own family, with neighbors, whether across the street, the ocean or the iron curtain."

Several Suggestions

Dr. Bernhardt had several suggestions for the graduates. The need for more to-she promised that they would wear their pins and black bands proudly.

Shirley Johnson made the presentation of a gift to Miss Peart on behalf of her classmates.

Royal, Princely Families Settling in For Coronation

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margherita of Baden is switching a starched nurse's cap for a ball dress, and sipping quietly into Buckingham Palace.

The Sultan of Perak can't decide between his blue robes and his purple.

Bobbinsa II of Swaziland is checking on Coronation details.

In a word, royal and princely families from perfumed palaces and mud-hut capitals are settling in for the Coronation of the Queen and they are as much agog as London's east end Cockneys.

Many have urgent problems of dress, diet or protocol. London's officials and hoteliers—taking in their stride menus for Arab polo cakes and knowing just where to find an Afghan interpreter in a hurry—look like they will get the whole company happily on parade to Westminster Abbey.

Thirty representatives of the world's royal families—not including British royalty—will drive from Buckingham Palace to the abbey as official guests of Queen Elizabeth. Scores more royal visitors, African chiefs and Oriental princes have seats in the abbey for the ceremony.

No kings or queens of sovereign powers will be present, since it's against tradition for an independent monarch to attend the crowning of another. In their stead some of Europe's senior princes will attend.

Some of the royal visitors like strale how old-fashioned ideas of pomp and circumstance have changed.

Twenty - one - year - old Princess Margherita of Baden, a pretty young German girl with wavy hair and laughing eyes, is a hard-working nurse at London's St. Thomas' hospital. Her uncle, the Duke of Edinburgh, invited her to put her starched uniform aside and move from the uncarpeted wards to a richly-furnished room in the palace. Back to the abbey as his guest.

Five Sultanas in One Coach

In one carriage procession will be five Malay sultans—Selangor, Kelantan, Johore, Perak, and Brunei; the Sultans of Zanzibar and Lahej, and the only reigning queen beside Elizabeth attending—the six-foot-three Queen Salote Tupou of the Pacific Tonga Islands. All are from British-protected territories.

The Sultan of Selangor's robes for the day are worth $70,000, bedecking a diamond-studded gold kris, and a 200-pearl-and-gold kris, or wavy-bladed Malay knife.

The Sultan of Perak has decided on a headdress with an aigrette of diamonds but will be torn between his bright blue and his purple robes of state.

Dark - skinned potentates, with strange, resounding titles are expected to be followed by almost every boat and plane.

Peggy Cripps To Wed Negro Law Student

LONDON (AP)—Enid Margaret (Peggy) Cripps youngest daughter of the late Sir Stafford Cripps, announced Thursday her forthcoming marriage "for love" to Joseph Ayodele Negro law student and son of a Gold Coast tribal leader.

Miss Cripps, tall, buxom, brown-haired woman of 32, made the announcement jointly with her smaller, bespectacled fiance, at a press conference.

Ayodale, who received part of his education in England and is the personal representative of the Gold Coast prime minister in Britain, smilingly declined to give his exact age.

Miss Cripps, however, interrupted to say "Joe is about my age."

The couple said they first met at an African Students Union party in London nearly two years ago.

Both Miss Cripps and Ayodale said their families approved of the marriage.

Dionne Quints Hold Nineteenth Birthday Party

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—The Dionne quintuplets celebrated the 19th birthday Tuesday behind the cloistered walls of convent at Nicolet, 12 miles southwest of here on the south shores of the St. Lawrence river.

There was no publicity given the event and details of the party were sketchy. But it is known there was a plenty of music and singing at the gala event.

The party was held at a cottage owned by the nuns who operate a girls' college, which the quints are attending.

The quints' main hobby is still music, and all five are good at it. They are taking a course in home economics at the convent which is comparable to first year at university.

The mother superior of the convent declined to say what form of party it was. However, the father said earlier in the week it would be the usual birthday celebration with a cake.

Plans called for the quintuplets' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne from Callander, Ont., two sisters, Pauline and Mrs. Maurice Gervais of Waterloo, Que., and a brother, seven-year-old Claude, to join the quintuplets at the cottage.

The girls may switch from home economics to art next year. They have been interested in the work of Suzanne Duval, who is now studying art in Montreal and plans to become an art teacher.

Though their parents gave them clothes as gifts, Mrs. Dionne said the main birthday gift from herself and her husband was in cash. "They know best what they need."

GROWING CITY

SASKATOON (CP)—Population of Saskatoon has increased by 16,562 as of the end of April by the city public health department. The estimate based on vital statistics showed an increase of 1,556 in the last year.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Solved one problem, but has no other

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I agree with the woman who wrote you that she cured her husband of going out by doing the same thing herself.

I had a somewhat similar experi ence. In six years of married life—we are 37 and 39—my husband always seemed to going some place every evening. We have two children, and I finally got tired of spending my evenings alone with them. Besides, I had no money for a baby-sitter. I got a friend of mine to take myself and the children some where every evening. My husband soon noticed that I never ever sat at home waiting for him, so he now either takes us with him when he goes out, or else stays home.

I do have another problem, though. It is that we are now living with a boarder. Our small daughter I care for in exchange for our rent. We are trying to save money in order to buy a house. The trouble is that my husband is inclined to waste part of here. Do you think I should agree to move? We don't even have any furniture.—Mrs. B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

It is fine that you were able to solve your first problem so well. This second problem, of course, is quite different, and so needs a different type of handling.

My own feeling would be that if by any chance you have saved enough money on rent to make a down payment on a house and some furniture, it would be worth considering. In almost every case, a family gets along much better alone than living with anyone else. Also, I think your husband is giving his family proper attention, and he might work out even better if he had a home of his own to putter around in the evening. The more interested he become in his home, the less likely he would be to have a recurrence of his old habit.

Naturally, you don't want to load yourself down with money obligations. But if you can see your way to make this first down payment and to save enough each month for other payments as they come along, I think you might be well advised to take this step.

She and her boy friend want to elope

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and in love with a boy 18, who comes from a very nice family.

We have been going steady for six months, and want to get married right away, but the trouble is that when he asked my father if we could do that, my father said I could never marry because I'm the only girl in our family of five children.

My boy friend and I have discussed this problem very seriously, and we have agreed that the only thing to do is to elope. I know my father means what he says, and I think he is selfish and cruel. Do you think we would be wrong to take the only way out we can see?—M.C.

Dear M.C.:

I certainly do think that for a girl of 17 to elope with a boy of 18 would be most definitely taking the wrong way out.

You are under age for marriage, which would mean that you would have to lie about your age. This, in turn, would mean that your father could have the marriage annulled. What sense is there in doing something that could make all this trouble for you?

In the second place, there are very few girls and boys of 17 and 18 who are ready for marriage. There would you be if you did elope, and before long regretted it and wished you were single again, as most girls who marry in their teens seem to do? You would then have the alternative of sticking with your marriage and being unhappy in it, or going out on your own, since you would doubtless have made it impossible for yourself to return home.

While your father's attitude seems harsh and unreasonable, it would be far better for you to wait awhile and see if this attitude may not change as you grow older. In any event, to wait a year or two would make you more capable of deciding wisely about a husband, and it would also bring you legally of age so that, if circumstances at home forced you to marry without your father's consent, he could not do anything about it.

I know it is hard to wait for what you want, especially when you are young and perhaps not too happy at home, but if you will try to be patient for awhile, I'm sure you will never regret it.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

I am a girl of 18 years of age and would like to know if you would kindly print a recipe for making doughnuts. I have written to several other women for recipes but they were not successful. If it is not too much bother to you would you kindly also send a recipe for making banana cake.—Margaret S.

Answer:

Well, Margaret, I certainly hope that I come through successfully. Doughnuts are difficult for anyone to make so be sure to follow all of the directions exactly.

Doughnuts (cake-type)

Beat 4 egg yolks well then beat into them 1 cup sugar and 2 tablespoons very soft shortening until smooth. Now stir in 2-4 cups thick buttermilk into 4 cups sifted 3-1-2 cups sifted flour with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons soda, 1 scant tablespoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon each nutmeg and cinnamon.—Into the first four ingredients and stir until smooth. Chill this dough at least 2 hours. While you are rolling out and cutting the doughnuts heat enough fat in a heavy kettle or deep fat fryer, heating it 3 inches deep and 390 deg. Fahr. (if you have no thermometer a cube of bread will brown in it in 40 seconds). Turn out only 1-3 of the dough on lightly floured board at a time. Return remainder to refrigerator. Turn the dough over to lightly cover it with flour. Gently roll out to 1-3-inch thickness and cut out with floured sharp doughnut cutter. Carry board over to stove, and transfer doughnuts to fat on wide pancake turner. Just fry as many at a time as can be turned over readily. As the doughnuts rise to top and are slightly brown-ed on bottom turn them over—they require about 3 minutes to fat to brown both sides. Cautions: The fat cools when doughnuts are dropped in so temperature will drop to 375 to 360, so do not be tempted to lower the heat. Lift doughnuts from fat with a long fork, but do not prick them. Drain over kettle for a moment, then place on paper towel in a warm place. To sugar doughnuts that before serving shake doughnuts one at a time in a paper bag containing a little icing or granulated sugar.

The recipe for Banana Cake was in this column on May 14th. Since you may have missed it I am mailing you a copy. Good luck with both.

Question:

. . . on 8th April you gave us an account of Margie's meat loaf and you told us that she also served a marvellous fruit cup in which she used her own home-made canned melon balls. I would be most interested in knowing how to can melon balls. Last year we had a lovely crop of melons and I looked all over to find out how. I could can some . . . I even called the Experimental Farm and was told they would not can well as they are too watery.—M. E. L.

Answer:

They are soft and you do sacrifice flavor for you have to use melons that are not fully ripened, so that the balls retain their shape. As you know the melon balls drop them into 1 quart of water in which is dissolved 1 teaspoon powdered alum. Then enough balls are added to be barely submerged bring to boil and boil gently 10 minutes. Drain. Soak in ice water for 2 hours. Drain very well. Pack balls in sterile jars. Cover to within 1-2 inch of top with syrup—it must be boiling hot as balls are so cold. Make syrup 1 cup sugar to each 3 cups water. I added the grated rind of 2 lemons to each. Seal to within 1-8 inch of tight. Process in hot water bath 25 minutes for both pints and quarts.

Letter:

I saw Mary P's letter when she asked for recipes for left-over roast beef. I have two we are fond of: Recipe No. 1: Cut roast beef in slices. Brown with water and simmer. Add small onion chopped and about 1 cup macaroni. Put left over gravy in pan with meat to warm. Sometimes I put the onions in whole when I have small ones, also carrots left in pieces. Recipe No. 2: Slice the cold roast and dip in batter. Fry in deep fat. Batter: 1 egg well beaten, 1-4 cup milk, 1 rounding teaspoon baking powder, shake of salt and about 1-4 cup flour. This makes the meat go farther and is tasty enough to serve when company calls.—Red Rose.

Answer:

Thank you very much Red Rose. It was so pleasant to open your handwriting again. The batter on the leftover roast les a peach of an idea.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Adopted son to be given name of elderly father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband has a very distinguished first name (he was named for his father, and was "Jr." until his father passed on three years ago) and I had always hoped to give this name to a son of ours. But this is not to be. However, we have just received a wonderful little son by adoption, and I am wondering if it would be correct to name this boy with my husband's name followed by "Jr."—Janet L.

Yes! If you and your husband have already legally adopted this little boy, he can legally and correctly be named for your husband . . . your husband's name, with "Jr."

Mother-and-daughter vs father-and-aunt

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother, father, and I live downstairs in our 2-family house, and my only sister and her husband live upstairs. My sister is to have a baby in several weeks, and my mother and I would like to give a stork shower for her. To tell you the truth, we had hoped that some of her friends would plan to give her a shower, but apparently no one is going to, so my mother and I would like to, and it would be particularly convenient, of course, because we all live in the same house. But my father says this would look like a "begging party," and my aunt and cousin insist that father is right, and that mother and I haven't good judgment or good taste." Are they right about our giving the shower, or are we?—Betty Y.

Your father and your aunt and cousin are right. It is not correct for a mother and/or a sister to give a shower . . . any kind of shower. Their relationship to the guest of honor is so close that the shower takes on a too-to-obvious appearance of being a "promotion" for gifts. . . . which, too-too-obviously, is just the idea behind the shower you and your mother would like to give.

Graduation present to girl friend

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My graduation from the eighth grade is to be in June. I would like to give five of my girl friends, who are graduating with me, each a one-dollar sewing kit. Would this be all right?—M. J. S.

Yes, indeed . . . an excellent present. And I'm sure they will be delighted with your thoughtfulness.

Bride-to-be should sign her name only

Thank-you notes with her name only

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married in July. When I write my thank-you notes for wedding presents should I sign them with my name only, or (as I've seen several times lately) with my fiancee's name and mine. . . "Dick and Betty."—B.

Sign your thank-you notes with your name only. In your notes of course include the thanks and appreciation of your Dick.

Shower for a divorcee re-marrying

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very dear friend of mine, who is a divorcee, is going to marry again in the near future. She has been extremely kind to me, and I should very much like to entertain in her honor. However, since this is her second marriage, I'm not sure it would be proper for me to ask the guests to contribute to a shower gift. Or should I simply give a party for her, not a shower?—F. B.

If you think your friend would particularly welcome having a shower given for her, it would be quite proper for you to plan this informal, friendly kind of party . . . if you give a small party, inviting only her most intimate friends. And I suggest that, in the circumstances, you let the guests bring whatever present they wish. The type you mention (linen, for example, or kitchen shower), rather than the "collect" contributions for a certain article.

Fashion Flashes

Flattering" to almost every type is the tiny-brimmed, shallow sailor, with a flat crown. While satin-like straw is used for a beauty, with green velvet band edges and small stand-up green and white velvet daisy clusters on the side front.

Subdued glitter marks many of the beautiful new gala gowns. One such has a bouffant, ankle-length skirt of pearl-studded, white re-embroidered lace over stiffened net strewn with rhinestones. The strapless bodice is edged with a band of pearl-sewn lace.

Newsy enough separates that are good on their own and also add up to a stunning outfit. In that category is a barrel jacket of pink suede, lovely on its own and part of a handsome suit when tied to a slim skirt of violet and pink checked tweed.

FASHION FLASHES MAY 29 LB.

The signature of most milliners this season seems to be the rose, for the rose-trimmed hat is everywhere, even to the hat made up of rose petals. This one is a small shell bonnet overlaid entirely with dark pink rose petals, the front of the hat pointed in beak effect. Here and there a rhinestone dewdrop shimmers on a petal.

No matter how elaborate or attractive a group of hats may be, there are always the plenty of "double takes" when the wearer of a small white shantung sailor makes her entrance. This is because the hat is banded with white satin. The hat is trimmed slightly downwards, the better to show off the luxurious crown band.

Emerging from the classic or casual, or sports status are separates, now strongly endorsed for afternoon and evening use. For summer evenings, on house shows, a sleeveless, backless, knit skirt the latter two in gingham, with giant butterflies outlined by jet and sequin embroidery, a smaller butterfly on the stole. The plain top—with deep, wide neckline slightly curved has shirred sleeves and is of black cotton.

Princess Alice Of Greece Will See Crowning

By SHIRLEY WEILAND

LONDON (Reuters) — A grey-haired nun who has made charity her life's work will sit in Westminster Abbey Tuesday to see the crowning of her daughter-in-law, Queen Elizabeth.

Princess Alice of Greece, whose son Philip married Elizabeth five years ago, has turned in old age from the pomp and splendor of her youth to the pious quietude of a sister of mercy in the Greek Orthodox Church.

But Tuesday she will be back in the world she used to know, a world of princes and princesses, of jewels and pageantry.

Habit Asked Away

The simple nun's grey habit she has worn since 1948 will be packed away. In its place she will wear a specially-ordered gown, made by a great fashion house in the glittering world she has forsaken.

The 56-year-old princess, great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria, is due in London from Athens in a few days. She will move into a suite at Buckingham Palace as a guest of the Queen. Then she will fly back to the poor and sick she has tended faithfully in Greece.

Princess Alice abandoned the regal life for the veil in 1948, soon after her son's marriage to Princess Frederika, Queen Island of Thos she founded a nunnery, the order of Martha and Maria, devoted to religious worship and good works.

Each morning she rises at 3 a.m. for four hours of prayer. Personal comforts she flouts, using a hard wooden chair on which to knit for the poor. She makes her own bed, scrubs her tiny room.

Women's Activities

TRINITY W.G.

Shannonville — The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of Trinity church, Shannonville, was held recently at the home of Mrs. J. Kent, with the president, Mrs. Fitzgerald, presiding. Seven were present.

The meeting was opened by the president. Arrangements were made for a Coronation dinner to be held June 9 at the home of Mrs. Kent with a program.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour was spent.

The last two meetings were held at the homes of Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Whittle.

WHITE'S W.A.

White's District — Mrs. Casey Ketcheson opened her home on Thursday afternoon for the May meeting of White's Women's Association with a good attendance of members and two visitors.

The president, Mrs. Ernest Curtis, presided. Mrs. Floyd Sandercock was in charge of the devotional service. Mrs. Walter Jones read "The Principles of Peace." The Scripture, Ephesians 5: 13-28, was read by Mrs. Clifton Rose. "Mothers of Salem" was sung by the Rev. R. W. T. Middleton closed the worship service with prayer.

Business Period

Mrs. Curtis was in charge of the business period. Mrs. Walter Jones was named assistant treasurer. Five members paid dues and there was one donation. Mrs. C. Ketcheson was to be paid for convention expenses by Tweed. It was decided to have a strawberry ice cream festival on Wednesday, June 24, with lantern slides of Mexican pictures taken by Mr. Arnold Meyers on his recent trip. Mrs. Floyd Dudley offered to take charge of the lunch proceeds. Mrs. W. Yateman and Mrs. B. Bolsterstone are to be in charge of the parcel post table. Mrs. E. Curtis and Mrs. Seger are to be in charge of tickets.

Mrs. Clifton Rush made a birthday donation and a "Happy Birthday" was sung. She received a dish from the program convenors, Mrs. Frank Sandercock. Mrs. W. Yateman gave a reading, "Stand Straight and Bend." Mrs. R. W. T. Middleton read "The Old Fashioned Way."

Mrs. Floyd Sandercock was the winner of a musical contest answered by girls' names and she received a plastic flower pot.

The hostess, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Waldron, served refreshments and all enjoyed a social time.

Festivities to Have Decided Canadian Flavor for Alexanders

By MURIEL MARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Coronation festivities will have a decided Canadian flavor for Earl and countess Alexander.

With nasty well-known personalities converging on London for the Westminster Abbey ceremony, the Alexanders plan several informal gatherings and a dinner party to which transatlantic guests will be present.

Pre-Coronation gatherings included two cocktail parties for overseas visitors. Canadians also will be chief guests at a dinner party early in June.

Most Old Friends

At an interview in her London apartment close to Buckingham Palace, Lady Alexander said these are occasions reserved for returning some of the hospitality shown to herself and her husband when Lord Alexander was governor-general of Canada.

She will renew acquaintance with many friends she has not seen since she left Canada early last year. "I couldn't begin to tell you how many Canadians will be our guests for at least a few hours throughout the Coronation period," she said. "But there will be quite a number."

She said it will seem like old times in Ottawa. Apart from various parties and receptions, there will be one or two Canadian house guests at their country home, Beech Missing, in Surrey.

The Alexanders' daughter, Lady Rose, who returned to London from McGill University recently brought a school friend for a six-week stay. She is Marion Mackenzie, daughter of a Canadian government official.

A school friend of the Alexanders' youngest son, 13-year-old Brian, will also stay for several weeks. He is Eddie Mullins of Ottawa.

Montreal Guests

Other guests of Lord and Lady Alexander who will stay a few days are Mrs. Jack Price and son, Peter, and Mr. and Mrs. J.W. McConnell, all of Montreal.

Canadians staying at Beech Missing will have a close-up of the Canadian kitchen given to Lady Alexander by the women of Canada, and installed early this year in the gabled, Victorian house close to Windsor Great Park.

Asked if the new-fangled kitchen gadgets had resulted in any amusing experiences and cooking faux pas, Lady Alexander said she couldn't think of an occasion on which the equipment had not functioned faultlessly. She has all a Britton's usual amusement that "every button always works."

On Coronation Day, the Alexanders plan to leave early and motor to Westminster Abbey from their flat in London. On the way, they will drop Lady Rose and 17-year-old Shane (Baron Rideau), at their seats in Parliament Square. Miss Mackenzie and "Nanny," who takes charge of adopted daughter Susan, 3, at Beech Missing, will sit in another part of the route. Susan will watch the excitement on television in Surrey.

Father's Place

The only young member of the Alexander family to be present in the abbey will be Brian. In a black coat trimmed in silver, wearing white knee-pants, white silk stockings and black shoes with red heels, Brian will follow his father in the procession — his father's coronet in one hand and a black tricorne hat in the other.

After the Westminster Abbey ceremony, Lord Alexander rides behind the Queen on her drives throughout London. During the ceremony, the former governor-general, wearing the dress uniform of a field marshal, will carry the Queen's orb, part of the Coronation regalia.

Lady Alexander, sitting with the peeresses, will wear the robe and dress worn by her mother, Countess of Lucan, at the last coronation.

Asked what they planned when the day's ceremonial was finished, Lady Alexander said: "We'll be outside the gates of Buckingham Palace with thousands of others, cheering the Queen as she appears on the balcony."

More of The Good Things of Life Make London More Enjoyable

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Yippee! Silk stockings again.

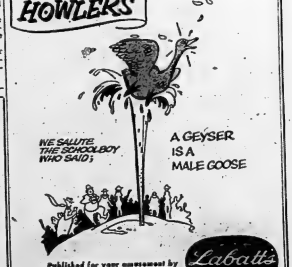
That's one of the most marvellous changes in old London town for the visitor who hasn't been here since wartime. Then, a lass would walk from Marble Arch to Piccadilly Circus on the chance he might see a pair of legs sheathed in silk stockings. A woman would walk much farther to beg, borrow or steal a pair.

Canadian servicemen used to refer to London as the "big smoke." With Coronation at hand, it now might be called "big glitter."

And lights, of course. Not as much fun now as in the blackout days, but lots fewer bruises and eyes poked out.

There's food, and it's edible. No more sausages stuffed only with bread crumbs. Fish and chips aren't out of fashion, but there are lots of other things. You can even see a child in the street eating a banana or an orange.

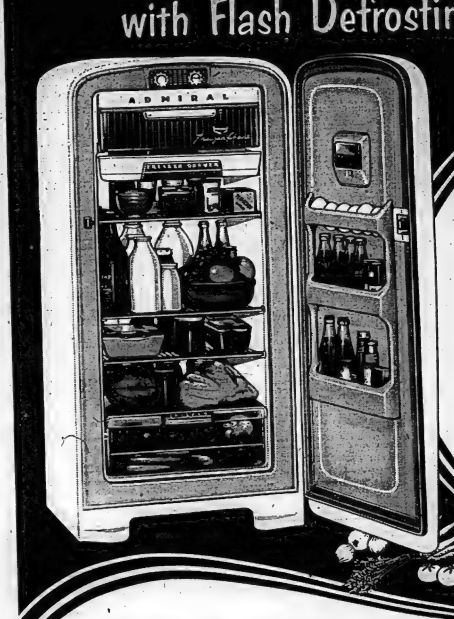
Prices are higher than during the war, when they were controlled. But they compare pretty favorably with Canadian prices, considering what you get. You can buy almost anything, though the housewife still finds it a little tough to make do with her ration books.



You can get more than a beer or a gin and lemon in the pubs. In fact, you can buy any liquor in the pubs, as well as food, such as sandwiches, sausage rolls, cheeses, pickles and so on. The pubs aren't the two-hour floods of wartime, when you had to drink at a rapid clip to get a renewal before the place closed. They are open a half-hour or hour longer and you can buy a scotch right up to closing time.

There is one alarming change in the pubs, perhaps due to the American influence. Many publicans do not close up with "time, gentlemen, please." but say "drink up, drink up."

The underground is as efficient as ever. It is good to see among things missing those steel bunks that sometimes slept every night in the tubes. Advertising in the tubes during the war was confined almost entirely to theatres, because they were the only people who had anything to sell. Now there are ads for everything, from silk stockings to safe razor blades. This is because there's just about anything you'd want in the shops.



The theatres are more active. There now are enough men for song-and-dance numbers in musical revues. During the war, some women had to act as the male partners in such numbers because all the men were off to war.

Whereas there were only taxis during the war, thousands of cars jam the streets now. There are diners on trains, tinfoil on cigarets, ice cream at restaurants, ketchup on the table and gaiety throughout old London town.

Elizabeth Trained for Role She Will Assume Tuesday

At first there seemed little likelihood Elizabeth II ever would be Queen... but she has trained most of her life for the role ordained in the cards she takes next Tuesday in Westminster Abbey. This is the last of five articles on her childhood, her husband and the new career brought her by the death of her father last year.

By JAMES W. KING

LONDON (AP)—When she became Queen, Elizabeth, wearing slacks and a bush jacket, was perched in a giant fig tree watching rhinoceroses coming out of the African jungle to drink.

Since childhood she had been drilled in the art of royal deportment, of combining the regal manner with democratic understanding, of making pleasant small talk with strangers, of being both symbol and a human being.

And when the moment came for her to assume the responsibilities of the Crown she was in a spot so remote that she did not learn of it until 12 hours later.

Died in Sleep

King George VI, who left a sick bed only a week before to see Elizabeth and her husband, Philip, off on a 30,000-mile royal tour that was scheduled to take them to Australia and New Zealand, died in his sleep at Sandringham Feb. 6, 1952. Elizabeth, stopping off in Kenya in East Africa for a look at one of Britain's most promising and habitable colonies—Mau Mau terrorists were not yet active—received the news the next afternoon.

Even on her flight back to London, the heartbroken-25-year-old girl was handed a batch of state papers to sign, the beginning of a daily ritual that would continue for the rest of her life.

Bore Up Under Grief

She bore up under her grief and responsibilities with all the dignity and humility in which she had been trained.

"I pray that God will help me to discharge worthily this heavy task that has been laid upon me so early in my life," she told her privy council at the first meeting in London.

Elizabeth set the keynote of her reign in a broadcast last Christmas calling on the people for abiding faith in the British way of life and to "reverence beyond the safeties of the past."

Elizabeth probably is one of the busiest young women in the world with her duties as wife, mother and Queen. She lives by a well-ordered timetable which sometimes is arranged as much as a year in advance.

Her office in the Belgian suite on the ground floor of Buckingham Palace is much like any office of a young woman business executive.

Here she signs the state documents and reads the secret papers brought by her ministers each morning, receives official callers and keeps minutely informed on political, social, economic and constitutional intricacies.

The Queen usually is up at 7 a.m. and begins the day by listening to the 8 o'clock news broadcast. Then she breakfasts with her husband and reads the morning newspapers.

Elizabeth, a horse racing enthusiast who on occasion has been thrown from her mount, and Philip, a cricket and polo player of standing, always scan the sports page along with the stories of more moment.

Before the working day, their two youngsters are brought in for a half hour's play with their parents. Wide-eyed Charles, 4, is a curious lad and is always popping questions. Princess Anne, almost 3, tries to curtsey and usually falls over.

Often Invited For Lunch

The first round of callers to the Queen's office, government officials, foreign diplomats and other dignitaries, usually begins at 11:30 after she has read documents and dispatches. Sometimes she receives 18 or 20 such callers in a week. They often are invited to stay for lunch.

The young Queen has a relentive memory for names, faces and details, and is a friendly and easy conversationalist.

Outside engagements—ranging from impromptu tours, such as the recent visits to flood-stricken areas, to those requiring the presidency of a new hospital or attending a full-dress social function — take up much afternoon time.

Wherever she goes, Elizabeth must be the perfection of friendly ease and of queenly remoteness.

Elizabeth always tries to be back at the palace by 5 p.m. for the big moment of her day, an hour in the nursery with the children. She reads to them, conducts Indian stories for Charles, nursery rhymes for Anne.

Takes Back Seat

Even Sir Winston Churchill, knighted by Elizabeth, has to take a back seat for the youngsters. By custom, the prime minister makes a weekly report to the sovereign, usually on Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. But at Elizabeth's request, Churchill has put it off an hour to give the Queen more time to see her children to bed.

During the day, Prince Philip is likely to "be the road" as his wife's envoy, visiting a coal mine or opening a new playground. The Queen's subjects have come to regard him as a "good bloke" because of his informal manner.

On occasion the royal couple have a night out, attending the theatre or opening some entertainment for charity. Philip enjoys naval drinks, beer and gin, while Elizabeth sips an occasional cocktail.

Wides Circle

Philip has had an influence in widening his wife's circle of acquaintances. There were raised eyebrows when the Queen and her husband went to a private dinner party last fall given by the American actor, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Elizabeth, it was reported, sat on the floor to listen to some funny songs. As a princess she demonstrated for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, then theAllied commander, the intricacies of the highland fling.

Money No Problem

Money is no particular problem to this young couple, but the Royal household does have to be run on a budget like any other home.

Elizabeth's privy purse gives the gifted young lady in the world. She is allotted £1,230,000 a year to run her vast households.

She has no time to take a direct hand in supervising 400-room Buckingham Palace and its 250 servants but she insists on selecting the menus.

Women's Institute

BETHEL-SHOW W. I.

The May meeting meeting of the Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Beatty with 13 ladies and two children attending. Many fine tributes towards mothers were included in the roll call, "Things My Mother Taught Me."

Letters of appreciation for flowers and fruit were received from Mrs. George Dickey and Mr. Douglas Hedger.

Plans were discussed regarding the catering at Belleville fair.

Delegates were appointed to the district annual at Tweed.

It was decided that a bus be chartered for a day's outing in Toronto.

Mrs. Gordon Kennedy, convener for community activities and public relations, took charge, opening the program with a humorous poem on "City and Country Life."

A splendid paper was given by Mrs. R. Cranston, entitled "My Home Town." Mrs. Percy Ray gave a resume of the girls' work and also had charge of the topic: "The Best Advice You Can Give Your Friends is a Good Example."

A timely and most interesting number on the program was sketches of the Commonwealth, "The Life of Queen Elizabeth," and "The Coronation," given by Mrs. Gerald Tummon, Mrs. Harry Ketchabaw and Mrs. Ralph Bliss.

Assistant hostesses Mrs. M. Simmons, Mrs. Bryant Casey, Mrs. R. Robson and Mrs. D. McPherson, with the hostess, Mrs. Harold Beatty, served refreshments.

The June meeting will be held at the home of Miss Helen Tummon.

CARMEL W.I.

Carmel, W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Percy Reynolds for the May meeting with 22 members and three visitors.

The president, Mrs. Levi Latone presided over the meeting. The standing committee conveners each gave an interesting report. Current events was given by Mrs. Earl Dafoe. Extension services of the Women's Institute were discussed and the rose chosen was "Cooking Short Cuts."

Mrs. Selden Homan was chosen as a delegate to go to Tweed. Mrs. Moorman thanked the W.I. for cards sent to her while she was ill.

Ceramics

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Parrott, who gave a demonstration in "Ceramics", showing articles in the clay form to the finished product, which proved most interesting. She had many beautiful finished novelties to show the members.

Mr. Wright, relief officer for Thurlow township, spoke on how to handle the welfare and charity work of the community so it could be carried on to better advantage.

Club Activities

SUPPER CLUB

The club girls of Bethel-Zion met on Saturday evening in the home of Irene Sills for their 4th meeting in the "Supper Club."

Roll call was answered by a suitable desert for supper such as stewed rhubarb, a fruit cup or baked apples.

Plan Meals

"Planning Good Meals," was the topic of discussion, led by Mrs. Percy Ray. Some of the homemaker plans her meals in advance in order to be sure she has included sufficient amounts of all the necessary foods; milk, vitamin D, meat, whole grain cereals, vegetables and fruits, to her needs for the week. By planning in advance, she can also shop with more efficiency.

Meals should be attractive, colday. Foods should have contrast in color, texture and flavor.

Meats and meat substitutes were discussed. Dried beans, eggs, and cheese are the best meat substitutes.

As a follow-up to this discussion, the girls made "baked cheese and rice," and "cheese foods." Both dishes turned out well and

FOXBORO

Many Neighbors, Friends Honor Departing Residents

FOXBORO — About 60 neighbors and friends gathered in the Sunday School room on Saturday evening to bid adieu to two of Foxboro's business and church workers in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. William Hodgen, who are soon leaving the village for their new home on the 5th of Thurlow.

Mr. S. G. Gay opened with community singing with Miss Joan McCurdy at the piano. Rev. H. Giffin, acting as chairman, conducted the following program: solo, Miss Joan McCurdy; reading, Mrs. S. Hayton; solo, Miss Marion Priddle; duet, Mrs. W. Ronbouth and Lois and piano instrumental by Miss Carol Stewart.

After a few remarks by Mr. Giffin, Mr. and Mrs. Hodgen were given seats of honor at the front and Miss Irene Aikens read the address while Mr. H. Stewart presented them with a Tri-light lamp, walnut magazine rack and end table combined, and group No. 3 of Women's Association presented Mrs. Hodgen with a beautiful cup and saucer.

Mr. Clifford Wilson and Mr. S. C. Gay spoke briefly on the loss the community would suffer in losing a good neighbor and citizen. Mrs. Hodgen will be greatly missed in all church and Sunday school activities where she has so faithfully labored for over 20 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodgen thanked all for their kind remarks and lovely gifts which they had received. As the light burns each evening they will enjoy its radiance and remember their friends in Foxboro. Each one was invited to visit them in their new home.

"Blest Be the Tie That Binds," was sung and refreshments served by the ladies, thus closed the social evening.

Body Identified

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Police Thursday identified a body found in the Detroit river Wednesday as that of Glen McKenney, 52, a former resident of Tilsonburg, who had been missing since May 11.

McKenney had been a resident here for some time and an employee of a warehouse. He was identified by fellow employees.

WEST HUNTINGDON

S. S. School Holds Convention At St. Andrew's

WEST HUNTINGDON — The annual Sunday School convention of Huntingdon township was held on Wednesday at St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church. The morning service was conducted by members of the Moira United Church Sunday School, with Don McInroy presiding. Mr. Wesley Farrell assisted. The president of the association, Mrs. Milton Shaw, presided over both the morning and afternoon sessions in a very efficient manner. Mrs. John Wallace, superintendent of St. Andrew's Sunday School welcomed the delegates.

The business period consisted of the treasurer's report and the appointing of committees. Miss Janet Rodgers, of Bannockburn, who was to assist with the program, was detained and Rev. James Poynter of Madoc conducted this part of the program.

The use of choruses in the Sunday School was explained by the speaker and then a number of these choruses were sung. They were, "God is Good to Me," "Deep and Wide," and "Wide, Wide as the Ocean." Object teaching was also demonstrated by Mr. Poynter.

The Bible

The theme of the convention program was "The Bible, Our Bible, My Bible."

The delegates heard three outstanding addresses on the theme. Rev. W. Tyson, of Ivanhoe, spoke on "Bible in Culture;" Rev. Mr. Irwin, of Stirling, spoke on "The Bible in the Home;" and Rev. J. Poynter addressed the gathering on "The Bible in personal living."

Mr. Jack McMurray of Albert College, brought a brief but inspiring closing message and pronounced the benediction.

The ladies of the church served dinner in the basement of the church.

Following the worship service for the afternoon session, Lieut. Brown of the Salvation Army, of Belleville, gave a demonstration of "How to Teach a Hymn."

Officers Installed

Rev. R. L. Norman had charge of the installation of officers and those installed into office were: president, Mrs. Milton Shaw; 1st vice-president, Mr. Kenneth Holland; secretary-treasurer, Mr. Alex McCurdy. The 1953 department superintendents were nominated and will, at a later date be installed into office. The person for this new venture was brought out in the discussion period when it was deemed advisable to make a careful selection of department officers and have them understand more thoroughly their duties and that they should be more active.

Mrs. Warren Harlow, president of the Sidney and Trenton Association, was present, and gave a brief address.

Mr. H. R. Burke, and Mr. Don McInroy gave their report as resolution committee. Lieut. Brown gave a solo, "This is My Task." The Bible Lives Anew

The closing address, "The Bible Lives Anew," was given by Lieut. Peterson, of the Salvation Army, Tweed, in which he warned delegates to beware of false teaching of the Bible.

An invitation was read to hold next year's convention at the White Lake Church.

Delegates were present from each of the nine Sunday Schools in the township.

Frankford — The "Jets" of the Frankford Bowling League held their final get-together of the season Monday evening. The group drove to Belleville to see a movie, and returned to the home of Captain Preston Chase for a social hour and refreshments.

It seems that the Jets just can't get bowling out of their systems, for they weren't in the Chase's residence 15 minutes, when they were down on the floor playing with a miniature bowling set which they borrowed from one of Preston and Jean's daughters. Meg Lawrence showed everyone a thing or two about the fine art of bowling, knocking off the top score.

Gifts Presented

All gathered around the table then for bountiful refreshments served by Jean Chase. During the repast, Ed. Tomecek presented Preston and Jean with a gift on behalf of the Jets, in appreciation for the leadership given by Preston throughout the year and the hospitality shown by him and Jean for the social evening. Sunday School Lesson:

So Easy to Miss It

By ROY L. SMITH

In spite of all the crudite scholarship with which religion has been presented a vast number of our people have missed its essentials because they have tried to make it a matter of ceremony, magic, mystery or ritual. It is, after all, as simple as good will, love, forgiveness and gentleness.

A great uproar was raging in the early church over the question of the gift of tongues, and many Christians were seeking desperately and painfully for the weird and the fantastic in religion. The Apostle Paul said to all such, "I will show you a better way." And that he penned the immortal 13th chapter of I Corinthians.

> The Uniform Sunday School lessons for May 31: "The Way of Christian Life," I Corinthians 13—13.

It is so easy to deceive ourselves into thinking we are pleasing God when we make a great show of our religion, something like a drummer beating his drum and clanging his cymbals when the band goes past.

Some of us get the idea we are pious and have the endorsement of God when we display our scholarship, or talk as though we were very learned and wise, even though there is within us none of the spirit of gentility and kindness.

There are those who seem to assume that if they become very active about religious matters, hurrying hell-ward from one religious meeting to another, serving on half a dozen of committees, exhorting those who are slow of foot, and getting publicity into the newspapers, they are doing the work of God even though they are very disagreeable about it all.

Not "Busyness" that Counts

Occasionally we find a person who is extremely busy about social work, slumming, making reports, appearing before committee hearings and reporting on the "deplorable conditions," who thinks he is engaged in "the work of the kingdom," whether he is fair in his reports, or considerate of the feelings of the investigated or not.

It is not uncommon to find some woman, for example, who is wearing herself out with community service and coming home to her family exhausted and irritable. She may excuse herself for her graceless manners, and her spiteful speech, but if it is all aimed at gathering votes in the forthcoming election of the woman's club it is something less than Christian selfessness. Paul might have had it in mind when he said, "Without love we are becoming as nothing."

Real Christian love is that kind of spirit which will put up with a lot without answering back; which will forgive the gossip monger before all the facts are made known; which will take no satisfaction in any bad news about any weak soul who has been overtaken in a fault.

The kind of love that will transform this world is that which will put the best interpretation to bad appearances; which will believe the best until the worst is proven; which will trust to the amazing power of good will to win the ultimate victory; which will give without asking for publicity and which will serve on the committee without becoming offended because it does not get the chairmanship.

Love Is Way Of Life

Christian love cannot be reduced to a definition, confined within a doctrine or defeated by a difference of opinion.

The real thing never asks anything for itself, and never denies anything to others because it has not been compensated.

When it really gets inside a man's life it tears down the walls of prejudice and builds up the walls of self-respect and conviction.

It is not a dogma, nor a system of theology. Instead it is a way of life that comes out as an expression of pure motives within.

It's as simple as that!

1,221 Canadians Stand Good Chance of Surviving Jam

By DAVID McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—At least 1,221 Canadians stand a reasonably good chance of surviving the mammoth jam on the day of Coronation. They're in the show, the safest place to be.

Of this number, 441 are in the parade, 780 will help line the procession route, 24 Sabre pilots will take part in the all-jet flypast, and 400 will see the crowning in Westminster Abbey. The 400 in the abbey represent practically every group in Canada, from political parties to trade unions.

Only 11 Canadians will be in the procession from Buckingham Palace to the abbey. Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent will ride in a carriage drawn by two horses. They will have an escort of four mounted RCMP.

Ride as Spectators

Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, aide-de-camp to the Queen, will ride on horseback in the Queen's procession, one of the 10 components of the entire parade. Gen. Crerar has been practising horseback riding for months and his RCMP teacher says he's a crackerjack.

The four Canadians who will be closest to the Queen's state coach are members of the Queen's escort of officers from the Commonwealth contingents.

They are Lt.-Col. E. G. Brooks, Montreal; Maj. J. S. Orton, Ottawa and Vancouver; Lieut. H. E. Pepler, Oakville, Ont.; and Lieut. H. McLellan, Sarnia, Ont. The party, in case of sickness or accident, is Lieut. R. H. Foster, Assiniboia, Sask.

Gen. Crerar is at the three-quarter mark in the Queen's procession. The four escorts, also on horseback, are near the tail-end. A mere eight units ahead of the state coach.

Alexander, Athlone In

Two former Canadian governors-general will also be in the procession to the abbey, the Earl of Athlone in the carriage procession of princes and princesses of the blood royal and Field Marshal Earl Alexander, Britain's defence minister, in the Queen's procession.

The lord mayor of London, Sir Rupert de la Bere, gets the show on the road at 7.35 a. m. Following his procession will come the Speaker of the House of Commons, certain members of the Royal Family, and representatives of foreign countries, starting with Afghanistan and ending with Yugoslavia. Andrei Gromyko of Russia will arrive at the abbey just ahead of Gen. Eisenhower, head of the United States.

The first carriage procession to leave Buckingham Palace—at 9.15 a. m.—will be that of the colonial rulers, including the six-foot, three-inch tall queen of Tonga and the sultans of Jehore, Lahej, Selangor and Zanzibar.

In No. 22 Coach

St. Laurent and his wife will be in the No. 2 coach of the second carriage procession, that "of the Commonwealth prime ministers. They will be immediately behind the coach of Sir Winston and Lady Churchill. Prime Minister and Mrs. Menzies of Australia will follow the Canadian prime minister's coach and behind them will come the leaders of the other Commonwealth nations, New Zealand, South Africa, Pakistan, Ceylon and Northern Ireland, in that order.

The third carriage procession will be that of princes and princesses of the blood royal, the fourth that of the Queen Mother and the fifth that of Queen Elizabeth herself.

On Invitation of the Queen

After Queen Elizabeth suggested that the workmen of Westminster Abbey be in the Abbey for her Coronation, laborer John Charles Sutton, 23, was one of the lucky eight to be chosen by ballot. During lunchtime John went down to Covent Garden and hired suitable garb for Coronation wear. Here is the finished product—elegant from the top of his topper to the bottom of his brightly shining shoes. — Central Press Canadian.

On the return to the palace after the Coronation, the order in each carriage procession will be reversed.

13 Mile Parade

The Canadian Coronation contingent of navy, army, air force and RCMP doesn't get into the act until after the crowning, when the 13-mile parade begins back to the palace.

The procession will be so long that when the Queen's coach leaves the abbey, the head of the parade will be starting off from Marble Arch, halfway round the parade route.

The Canadians will probably jump off from somewhere in Piccadilly street. They will be in this order: 36 RCMP, three-man color party, bearing the colors of the three services, 121 RCAF, 205 army, 85 navy.

The Canadians follow the Australians and immediately precede the RAF.

The 336 troops — 91 RCAF, 202 army and 43 navy—who will help guard the parade route will be stationed in Cockspur street, just off Trafalgar Square and centering on Canada House.

CROYDON, England (CP)—A total of 14 gold and 134 silver coins of the reign of Edward III were unearthed in this Surrey district. They were declared "treasure trove," property belonging to the Crown.

TV Is Raising Havoc With Pubs In Britain

LONDON (AP)—TV is raising havoc with one of Britain's haughtiest and most respected institutions: the pub.

Things have really reached an alarming state, sufficient to bring horror to the historians of pub pub habitués of by-gone years as Dr. Samuel Johnson, Bobby Burns and G. K. Chesterton.

Business is getting so bad that a pub in Beaconsfield recently applied for a licence to sell ice cream along with beer, but application was rejected with indignation.

Publicans are rapidly reaching a crisis, however, in dealing with television, which is going through growing pains in Britain.

The Englishman still patronizes the pub for lunch and a few mild-and-bitters, but after nightfall the pubs aren't the same—no longer the favored spot for small talk and intellectual philosophy.

More and more the beer-drinkers are going home, and staying there, to watch TV.

There are 34,463 pubs in London alone. So far they have resisted the introduction of TV.

Along with competition from TV, there's a general tightening of money with higher living costs.

One pub owner says he is planning an innovation—a mobile pub.

"If people won't come to me," he says, "I'll have to go to them."

Biggest Problem Getting Members For Ministry

OSHAWA (CP) — The biggest problem facing the United Church is getting candidates for its ministry, Dr. J. C. Young, of the church's national head office at Toronto, said Wednesday.

He told the Bay of Quinte church conference that some progress had been made in the last two years but there were still not enough men to fill the vacancies.

Ministers and laymen should take a greater interest in getting recruits for full-time church service. New charges were springing up in fringe areas and new communities, and the church cannot hope to serve them on the basis of the number of candidates coming forward."

While the major responsibility rested with the ministers, he said, laymen must also assume their share.

Has Harmful Effect

The evangelism and social service committee reported that relaxation of divorce laws in the United States and Britain has resulted in increased divorces, with football matches, big fights and race meetings. The pub as we used to know it is dead."

a harmful effect on the home and society.

It recommended an agency be set up to help married couples solve their problems without recourse to divorce courts.

The conference urged a Christmas family week be substituted for a commercialized Mother's Day. It suggested a stronger defence of Sunday against "the many efforts to make it a dollar-day for profit at times when commercialized sports and secular endeavors are on the increase."

ALLEGE ACCUSED

GOETTINGEN, Germany (AP)—West German Transport Minister Hans Seebohm has accused the Allies of having committed a "cultural disgrace" by destroying German aviation research centres after the war. Speaking at the annual convention of the German Aviation Society here Wednesday Seebohm said the centres were "senselessly destroyed, private property of researchers was confiscated and their books were burned wantonly."

Reds Strip East Germany Of Food Stocks

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians are stripping East Germany bare, in a new kind of scorched-earth policy that has started serious speculation in Allied circles.

Soviet zone Germans who have fled to West Berlin report:

1. The Red army has sharply increased its requisition requirements for food, without increasing the size of its forces.

2. Russian experts have been placed in strategic German industries to expand deliveries of output in the Soviet Union.

3. State ration-free stores are selling only what's on the shelves and are receiving no new shipments.

The air of poverty has frightened the East German population anew. After weeks of slowing down, the flow of refugees to the West has suddenly leaped into big figures again. Four thousand showed up in West Berlin Wednesday. Almost 5,000 came across the border last week-end.

Official Allied quarters contend that East Germany produces enough food to feed its population well and can also take care of the 300,000-man Red army, which it has been feeding in style since 1945.

Three to Work 400 Miles Inside Arctic Circle

EDMONTON (CP)—Two defence research scientists and a university scientist left Edmonton by RCAF Dakota recently for Banks Island, 400 miles inside the Arctic circle, where they will conduct a biological and geological survey.

T. H. Manning of Ottawa is Capt. I. M. Sparrow of the Royal Engineers, England, will spend the summer months on Banks Island in the Beaufort sea, some 1,400 miles north of Edmonton, returning by civilization in September or November.

Dr. E. O. Hohn, associate professor of physiology at the University of Alberta, was also aboard the plane. Dr. John will study wild life and fauna on Banks Island.

The Dakota flew first to Norman Wells, N.W.T., where it awaited suitable weather before attempting to land on a 3,000-foot sandbar near the island, on which Eskimo natives of the inlet were previously instructed to mark out a runway. There are about 25 English-speaking Eskimo families on the island in groups scattered over the uninhabited during the winter.

On arrival Mr. Manning and Tons of Supplies

Capt. Sparrow were to transport more than a ton of supplies to Castel Bay, on the north of the island, where tents and a cache were cached last year.

They will then return to Sachs Harbor, a round trip of about 400 miles which will take about 20 days.

Mr. Manning expressed concern that an early thaw in the north might cause trouble in the dog sleigh trip. He said that snow normally disappears about June 10 on the island, but this year spring was expected to be about two weeks early.

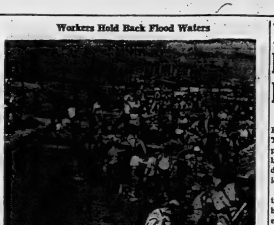
Part of the geological work will include a preliminary coastal survey and tide observations.

Mr. Manning said he had made trips to the island two years ago in an 80-foot yacht but at that time it was impossible to circle the island. Another trip may be made next year, depending on data gathered by the men this year.

Russia Rejects Bid by Powers To Reopen Talks

LONDON (CP)—Russia today rejected for the second time a bid by the Big Three western powers to reopen talks for an Austrian treaty.

Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to Britain, delivered a note reiterating Russia's refusal to reopen the talks with the United States, British and French foreign ministers' deputies on a treaty to restore Austrian sovereignty, the Soviet official news agency Tass reported.



Three days ago Russia rejected Britain's invitation to a meeting of the deputies here May 27.

Moscow radio then quoted Malik as declaring on behalf of the Soviet Union "that at present it would be too early and unreasonable to consider this matter in a diplomatic manner by the corresponding exchange of notes."

The three western deputies last Tuesday delivered the Soviet view that a deputies' conference could not take place unless each session was specifically convened by the four-power council of foreign ministers.

LONG ROUTE

EDMONTON (CP)—A tri-weekly bus service now connects Edmonton, Vancouver and Whitehorse, Y.T., putting these points within about 30 hours of Edmonton Creek, starting point on the Alaska highway.

Queen Mother, Princess Margaret Rehearse Their Coronation Roles

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret pushed through cheering crowds in a glass-covered coach yesterday and entered the gleaming interior to practise their brief moments in the pageantry of Tuesday's Coronation.

The Queen Mother, Margaret and royal relatives rehearsed their stately progress up the aisle of the 16th century abbey, now transformed by hangings into a splendor of blue and gold.

That procession, shortly before the Queen arrives, will be the only moment in the 2½-hour ceremony she will watch quietly from a royal box.

London firemen crept quietly through the abbey during today's rehearsal, checking miles of electric cable to guard against fire hazards.

Mounting Coronation fever gripped the capital in the flag-decked streets for the sixth straight day crowds snarled traffic in central London, threatening to choke some of the city's main streets altogether. The size of the crowds, exceeding all expectations, gave the police one of their biggest traffic-control headaches in years.

But they had a bigger one worrying about Coronation Day. No one knows just how many will turn out to cheer the Queen then. Scotland Yard has issued a plea for public assistance in keeping the procession route open Tuesday.

Nearly all Britain's lesser royalty attended today's abbey practice, including the Duchess of Kent and her children, the young Duke of Kent, Prince Michael and Princess Alexandra.

The rehearsals culminated a series of practices in which participants of the elaborate ceremonial have rehearsed their roles as individuals or in small groups.

Romanian Charged With Blackmail of U.S. Citizen

V. C. Georgescu (above) naturalized U.S. citizen of New York, N.Y., holds a photograph of his sons, Peter and Constanin (shown in large photo at right), made eight years ago. Mr. Georgescu charged that the boys are being held in Romania in an effort to blackmail him into spying for the red government.

Eisenhower and Taft Avoid Party-Splitting Break In Policies Over Korean Issue

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Senator Robert Taft (Rep., O.) today avoided any party-splitting break in their relations despite some fundamental differences over United States policies in Korea and the Far East.

The White House fixed the initiative only a few hours after Eisenhower had said at a press conference that "no," he did not agree with Taft's assertion that the U. S. "might as well forget the United Nations as far as the Korean war is concerned."

Several hours after the press conference the White House granted newspaper men permission to quote directly from Eisenhower's comments on the Taft speech. Normally, the president's remarks at press conferences may not be quoted directly.

Taft was publicly silent about the president's disavowal of the Ohio Republican's proposal that the U. S. withdraw "from all further peace negotiations in Korea" if present truce talks fail. Aides said Taft would not comment for several days, if at all. He is in hospital with an undiagnosed hip pain.

But Robert A. Taft Jr., the senator's son, noted in a telephoned interview from Cincinnati that Taft had said in the speech that the United States was giving only his personal views on the Far Eastern situation and had said these views were not intended "as any criticism of what is being done or not done."

The senator's son said he is satisfied the difference of opinion could not be construed as a "break" with the president, nor would it be likely to be reflected in opposition to administration policies.

The Eisenhower and Taft statements left the two most powerful men in the Republican party publicly at odds.

Taft has favored a "one-bite" approach to a Korean settlement, wrapping up also the problems of Formosa and Indo-China in a single agreement.

Eisenhower told Thursday's press conference that objectives are not attained in one great sudden agreement that everybody sits down and signs.

Build Satellite to Circle Earth, Scientist Urges

Dr. I. M. Levitt, nationally known astronomer and director of the Fels planetarium in Philadelphia, Pa., is displaying his model of "Mini" the moon rocket. He said that the United States should take world leadership in the conquest of space by starting an immediate project to place a man-made "moon" in a closed orbit around the earth. Estimating the cost of such a project at $7,000,000, Dr. Levitt stated that it would benefit both science and the war effort. The scientist envisions "Mini" circling the earth at a distance of 150 miles in space, at a maintained speed of 17,300 mph. As a "satellite" the rocket would complete its trip around the globe in 80 minutes. — Central Press Canadian.

Diplomats See Civil Control Of East Germany Strengthening Power of Foreign Minister

New President of Engineers' Council

By THOMAS F. WHITNEY

MOSCOW (AP)—Western diplomats here said today they regard replacement of military control by a civilian Soviet high commission in East Germany as considerably strengthening the power of Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov.

he now will have, they said, collect and personal control of German affairs in the Soviet occupied zone. Previously these had been under the defence ministry and, indirectly, the whole Soviet government.

The Kremlin announced Thursday that V. S. Semyonov, one of this country's leading German experts, had been appointed Soviet high commissioner for Germany. He will take over from Gen. Vasily Chuikov, chief of the Soviet control commission, and will be installed to command of Soviet occupation forces.

Western observers here think it possible Chuikov will be recalled even from that post and given a new assignment in the Soviet Union.

The diplomats speculated that a reason for the shift might be a possibility that the Soviet Union may propose talks on the reunification of Germany among the civilian high commissioners of Britain, France, the U. S. and their new appointee, Semyonov.

Semyonov's appointment, they said, apparently put him on the same level as the British, U. S. and French representatives.

It is clear, these sources said, that the high commissioner now will have to deal with Semyonov rather than with Gen. Chuikov as they have in the past.

Semyonov's appointment carries the rank of ambassador and, as foreign service official, he will report directly to Molotov. It makes the new appointee the top Soviet official in Germany in place of Chuikov whom he served several years as political adviser.

He has the function of observing the fulfilment by the East German republic of its obligations under the Potsdam agreement and the continuing alliance with the Western allies on "questions of a general German character."

Western diplomats here do not believe there is any simple answer as to whether the shift marks a fundamental change in Soviet policies toward Germany, but the possibility is the subject of much discussion.

In this connection, westerners are paying particular attention to statements on Germany made in Pravda editorial last Sunday.

In it, the Russians hinted at the desirability of solving individual problems individually and not necessarily at international problems at once.

One such problem listed whose individual solution might ease tension was that of Germany.

Simple Chore To Build TV Set Says Professor

CALGARY (CP)—It's a simple chore to build your own television transmitter and receiver—if you have a thorough knowledge of electronics, the necessary expensive equipment and a few hundred hours to spare.

Although William K. Allan of Calgary refuses to admit that he has achieved anything unusual, he has built what is believed the first amateur television receiver and transmitter in Alberta. Mr. Allan, 47-year-old electricity teacher at Calgary's Western Canada High School, is a recognized top-flight expert on electronics.

While he regards the construction of a normal TV receiver as child's play, Mr. Allan admits that the transmitting equipment was more difficult. The problem, he faced was that of adapting a 16 mm. movie projector into a TV "camera" to transmit the film.

When finished—it is now not satisfactory, some hard calculations produced the compromise that it was necessary to sacrifice some actual movement of the film to coincide with the so-called "blanks" between signals on the TV screen.

Mr. Allan explains that the film travelling at 24 frames a second must be made to synchronize with the electron ray on the receiver which operates at 60 fields a second.

The rest of the family is long-suffering and patient while Mr. Allan spends long evenings and at his work, even though that shrine of children's playgrounds, the basement, has become a laboratory.

Train Hits Truck At Wellington, Driver Escapes

WELLINGTON (Special)

Presence of mind of an unidentified truck driver probably saved his life in a train-truck collision here at 14 o'clock today.

The driver, who works for the Fred Vandewater Canning Company, of Bath, had pulled out of the Green Gables Company factory with a load of tomato plants.

He apparently failed to notice a Canadian National "work-train" which has been operating in the district, or it is believed he thought it was going in the opposite direction. In any event, the train backed into the truck as it was on the crossing, nearly wrecking it completely.

The driver leaped from the cab a second before the "impact" and escaped with a shaking up and slight leg injuries.

Vacationists Involved In Motor Accident

WELLINGTON (Special)—Word was received here today that Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Thompson, who are motoring to the Pacific coast on vacation were involved in a fatal accident five miles east of Edmonton.

The meagre details received revealed that Mrs. Thompson was badly shaken up and received slight injuries, while, the doctor escaped unhurt.

Damage to the car resulted in a four-day stay in Edmonton before the Thompsons could proceed.

J. M. Macdonnell Criticizes Govt.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—James M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto—Greenwood, said Thursday Parliament belongs to the citizens but they don't "rate it very high." Speaking at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, he said he believed "the western civilization reached its peak in 1913" when the world lived and believed in peace.

"We thought peace was normal, but it wasn't. We think democracy is normal, but it isn't. Our only hope is that we may get back to tolerance and Christian virtues."

3 New Outbreaks Of Hog Cholera Are Reported

OTTAWA (CP) — The agriculture department today reported three new outbreaks of hog cholera in southwestern Ontario, bringing the total number of infected farms to 11.

The new cases — two in Waterloo county and the other in Lincoln — raised the toll of dead hogs by 254 to a total of 1,439. These include animals that have died of the disease and those killed in the eradication program.

Animals examined in the latest outbreaks were traced to the sales barn where the first infected hogs were sold. The disease, first reported May 15, is still being confined to eight counties well within the quarantine area.

Oshawa Woman Burned to Death

OSHAWA (CP) — Mrs. Dorothy Harding, about 50, was burned to death early today when part of the rooming house in which she lived in downtown Oshawa was destroyed by fire.

Her husband, Jack Harding, was taken to hospital with a severed artery in his left foot. Police made the identification of the body.

Eight persons were forced to flee the building.

Heavy Damage

TORONTO (CP)—Acting premier George Doucett said today the province has suffered by rural section around Sarnia from last Thursday's tornado is greater than the havoc created in the city itself.

He said rural residents were in worse plight than Sarnians.

"More than 30 buildings were levelled in one township alone," he said. "Homes, even clothes, have been destroyed."

The province sent work gangs to the Stratford and London areas today to remove wreckage and dead animals.

Pressed Hooter At Saloon

CHICAGO (AP) — The driver pressed his hooter at the saloon and caravan ahead but was ignored, probably because of its verge on the dual carriageway.

Translation: The driver honked his horn at the sedan and trailer ahead but they didn't budge, probably because the divided highway didn't have much of a shoulder.

The first sentence consists of English motoring terms in a brief glossary issued today by the Chicago Motor Club for those planning a trip to the Coronation.

SHANNONVILLE

H.-S. Assoc. Sponsors Peterborough Trip

SHANNONVILLE — On Friday, all the pupils and teachers of Shannonville school and a number of parents went to Peterborough, an educational trip made possible by the Home and School Association.

Two chartered buses left the village at 9 a.m. filled with flag-waving happy children. Their first stop on their route was a glimpse of the lift locks; then on to the Quaker Oats factory only to be disappointed as there has been a strike there for some weeks.

The buses then drove the children and parents to a lovely park for their picnic lunch which each one had taken along. From there they continued on and to Silverwood's ice cream factory.

Manufactured Items Explained

The children were divided into small groups, each with an escort who guided them through and explained how ice cream, popsicles, and ice cream bars were made. All were very interested especially popsicle lovers as each was treated to a free-style chocolate popsicle.

From the factory they continued on into town and business section, each to go his or her way to purchase a small souvenir to take home as a reminder of their lovely trip and one that won't be forgotten for days to come. They arrived back in the village about 6.30 p.m., flag-waving, but tired children.

The nomination of officers, is to take place within a few days, also installation.

The next big event for the children to look forward to will be their field day to be held in the agricultural grounds on June 5th.

In the evening, the last euchre party of the season will be held in the local school rooms to end a successful and busy year for the Home and School Association.

Born: Nov. 9, 1841, at Buckingham Palace. Second child and eldest son of Queen Victoria. Succeeded to the throne in his 60th year on the death of his mother. Edward was a problem child in an era of staid propriety for his sub-ordinated dignity in pleasure and figured in more than one scandal. Though 60 when he succeeded to the throne, had not, fortunately for England, outgrown his genial and fun-loving temperament. His close personal friendships with heads of France, Germany and other nations became powerful factors in preserving European calm and earned him the title, "The Peacemaker." Some speculative historians suggest that World War I might never have started if Edward had been alive to talk like an old pal to his nephews William of Germany and Nicholas of Russia. The dress he chose set styles for men all over the world. (One thing he popularized was the Homberg hat.) He owned a stable of thoroughbreds and made racing truly the "Sport of Kings."

New Airport Will be Erected Near Timmins

OTTAWA (CP)—A contract is being awarded for construction of a transport department airport near Timmins, government officials said today.

The field, to be located about 18 miles north of Timmins, will be a 4,000-foot strip costing about $350,000.

It will be for commercial airline use and it is expected Trans-Canada Air Lines will use it. TCA now lands at Porquis Junction, 40 miles from Timmins.

Officials said tenders for the contract were opened recently and the award of the contract was recommended to cabinet by the transport department.

WILL MAKE APPEAL

SARNIA, (CP)—An appeal will be made to all Canadian Lions Clubs to assist tornado-stricken residents of Western Ontario with financial donations. A meeting was held Wednesday night at Strathroy with representatives of Lions Clubs present from Arcona, Zurich, London, Petrolia, Sarnia and St. Thomas. A committee was set up to handle the appeal with Ray Dennis, Lions district deputy, as chairman.

Govt. Revenue From Alberta Oil Is $56,660,000

EDMONTON (CP)—Government revenue from Alberta's oil and natural gas industries for the fiscal year ended last March 31 is authoritatively reported to have totalled $56,660,000.

This is a staggering 6,800-per-cent increase over revenue received in 1947, the year Imperial Oil's first gusher at Leduc triggered Canada's greatest oil rush.

These figures are reported by Carl O. Nickle of Calgary, leading western oil expert, who sets total revenue from the oil and gas industries since Leduc at $182,302,707—a far cry from that first boom year when $808,537 trickled into government coffers.

Largest source of revenue has been "cash bonuses" paid by oil companies for the right to explore or develop Crown reserves and for certain other types of government-owned oil or gas rights.

These bonuses brought in about $25,880,000 in the last fiscal year—approximately one-fifth of the last provincial budget—for an over-all total of about $101,398,389 since 1947. Royalties from oil and gas rights contributed $13,500,000 last year for a grand total of $34,678,221 in this department.

Mr. Nickle says that royalties are expected to increase substantially during the current year from enlarging markets. The trans-mountain oil pipeline to Vancouver will be completed and work on a proposed gas line to the West Coast is awaiting a go-ahead.

At March 31 the Alberta government had outstanding $2,896,000 acres held by companies under petroleum and natural gas leases —highest total in Alberta history and a 1,500-per-cent increase in the last six years.

The government has received as much as $3,110,000 in cash bonuses for a single block of 180 acres at its big revenue-producing lease auctions. Single auctions, taking one to two days, have brought up to $12,881,000.

Second group of figures, issued by the government, adds more lustre to the province's booming oil and gas industries.

They show that last year production reached 58,915,723 barrels of crude oil and 85,987,432,000 cubic feet of natural gas, both records. Oil discoveries in 1952 totalled 946, gas finds 28.

The government report says estimated crude oil reserves now stand conservatively at between 1,250,000,000 and 1,500,000,000 barrels.

Pt. Anne Wallops Electrics 17-4; Take Over Lead

Blasting out thirteen hits, two of them homers, the Point Anne Comerchingbad took over undisputed lead of the Belleville District Softball League at the Alemite Field last night hurling back the Northern Electric bid for top honors with a 17-4 victory.

The Oa Pointers were hot in the hitting clinches. Dougie Hull was the hero with the slingers blasting out two home runs, one with the bases loaded and a pair of singles. He grove in six of the Pointers tallies. Jack Elliott slashed out a triple with the sacks filled.

The Electrics were not up to their usual form. They were guilty of some sloppy fielding and errors of omission. They could do little or nothing with the slants of Bobby Hunter and Pat Maracle, who divided the mound chores for the Pointers.

Hunter toiled for six innings yielding four hits for as many runs while Maracle worked the other three, hurling runless ball and giving up one hit.

The Oa Pointers got to Holmes, Electrics starting pitcher, for eleven hits and seven runs before he gave 'way to McCurdy in the fifth with none out and two on. The youngster went the rest of the route giving up six hits for as many runs.

The teams split a pair of tallies in the first inning and the roof fell in on the Electrics in the second. A walk, a bunt, a sacrifice, a single and Dougie Hulls mammoth four-ply smash and six runs crossed the plate. The Pointers nibbled singles in the thing and fourth then three walks, Holl's single and Jack Elliott's base-clearing triple netted them four-counters. Elliott's triple and singles by Hull and L. Maracle were good for three more in the eighth. They added one for luck in the ninth when Hull poled his second homer of the night.

Electrics scored three runs in the fourth off a brace of Point errors, a walk and singles by Miller and Wardhaugh.

Hall's fine performance at the plate paced the Point attack. Elliott and Gilmour bashed out triples with Hug. Mallory getting a double. Hunter got a pair of singles with Green, Woods, Strahan, L. Maracle slamming out singles.

Wardhaugh slammed a double and singles for the losers with Miller, Cousins and DeRoshie accounting for the rest.

The teams:

Point Anne: Mulholland cf; Elliott lf; Hull ss; Mallory rf; Strahan 3b; Green c; Woods 2b; Buchanan 1b; Hunter p; P. Maracle p; Genereaux cf; Horwood lf; Gilmour 3b; L. Maracle 2b; Branigan 1b.

Northern Electric: Miller ss; Cousins 2b; Locke 1b; DeRoshie lf; Holsey rf; Wannamaker cf; James c; Wardhaugh 3b; Holmes p; McCurdy p; Fukancik rf; Bone 3b; Semark.

The score:

Point Anne	101	140	031	—	17	13	4
Northern	100	030	000	—	4	12	3

Hunter, Maracle (7) and Green; Holmes, McCurdy (3) and James.

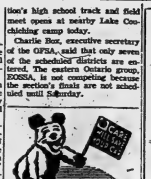
Sport in Brief

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo will apply to join the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union this season, it was announced Thursday night.

The new club would be the fifth team in the league. The others are Sarnia Imperials, Toronto, Balmy Beach, Brantford Redskins and Windsor Royals.

"We're delighted to have Kitchener-Waterloo in the league," secretary Harold Ballay of the ORFU said in Toronto. "For some time we've thought of that centre as an ideal location for an ORFU team."



The Kitchener-Waterloo application to join the league will be discussed, along with the schedule, at a league meeting in mid-June.

"I can't think of any reason that the application won't be accepted," Ballay said.

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats announced Thursday the signing of four United States players, two of them newcomers. Quincy Armstrong, Quincy Texas centre and big Vince Mazza have inked their contracts. The newcomers are Bobby (Blackie) Jones of Fort Worth, Texas, an end, and Lou Kusserow, who has played for New York Yankees.

ORILLIA (CP)—The Ontario Federation of School Athletic Association's high school track and field meet opens at nearby Lake Couchiching camp today.

Charlie Box, executive secretary of the OFSA, said that only seven of the scheduled districts are entered. The eastern Ontario group, EOSSA, is not competing because the sectional finals are not scheduled until Saturday.

Dodgers On March To Top; Meet Favorite 'Victims' In Five-Game Series

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THIS EXPLAINS IT!

A year's lapse in senior baseball in this city was officially announced yesterday by Malcolm Robb, president of the Belleville Baseball Association.

Mr. Robb points out in a letter to this department that the cessation of senior baseball activity here is definitely a temporary one and that "we are determined that next year shall be a completely different story and that a strong league will be organized early and for sure."

Mr. Robb's letter, which follows, speaks for itself:

"The Belleville Baseball Association has always been determined to field a senior ball team of the highest calibre in 1953. Some months ago we were confident that we had a border league organized consisting at least of Watertown, Brockville, Smith's Falls, Kingston and Belleville. There was reasonable anticipation that one or two other American clubs might participate.

"Members of the Belleville Baseball executive, Jack Carson, Drury Downes and the writer, made various journeys to Kingston and to Watertown and met representatives from Kingston and Watertown. A draft constitution was drawn up. About a month ago everything seemed to point to a successful league organization, and a very good season of senior baseball for Belleville.

It then appeared that only one American group could participate; Smith's Falls were deprived of lighting facilities and Brockville became the centre of a factional dispute. In the result, only three teams were left—Belleville, Kingston and Watertown.

"For the past month we have made every conceivable effort to obtain a fourth team to get the season under way, and at the same time attempting to keep the three present clubs interested. We were prepared to take teams from as far as Ottawa or Hull, notwithstanding the very substantial travelling expenses involved to the Belleville team. We understood that the travelling expenses of an Ottawa club entered the league on the occasion of their travelling to Belleville. None of these efforts met with success.

"The proposed members of our team who, we feel, would have given Belleville the best baseball team in many years, were very hard hit financially by the cancellation of 1952, and had very tempting offers to play elsewhere. We have now, had to tell them regretfully that we will not be fielding a senior league team this year. We are determined that next year shall be a completely different story, and that a strong league will be organized early and for sure."

Mr. Robb's letter will clear up a misunderstanding that has been apparent in baseball circles in the city for the past few weeks. Some people thought the reason for no prospects of senior ball here was lethargy on the part of the association executive in obtaining a league berth.

Knowing the efforts of Mr. Robb and his executive in trying to set only seniors a berth, and noted in the organization of a league satisfactory to all concerned, this department refrained from making any comment until definite word was received from the executive members.

Messrs. Robb and Carson, along with Secretary Denyes went "all out" in their efforts to form a league. They made long journeys and spent a lot of time in trying to achieve something that would be satisfactory to baseball fandom here.

They would not, and rightly so, consent to the operation of a team on a losing basis. The sorry experience of the now defunct Central Ontario Baseball League last season taught baseball interests here a lesson they will not soon forget. A five-team loop is not feasible. It is not good for racial sport. There is too much repetition of players and plays. There is not enough competition per league of fare for the fans, and after all, they are the people, who in the long run, help greatly to "carry the shot."

Prospects for a banner season this year looked exceedingly bright early in the year. It was suggested that three American and three Canadian teams comprise the loop. Precedent holds and the executive jumped at the opportunity to enter such a set-up. New teams, new faces, especially those from across the border, would, they felt, not only give baseball here something different, but would result in substantial increase at the box office.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in Watertown, N.Y. Manager Jack Carson, who represented Belleville, came back with glowing reports, and promise of a banner season here.

Then things began to happen. One by one the prospective entries dropped out until, as Mr. Robb points out, only three teams were left.' You know the rest.

As he states: "Every conceivable effort was made to form a group." Messrs. Robb, Carson, et al. are to be commended for their efforts to bring senior baseball here, but apparently the fates were against them—and—next year is another year.

SOFTBALL!

The CNR Diesels and the Glen Roy juniors tangle tonight in a district softball league game at the CNRAA field in what should be a thriller. The juniors have been showing plenty of power in their last few starts and should give the railroaders a strong battle before the last hitter is out. The kids have defeated Wooler and Frankford and have yet to meet a setback in league play. The Diesels edged the Wooler team in their only official time out.

Defeat Giants 7-6 in Tenth To Vault Into Third Place; Yanks Stretch Lead to Three

By Associated Press Sports Writer

Flushed with gifts from an unexpected source, Brooklyn Dodgers face a busy holiday week-end which may well lead them into first place in the National League. At least the door will be wide open.

The Dodgers begin a five-game set today with some of their favorite playmates, Pittsburgh Pirates. The Bucks have been beaten Pittsburgh three straight this year and 19 out of 23 last year.

After leading almost all the way, New York Giants Thursday gave Brooklyn the winning run in the 10th on a missed third strike, a fielder's choice, an intentional walk and a passed ball. Brooklyn won 7-6.

Cards, Redlegs Tie

The Dodgers now are in third place, 1½ games back of the first-place Braves. Milwaukee was idle Thursday while the second-place Cardinals were held to a 10-10 tie in 10 innings at Cincinnati. The game was halted because St. Louis had to catch a train home.

In the American League New York Yankees increased their games in front of Chicago White Sox by whipping Washington 7-2 while the White Sox took the day off. Philadelphia licked Boston 5-4 and St. Louis Browns won their second in a row from Cleveland Indians 7-5.

Whitey Ford of the Yankees extended his record of never having lost as a starting pitcher as he set down the Senators on five hits. Ford, a 24-year-old lefthander, has been beaten only once in 14 decisions in the majors and that came in a relief role.

Parnell Beates

Another winning streak by a pitcher was broken in the Philadelphia-Boston game when the Athletics finally beat Mel Parnell for the first time in more than two seasons.

In St. Louis veteran Bob Elliott drove in six runs with a bases-loaded homer and a single. The two hits ran his lifetime major league total to 1,928.

Pittsburgh Pirates slammed 15 hits off the offerings of Jim Konstanty but the 36-year-old Philadelphia righthander stayed the distance to pick up his fourth victory 9-6.

The Cincinnati-St. Louis tie was a wild affair with the Redlegs scoring two runs in the ninth on Grady Hatton's pinch homer, two more in the ninth on a homer by Andy Seminick and a final pair in the 10th on a single with the bases loaded by Ted Kazanski. The game will be replayed from the start at some later date.

Canoe Regatta For Toronto

MONTREAL (CP)—Howard Radford, secretary of the Canadian Canoe Association, said Thursday the first North American canoe racing championship regatta will be held Aug. 15 at the Toronto Island Canoe Club.

Agreement on the title meet was reached recently by Syracuse at a meeting of the CCA and the North American Canoe Racing Association.

The decision follows close association between the groups of both countries following the Olympic Games. The purpose, said Radford, is to foster international competition between the two countries.

SARNIA DOWNS RED DEVILS

SARNIA (CP)—Sarnia Bees came up with their second consecutive Ontario Lacrosse Association international A victory Thursday night by downing Wallaceburg Red Devils 11-3.

Boxing Boss Denies Sanction Given for Fight

QUEBEC (CP) Gene Letourneau acting national commissioner of the Canadian Boxing Federation, declared Thursday that sanction has been given to a Canadian lightweight championship in Toronto, June 8, between Armand Savoie and Arthur King.

Letourneau also said the fight could not be for the British Empire title. The British boxing board of control some time ago took the title away from King because he had failed to defend it.

The British Empire lightweight crown now is held by Jackie Paterson of Scotland, added, but he did not name him.

Promotor Frank Tunney announced in Toronto Wednesday night that 12-round bout between King, a native of Trent, and Savoie, the Canadian lightweight champion from Montreal, would be for both titles.

Letourneau said King, who has been fighting out of Philadelphia, is reported to have taken out American citizenship papers and therefore is not eligible to fight for British honors.

Tunney said in Toronto that he had Jack Dawson Allen, Toronto matchmaker, were asked by the CBF to stage the bout for the Canadian lightweight championship fight. He said that Allen had refused, adding that Dawson from the CBF.

Tunney said, however, that official sanction was not asked by him or Allen.

As for the British Empire title, Tunney said as far as he knew King still held it.

Ward, Carr Advance In British Amateur

HOYLAKE, England (CP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward of Atlanta, Ga., and Dublin-born Joe Carr, both rated high in international golf, advanced Thursday into the quarter-final round of the British amateur championship.

Ward, only American left in the last eight, blasted his way past two Britons in easy fashion—7 and 6 over Alan Turner in the fifth round and 3 up and over Guy Wolstenholme in the sixth.

Carr, Irish Irishman, had it easier in the morning round with a 6 and 5 victory over Sydney Hall of Zeppelin and was rewarded in the sixth to advance with a one up decision over Maj. Melville Blacker of Scotland in the sixth round.

Americans were slow like tenpins in the fifth round.

Advancing to the last eight with Ward and Carr are J. T. Lamble of England, Dizzy Rawlinson of England, Cecil Ramsish of Ireland, Arthur Perowne of England, J. W. Draper of Scotland, and C. F. Windrow of England.

Ramsish pulled the upset of the day with a last nine one-up victory over big Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., one of the tournament's best golfers, in the fifth round. He followed with another decision over Ian Caldwell of England.

Wings Drop Leafs To Third Place; Royals Win

By The Canadian Press

Righthander Milt Jordan, obtained by Buffalo a short time ago from Detroit Tigers of the American Baseball League, has proved he can handle starting roles as well as he does relief jobs.

Manager Jack Tighe of Bisons Thursday night pressed Jordan into service as a starter against Toronto Maple Leafs, and the 26-year-old hurler came through with flying colors in the International League leading pitcher by trimming the Indians 4-2.

It's only with Buffalo last year, has two relief victories to his credit since coming to the Bisons this season.

The Bisons are in fourth place, percentage points ahead of Ottawa Athletics, who went 14 innings at Springfield to defeat the tail-end Cubs 4-3.

Montreal Royals continue to lead the league, finishing a four-game sweep at Baltimore with a 6-3 victory over the Orioles. The Orioles handed it to the Royals on the earned runs.

Jack Sanford, Baltimore starter, allowed only three hits in seven innings he pitched but was charged with his fourth loss against five victories. A pair of errors by his team-mates in the second inning resulted in four unearned runs.

The second-place Red Wings defeated Toront Maple Leafs 12-2 at Rochester to remain 1½ games behind Montreal. The loss leaves the Leafs in third place, two games behind.

George Condrick and pelleter Jack Crimian, both righthanders, shared the five-hit triumph, with Condrick notching his third win.

At Springfield, a long triple by Bingo Mrsbacak, coupled with a fielding error by Jack Wallaesa, gave Ottawa the marathon win. The Athletics' run broke a string of nine consecutive scoreless innings.

Blue-Bloods Would Hog Track Classic Won't Release Date for Belmont Race

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP)—You'll hardly know it unless you watch the papers closely, but the greatest of the United States' three-year-old horse races, the one they pay off on, is scheduled to be run a week from Saturday at Belmont Park.

The secrecy with which the event is conducted has never been satisfactorily explained. Most popular belief is that the proprietors of Belmont, a notably social set, simply do not wish to attract the hordes of oil millionaires and other assorted new-rich who clutter up the Kentucky Derby and, to a lesser degree, the Preakness.

The word is passed around quietly to the better stables that the Belmont Stakes, at a mile and one-half, will be raced on a certain date, with an added prize of $100,000, and on the appointed day the gates are opened to the public as usual. The public is not urged to show up, but it may.

The only reason we are breaking a confidence and calling attention to the race this far ahead is that one of the entries, which will be Native Dancer, a grey colt about which there is much disputation, may be raced before being divided at a distance who would like to watch young Bill Vanderbilt's beauty face his sternest test if given advance notice.

The dispute centers around whether the Dancer, which has won 13 of his 14 races this year, is seasons, is a truly top star fit to rank with such equine immortals as Man O' War, Citation, Count Fleet and others, or merely is the best of an ordinary lot of thoroughbreds. This one, which stretches the glamour out and his supporting cast out a quarter-mile farther than they ever have run before, is supposed to supply the answer.

Even the experts cannot know for certain that Jamie S. as of last Saturday's Preakness at Baltimore, was not a superior race horse. He was given a perfect ride by the country's finest jockey, Eddie Arcaro. The Dancer won in a terrific stretch duel, and now he must prove by the time he's finished that he belongs among the elite.

Some think the burn he will have to beat this time is Royal Bay Gem, a stout little competitor who has been a mile back to finish third in the Preakness. Looked as though he was just settling down to run.

Here's a Hunch Bet for The Queen's Plate Winter Lady Was Born Unattended Fri. 13th

By JOHN PATTERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Want a hunch bet for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate next Tuesday?

Consider Winter Lady, a long-striding bay filly. She was born unattended on a bitter January day in 1950—Friday, the 13th, to be exact. She is from the small stable of Ontario's only woman owner-trainer, Olive Armstrong of Toronto, and she will be ridden by Jockey Herbie Lindberg who piloted another filly, Sally Fuller, to victory in the 1951 King's Plate.

And, incidentally, the $20,000 added 1¼-mile classic will be held Coronation Day when the Queen, donor of the 50 guineas to the winning owner, will be crowned.

On the practical side, Winter Lady is all thoroughbred. She is the daughter of Windy Lawless, 1938 plate winner and one of Canada's greatest racehorses who has sired two previous plate winners—Epic in 1948 and McGill the following year. Winter Lady is the only Bunty foal in this year's classic.

Bunty, owned by Willie Morrisey, Toronto hotel proprietor, was Canada's leading sire four years and the first sire in Canada whose get earned $100,000 a year, again for four years. After his plate victory the bay went on to smashing victories in racing's "big league," at Saratoga, N. Y., where he won three handicaps against American breds.

It was natural that Miss Armstrong should get into the horse-racing business. She had been Morrisey's secretary-bookkeeper for 17 years at his hotel but her job mainly was keeping books at her employer's breeding farm and, says Miss Armstrong, "helping out around the farm, even assisting at many of the births."

"A few years ago Mr. Morrissey gave me a mare, Normal-Intent, a Kentucky-bred which I had named to Bunty Lawless," Miss Armstrong said in an interview at Woodbine. "Naturally we watched the mare in foal but despite our care Winter Lady had a natural birth unattended on that cold January Friday. That's how she got her name."

"Winter Lady did well right from the first," she said. "She outran the colts by wearing-out and turn and we raced her lightly last year. She developed a slight nervous condition in the fall and we eased up on her but when winter training started in January she did everything asked of her."

Winter Lady did okay in the six-furlong plate trial last Saturday. She placed third in her division, losing out K. P. Taylor's highly favored Canadiana for the show slot.

Regent Juniors Bow to Flyers By 9-7 Score

By JACK BRETT

The Belleville Regent Juniors dropped a heartbreaking contest to the RCAF Flyers on the airport diamond by a score of 9-7 Thursday night. It was the Regent's second loss in two starts in the Belleville and District Baseball League.

Out in front 7-3 at the close of five and a half innings, the Flyers leaped ahead in the bottom of the sixth by scoring six runs off three hits, three walks and a fielder's error. They added the final tally in the seventh frame.

Belleville drew first blood in the third as Fox went to first on the pitcher's error, second on another error, third on a passed ball and came home on a fielder's choice that had put Fox on first and subbed for the runner at third. Strachan accounted for the second run in that frame by crossing the plate on a fielder's choice.

For the RCAF in their half, Paquette singled and scored on the next two batsmen singled to be left on at the close of the inning making it 2-1 in favor of the Regents.

In the fifth, Fox was aboard second on a walk and a sacrifice hit for the Regents. He scored as Munro singled, stole second and was driven in by Hird's error. Bitchelor's single scored Munro of third and Geyer aboard second on a walk and a passed ball. Fox died at the plate as the fielder attempted to throw out Geyer. Jones' double brought in Batchelor for the third tally of the frame. Jones was left on at the close of the inning.

Jordin, for the Flyers, drove a long single to left over the left field fence in the bottom of the fifth to account for the only home run of the game and the Air Force's second marker.

Belleville's seventh run came in the top of the sixth. Barclay was hit by the pitcher and sent to first. He escaped to second on a passed ball and crossed home plate on the pitcher's error.

A double by Paquette and singles off the bat of McHarg and Noel were the only hitters in the RCAF's sixth torrid frame. Boychuck, Mead and Jordan received walks.

Davis walked in the seventh for the Flyers, stole second and scored on Jordin's double.

There was no further scoring on either side and the game was called at the end of seven and a half innings on account of darkness.

While hurled four and a half frames for the Air Force allowing six runs off four hits. He walked three and fanned out six. Mead replaced him in the fifth to give the Regents one run off one hit, three walks and two errors.

The Regents used three pitchers. Strachan started and in six frames he allower the left field 7 runs off 8 hits, walking three and striking out three. The next two hurlers, Mitts and Carr, gave two hits for two runs, walked three and struck out two.

The line-ups:

Regents—Munro cf; Stephens 3rd; Carson 3rd; Bone 1st; Goyer c; Batchelor 2nd; Jones ss; Cossey rf; Barclay 3rd; Fox lf; Strachan p; Mitts p; Carr p.

Flyers—Jordan ss; McHarg 2b; MacDonald lf; Noel rf; LaPlante 3rd; Boychuck 1st; Courroyer c; Davis c; Paquetje cf; White p; Mead p.

Score by innings:

Battling Nelson, Ex-Lightweight King Poor, Sick, Living on Friends' Gifts

By JERRY LEKA

CHICAGO (AP) — You trudge down the dim, littered hall in the ancient near-northside hotel and you come to the home and castle of Battling Nelson, onetime king of the lightweights.

It's a drab room in which a shrunken little man huddles in a chair by a window. He sits, and waits, and savors if the latest move to give him a helping hand will end his hard times.

Poverty has done to Nelson, who will be 71 June 5, what Joe Gans, Young Corbett, Jimmy Britt, Abe Attel and Terry McGovern couldn't do with battering fists.

The Bat is sick, and old and tired—but hoping somehow things will brighten so he can get a "real" home in California.

Weighs 100 Pounds

Nelson nearly died a few months ago with flu. That's why he weighs about 100 pounds and the cheek bones protrude from his gaunt face.

Almost in a dazed recitation, Nelson tells you how he was, the only man who knocked out Gans twice. Now he never drank, smoked or chewed tobacco. And how his ring earnings of about $200,000 vanished in a real estate venture.

"If I was fighting now, I'd make more money in one fight than I made in my entire career," The Bat muses. "I'm no millionaire."

For several years, ever since his small-salaried job at the parcel post division of Chicago's main post office ended, Nelson has been getting handouts from friends. Just enough to cover his hotel rent and groceries.

Now the Battling Nelson Benefit Committee is working on an annuity fund which will give him $100 a month for life. The project centres around a testimonial dinner Sept. 28.

Such people as Tom Yawkey of Boston Red Sox; Fred Miller, Milwaukee sportsman; Bishop Sheil of Chicago; and Clark Griffith of Washington Senators already have contributed to the fund.

The committee got an expected refusal from the city of San Francisco on a request the Bat be returned $1,938 he donated to an earthquake relief fund when that city was devastated in 1906.

"We read about a $100,000 memorial proposed for Jim Thorpe," a committee spokesman said, "thought the west coast might want to do something for an athletic hero while he still was alive."

Since his illness, Nelson scarcely leaves the room. He gets a great deal of cheer from a sad-eyed spaniel named Pal.

Bat held the lightweight title from 1908 until 1910.

Oshawa Edges Brantford 6-5 In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things didn't go right Thursday night for the league-leading Brantford Red Sox and Waterloo Tigers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League. The Red Sox lost their second game of the season—to Oshawa Merchants. The Tigers had to forfeit their game to Kitchener Panthers.

The Merchants just managed a 6-5 victory over Brantford, thanks to two Oshawa runs in the top of the eighth inning that the Red Sox couldn't overcome.

A rhubarb occurred in the Waterloo-Kitchener contest, only other game of the night. The score was tied 5-5 when the game was called because the Tigers were unable to field nine men.

Johnny Walter, Toronto lefthander, had a lot to do with the Oshawa victory. He scattered eight hits and marked up his second win in as many starts. Loser Matt Lipka let Oshawa have 15 hits.

Merchants started on Lipka in the first inning and collected three runs on two walks and three hits. Brantford tied it in the next frame with an infield error, a walk and a double by Kolewicz. Four more wild pitches by Walter, Four solid hits for the two runs in the eighth after breaking a fifth inning tie gave Oshawa the win.

Johnny Imbra, with four hits in as many times at bat, paced the Merchants, followed by Ted O'Connor, the league's leading hitter, who got three hits in five tries.

Waterloo Tigers had come from behind to tie the score with Kitchener 5-5, in the last of the ninth. It was in this frame the rhubarb developed. Billy Flint was thrown out on an attempted steal of second base and subsequently out of the game for arguing with umpire Jimmy Tait.

Playing manager Pank Biasetti joined in the argument and he got the thumb. Then Tait tossed third baseman Bobby Fisher out of the game. This was the end as far as Waterloo was concerned.

With the playing roster limited to 18 men and catcher Irish Mickinmons on the sidelines due to an injury, the Tigers were unable to field nine men for the 10th inning and had to forfeit the game to the Panthers who took over third place. Waterloo dropped back into a four-place tie with Guelph Maple Leafs.

Tonight Kitchener is at Guelph; London at Galt; and St. Thomas at Waterloo.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Impulsiveness, fiery temper, intolerance are likely tempters. Shun them promptly; better still, combat them agressively. Day otherwise fair for your future.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Hold that decision till you have investigated whether it will be productive of constructive good. Use your talents; awaken the sleeping ones, too.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Nervous tension, too speedy thinking and action can be forestalled by beginning your day with reflection. Then accelerate gradually.

June 22 to July 2c (Cancer)—If you have free time, think first what you should do with it.That often solves problems. Duties first, and on time!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—I was Cancer and Gemini native, you are advised to think hard before you commit yourself. And, do what you do within reasonable bounds.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—A smile and confident attitude will not only boost your own spirits, but will bring others to your aid the quicker. Look over commitments thoughtfully.

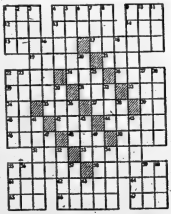
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Because you missed a couple of times doesn't mean you shouldn't try again, with some assurance of success. Act on that principle now.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Planetary outlook so-so, but do your best and you will be a winner. No straining!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Where should you cut now? Expenses? Yes, but also in excessive pleasures. Think about such cuts.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Been working too much lately? Then now is time for curtailing, but you must still meet real responsibilities. You can.

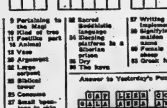
January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Do what you feel is instinctively right not minding criticism. Take suggestions, of course, but don't be confused by too many of them. Use logic withal.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A slow-down now and then is good for the best of men, and women, too. But that all depends (and here you must be the wise judge) upon what pace you have been keeping.

YOU BORN TODAY: Are talented in many respects. Could follow a career in art, science, medicine, law, literature, and other fields, but as an inborn salesman, and your ideas for improving business are the kind that sends the U.S.A. ahead. Birthdate of: Peter the Great, Russian Czar; Benny Goodman, band leader.

RAINY OUTLOOK



TORONTO (CP) — Torontonians looking forward to a Coronation Day outing will get little encouragement from the city's June 2 weather records. In the last 10 years, the day has produced rain seven times, as overcast once and was clear only twice.

PENICILLIN OVERUSED, SAYS FLEMING

Sir Alexander Fleming (left), the discover of penicillin, and Dr. Jonas Salk, known for his research on influenza and polio vaccines, have an informal chat at the Medical Centre of the University of Pittsburgh (right). Winner of the 1945 Nobel prize, he said he believes the miracle drug he discovered is being "over-used."

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN FOUND SLAIN IN HOUSE

H. LaFortune, Hamilton, Charged With Murder

HAMILTON (CP)—The battered body of an unidentified woman, apparently strangled, was found in a downtown rooming house early today and police charged Harry LaFortune, 27, with murder.

LaFortune was brought before a justice of the peace shortly after he was picked up. He was remanded in custody to June 1.

Police said Mrs. Elizabeth Rabauskas, LaFortune's landlady, called them after she heard a couple having trouble in the accused man's room.

Officers found the blood-spattered body lying across a bed. LaFortune was sitting on the bed apparently waiting for investigators.

LaFortune would not identify the woman, but police said he did.

"She's not good, she's just a bum."

Police said LaFortune was a casual caretaker who had rented the room last week.

Detective-Sergeant William Homer, in charge of the investigation, said LaFortune gave a short statement to police, but would not divulge its contents. He said they were checking to learn that LaFortune was originally from the Galt area.

LaFortune offered no resistance when led off to police headquarters. Inside, he told police police if they were getting enough evidence" of the murder.

According to the landlady, LaFortune rented the room May 23 and had paid a week's rent in advance.

Police were first called to the house, just south of King street on the east side of Bay street, around midnight when the landlady could not gain entrance to LaFortune's room.

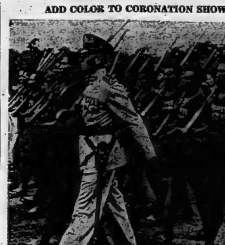
Constables Albert Welsh and David Ball broke in to the room.

They said the woman was dressed in a white nightgown and brown skirt. The sheets and pillow cases on the bed were covered with blood.

There was a deep cut on the woman's head, apparently caused by a bad beating, officers said.

Neighbors said they had been drinking and was dressed in trousers, socks and undershirt.

The room had been torn apart, unable to identify the woman. An autopsy was scheduled for this afternoon.



Mrs. Rabauskas described as being about 40, with black, shoulder length hair and of stocky build. Police inspector Joseph Dwyer said officers were checking a theory that she became her name might be Teresa, as the accused repeatedly used that name while talking to detectives.

Most of the other occupants of the roominghouse were out at the time.

SHIP CAPTAIN SAYS HE WORKED AT POINT OF GUN

Hong Kong Company Releases Statement

HONG KONG (Reuters)—The captain of the 3,221-ton Panamanian ship Perico today denied reports with Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin that he had worked for the Chinese communists—but only at the point of gun.

McCarthy's Senate investigations sub-committee said in a report published here today that British ships, including the Perico, had carried Communist troops since the outbreak of the Korean war.

Wallem and Company Limited, Hong Kong owners of the Perico, said the ship carried 482 uniformed Chinese from Hoi Hao on 25 miles along the China coast in June, 1951.

Were No Insignia

The master said he was threatened that if he did not carry the soldiers "I or a boy would be shot."

The captain, unnamed in the shipping company's statement, said the soldiers were in uniform but were no insignia or rank badges. He said his passengers were guarded by about 12 armed communists.

He took them from Kwong Chowan, South China, to Canton, their first capital, on June 22. When he loaded rice, the ship's normal cargo, it was discharged secretly in Hong Kong.

On the vessel's return to Hong Kong, the master gave a full report on the incident to the Hong Kong commissioner of police and was understand that copies were sent to local naval authorities and to the colonial secretariat," the statement added.

British shipowners Wheelock, Marden and Company Friday night explained how its name had got mixed up in the Senate investigations. The company said it had never used ships to transport Communist troops but three of its vessels had been seized by communists China.

The communists refused to return the ships so Wheelock, Marden and Company applied to the Panamanian government last January to have their registry cancelled. The ships "were under communist hands ever since and officials said they had every reason to believe they are used in the coastal trade."

Planes, Guns Lay Heavy Barrage On Hills Lost To Reds

Losses on Both Sides Are Believed High

By GEORGE A. McARTHUR

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese Communists clung grimly to three battered outposts near Panmunjom today as Allied big guns and planes poured tons of explosives and leaden hail upon them in the shifting, shell-torn hills.

The Reds wrested outposts Vegas, Carson and Elko from U. S. and Turkish infantry in a division-strength assault which opened Thursday night along a five-mile front only 30 miles north of Seoul.

Fighting continued on the eastern Vegas where the Reds seized several outposts Wednesday night in a 6,500-man attack above a 20-mile front defended by South Korean infantry.

There have been no official casualty reports from either battle yet, but losses on both sides were believed high.

Turkish officers estimated the Chinese lost 1,000 killed and wounded in the 28-hour battle for Elko which guards the key road junction route to Seoul and the main Allied defence line.

Line Not Threatened

Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, 8th army commander, said Communist capture of the outposts did not threaten the UN main line. He said the Red attacks so far "are not organizations on a level than a general offensive.

British troops of the Duke of Wellington Regiment hurled back two Red battalions of about 1,500 men which attacked the Hook, another strategic outpost, about 13 miles east of Panmunjom.

Fifth air force fighter-bombers and twin-engine B-26 bombers roared over the Western front today, dropping almost 200,000 pounds of bombs before noon.

B-29 Superforts bombed a North Korean dam north of Pyongyang Friday night in an attempt to knock out reservoirs over main Communist supply routes. Fourteen Superforts hit a big earth-fill dam at Kowangju on the Taedong river but were unable to observe results, the air force said.

Fighting Still Rages

An 8th army briefing officer said fighting still raged around two outposts captured by communists.

South Korean soldiers counterattacked yesterday in an attempt to drive Chinese soldiers off the strategic hills near Finger ridge and bloody ridge.

Sketchy reports from the front listed more than 100 Communist casualties in the continuing battle.

Chinese and Allied troops coreared a deadly duel over the battered western front outposts.

Coronation Sidelights

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Mirror and Daily Sketch, rival London tabloids, have been using gold ink for their titles these days. Now the Daily Mail says anyone who wants it can have the entire Mail printed in gold June 2. The price will be 18 pence compared to 3½ pence for the same paper in black ink.

Passengers and crew of a British Overseas Airways plane will toast the Queen at noon on Coronation Day. When the Sovereign's well-wishers raise their glasses, the plane, returning from Frankfurt to Rome, will be 19,000 feet over the Alps.

The British Communist party's mouthpiece, Daily Worker, said tartly of Britain's monarchy: "Stuff the kids full of tea cream until they are like to burst, swallow the Queen's health barrel runs dry, yawn through the television presentation of the ceremony in the Abbey, but do not delude yourself that the monarchy is a safeguard of freedom, in Britain or anywhere else."

Beyond the gorgeous scenes in which she is the central figure, the Queen won't see much of the Coronation procedure as a whole until Friday night. Then she will see it all on color film at a private presentation in Clarence House where the Royal Family has a tiny private cinema.

Britain's nationalized railways have booked the Queen into a new train called "The Elizabethan" to run from Euston to Edinburgh non-stop for the 393 miles. The train will make its first run June 29.

Two bells which pealed out over London in the reign of Queen Elizabeth I will be heard again ringing from Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day.

The bells, dating from 1583 and 1586, will ring alternately for five minutes before the Queen is driven out during the regalia procession.

It is recorded in a 16th century document that these bells were rung "in commemoration of Queen Elizabeth's coming to the Crown."

The only persons to see the Coronation procession on colored television will be 100 youngster at a London children's hospital.

Two special cameras will be set up in the grandstand opposite the scene by direct cable to special screens set up in the hospital.

Body Identified

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The badly-decomposed body of a man found washed ashore on the Welcome Islands 24 days ago has been identified as that of Louis Lafferte, 36, of Windsor, provincial police said Friday.

The man was reported missing by his wife after he departed by fell off the Canadian National Railways dock in Port Arthur or the SS Beaverton on which he worked.

Portraits of Queen and Family Dominate the London Scene

By FORBES RHODE — Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Artists in London one face looks out at you from tens of thousands of places—the face of Elizabeth II.

Sometimes she is shown from the Duke of Edinburgh or other children, but mostly she is shown alone. For this is the picture and her people's occasion, and the solemn ceremony of Coronation day which only she, and they, before God, can make.

Let's take a walk around the route where her people will see her in her golden coach before and after the ceremony.

Regal Decorations

Starting from gates of Buckingham Palace we look straight down the wide Mall at decorations which are regal in rather than lavish. Graceful arches reach across from either side and from these are suspended equally graceful large crowns.

We pass Clarence House where the Queen Mother lives and Marlborough House where Queen Mary lived. We come out through Admiralty Arch, across Trafalgar Square, pass under Admiralty Arch into the Mall, and so back to Buckingham Palace.

Throughout, the spectator stands are prominent in decoration effects and will be more so when filled with people. Their framework is of a strong steel tubing and one wonders where it all comes from.

In general, the handsome buildings are unobscured and the streets are allowed to carry the decorations rather than the stands and decorations overwhelm them; and the stands are just what most of the old buildings needed to hide traces of age. There is virtually nothing of a freakish or midway nature.

ROULETTE FAVAL

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A 17-year-old youth, shooting his 15-year-old bride of three days how to play Russian roulette, shot himself to death Friday night. Police said John Mel Baker spun the cylinder of a .25-calibre revolver, told his bride Rose Leona "this is how you play Russian roulette", and then fired a bullet into his temple.

Will Publish On June 2nd

The Ontario Intelligencer will publish as usual on Tuesday, June 2nd and it is expected that extra sheets of the Coronation edition will be available for this edition. There will also be a full story account of the Coronation ceremony.

The procession then passes along East Carriage Drive of Hyde Park and through Marble Arch to Oxford street, which has achieved attractive effects with golden-colored metal mesh woven into various designs.

Then comes Regent street, festured by long-flowered panels on store fronts, and then the Hay market, distinctive with green-shaded lamp-posts. From the Hay market we again cross Trafalgar Square, pass under Admiralty Arch into the Mall, and so back to Buckingham Palace.

Acting Premier Says South Koreans to Quit UN Army If Allied Truce Proposal Signed

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—The acting prime minister of South Korea today threatened to pull ROK divisions from the United Nations command, then perhaps even launch military action, if negotiators sign an armistice based on the latest Allied proposal.

Pyun Yong Tai told newspaper men South Korea also is prepared to use its army to block any landing of troops from five neutral countries to guard Red prisoners of war who refuse to go home.

"In order to block these attempts . . . we are ready to use our armed forces and we would even be willing to shed blood in fighting them," Pyun said.

South Korea's rebellion against the UN truce proposal mounted steadily as the Allies prepared for negotiators to return to Panmunjom Monday after a week-long recess. The Communists are expected to answer the proposal handed to them in secret session last Monday.

The Reds were reported to have turned down at least part of the plan on the spot, but silence from the Peiping Red radio indicated to some observers that high-level discussions may be under way.

Deeply Concerned

United States diplomats and officers of the UN command were said to be deeply concerned over the South Korean threat. But one source said Allied officials are doing every effort to quiet the clamor before negotiations are resumed.

Ellis O. Briggs, U. S. ambassador to South Korea, flew today to the Republic of Korea naval base at Chinhae near the Japan prison, and President Syngman Rhee, he met with top army and government military exercises.

Pyun then for said he had been military action, if negotiators sign an armistice based on the latest Allied proposal.

Pre-Coronation Ball Keeps Queen Up Till Early Morning

LONDON (AP)—The Queen, bubbling with joy, danced late at a pre-Coronation ball and didn't get home until 4 a. m. this morning.

Her personal car was parked waiting outside Buckingham Palace in the cold dawn light to cheer the monarch as she returned from the dance at Hampton Court Palace—the same place where Henry the 10r, King Henry VIII, held his revels 400 years ago.

There had been 20,000 wildly cheering Britons gathered about as Elizabeth left for the ball with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, and Princess Margaret.

The Queen brought her sister home with her. Margaret, who didn't have a date, popped into the palace for a minute and then drove to her own home. Elizabeth danced on.

With the strenuous routine of Coronation just three days off, the Queen made no engagements for today and planned to spend it doing things easy. Palace sources said she and the Duke might run down to Windsor for a brush of air, but would otherwise stay quietly at home.

The ball was given for the Queen by the Brigade of Guards, Radiant in pink and white chiffon with a diamond tiara and necklace, she opened the festivities by dancing with the commander of the household brigade, Major-Gen. Julian Gascoigne.

Lights Went Out

The affair got under way after one of those mishaps that so often plague people giving a party for the boss—the lights went out just as the Queen arrived.

She had barely entered the 428-year-old hall by Duke streets through the June Bokeya gate when the king's staircase, where she was to be received, was plunged into darkness.

The Royal party conveyed was hurriedly switched to another section of the palace.

Dancing was on a special floor laid over the spot where Henry had used to purge himself at the fabled royal banquets.

The supper served in the wee hours this morning—was spread-in the banquets or greenhouse—a later addition to the palace.

Building Floodlit

Buckingham was floodlit and so were the lawns sloping down to the Thames. The walled gardens around the mellow structure. Between dances, the guests strauced outside in the balmy May night.

The ball for the Queen wasn't the only party in London.

This whole capital of 8,000,000 persons is Coronation happy and there were celebrations all through the city. One gay biggest was at the Savoy Coronation ball at the Savoy Hotel.

Guest of honor there was the Queen Mother.

As she left Clarence House for the dance, thousands of persons mobbed her car to cheer and wish her well. Police had to clear the interconments before the Queen Mother could drive on. It took 10 minutes for her to drive two blocks to the Admiralty Arch.

Welsh Man Overpowers Two Chinese With Fists Runs off With Machine-Gun

By JOHN STACKHOUSE

IN KOREA (Reuters)—A Welsh signalman told Friday how he overpowered two Chinese in a slit trench during a fierce attack and with their machine-gun while his comrades fought off the attackers.

Lance-Corporation Harry Wellington's Regiment was battered by a swarm of Chinese.

Wellington identified only by his nickname, "Happy Roby," said, at the height of the trench fighting one night when the Wellingtons were forced back by the Communists, he jumped into the trench and found two Chinese awaiting him. One told him in English to "come with us" but the Welshman struck out with his fists, grabbed their machine-gun and ran.

His was only one of a series of incidents in the fierce fighting that badly outnumbered, held out all night and finally drove the enemy back.

One platoon commander, Lieut. E. T. H. Dasent of London, said the attack came suddenly. "We got a 10-minute (barrage) from Chinese artillery and then lobbed the Chinese were all over us."

The regiment, serving with the Commonwealth Division, was attacked at a point identified as "the Hook"—scene of heavy fighting in the Kowang valley.

A machine-gunner, trapped in his post with only enough room to fire out of a narrow slit, kept firing with own and all night—long after his companions had retreated down the hill. When he was rescued in the morning, he said simply: "I knew you would come and get me."

The attack was finally broken by allied artillery. The British troops had counter-attacked and driven the Chinese back.

Mishaps, Humorous and Otherwise Have Marked Coronations in Past

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Very modest air at high levels swept from Ontario Friday and the said-west. As a result, the trials was expected to be confined to Northern Ontario spread into southern regions. Clearing skies and much warmer air will edge into northwestern Ontario today. However the leading edge of the warm air is expected to stall. Some rain is expected to persist today in eastern and central regions with only slow clearing on Sunday.

There had been a strike among workmen at Westminster Hall so that places weren't properly attended. A fight went on for precedence between the Duke of Norfolk and the king or queen.

Then, hooded, the horse of the lord high steward backed into the hall to cheers from the guests. Unfortunately, couldn't reach the tables and women in the gallery who had insisted their hats should pull up a chicken or bottle of wine. The red-faced deputy earl marshal insisted that the rest of the coronation would be better received if the horse remained there instead of being angry, got a bang out the top of its head.

At early coronations, in the ninth century, the king was carried to church, the bearers expressing their loyalty by tossing him at intervals.

Ealdwy left his banquet guests and the embarrassment in the smooch in an inner chamber with a young widow. The crown had been lodged in a corner. Ealdwig was ferreted out and dragged back to his guests.

Coronation Sidelights

LONDON (AP)—The Daily Mirror and Daily Sketch, rival London tabloids, have been using gold ink for their titles these days. Now the Daily Mail says anyone who wants it can have the entire Mail printed in gold June 2. The price will be 18 pence compared to 3½ pence for the same paper in black ink.

Passengers and crew of a British Overseas Airways plane will toast the Queen at noon on Coronation Day. When the Sovereign's well-wishers raise their glasses, the plane, returning from Frankfurt to Rome, will be 19,000 feet over the Alps.

The British Communist party's mouthpiece, Daily Worker, said tartly of Britain's monarchy: "Stuff the kids full of tea cream until they are like to burst, swallow the Queen's health barrel runs dry, yawn through the television presentation of the ceremony in the Abbey, but do not delude yourself that the monarchy is a safeguard of freedom, in Britain or anywhere else."

Beyond the gorgeous scenes in which she is the central figure, the Queen won't see much of the Coronation procedure as a whole until Friday night. Then she will see it all on color film at a private presentation in Clarence House where the Royal Family has a tiny private cinema.

Britain's nationalized railways have booked the Queen into a new train called "The Elizabethan" to run from Euston to Edinburgh non-stop for the 393 miles. The train will make its first run June 29.

Two bells which pealed out over London in the reign of Queen Elizabeth I will be heard again ringing from Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day.

The bells, dating from 1583 and 1586, will ring alternately for five minutes before the Queen is driven out during the regalia procession.

It is recorded in a 16th century document that these bells were rung "in commemoration of Queen Elizabeth's coming to the Crown."

The only persons to see the Coronation procession on colored television will be 100 youngster at a London children's hospital.

Two special cameras will be set up in the grandstand opposite the scene by direct cable to special screens set up in the hospital.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

I Need Thee Every Hour

I need Thee every hour,
Most gracious Lord;
No tender voice like Thine
Can peace afford.

I need Thee every hour,
Stay Thou near by;
Temptations lose their power
When Thou art nigh.

I need Thee every hour,
In joy or pain;
Come quickly and abide,
Or life is vain.

I need Thee every hour,
Teach me Thy will;
And Thy rich promises
In me fulfill.

I need Thee every hour,
Most Holy One;
O make me Thine indeed,
Thou blessed Son!

I need Thee every hour
I need Thee, O I need Thee;
Every hour I need Thee;
O bless me now, my Savior,
I come to Thee!

When the Rev. Robert Lowry, Baptist minister and composer, was serving one of his first pastorates in Brooklyn, N.Y., he discovered that one of his parishioners, Mrs. Annie Sherwood Hawks, had unusual musical ability. He helped her with her writings and encouraged her to use her talents for the church.

Years later, in a distant city where he was preaching and teaching in Plymouth Church, he set one day to receive in manuscript form from Mrs. Hawks the verses of "I Need Thee Every Hour." She had sent them in the hope that her former minister would set them to music. Of course, he did so and when the poem and tune were introduced to the public they became universally popular.

Mrs. Hawks' verses were sung for the first time at a national Sunday School convention held in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1872. Not long afterward it was published and was given general circulation. Two years later, it was echoing through evangelistic services in two continents and it is as popular today as ever.

Origin of Several Hastings County Names Closely Associated With British History

By Lavonia Stockelbach

The Name of Sidney

Of all the fortunate names given few paragraphs from Philip's letter to the townships of Hastings, that of Sidney is one of the most striking. There was a hero of the American Revolutionary War, Lord Sidney, who was Secretary of the Colonies to George III. An old map in the Crown Lands Department shows "Sidney" as being the district then called Mecklenburg and was surveyed in 1787 by Louis Kotte, when the first settlers were coming in.

It was a noble English family, of French ancestry, that has given us a number of great names. One of the most noted of them was Algernon Sidney, the outstanding figure was Sir Philip (1554-1586) with only one piece extantly spend a little time, and feel grateful that our township is a constant reminder of him, for no one represents his age more beautifully than he. His chivalry, his thirst for adventure, his tenderness, his love of England, enabled to make him a man of his time. . .

His father Henry had been brought up at the Court of Henry VIII as the companion of the lifefated son, Edward. During the reign of Elizabeth he was noted for his activities in Ireland to pacify the ever quarrelsome and turbulent earls and the disorders of that distressful island. He met with the usual success. None.

Renowned Family

He married Mary of the North umberland family and there were three sons and four daughters, one of them named Mary, who was renown not only for her own qualities but for her association with her beloved brother Philip, who was seven years her senior. It was to her he addressed most of his "Arcadia" and with her he wrote paraphrases of the Psalms. Of this book Sir Philip's great friendship more later.

"It brings to mind a similar association spoken of in these colonies, that of Herschel and his sister, but in that case, astronomy instead of poetry.

This Sidney family seems to have been warm and tender-hearted. How could it be otherwise with such parents, who are reverenced to us in their letters. In one from his father then in Ireland he was admonished: Above all things tell me untruth . . . not a trifles. . . " At the end of this letter his mother added a postscript: "Have always before the eyes of your mind, these excellent counsels of my lord, your dear father. Farewell, my little Philip and once more, my dear lord bless you. Your loving mother, Mary Sidney."

It was one of the many letter-writing families of England.

Examples From Letters

While we are on that subject a few examples from Philip's letter to his younger brother, Robert, on traveling. Philip was then twenty-five, had made the grand tour of Europe, a four lasting three years, and so ought to know something about it. "I know the only experience I have gotten, is to find out how much I might have learned, and how much, indeed, I have missed, for want of directing my course to the right end and by the right means. . . If you should travel but to travel, or to say you had travelled certainly you should have a pilgrimage's no purpose. . .

"Your purpose, being a gentleman—born, to furnish yourself with that, without you know it is very serviceable for your own country. . . Homer did not mean only "manners" by Ulysses, or get off one's cap with a new-found grace, although true behavior is not to be despised; my heresy is that the English behaviour is best of all. Italian is full of brags, French of apishness, Spanish of pride, but the right informing your mind, with those things that are most notable in those places will stay with you. . .

"For hard sure it is to know anything without you know it by comparing it with the rest of other country. . . "Look to your diet, sweet Robin, and hold up your heart in courage and virtue. Be careful of yourself so I shall never have cares. . . Lord, I have babbled! Once again farewell, dearest brother. Your most loving and careful brother, Philip."

In another letter referring to his father, he says, "They are but passions in my father, which we must bear with reverence."

At eighteen years of age, as was usual amongst the nobility, he went through the mill the tour of Europe. In person, he was tall and handsome, with manly and graceful carriage; hair and complexion very fair; countenance soft and pensive as a woman's full of intelligence and thoughtfulness.

Introduced By The Queen

At twenty-one Englishman was introduced by the twenty-two-year-old King Charles IX. to scenes of dazzling and bewildering splendor at the king's mother Catherine d'Medici's court, where one sin and object in life was power, and who reigned over it. There were feasts, banquets at the Louvre, processions, tournaments where they showed off their horsemanship and skill with weapons. And he met not only princes of the realm but the leaders of the Protestants, or Huguenots as they were called in France.

It was a gala time. There were great preparations for the marriage of the Catholic king's sister to the Protestant King of Navarre. They were all in the first flush of youth. The royal bride and bridegroom were children. The Huguenots had been told if they would but go to the wedding safety would be guaranteed. It was not hard for them to believe that guarantee for was not Navarre a Protestant and brought up by a Protestant mother. So all was a gorgeous pageant and when Catherine d'Medici gave a party it was quite a party. Kings and princes gathered in large numbers, but evil also was stirring.

Bells Heralded Massacre

Within a week of the wedding, on a Sunday in the late August, our Sidney was awakened at daybreak by the sound of funeral bells. It was the herald of the massacre of the Protestants. Catherine thought it was a fine opportunity to get rid of all the leaders of the Reformers. For religion she cared not a whit, but they were interfering with her political power. The chief assassin Sidney's parents had met before being wounded in an attempted assassination. Now was taken while his bed and thrown out of the window to his death. Incidentally our present Queen of Holland is descended from that admiral.

Sidney was able to take refuge in the English embassy from the windows of which he witnessed the horrors. Between 7 and 8 o'clock bridegroom King of Navarre decided it was time to submit and renounce Protestantism and so escaped with his life though he did not escape his wife. Her Church of Rome until twenty years later. He and his bride, the clever Marguerite, lived the vicious immoral lives of those days in France until Pope Sixtus V granted the husband a divorce and he soon married again.He is known to French history as Henry the Great.

Sidney's parents had not been particularly zealous for the Reformed religion, but after the shock of this massacre, Protestantism became the absorbing interest of their lives.

Visited Many Places

Our Sidney left Paris quickly, visiting many places, meeting many people and of those years we have delightful accounts in his letters, especially when he confesses to his brother, "I have written this letter half asleep." And we also have the accounts of the people he met.

After three years he returned to England and sought ways of serving his country.For a while he was unsuccessful but while waiting he wrote much. He lived for the most part at the family home of Penshurst. We can still see that vast mansion, set in the prettiest part of the in-country of Kent, the majesty and charm of its gray stone walls, the baronial hall, the stone stairway, the beautiful paintings and sculpture. The home of the Sidney family is one of the most stately places in England.

Two years after his return his favorite sister Mary married Henry Pembroke and with her he lived at Wilton, built in 1530 at her home in Wilton or ivy church. He was then twenty-six and she nineteen. Here he began for her entertainment "Arcadia" but not for publication. In fact he asked her to burn the pages that he continued to write for her and left. She did not.

Translated The Psalms

It is a bit trying for us to read nowadays. It is not easy to swallow the excessive praise of ladies fair and their perfections as the Psalms which he and his sister translated. Sidney's parents had been particularly zealous for the Reformed religion, but after the shock of this massacre, Protestantism became the absorbing interest of their lives.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By
ROBERT E. WILSON

PARTIAL TO ELMS

About now, Mrs. Baltimore Oriole, is searching for a suitable locality in which to set up housekeeping. A big elm would be best—a tree with a long branch starting from high up and hanging down to end in a fork of twigs at least 15 feet from the ground. An ideal location would be beside a country road, or one running through some small town. A stream is essential, for within easy reach is essential, where plenty of caterpillars, beetles, ants, wasps, and later on grasshoppers will be had, and in this can be supplemented by a little fruit so much the better.

Above all, material with which to build a home must be accessible: plant fibres and down, bark, and possibly some milk weed stalks. One reason for preferring a spot not too far from human dwellings is so that hairs may be found, and better still, pieces of string and even bits of bright colored wool from somebody's darning bag, but a dark color will do.

First Mrs. Oriole attaches long fibres to the drooping twigs; then with her sharp, awl-like bill she weaves the strands into a hanging pocket. She seems to sew, as she pokes a strand against the side of the pocket, then reaches inside and tugs until the end is pulled through. Afterwards soft material is put in for a mattress. And while she is busy her husband does no work at all, but sings up his clear gaiety by singing.

The Baltimore Orioles have mellow, contralto whistles, and divide their song into a couple parts, each individual has his own particular song, sufficiently different from all others that a bird watcher with a good ear for music knows whether or not the same bird comes to his grounds each year.

Mrs. Oriole is not nearly as beautiful as her brilliantly orange and black mate—but that is just as well. She will draw no attention to her home as she flits back and forth in her dull looking, greyish-olive cloak flecked with pale yellow, and dull orange underparts. One need not fear these mother birds vary as much as do the fathers' songs.

The completed home is an extraordinary success. It weaves at the bough bends in every breeze, yet lasts even through winter storms—long after it has been deserted. This is not only a perfectly safe place away from any enemies, but also a cradle for the babies, so does not run the chance of one falling overboard.

Queen Radiant Young Hostess At Garden Party

By MURREL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The Queen was radiant young hostess Thursday to 7,000 guests from every continent attending an evening garden party on the lawns of Buckingham Palace.

Brilliant sunshine bathed the formal affair, one of the biggest social functions of the Queen's career and an impressive contribution to the quickening pace of Coronation events.

Thousands massed around the palace, struggling for glimpses of the guests. An incredible jam of cars moved under a cloud of blue buses, trucks, taxis and private exhaust fumes.

The Queen, accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, mingled with her guests who included soldiers, prime ministers, ambassadors and high commissioners.

The Queen, dainty and graceful and a picture of young vivacity, wore a dress of cyclamen silk patterned in black with a perky children hat of the same blue-red, shade and a blue mink cape.

A Swirl of Colors

The grounds at the Palace became a swirl of color as the party began. Uniforms and jewelled sash, exotic colors, turbans and burnooses moved through the crowd.

Many Britons carried colored umbrellas while one African potentate, in a red and purple robe, strolled sedately under a huge gold and purple parasol held aloft by a muscular attendant.

Many languages were spoken but the gist of the remarks made was: "Isn't she sweet."

A few, including some of the many Canadians there, met the Queen. Most in the gathering jockeyed politely to get a glimpse of the Royal Family in their special tent.

STRANGE CASE OF SENATOR TAFT

The strange case of Senator Robert Taft must present something of an enigma to other men we can place on the map of world statesmanship.

The senator is undoubtedly the single man in the United States best-equipped to reconcile the imponderables and the compromises which arise out of politics. He is the son of a president and he has devoted a lifetime to politics. He knows the rewards and the reverses that go hand-in-hand with this career. Those who have had occasion to know the man well, acknowledge that only a few of his contemporaries rival him at the bar. In the senate his outstanding talents have established him as "Mr. Republican."

Yet we see the unusual contrast of a newcomer in the ranks of politics revealing a much greater breadth of political vision. Until about a year ago Dwight D. Eisenhower was almost a stranger to political matters. Indeed, in this career as a lifetime soldier he was divorced from those political problems which have made Senator Taft to appear as the political novice which we now be is not, or, at best, the demagogue which we hesitate to believe he ever was, or ever will be.

The senator's isolationist thinking is of long standing but it is somehow incomprehensible to hear him espousing the abandonment of the United Nations by his country at a time when it is facing one of the most critical moments in its new role of world leadership. It will be gratifying to the rest of the western nations and to the members of the UN to know that President Eisenhower has wholly rejected this suggestion.

This is the sharpest of several differences of opinion he presented has had with his party leader in the senate, but on the face of it, it was an inevitable breach. While it is true that the Taft proposal had to do only with a course of action to be suggested in the approaching cold war with Russian forces, it was equally obvious that the adoption of such a step would be merely the first of others.

In repudiating his colleague the president acknowledged that there are "irritations" and "frustration." But in statesmanlike words he added:

"We have to have friends. Those friends must be tied to you by respect and honor. We have to have that unity on basic purposes which comes from a recognition of common interests." This quotation was authorized by him as something which is not unusually clear. He amplified the statement by assuring newspapermen that he would not be turned aside by anyone's frustration and resentment in his efforts to lead the nation along the path he has charted.

It is an unfortunate position in which the President finds himself. Senator Taft is much more influential man in the Republican party than, for instance, Nye Bevan was in the British Labor party when it was in power. But the parallel is an interesting one in showing the unique distinctions between the processes of executive government under the American and British systems.

In Britain, or in Canada, such an issue as this would be threshed out in the party caucus. There it would be decided whether the leader had the support of the majority. But whatever the issue might be it would be settled in caucus before it had been permitted to become an embarrassing public controversy. If it were an issue before Parliament the life of the government of the day would be at stake on the vote of the majority in Parliament. But in the U.S. a president can be harassed and thwarted by dissident elements in his own party throughout a full term of four years in office. If he is without sufficient friends in Congress he is helpless to put his policies into effect.

OBSTINACY WILL BE HARMFUL

It is certainly understandable that the people of the South Korean republic feel they have a right to insist on recognition in any truce plan upon which UN officials and the Chinese Reds may finally agree.

After all, the survival of a free Korean republic was the sole issue which brought about UN participation in the war. It would be absurd to expect the South Koreans to consent under any settlement which does not satisfy them that their national security will be guaranteed.

There is no doubt that the officials of the truce teams on both sides will be aware of this, but any settlement will be an impossibility if President Syngman Rhee becomes completely intractable in his present obstinacy. It may be, however, that that appears to be the attitude he adopted this week.

His threat that the South Koreans will keep on fighting if a secret Allied truce is approved adds another knot in the tangled skein of complications. A truce does not mean the end of war, it is merely a cessation of hostilities during which peace treaties can be negotiated. But it is a prerequisite step toward peace. How uncompromising obstinacy on President Rhee's part will serve the ultimate good interests of the South Koreans is difficult to see.

NEWSPAPER NAMES

Names of newspapers in Canada conform to a general class—such as Journal, Free Press, Post, Sun, Globe, Star, Gleaner, Banner, Sentinel, Herald, Telegram. We have not been unduly original in naming our periodicals.

In marked contrast is a newspaper received last week from Bloemfontein, South Africa. The name of that paper is The Friend.—Fort William Times-Journal.

MARRIED THIS MORNING

By GREGORY CLARK

A neighbor of mine who has the misfortune to live on the Canadian border in the district quite regularly goes down to the fishing tackle store and buys a box of 50 and sometimes 100 fishworms. But he never goes fishing. He just liberates the worms on his lawns, on a fine moist evening, and leaves them to eat the perennial borders.

Though he is a tireless and gifted gardener, up at six a.m. every day to enjoy his flowers and to do a little tug of work each morning with hoe or spraygun, and although he feeds his earth with chemicals, bone meal and wood ashes like an apothecary, he gives the fishworms credit for doing more for his garden than he does.

"When I wrote a boy," he says, "I read Charles Darwin's book on earthworms in which Darwin figured that the surface of the earth is being continually passed through the bodies of earthworms and how they have overturned it since Cambrian times. Not only do they overturn it, they penetrate it, aerate it, fill it fuller of holes than a' sponge. Their casts on the top of the ground are the richest form of earth manure that can be conceived. Later, brickdust of all plant food to apply on a garden, is provided in just the right quantity and degree by the worms. I would say the first thing to plant in any garden is a good crop of fishworms."

He is not so bigoted, however that he won't spare a few fishworms to bait a garden for any of his neighbors going fishing. On one condition. That they save the fish bones of all the fish they catch, bash the cooked bones and any of the raw ones they extract while cleaning or filleting the fish, and bury them in trenches with great care, deep down around the roots of his roses and other shrubbery. For he says there is nothing to beat fish bones as a source of fertilizer for patient, slow-thinking creatures like roses and azaleas.

"If it weren't for fishworms," he says, "I would have to go to a lot of trouble to get fish bones for catching fish. Thanks to anglers, I've got both ready-made."

Letter to the Editor

Believes Proposed Dam Would Cause Floods

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I have space in your valuable paper to register a protest regarding the construction of a dam in the Moira River at Belleville Street. I understand the purpose of the dam is to prevent floods.

If I may say judge this would be a worse way to create a flood. A dam there would build a large field of water which in turn would create a large field of ice, and we all know it takes ice to make a flood. All we need to do is to remember back in the times when we had several dams known as Cooper's dam, Lott's dam, and Zwick's dam. Since the departure of the last of these, which was Lester's dam in 1936, we have been absolutely free of floods. Previous to that time we had a flood, more or less, every year. I think I am in a good position to know, as I have lived all the intervening time from forty years.

If you ask me it's bridges we need in Belleville and not dams. A bridge connecting east and west Dundas Street, which probably wouldn't cost any more than a dam, and would be familiar a long-felt need, as it would bypass much of the heavy traffic which now has to travel the terrible noise in the heart of the city.

Something else to think about would be the damage claims for flooded basements. Apart from this end, but from flooded lands north of the dam.

Don't you think our past experience with dams should be our guide for future action? The cost of floods over a period of seventeen years is a matter of fact.

Trusting this letter will have some bearing on this issue for the best.

Dancing Scots Are Worried

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

Ballet dancing has taken phenomenal strides—or should it be leaps!—in popularity in Canada since the end of the Second World War. There was a time not long ago when ballet dancing in this form was known only in some of the large centres and then only to a few. It has become evident everywhere, and large groups of young ladies are interested in learning the gracefully and accurately the various steps and movements which are the technique.

In fact, the advance of ballet in Nova Scotia has been so remarkable that it has the Associated Scottish Societies somewhat perturbed. Dr. D. L. MacDonald of Dartmouth, president of the Societies, says that the survival of Highland dancing is threatened by the rise of ballet. He says that by the expense of obtaining full-dress Highland costumes, accordingly the societies have approved a proposal that Highland dancers will be permitted to compete in white blouse, tartan skirt, white socks and black ballet slippers.

Everyone, whether of Scottish descent or not, will hope that Nova Scotia's anxiety proves to be ill-founded. The rise of ballet means that the northeastern mainland area of that province and Cape Breton Island will have to keep alive the traditional Scottish dancing which has for years been such ardent exponents, rivalling even Scottish Highland areas in the enthusiasm of the people in their heritage.

It is difficult to imagine Highland Games and other Scottish gatherings in the Maritimes unless accompanied by authentically costumed dancers performing to the accompaniment of the pipes, the colorful and nimble steps of their ancestors. Even from Scotia in the past have come many famed Scottish dancers, several of whom have won acclaim around the world. And in addition to the cultural significance to the province, Highland dancing has attracted many tourists to this part of the country.

Surely there is room for both types, ballet and Scottish, dancing, so different in character and yet each with special appeal, to develop without either detracting from the other.

Bad Eggs

Frozen eggs claimed to be unfit for human consumption have been seized in Toronto. There are said to be a lot of other bad eggs in the floor on "unpleasant experiences" in the winter," served his wife breakfast in bed for 30 years, was kicked by her while she was bending over to pick up a needle, and her smash her glass when he put his false teeth in it. Gangsters And Guns

(Windsor Star)

Several decades back, when Detroit was gang-ridden, the explanation for the comparative calm in Windsor and Canada generally was easily found. The case with which Detroiters could obtain and carry guns, meaning the underworld arms race with the thugs, was considered the chief contributing factor.

When several Detroit hoodlums came to Windsor, and drew three year penitentiary terms for carrying concealed weapons, Canada was considered a far "hot" territory, a good place to avoid.

This is something to keep in mind, now that an R.C.M.P. report tells of a sharp increase of gangsterism in this country. Fugitives from the United States would make a place in this organized crime.

Criminal terms, our police and courts have the answer to this gang invasion. But a starting point in this offensive could be a tightening up of restrictions on guns. Along with more drastic penalties for those who carry them illegally.

Canada is not so strict in this respect as some, and that fact locally is the hoodlum's opportunity.

When too many revolvers and weapons are easily lying around, they can be obtained by the criminal with no qualms. But if the carrying of concealed weapons involves a long stay, the first, the danger that those weapons will get into the wrong hands is lessened.

Penitentiary terms for possession of firearms would have a chilling effect on gangsters looking for a place to hide from current American anti-crime drive. A deterrent just as effective before often get results again.

New Canadian Gave His Life

(Midland Free Press Herald)

Sometimes there are those among us who criticize Canada for opening up its borders to people from Europe who have had to flee their land in a free land. We imply they are taking jobs that's new jobs are being endangering our livelihood. On a recent Sunday's log of French Canadian parentage fell from a punt in Midland Bay. The young man who fell from him plunged a new Canadian from Czechoslovakia, who had fled from this country from communistic persecution, leaving behind his wife for the time being, a wife and 13-year-old daughter. The 23-year-old Midland youngster was saved. The Czech man brought

A stranger appeared on the streets of London with a pair of bills. His motives are still a mystery, but police say he was "acting suspiciously." One young man is known to have accepted the bills from the stranger's suspicious behavior. The young man's resourceful action was to think of something—something profferred by anybody—let alone an utterly new known nothing about —is pretty good practice. And carrying out orders which duly constituted authority isn't watching hints at character considerably above the par.

He missed this $100, to be sure, but we'd venture a guess he'll lose many $100 predictably and that he'll earn a good many hundred to speak of some rewards without price.

CARE OF THICKENED TOE NAILS

DR. BRADY

Sometimes the toe nails, especially the great toe nail, become unusually thick and hard that trimming is difficult or impossible with the ordinary scissors or nail clippers.

Only agent that will soften the hardened, thickened nail is Lig. Potassium Hydroxicum U.S.P., but this is powerful stuff and should be applied to the nail only by moistening a bit of cotton on a toothpick and carefully mopping the nail only twice a day for two or three days.

The most satisfactory way to deal with toe nails that cannot be trimmed with ordinary implements is to leave the job to a chiropodist. Perhaps with toe clippers the chiropodist can trim nails that defy ordinary files or scissors.

Here is one kindly sent me some little blocks of light but sharp pumice called lavastone. This is excellent for removing corns and calluses and for ragging thickened nails to make them thin enough to trim with ordinary nail scissors.

Lavastone, I find, is most effective when used after soaking the feet or nails in hot water for several minutes.

A well equipped chiropodist uses an electric burr with precision to thin down thickened nails to a manageable state.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GOD'S PRESENCE

Why is it that some people doubt the existence of God in the world? Especially so when He is so near? been through the jungles and seen His handiwork. I look out of my window, and admire the work of God in every everywhere. The new, fresh foliage of this Springtime, the early flowers, the greening grass. Could a doubter of God's existence make any of these beautiful and colorful tulips outside my window? Why do these flowers look so bright?

I can understand why it is that naturalists spend so much time of their lives in the open, forever searching for the secrets of life, trying to get at their meanings. Why are the birds apparently so very happy? Why do they sing bitter hardships at times. They are self-dependent, and make no complaints. The way some of these birds sing, it is easy to imagine that there is a sense of love in their tiny hearts for the God who gives takes note of the sparrow's fall.

People who make a guest of God, and invite Him into their homes, find that a Presence is there when they go on a vacation, take a long journey, have difficulties, or when they see a sorrow thrust upon them, because He is where they are. Him are the mountains in their hearts.

Nature is very much the lord over all other living creatures in that he is endowed with a consciousness of God. Had it not been for God he would not have been here. It is that we worship Him in spirit and in truth. Through Jesus Christ He taught us the greatest thing in the world, and that every person is our neighbor. He judged Spiritual sight to the blind, and told people to have faith in God. Life is made a happy, useful life!

We look out over the world, and see the wonderful workings of nature. The very soil is a chemical laboratory. The trees are a living wonder because God rules it. We are closer to Him when we pray because then we are talking to Him!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL DOUGLASS

ON THE ROCK

On a recent Sunday in Florida, I sat in a beautiful building which had formerly housed a bank. For some reason the directors of the bank had had the artistry to accept for the building a design which was almost identical with a famous Illian church. Then came the hard days of 1929, and some time after Florida "busts" and the closing of that bank. The building was auctioned off, and a little congregation of Christians of modest means took it over and paid a big mortgage on it. They tore out the counters, and washed out the seats, and today the sanctuary is an artistic gem. The church has fallen into God's pleas ures realistically on to a divine consummation. The business of his poor bank had been built on the foundation of human fever had inflamed its politics. The inhabitants were of the world in every particular. The bank closed, and the church took over.

Empires fail, but the Church continues to exist. "On this rock will I build my Church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Jesus Christ often smile good naturedly over the Church—"A nice lot of well-intentioned people they are!" "The Church is needful to supply the human weakness of its members."

But the truly wise know the nature of the Church. It survives when all else perishes.

Auxiliary Opportunity Shop Helpful to Organization

"We will try to sell anything we can find," remarked Mrs. G. F. Dunlop, president of the RCAF Women's Auxiliary when the doors of the Opportunity Shop at 42 King Street were opened to the public three years ago.

Mrs. Dunlop's statement appeared amply described past, present and future operations of the shop.

At 9 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, April 22, 1950, a group of volunteer workers welcomed their first customer. Throughout that day dozens of buyers made purchases from a wide variety of merchandise ranging from baked goods to wearing apparel. The sales amounted to $211.75—a figure which has not been topped since the opening day.

By adding old clothing, toys, furniture, books, jewellery, glassware, china, linens, knick-knacks, baked goods, and say used item that comes into their possession through drives and donations from the citizens of Trenton, the Opportunity Shop has added many worthwhile causes. Many useful items may be purchased in the store at bargain prices and at great saving to the purchasers.

The shop was one step in an effort to raise funds to furnish the nursery of the Trenton Memorial Hospital opened in February, 1950. One half of the original cost of outfitting the nursery was raised through the efforts of the shop's staff under Mrs. P. G. McLaren. In less than one year $2,300 was contributed to the hospital account and by the end of October, 1951, $5,300 more had been raised to swell the account to a total of $8,000.

Give to Flood Relief

In May 1950, the proceeds of one week's sales in the "Opp Shop", as it is commonly referred to by members of the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary, went to the Winnipeg Flood Relief victims. European Flood Relief victims, the station hospital, Christmas baskets, Easter and TB Seals, rainbow canes, and the Middleton Park playgrounds have all benefited as a result of the shop.

Today, volunteer workers still serve behind counters filled with used articles of clothing, toys, books and interesting items for curiosity seekers. Friendly faces with warm smiles greet an average of 175 customers per week. Some buyers return again and again seeking bargains. The friendly staff is always there ready to serve and willing to assist in the smallest purchase which might be merely a penny for an old book.

The work of sorting out donations of clothing and odd items is a difficult one. During a drive for merchandise to replenish a dwindling stock, auxiliary members gather together in the back room of the shop sorting, piling, tagging, and moving their wares out to the front room for sale. It is a tedious chore with only sore feet and an aching back for reward, but behind all the weariness lies the thought that their work is not in vain for when the profits are accounted for there will be money for some worthwhile cause.

Majority of the helpers work one afternoon every other week. Mrs. H. L. Harris, manageress spends a great deal of time running back and forth to the shop from her home at 48 Hewson Boulevard. She is responsible for running the shop in a business-like manner. Assisting her is a competent staff of volunteer clerks plus Mrs. V. L. Berg, volunteer convenor; Mrs. L. Schaul, treasurer, and Mrs. H. Hollis, bedding.

Major Source of Revenue

Although the shop does not make the profits it did following its opening, it is still considered to be a major source of revenue for Auxiliary welfare work. The expenses of running it are great, but with generous contributions and an enthusiastic RCAF Women's Auxiliary it continues to function as a successful project. Because Auxiliary members are busy, volunteer workers are still continue to be greater than ever, phone, heat, advertising, electricity and insurance bills. Girl Guides Awarded Badges

Fifteen badges were awarded to RCAF Trenton Girl Guides, recently, at their regular weekly meeting.

Also plans were laid for participation in the beacon fire ceremony in Trenton, on Coronation day, June 2. The Scarlet Tanger patrol, under patrol leader Jo-Anne Harris, is the emergency hunt which highlighted the meeting.

Badges were awarded to the following: Margaret Although, Kay Hickman, Sadie Gunning, Pat ham, Ann Collins and Betty Hickman; cooking badge; Shirley Brown, toy makers' badge; Gail Dolan, swimmer badge; Andra Rose, Religion and Life badge; Andra Rose, Gail Dolan, Margaret Although, Marion Hudson and Jo-Anne Harris, child health badge; Betty Sharp, laundress and Betty Sharp, laundress badge.

Sewage By-Law Turned Down

TRENTON (Special) — A decided disinterest in Trenton sewage problems was shown by ratepayers Thursday as one of the smallest votes on record voted a by-law calling for the expenditure of $500,000 to install a sewage treatment plant and a part of the system. The vote cast was 84 per cent of the eligible electorate. A total of 296 landowners went to the polls.

That the town's present septic tank disposal system is inadequate and a menace to health was explained by Dr. A. E. Berry, of the Ontario Department of Health at a meeting in the town hall Tuesday night. The lack of interest by the ratepayers then reflected in the voting Thursday.

However there is a feeling among the town fathers that while the majority of the ratepayers voting yesterday seem satisfied to live with the filth of improper sewage facilities a leader should take the issue in hand and force the expenditure.

Poll	For	Against	Total
1	22	18	40
2	16	18	34
3	15	24	39

Growing Strength of Sea Power Will be Shown Queen in Review

TORONTO (CP)—When the Queen sails through the long lines of upwards of 90 ships assembled for the Coronation naval review she will see a vastly different concept of seapower to that reviewed by her father, George VI, on the occasion of his coronation in 1937.

Of particular significance, and well in line with the most modern practice, is the growing strength of Commonwealth seapower, says the Navy League of Canada.

Canada's powerful squadron of six ships includes the light fleet carrier HMCS Magnificent, two heavy cruisers, Ontario and Quebec, the fleet class destroyer Sioux and two frigates, La Hulloise and Swansea. Except for the carrier, completed later, all are proud battle-tested veterans of the Second World War.

One Capital Ship

A striking feature of the 1937 review was the 11 great capital ships, not one of which is now afloat. The Queen, accompanied by her sailor husband in his uniform of an admiral of the fleet, in the forthcoming review will see just one capital ship, the mighty HMS Vanguard, but in the other classes of ships on display the new vision of seapower will be predominantly that of air-craft carriers, double the number shown in '37 and all modern craft which were not then in existence. Eight of these will be fast-type of the Royal Navy, including HMS Eagle, the most modern ship of her type in the world, and the squadrons of naval aviation on display will include jet attackers along with new types not yet in general service.

The Navy cruiser strength now is at the lowest ebb in this century's history. Only 12 ships of this class will be on display from the Royal Navy and of these a substantial proportion are the "daring," former super-destroyer class now considered to be the light cruiser category, he presence of 2 heavy cruisers from Canada will be a heartening sight to most observers who believe in the effectiveness of the heavy, long-range cruiser equipped with aircraft.

Characteristic of the concept of anti-submarine warfare in modern seapower is the new and greatly enlarged frigate class of ships, a wartime development now carrying out the former anti-submarine duties of destroyers. Forty of these ships will be present at the review and in this class Canada, like the Royal Navy, is well supplied.

In addition, in the current naval building program, 14 of the most modern and powerful ships of this type in the world are now under construction in Canadian yards. Another significant development of modern times is shown in the greatly increased number of minesweepers which will be present.

Modern Subs

New submarines, embodying the lessons of the Second World War and post-war developments, will be on display, 30 being shown in contrast with 22 at the '37 review.

In coastal patrol craft the Royal Navy now is reaping the benefits of well-directed research and experiment. Both gas turbine and diesel engines come in this category and the diesel development, as exemplified by the 2,500 hp. Deltic engine now under sea trials is phenomenal. By improved design and building methods the ship builders are claimed to have produced a diesel with a specific weight lower than 5 lb. per shaft horsepower, which compares with more than 80 lb. per shaft horsepower in a standard commercial diesel of similar power. In this class of ship Canada, with her long coastline to patrol, has a particular interest.

While Her Majesty's modern ships may not present the spectacle of impressive might conveyed by the battleships of yesterday her seapower, in terms of today's requirements will be to meet and withstand the type of attack which the experience of two world wars and present-day naval tactics have taught is most likely to be encountered in the forseeable future. In most classes design, construction and armament compare favorably with anything afloat and in carrier and one or two other classes the fighting ships of the British Commonwealth are pre-eminent.

Starts Sentence

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Cecil Smith, former king of local bootleggers who has been prominent in court and police commission hearings since he was convicted on a liquor charge March 16, Friday started a two-month sentence in county jail.

Smith, being convicted and sentenced by magistrate A. W. Mc-Millan, then was a police commission to charge he had been the victim of "a police shakedown."

He said he had paid constable Gilbert Robitaille $700 on various occasions to keep from being convicted on liquor counts. His statement led to the laying of four charges against Robitaille. The police officer was later cleared and promoted to sergeant.

Appeal against the conviction for keeping liquor for sale was dismissed Friday by Judge J. A. Legris.

Fashion Flashes

Cool, comfortable and smart is a sleeveless sheath of blue cotton, made with a deep V neckline marked by tucking. A blue and white cotton sash drapes the midriff and flows at the side in enormous panels.

Dancing nights find cotton the favorite, especially with pretty youngsters. Mauve pink, muted by green, in a pretty paisley print on white waffle piqué, is used for a strapless dance dress with wide, flaring skirt. A detachable fichu of the fabric, piped in mauve pink, ruffles over the dress to a strapless yoke.

Not a lemon is lemon yellow, but a huge success in both sports and dress wear. Lemon yellow tissue-weight taffeta is used for a pretty rain or dress coat cut on straight-yet easy lines, with big self bows at the shoulder.

* * *

Just the thing for smart wear in town is the silk suit. A good model is a cropped box suit in heavy Italian raw silk. The jacket has buttoned tabs placed just below the very deep armholes, and a cardigan neckline at which the buttoned closing suggests a flat front that contracts with the flattering sides. The skirt is slim.

Many Store Windows Display Delightful Coronation Pageantry

By A. HENDERSON

Little red, white and blue pennants, Union Jacks and Canadian Ensigns flutter in the breeze, high up over the streets, cross-wise, side to side, side to side, while the colored bunting, centred by a golden replica of the Queen bearing legend, "God Save Our Queen," hangs in graceful loops across the wide facade of the City Hall.

Belleville the beautiful, is "on" for the crowning of our most gracious majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, the lovely princess. Many are the whosoeuvres and charm have endeared her to the great Commonwealth of Nations.

To show their loyalty and homage, Belleville merchants of the city have transformed their windows into miniature art galleries, with the picture of the Royal Lady and her consort, H. R. H. Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, as the main embellishments of golden laurel leaves, or interspersed with other decorations have added accents of eye-catching charm.

Many Countries Represented

Among the many noticed, some were outstanding, as that of a window which displayed Her Majesty in coronation robes of white brocaded satin and Royal purple, bejewelled orb and sceptre of silver, with white fur, wearing the crown and full regalia of the Sovereign Lord of the Garter, surrounded by little dolls representing the various countries which will be represented at the Coronation.

Another Coronation window, a dark-haired senorita, in crocheted outfit of white and yellow; Japan, in native dress of white and blue with red sash; France, showing the Marie Louise costume in gold of trailing white satin with bustle bow; Belgium and peasant costume with apron and white satin bloused and matching head scarf; Holland, in the traditional maiden, also in native costume of red skirt with white embroidered yoke bodice jacket; China, in coolie costume of white and red satin trimmed with orange with coolie hat in matching orange.

Native Costumes

Spain was depicted as a dark-haired beauty in crinoline effect of red satin banded with rows of black lace, with black lace mantilla; Canada, in a pale green tinted skirt and bone eyelet blouse, with a strand of pearl beads; Ireland, with a lovely colleen in vivid green satin, with shamrock design in hair; the Hawaiian Islands' dusky beauty wore the swishing raffia skirt anklets and necklace.

The West Indies was represented by a mulatto girl Creole in red turban, red, white and blue dress in crinoline effect, carrying basket and wearing a necklace of huge, brass beads and earrings.

Poland, also in peasant costume with ballerina mauve skirt, white blouse matching mauve apron and head scarf.

Switzerland, in peasant costume with ballerina skirt, white blouse and matching mauve apron and head scarf.

Holland, in peasant costume with full skirt with printed blouse having full elbow length sleeves.

Wales, with her "Prince of the world over," The whole accented by land of the heather, was in Highland costume, complete with Margaret Rose tartan, blue velvet jacket with pearl buttons and matching tam with the proverbial shawl.

Work of Nursing Cadets

This display is the sole work of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Cadets whose ages range from seven to 18 years. All the costumes were designed by the Cadets.

Another window on the same street showed bands of red, white and blue bunting, with centre of focal point of interest, a dignified picture of the Queen, which had been framed by antique electric candles, and draped in folds of red, bordered with gold rope upon a carpet whose predominating colors were red and blue.

In another setting a picture of Her Majesty was featured by white fur, ermine velvet upon which were displayed little jewel boxes of the crown, the sceptre and the cross. Flanking this were the Union Jack, the Canadian Ensign, the flags of New Zealand, Australia and South Africa.

Another window display was the large window of a department store, which showed large portrait of the Queen in white satin embroidered in gold, with background by crimson and blue curtains falling to the white and gold ermine floor. At one side is the royal coach and greys, and a golden horn proclaiming the proclamation: "I shall always be ready to uphold constitutional government and to advance the happiness and prosperity of my peoples—and as they are the lord over." The whole accented by a beautiful spray of crimson roses.

Admiral of the Fleet

Another splendid Coronation window exhibited the picture of Her Majesty, in white gown and sash of the Order of the Garter, and beside her, the Duke of Edinburgh in the uniform of the Admiral of the Fleet. This is background by folds of royal blue bunting with rosettes of ermine. At one side is the Union Jack and at the other, the Canadian Ensign, on standards of golden spears. Below the panel is a crimson cushion is the beautifully jewelled replica of the crown, fashioned by a local jeweller in honor of this great occasion.

In another window, a flowing Union Jack waving toward a picture of Her Majesty tells to all and sundry that the smiling Princess Elizabeth has been chosen Queen of the vast Dominions beyond the seas, to whom all are happy to pay homage and pledge their loyalty among whom the city of Belleville is not the least.

Weddings

MURPHY—McGUINNESS

The Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, May 16, at 9:30 a.m., when Elizabeth Bernice McGuinness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McGuinness, Marysville, became the bride of Bernard Francis Murphy, Marysville, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Murphy. Rev. Michael Murphy, O.M.I., of Arnprior, uncle of the bridegroom, officiated and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Mr. Michael Whalen and Mr. Clarence McGuinness served the Mass.

Miss Jessie McAlpine provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of floor-length white Chantilly lace fashioned with tight-fitting bodice and long sleeves ending with points at the wrists and a satin inserted skirt falling into a short train. Her full-length veil was held in place by a scrol pearl headdress, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and fern.

Miss Helen McGuinness was maid of honor for her sister, while Mrs. Harold Murphy, also sister and Miss Teresa Murphy, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids, chose floor-length gowns having bouffant skirts of laces and jackets, with skirts of layers of over ruffled taffeta. Their floral headdresses were roses and lily-of-the-valley. The maid of honor was in mauve, and the bridesmaids in green. They carried nosegays centred with a sunbeam yellow rose, with pink, mauve and white, sweetpeas.

Miss Ruth Ann McGuinness, little niece of the bride, was there as girl flocked in a floor-length gown of yellow brocaded satin and she carried a basket of mixed sweetpeas with yellow ribbons.

Mr. Isidore Murphy, of Dundalk, was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were, Mr. Leon McGuinness, brother of the bride, and Mr. Harold Murphy, brother of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received in a gold ensemble wearing a navy suit with white and navy accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the reception, the happy couple, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, left by motor for North Bay, Ste. Anne de Besupre, and Lake Champlain. The bride travelling in a blege suit with mauve and brown accessories and a corsage of Sunbeam yellow roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will reside in Marysville, Ontario.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was given a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. George Cox, of R.R. 1, Belleville.

I Wonder

I wonder if they miss me
From the old home on the hill,
My summer friends, the orioles,
Who used my heart to thrill;
Do the robins sing gladsome greeting
As I answered in their call,
Flinging the silo spoke orchard
When the evening shadows fall?

And the bob-o-link so cheery,
Calling from the old plum-tree,
Telling me his nest is hidden
In the grass where none can see.

Does he listen for my answer
To his sweetly, bubbling song?
Does he wonder at my silence
When we have been friends so long?

And the robin and the blue-bird,
Do they miss the crumbs I threw
For their early morning breakfast
When the grass was wet with dew?

And the dainty chipping-sparrow,
As he hops about the door,
Does he say, "How it is lonely,
Will she ever come more?"

Ah! across the grassy meadow
Where the killdeer picks his way,
Does he listen for my coming
To the field at break of day?
And the pretty king-bird flighting
Like the starlings from his home,
Does he wonder why I linger
And why I no more come home?

Should I ever forget these dear ones,
And forsake my feathered friends,
Would they think me cold, ungrateful
For the gifts that Heaven sends?
Would they care if I should never Seek again the old home, where
We for years have been companions?
Now, I wonder, would they care?
—Helen B. Anderson.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Let your good manners speak for you.

Don't be a name dropper. Don't brag about knowing V.I.P.'s. Ralph Waldo Emerson says it perfectly: "You should not enumerate your brilliant acquaintances . . . I am to infer you keep good company by your good manners."

When she writes to her minister

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In writing to our minister (Presbyterian), what form of name should I use on the envelope? (He is not D.D.)

2. What form of salutation?

3. What form of ending?

4. What form for my name in the signature? (I'm married.)—Sarah W.

1. His name on the envelope: The Reverend Edwin Thompson.

2. Salutation: My dear Mr. Thompson (more formal): Dear Mr. Thompson (more informal).

3. Sincerely yours,

4. Direct signature: Sarah Smith Wells, or Sarah S. Wells, or Sarah Wells.

If necessary, write your formal name in parentheses under and to the left of your signature (Mrs. Henry Wells).

Telephone number on general-utility paper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to have some general utility letter-paper printed, according to the suggestions you gave in your column some time ago . . . with formal name and address (no abbreviations, as you also suggested), But I would also very much like to include our telephone number in the heading. Would this be correct?—Emilie B.

Yes . . . correct, and usually of special convenience.

Two girls, 9 and 11, as "junior bridesmaids"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As my bridal attendants I am planning to have a matron of honor, five bridesmaids, a ring bearer, and two girls, ages nine and eleven.

(1) We are inviting about 250 guests. Do you think this is too large a bridal party for this number of guests?

(2) What would these little girls be called as attendants?

(3) Where would they walk in the processional?—Suzzette

(1) No, not too large a bridal party. But of course it would be better, more balanced, to have an even number of bridesmaids.

(2) Girls of this "in-between age" . . . too old to be flower girls and too young to be bridesmaids are called "junior bridesmaids."

(3) The two girls would walk together in the processional after the ushers (who walk first, two by two), and before the bridesmaids.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

Will you please reprint Banana Bread?—Daily Reader.

Answer:

Banana Bread appeared May 23rd by request from Marian S. Hodgins . . . saw it. If not, again and enclose stamped envelope and I will mail it to you.

Question:

Please send me copy of your diet. I am 24 years old and I weigh 170 lbs. Please let me know a recipe for Salad Dressing also, what kind of bread is best to eat when on a diet. I have 2 children and I know I would feel better if I could lose some weight. —Mrs. C. Y.

Answer:

I am mailing you a calorie chart and a dressing which appeared Dec. 9th for weight-watchers. Please send stamped envelope when you want return mail.

Reducers' Dressing

(This recipe has not appeared on this page before.)

Beat 1 egg well and add to it 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon mustard, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper and rosemary, then stir in 1-3 cups water, 1-2 cup vinegar and 30 tablespoons salad oil. Stir over heat turned low until thick. Cool and store in covered jar. This herbs make this dressing interesting is the reducer. The sweetener has no calories.

I am working on another dressing and will send recipe. I hope to print it next week.

Mrs. C. Y. you should have 3 slices 100 per cent whole wheat bread without butter every day. There are reducers breads on the market too—but since you need whole wheat as a protective food the whole wheat bread serves a double purpose.

Question:

I noticed a few months back you had a recipe . . . for a face pack to clean pores . . . every spring my face looks terrible and I would like to give it some attention. If you have a recipe for hand cream I would be grateful. I have a large family and my hands always look like sandpaper and can't afford expensive creams. —Mrs. M. (See below.)

Question:

Would you be so kind as to send me your instructions for home-mixed hand lotion. My hands are so unsightly after housecleaning, the hand creams I buy don't seem to help one bit. —Mrs. L. G.

Answer: (To both letters above)

Hand lotions are not cheap to make, but the simplest and most effectual one I know that can be made at home is this: In double boiler melt together 3 oz. cocoa butter, 3 oz. oil of sweet almond, 3 oz. white beeswax. Stir all together until smoothly blended, then remove from heat and stir constantly until cold. Then add (if desired as a perfume) 1 dram each oil or lavender and oil of rosemary. Hand Lotion 2: One oz. white beeswax, 2 oz. borax, 1 oz. juice bitter almonds, 2 oz. thick oatmeal water. Blend together in top of double boiler; strain through cloth, shaking. These ingredients may be bought in your drug store.

These remarks are addressed to Mrs. M.: What I am going to say about skin care is working wonders for a girl who asked me the same question. Wash your face with mild soap and hot water 2 times per day. Drink 10 to 12 oz. glasses water per day. Eat at least 1 fresh fruit and one green salad, and one cooked per day. Eat whole wheat bread instead of white bread and do not eat candy or chocolate. Try this routine for two weeks and if it does not work in your case write to me again.

Breeding

Do you ever use lima beans? I'd like a recipe using them that isn't too much trouble. Most recipes call for things that I do not have here.—Marion H. B.

Answer:

Thanks for the recipe you enclosed. Thanks, too, for the recipes for Dandelion Wine, so am willing trying.

Lima Bean Casserole

Soak 1 lb. limas overnight. Boil gently in water to cover until tender. Gently fry 1-4 lb. salt pork cut fine. Add 2 small diced onion and 1-2 cup diced carrots, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper to the beans. Pour all into greased baking dish, having enough of the bean water to almost just below surface. Cover with the salt pork. Cover and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. until vegetables are tender and most of the water is evaporated.

Note: If desired use catsup or tomatoes and a little mustard may be added to this lima bean dish.

Fashion Flashes

A delight to look at and to wear is a box jacket suit of vanilla brown chiffon-light camel's hair. The jacket, with its classic collar and rounded, notched lapels, has two flapped pockets on either side and is lined in leopard-print silk —deep brown on light tawny background. Same silk is used for the wrap-around surplice blouse.

All the way from Eire is a lovely fashion collection that has met with huge success here, the clothes distinguished by fine, line, magnificent hand-work and fine fabrics. A group of separates makes up what designer terms as "Irish Weatherwoman." The red flannel skirt is subtly quilted, the V cardigan neckline blouse has big pleated sleeves, and there is a big black wool fringed shawl.

Straws in the wind of fashion include a beautiful skirt imported from Italy. It is raffia straw in a petal weave pattern, has an elasticized waistline, is smooth at the hips and flares out to the hem.

Coming up in handbags are new plastics that simulate fabrics and materials, in one bag, plastic looks like cording; in another, plastic simulates wood caning. Smart styling adds to the practical virtues of these bags.

A good bet for the budget wardrobe is a coat that goes nicely with almost everything. Such a coat is a new boxy jacket in navy or black rayon and silk jacquard faille. Small collar, above pointed revers, is of satin. The buttons are rhinestone-set. Good with afternoon things and with summer evening clothes. It makes a smart suit when combined with pleated silk crepe skirt.

Investigate the charms and the attractions of a good cotton suit. For it has many. The shops are promoting suits of cotton tweed, cut carefully, and as smartly as the finest wool or silk suits. These make marvelous travelers, pack well and are easy to care for, despite all their beautiful detail.

At least one, well-cut poodle-cloth topper will help to turn your skirts, if slim and smooth, into a handsome suit.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

If you insist on having your own way, you should follow through

When anyone plants his feet firmly in a certain path, and claims his right to follow that path if he so chooses, I think that at assumption is that, having laid down his own personal Declaration of Independence, he will thereafter work out his own destiny.

Not so, however, with one particular young woman who writes the following:

"At the age of 23, I married against the wishes and good judgment of my family. Their objections were based on the fact that the man had been married and divorced, and was a heavy drinker, although he did have his good points. When our only child was just a few months old, things got so unbearable that I left my husband, not only, to maintain my sanity.

"Shortly then, not one member of my family has helped me, financially or otherwise. No one would take my baby when I was forced to go to work, and I have had a hard time finding strangers during my absence. Often one person wouldn't take care of him any longer, he was put in the hands of other people, and that has been his life since he was five months old right up to now, when he is four and one. My mother says he is too bad for me to take care and that I'll have to take care of him. I would take five years off her life to keep him. She also says that she refuses to have my baby's heartaches and feels she has done her share. My sister, too, and so have their excuse.

"As I work nights—the only job I could get that would pay enough to support two of us—I have to leave my little boy days and nights. He has never had any home life and doesn't even realize that his real home is with me, because he has been looked after by so many different people, it's gotten to the point where he runs to me in fear. I can't go out with strangers all the time, and cries pitifully when left with them. My husband sends me no money, and I don't even know his whereabouts. Although my mother was left almost a fortune by my father a few months ago, she gives me, reluctantly just five dollars a week and that only lately.

"Is there anything I can do so that I can be with my child? What would you do?"

Fallen Through . . .

Well, if were in such a situation, I hope I would have too much pride to expect my family to come to my rescue. I hope I would feel that, since I refused their advice, and insisted on making my own decision about marriage, it was up to me to continue to make my own independent decisions and cope with my own problems without their help. I'm perfectly willing to admit that it is a fine thing when parents can be sufficiently loving and understanding to keep their hearts and homes forever open, no matter what their children may do. But I admire more the young person who quietly and courageously tackles the problems he has created for himself than the one who regards parental help as his right, even though he has already told his parents to keep hands off his life.

Naturally, I do not mean that anyone in such a case should maintain an antagonistic attitude toward his parents. What I do mean is that he should be as friendly with them as possible, considering his age and personality differences if they are antagonistic toward him, but neither demanding nor expecting them to step in and save him from the consequences of his own misguided decision.

Regarding all this, I come now to the specific question about how the young woman can support herself and her child in a more satisfactory manner than at present.

In the first place, I think she is mistaken in her surmise that to work at night is the only job she can get that would pay enough to support the two of them. Plenty of young mothers who must support a child, and sometimes even more than one, have been able to work in the day time, leaving the child, or children, at a free day nursery on the way to work and picking him up on the way home.

To make this sort of plan requires the help of some local social welfare organization which has full information on available day care for children and which can also help young mothers to find suitable jobs. This particular young mother lives in a large city where such guidance is to be had for the asking.

To locate the proper source of help, she has only to inquire at some church, the YWCA, her local newspaper or the police, to name only a few places. She definitely can be helped to make the kind of plan she needs if she will take the simple steps of going there. I hope she will stop wallowing in self-pity, squarely accept her responsibilities and carry them out with the same firmness of purpose that made her insist on doing as she pleases about her marriage.

Beauty

Neck And Neck

"Figure it out, 'tis you can," says a woman, "but my neck is usually older looking than I am." And so it seems to women whose necks have retained youthful and unlined, but whose necks betray the ravages of time wreckage, showing fiddle strings, necklace furrows. And that beauty grief, the double chin, caused by the sun-total of pulchritude.

When the bone structure is with a neck treatment, that havoc will be avoided. The pillar that holds up the feminine head is given a look-in at the cosmetic feast, and so gets even. Feed it lavishly with a heavy cream, use penty of friction to spank the circulatory streams into action, and it may perk up and behave in a respectable and reasonable manner again.

Plump wonders... seem to think that a fat neck and a spare chin are terrible, but they have no idea how much worse is a skinny neck, or a neck that has once been full and round that has begun to show evidence of the birthdays or is on rapid reducing project.

A fat neck is not particularly pretty, we agree, yet it does not necessarily look ancient; but a scrawny, wrinkled neck of even as old as if one had passed the 100 mark. The wise woman in the cause of loveliness will start early to keep it born. This women, especially, should take out insurance against sagging tissues that fall into accordion pleats.

They can do that by a general building up—eating more fat-creating food elements, like butter, cream and cereals—by getting more sleep and breathing deeply. Shallow breathers are usually flat-chested and pale of complexion. Fresh air, lots of it, together with exercise, is of cosmetic value. All those who don't come in jars and bottles. They make for long living habits.

Keep your neck needs a little vitalizing and rejuvenating, try this treatment: Stand tall, chin on the level, head balanced. On the count of ten, let the head fall back slowly, relaxing the neck muscles to the limit. The chest will expand and lift. While the head is far back, turn it from side to side. You will feel a muscle pull down below your collar bones. These fibers will tighten in time, unless you have neglected your neck duties too long.

FLEE TO WEST

BERLIN (Reuters) — A record 3,783 East Germans fled to West Berlin Friday, most of them driven by hunger. An official said "many of them first ask for bread and then for registration as political refugees."

Careless Use of Live Minnows Can Ruin Fishing Grounds

By BARRY WEST
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — When the amateur fisherman goes to his favorite fishing grounds, he probably gives little thought to the amount of damage that can result from careless use of live minnows.

The Quebec biological bureau has come up with a sharp reminder: The brown and million of dollars of damage has been done to good fishing grounds by careless and unlimited use of minnows as bait.

The damage results from unused minnows dumped into the lake or stream and from minnows that work free off hooks.

The minnows crowd out prized speckled and red trout in lakes and streams. One upset minnow pail can pollute a whole water shed. The minnows, including young perch, sunfish, bullhead and suckers, grow up to feed on baby trout and trout eggs, as well as the larvae on which the trout feeds.

Costly Menace

The bureau urged that fishermen using minnows catch them in the stream where they are fishing.

Minnows, said the bureau, have a place to fill in nature's balance as forage in bass, pike, dore and grey trout waters.

But "dumping" dumped into a lake can produce a breed of monstrosity."

The bureau pointed to lakes and streams in the Laurentians, north of Montreal, as examples of the damage caused by "foreign" minnows. It was estimated the perch there had lost more than $1,000,000 through the pollution of the fishing streams.

A bureau spokesman said the $1,000,000 was a "conservative estimate" that "does not include the loss of tourist revenue." He based the figure on the fact that it would cost an average of $5,000 each to poison and re-stock the 200 polluted lakes and streams in the Laurentian area.

Results of a winter survey, recently released, have revealed that, contrary to the popular belief, seagulls do not move out of Montreal harbor with the last ship's departure in December.

More than 1,000 wintered not far from the usual harbor haunts, most of them in the vicinity of suburban Verdun and Lachine.

Research by McGill University's institute of parasitology has shown the gull is more of a threat to the community than people believe.

Study has revealed the gull is host to a parasite, which through an intricate process of migration into the lungs of moose, caribou, dogs, coyotes, and humans, causing disease.

So far the threat to humans has been largely confined to Manitoba and Eskimos, but with the increasing development of Canada's northland, it will be necessary to develop improved methods for man's protection.

Garden Notes

Window Boxes Are Versatile

By FLORA M.-SAVILLE

Window boxes are versatile. They can satisfy the apartment dweller's desire for a little garden.

You can use them to dress up a summer cottage, brighten a veranda, or hide a drab exterior, or put them on the fence and leave the ground space for family activities.

What to choose for plant material for your window boxes depends upon the exposure, and the effect you wish to achieve. If the boxes face the South or West choose non-flowering plants such as ivy, or trailing nasturtium. Pansies will bloom well for two months or more if kept picked off as the flowers fade. There are the big ruffled giants from Switzerland, England, and fine American strains. Tufted pansies, or violas make good box plants too. They are the tiny violet sized types and the larger solid color and ruffled violas. These bloom all summer long if cut back and fed occasionally.

Dwarf easy dragons make good in the window box too, and petunias, well they offer such a wide choice that it is difficult to choose. There are the double type plants covered with single blooms from white through salmon, rose, crimson and deep blue, and the star compactas. Pirechlet, Rosymorn, and Pinkie are outstanding in this class. There are the huge ruffled types which have a trailing habit and droop gracefully over the sides of the hanging pot, or box. Double, fringed and the cony petunias each make a special bid for our favor. As I said, when it comes to petunias it is hard to make a choice. And they bloom early and late.

Another good Flowerer

Drummondi phlox, and verbenias are not as often used for box plants as they should be. They have a long blooming season, and large and colorful flower heads. Verbena bonsai has a lovely hellotrope purple bloom which does not mildew, and another new beauty is sparkle. This is a brilliant scarlet with a full umbrella of bloom. Both of these provide solid masses of bloom.

Two low zinnias make good box plants either in mixed colors or solid colors. All these plants grow six or more inches high.

For the slower plants you could put in two or three Dracenas. These are palm-like foliage plants with long swordlike leaves. Fill in around them with one, or a variety of the above mentioned plants and add an edging plant along the front if you wish. Vinca vine, and sweet alyssum in white, or purple (Royal carpet is the best) Lobella has tiny flower blossoms in sapphire blue and a fine mass of hair fine stems and leaves.

The secret of lush window boxes is plenty of water and food. There are so many roots crowded into such a small space that they take up a great deal of water and food. Water the plants once a day preferably early in the morning, and again in the evening if the weather is very hot and dry. Every two weeks is not too often to feed them. Make a liquid fertilizer from chemicals, or organic fertilizer and use according to directions on package. There are liquid fertilizers and dry sterilized chemical fertilizers which act quickly. Pot pills are good. Make sure you use enough of them for the number of plants in your box. The third important secret is to keep the faded blooms picked off. Do this at least twice a week, and nip, or cut back leggy plants. Ivy will look a bit shabby for a week or two but with a feeding and plenty of water they will soon put out new tops.

Change the Soil

There are so many plants which make fine displays that you may like to change the whole box half way through the summer and again in early fall. In mid-summer orange, and yellow dwarf marigolds edged with Royal carpet alyssum would make a handsome box. Add a few vinca, or Ivy to trail over the edge. In the back garden you can be nursing along some dwarf scarlet sage (salvia) which will bloom very late into the fall. Balcony chrysanthemums make a good show for the fall. These form a handsome cascade of single blooms in yellow, carmine, crimson, and pink.

Many Historic Landmarks Seen on Procession Route

By KATHERINE PINKHAM

LONDON (AP)—Hop into the Queen's golden coach, and we'll look over the whole 10-mile route that Elizabeth II will follow next Tuesday.

The first part of the route is from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey. That's on the way to the Coronation. The second part, after the ceremony, leads from the abbey back to Buckingham Palace—but by a circuitous route. The long way, in other words.

The coach is pulled by eight sleek grey horses. Drive out Buckingham Palace gate and head down the wide, tree-lined Mall towards Admiralty Arch.

You're looking through a vista of slender blue and gold metal arches, topped with gilt lions and unicorns. Suspended from each is a giant, lightweight, gilded crown.

On your left, as you approach St. James's Palace of dingy red brick, you see Clarence House, where Elizabeth and Philip set up housekeeping after their marriage.

St. James's Park

Behind bordering stands on your right is spacious St. James's Park. King Charles II used to stroll there in private and wave up to his apartment where he had installed Nell Gwyn. Through Admiralty Arch, you touch on Trafalgar Square, pass Lord Nelson's 145-foot memorial column, and veer down Northumberland avenue to the lip of the sluggish Thames.

Along Victoria embankment 36,000 schoolchildren will be cheering shrilly. You roll on toward Big Ben, world's best-known clock, towering over the Houses of Parliament.

Jogging around Parliament Square, you pass a concentration of deep stands. Most of the stadiary is banked up. But Abraham Lincoln stands by his chair as usual and Oliver Cromwell dourly surveys the royalist revelry.

As you turn toward Westminster Abbey's entrance, glance toward the far end of the Houses of Parliament, where a metal overpass has been built for the lords, arrayed in ceremonial glory, to reach their abbey places across a traffic sea.

Now we loop back toward Trafalgar Square, via Whitehall.

You see on your right the building that was once Whitehall Palace. Outside it Charles I was beheaded.

Along Fall Mall some of the famous men's clubs have so far surrendered dignity as to build stands over entrances.

Proceed down Piccadilly toward Apsley House at Hyde Park corner and notice a gaping hole in the right-hand skyline. A German bomb destroyed the home there where Elizabeth once lived when her father was Duke of York. Look sharp to the left, toward Constitution Hill, where lunatics three times tried to kill Queen Victoria.

Lined With Stands

East Carriage drive in Hyde Park is lined on the right with stands. The soap-box orators are taking a day off from their carping at Speakers' Rostrum, near the Marble Arch. The arch used to stand beside Buckingham Palace, but it was moved in Victoria's time. Now it's a landmark for a grim site indeed—Tyburn Gallows, scene of 19,000 hangings between the 12th and 19th centuries.

At Piccadilly Circus the statue of Eros is protected from the crowds by a sparkling gilded cage meant to bet bashed. There are always crowds in Piccadilly.

Last of all to see the royal procession will be the viewers in Haymarket, where hay was sold once upon a time. You pass along once more to Trafalgar Square, where some will be seeing the golden coach for the third time, before it turns back up the Mall to the palace.

First State Ball in 40 Years To be Held at Govt. House

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — A tradition comes to life again here June 2. The first state ball in almost 40 years will be held at Government House to mark the Coronation.

The governor-general has revived this social ceremony of bygone days to climax the Coronation Day celebration in capital. About 700 Ottawa residents have been invited to dine and dance at Rideau Hall.

The origins of this formal social function are obscure. So also are records of previous state balls. However, six and possibly seven similar balls were given by previous governors-general to celebrate special events. The last is believed to have been in June, 1874, given by the Duke of Connaught.

Strictly Formal

State balls are strictly formal affairs with guests invited on the basis of a table of precedence beginning with the governor-general and listing the prime minister, cabinet ministers, lieutenant-governor, senior churchmen, judges, members of Parliament, senators, senior officers of the armed forces and top government officials.

However, this ball will vary the procedure. Many of those who would ordinarily be invited are in England for the Coronation. Accommodation is limited at Rideau Hall so only Ottawa residents will be invited.

About two-thirds of the 700-odd guests are included in the table of precedence. The other guests will be prominent Ottawans in business, social and church life.

Most members of Parliament and senators will not receive an invitation because their permanent residence is in the constituency they represent. This procedure also rules out the lieutenant-governors of the provinces, members of provincial legislatures and judges of provincial courts.

Even then Rideau Hall will be crowded. Most of the ground floor rooms and the rolling lawns of the old, grey-stone building will be used by guests. They will dance to fox trots and waltzes played by the band of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, an Ottawa regiment.

Dress is formal, as at previous state balls. Men will wear white tie and tails with miniatures of their decorations, or appropriate uniforms for the three armed services.

The ball begins at 9:45 p. m. EDT with the appearance of the governor-general, and ends about 1 a. m. when he retires.

To relieve the congestion, a marquee will be pitched on the wide lawns in front of the hall. If the weather is fine, guests may stroll about the lawns and take their buffet supper in the marquee.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

BEST OF LUCK!

Jack (Chapeau Rouge, Midnight) McNab, well-known sportsman, purveyor of suds, and general man-about-town is leaving the city.

Jack has tossed in his resources, financial, personal and others in a joint venture with Louie Yanover, mighty business sulie of Picton that will see them locate in Ottawa.

This David and Goliath Pict district business and sport, have purchased the St. Charles Hotel, 200 Queens St., Ottawa, and starting Monday will open for the capital city crowd, those from the hinterlands and with an especial greeting to any who recede the taxy of Bay of Quinte waters.

Jack and Louie will leave with the ring of best wishes in their new venture in their ears plus both boast a well-deserved popularity in their respective districts, especially in the realm of sport.

JACK McNAB

McNab is a native son of Belleville. He first saw the light of day here and received his education in Belleville schools. He has lived here all his life with the exception of eight years when he was associated with the Canadian Locomotive Co. He married Phyllis Rawsons, a member of the Belleville Rawsons and has one-third of a baseball team in the family trotting ground to date.

He is perhaps better known as "Sports Centre McNab. He operated a sports shop on Front Street for a considerable length of time only to see his business and the building destroyed while vacationing in Florida. On his return Jack became associated with the Carlings Brewery with which he remained until his restaring into the hotel business.

He is a member of the Belleville Club, Kinsmen Club Belleville Baseball Association, Belleville Yacht Club, Belleville Hockey Association, the Bay of Quinte Country Club, but has yet to be nominated for the "13.30" select organization.

Jack worked hard for sport in the city and countryand much cash, effort and time to its furtherance. He was always willing to assist young organizations to get started, and his support of older ones was never lacking. His breezy manner and jovial personality have won for him a host of friends who will here bet over a widespread district. Belleville sportsdom can ill afford to lose most of his calibre.

Louie filled practically the same niche in the sports life of Picton as McNab did here. Picton-born the "ill fella" has been in sport up to his neck since he forwardpassed his first pinken bottle through the kitchen window. He was always manager of the "Cement" Hockey Club, Grand Prairie, a trio that was dubbed at one time by a wag "The Unholy Three."

Louie was always around whenever help, no matter in what form, was needed to promote a sports venture. He was interested in the Picton baseball team after the war which, as well as other phases of athletics in the Prince Edward County town. He was associated with his father in business there for many years and the name Yanover has been a byword in Picton's business life. He is a brother of Jack Yanover, proprietor of the Queens Hotel here.

This department joins with many sportsmen and friends of sport as well as players, in wishing Jack and Louie all the best success in their new business venture in Ottawa. Both extend a cordial invitation to all and sundry to visit them in their new premises in the shadow of Parliament Hill.

BRANSCOMBE TROPHY

Last season Mike Aquafresh and Val Smith turned back the cream of the district golfers to obtain victory possession of the Branscombe Golf trophy. They defeated a crack linksduo from Napanee to retain the bauble, but now the 1953 battle for the mug has been joined.

Mike and Val have accepted the first challenge of the new season and the match will be played on the Quinte links on Sunday starting at 1.30. Matching strokes with them will be those Napanee aces, Jack Ford and Glen Wagar. The Belleville pair had no difficulty fabricating for the big day and the boys from down east will have to be good to take the bauble home with them.

SOFTBALL!

Frankford meets the Bobcats in a scheduled Belleville District Softball League fixture at the Alemite Field tonight, starting at 6.30. Frankford has yet to win in the loop while the Cats have not yet registered a victory. On Monday night Northern Electric treks to Wooler where the teams will play under the lights starting at 8.15.

The baseball pennant races pass the first of their three most fiendish landmarks today—Memorial Day—with New York Yankees investing in front in the American League and Milwaukee Braves hanging on stubbornly in the National.

The fans usually take a special look at the standings after the Memorial Day, Fourth of July and Labor Day doubleheaders, since these days split the season into four convenient quarters.

Nobody particularly claims the leaders at Memorial Day will be hot pennant contenders, but records of the last five seasons show that any club as much as five games behind on today's birthday is pretty much out of the running.

Under this arbitrary figure this year you would eliminate Philadelphia, St. Louis and Boston in the American League and Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cincinnati in the National. Boston and Washington in the American would have to be considered doubtful.

Here's How

Here's how the races have worked out in recent years:

1952—Yankees, Braves were a half-game behind New York Giants after the Memorial Day games and the Yankees, Braves won the pennant. The Dodgers won the pennant by 4½ games, the Yanks by two games.

1951—The Giants were 4½ behind Brooklyn and the Yanks were two back of Cleveland. The Giants won the pennant by a playoff against the Dodgers. The Yanks were by three games.

1950—Philadelphia Phillies were 1½ games behind Brooklyn and the Yankees were two behind Boston and Detroit. The Phils won by two, the Yanks by three.

After Friday's games only two leagues separate the first-place Yankees from the fourth-place Phillies in the National League. St. Louis and Boston are sandwiched within half a game of the top as the Cardinals topped Milwaukee 11-7 and the Dodgers defeated Pittsburgh, 7-4. Philadelphia routed the Giants 12-3 at last place Cincinnati finally won, its 18th game of the season, a 5-3 decision over Chicago. Curt Simmons struck out eight, walked two and allowed only four hits in the Cubs' cause.

The Yankees won a slugging duel from the Athletics, 13-7, and moved four full games in front of the second-place Chicago White Sox, who were beaten 3-1 by Cleveland. St. Louis scored six runs in the 11th inning to defeat Washington in the fifth win in five games and Washington defeated Philadelphia 5-4.

The Dodgers' victory over John Lindell and his knuckleball was their sixth in a row and featured the hitting of first baseman Gil Hodges who drove home three runs.

Bob Elliott, who as a free agent convinced St. Louis manager Marty Marion that he was still a big leaguer, connected with his 2,000th hit, a double during the big 11th inning uprising at Detroit. It was one of two doubles he hit during the game.

Mike Garcia held the White Sox to six hits as the Indians ruined the starting debut of Bob Keegan, son of the 1945 prize rookies. The victory moved Cleveland within two percentage points of the second place Chicagoans.

Harvie Ward Reaches Finals In British Golf

HOYLAKE, England (AP)—Defending champion Harvie Ward, firing relentless, near-perfect golf, beat Tony Coppedge 3-1 in the quarter and semi-finals of the British amateur championship and made each victory look easy.

The unassuming, 27-year-old Atlantan meets Irishman Joe Carr today in the 36-hole final. That's the route for the pay-off round which practically everyone has been predicting for two days.

First Ward ripped through Cecil Windrow, a 49-year-old chocolate factory director, 5 and 4. Then he routed 23-year-old Arthur Perowne, member of the 1949 British Walker Cup team, 6 and 5.

Ward reached the final for the 2nd straight year and gained the chance to become the first golfer since Lawson little in 1934-35 to win two British amateur titles in successive years.

Ward's first today, a lanky, longhitting Irishman who is regarded as one of Britain's best amateurs, had his troubles Friday. But he managed to beat Joe Lambe on the 19th hole and Cecil Beamish, another Irishman, on the 19th.

Favor Vukovich For Race Epic At Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Bill Vukovich was the popular favorite of 220,000 auto race fans who jammed the 11 gates of the Indianapolis motor speedway early today. The hardest task in sports journalism has been in line for days; told one another Vukovich was a cinch winner last year until his steering failed with 25 miles to go.

The Fresno, Calif., driver wheeled the same car to the line for the race EDT first flying start. He had led the 33 starters in three 500-mile races with a 10-mile qualifying speed of 138.212 miles an hour.

There was a strong possibility a new record would be established, of the contestant's top auto race.

Every car in the field, with a spread of only three miles an hour between the fastest and slowest qualifier, was capable of breaking Troy Ruttman's 1952 record of 128.922.

The attendance, generally believed to be the biggest paying crowd in North American sports, also was likely to be a record although the speedway never discloses the official figure. Estimates range up to 300,000.

Whoever took the winner's checkered flag after the sixty four-hour grind would draw $65,000. Ruttman won $61,000 of last year's record $230,000 purse and this purse was expected to be bigger.

The unexpected factor in the race was due to the fact that the speedway guarantees $75,000 but increases

Rare Operation, Rarer Drug Helps British Filly to Win Famous One Thousand Guineas

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A doctor's skill, a horseman's gift of the gab and a triple dose of antibiotics combined today to help Lady Langdale to live up to her name.

Lady Langdale is a three-year-old filly by Royal Charger. She won this year's running of the One Thousand Guineas, defeating a highly-fancied field in the rain and mud at Newmarket. It was a happy ending of sorts to incidents in the week-long drama that at one time hovered on tragedy.

The Hon. Lady Langdale, after showing considerable promise as a two-year-old, suddenly went off her feed and almost died. She was diagnosed as colitis. The condition became so serious that Tom Jarvis, one of Britain's outstanding trainers, told owner H. D. H. Jeffries he would have to dispose of the animal because of the danger to other horses in the barn.

Dared Not Operate

A veterinary surgeon then diagnosed the ailment as sinovitis of the right hock. He said it could be cured by operation. A Harley street doctor said the only thing that could save Happy Laughter would be tryphinbig, an action that requires cutting a hole just below the filly's right eye.

Invited to Rescue

To complete the operation, the doctor needed 15 gallons of the sarcomycin, which can be obtained only in North America or Ireland. Lt.-Col. C. E. D. Gray, stud manager for Happy Laughter's owners, accordingly flew to Ireland. He was told the drug could be released only for dollars, but the Irishmen talked the authorities into waiving the operation fee.

The operation was a success. A few weeks later Happy Laughter went to Ireland and met Royal Guinea, completing the mile four-some. Ireland of her own class, shadowed, Tessa Gillian, and jaybird Happy Laughter. She is expected to run in Oak Tree, distance test for fillies, run at Epsom next month.

The running of Britain's first two classics, the Two Thousand and One Thousand Guineas, has boosted still further the prestige of Royal Charger. The 11-year-old son, two Derby stakes winner has been exported to North Africa, Nearula, brother of the Two Thousand Guineas, to the Nazrullah and both Happy Laughter and Tessa Gillian, first and second in the One Thousand, are sired by Royal Charger. Nearula also has Nazrullah on the female side.

Canadian sportsman Max Bell is known to have designs on both Nazrullah and Royal Charger. Indian Hemp, which he purchased in London last year, won the Derby at Epsom Derby, is by Nazrullah, and Royal Minstrel, another of the British purchases which has since won good sprint races in the United States, is by Royal Charger.

Royals Whip Springfield 7-1 To Extend Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals, fresh from a four-game sweep over Baltimore Orioles, Friday night started with Springfield Cubs, who have been keeping the International Baseball League cellar company for most of the season.

The Royals, on top of the eight-team loop with a two-game lead, were idle Thursday as games with the Cubs with a 7-1 victory to extend their winning streak to six in the barn.

From Springfield's performance to date, it doesn't look as if it's going to be much of a surprise anyone if the Canadiens take the next three games. Montreal remains at Springfield for a two-night doubleheader Sunday and a single game Monday.

Veteran sixth-place Orioles downed Ottawa Athletics 4-2 at Baltimore in the only other game played Friday night.

Four contests were scheduled, both Montreal-Toronto at Hanlon Field and Syracuse at Buffalo-Bisons postponed because of rain and wet grounds respectively.

The Montreal win was Hamp Cole team's second against six losses and ties. Although giving up 10 hits, Cole was in trouble in only three innings. Ed Fitzgerald, Royals' shortstop, batted in three runs.

Howie Fox allowed only six safeties in the Baltimore win and struck out six and walked none. Bobby Gene Smith batted in three with the loss.

Sports Roundup

NEW YORK (AP)—It's sneaked up on us between football season, but we learn that by next fall the Washington Redskins' big 240-pound player who doesn't have his mouth full of rubber hopes to protect his teeth against the ravages of shoulder blocks will definitely be listed among the havens of the gridiron world.

This will, we feel, be especially welcome news to the parents of Washington kids who normally have to foot the bills for dentists and bridges. College athletic treasuries usually will benefit, too, as they get past the initial cost of the mufflers, which can run from $5 to $7 apiece by every ring fighter these days.

It hasn't been so long, incidentally, since the boys in the ring in close-up seat could count on getting a tooth or two in his lap almost any evening. They used to roll 'em down the aisles, and it is but as well that our more squeamish television viewers are spared the sight which only invigorated the old-timers.

For our news about the whole-sale employment of the tooth protectors we are indebted to the Voit Rubber Corporation of Los Angeles, which has copyrighted and popularized the rubber football in recent years. The company not only has sent us a run in literature on the subject, but enclosed as well some testimonials from athletes ranging from small to extra large, in case we decide to try for the varsity.

We learn that the national federation of high school athletic associations has recommended in its rules that the protectors be worn by every football player, and that college coaches across the United States are falling in line in droves. It is claimed that, in addition to giving positive protection to the teeth, the device also makes concussions and knockouts rare.

Manufacturers offer a variety of safety groups in recent years, disclosed that more than half of football injuries are to the mouth, teeth, lips or jaw.

Having read these and other statistics on the subject, Dr. Jack Dempsey, Berkeley, Calif., dentist and sports nut, has elected to do something about it. After trying his hand on several boxers he turned in and outfitted the entire Berkeley high school squad of 40 with specially built guards. Dempsey charge them a cent. When after four years the Berkeley team reported not a single break or tooth, the good doctor decided he was in business.

Whipper Wins Over 'Gorgeous' In Main Bout

By GEO H. CARVER

This story is going to be very brief. In fact the news as far as we are concerned is that public address announcement by Sweet St. Louis to the effect that Lou Thesz, world's wrestling champion will by his title on the line here next Friday against sofar an unnamed opponent.

As far as last night's bout is concerned it was anti-climactic to the colorful show that heralded Gorgeous George's initial appearance here last week.

True, some 2,263 "paid admissions" saw the brawl but it lacked the color and excitement just a week's meeting between the pair.

In face of repetition the Gorgeous one still got a good show and the Whip came through with a well deserved victory.

Colorful Show

It was a colorful show Gorgeous one parading to the boos and hisses of the faithful while his valet Buddy Jeffries (whose guys and gals) sprayed the ring with Mennen. Then the Gorgeous one's favorite disinfectant.

The gorgeous one appeared in what this reporter thought was his new "Coronation robe." And as his valet Buddy George, the significance of the colorful red robe with the white trimmings was lost on the brawl-hungry audience.

The Whipper demonstrated in no uncertain action that he was still a second against all comers at championship. But by no means unbeatable. Despite his defeat he discounted as a mediocre wrestler. The blonde manipulator of ring ropes is not what it takes as far as wrestling goes. Only when Buddy George, the significance of the colorful red robe with the white trimmings was lost on the brawl-hungry audience.

The Whipper demonstrated in no uncertain action that he was still a second against all comers at championship. But by no means unbeatable. Despite his defeat he discounted as a mediocre wrestler. The blonde manipulator of ring ropes is not what it takes as far as wrestling goes. Only when Jeffries the Gorgeous one's gentleman's gentlemen entered the ring did the match get out of which he administered to the gentleman after his first big defeat. The Whip, unaccustomed to much fighting on, promptly gave poor Jeffries the well-known brave-bo, while the near-capacity crowd roared its approval.

But, look! who's here. The Gorgeous one wearing a slick-down chignon, due perhaps to the humidity of the night. The Whip suddenly turned on opponent and believe us, this gorgeous one decides this fol-de-rols and perfume can really wrestle. He went in the ring and out of it to use using a crafty mat diplomacy that inveigled the Whip to many an unpromising position.

It was a good show with Johnny Valentine wrestling in the plaudits of the crowd will a brilliant performance that brought him the nod over the ferocious "Man Mountain Dean Jr." in the semi.

In the preliminary John Melas, Billy Darcy back in the villainous threats of Howard Cantonwine to earn a well-deserved draw.

Sport in Brief

TORONTO (CP) — Norton Tribells, Canadian men's senior basketball representative, has received an invitation to compete in a basketball tournament at the world youth festival in Communist-dominated Rumania.

Alex Treen, manager of the Tribells, said Friday the invitation came from the youth festival committee but "we want to investigate the matter thoroughly before forming an opinion."

Fisher said he intends to check with sports officials to see what is the government's reaction.

If they approve, Tribells will attend the festival, to be held in Bucharest July 3-16, is for "peace and friendship."

Norma Williams and Shirley Crabtree, Toronto girls and two prominent track athletes, said Friday they accepted the invitations to compete in the festival. They said they were among 12 Canadians invited to attend.

DUNDAS (CP)—Lloyd Thurber and Gerry Kesslering of Kitchener Rockway combined Friday for a brilliant two-hitter as they won the second annual Feller's provincial baseball championship. They beat the tournament record by one stroke.

The pair's winners, Hugh Borthwick of Toronto and Nick Weiskof of Windsor, were dropped from the running after the morning round.

An inclement weather and rain driving wind hampered the field of 82. It didn't stopthe sharp Kitchener pair, however, who carding a 66 in the first round and a 67 in the afternoon.

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Cherry Morris of Toronto Oakdale carded a net 73 Friday to win the first round of women's golf championship of the season here. Some 110 players competing in the fifth tourney for the Elizabeth Young Trophy. First held in 1928. Anne Sharp of the Oakland Point Club, Fairhill, was low scorer with 81.

Spinning Outfits Good for Novices

There is a store in Coral Gables, Florida, which deals entirely in spinning tackle. That's right—spinning tackle exclusively. Reels, rods, lines, lures, all of it. Lures, lures of every description, all spinning tackle and nothing else.

I wondered at first how such a specialized establishment could make a go of things. After I had been in South Florida for a few weeks and had looked over the tackle that the boys and girls are using, I stopped wondering. Among the bottom fishermen and those who fish from the bridges and causeways you see more spinning rigs than all other varieties combined.

Time was, back in 1949 and 1950, when the Metropolitan Miami Fishing Tournament grouped its entrants into three classifications—the General Division, the Plug-Casting Division and the Fly-Casting Division. Thus, the spinning addicts had to compete with the heavy-tackle users.

A New Division Added

The popularity of spinning finally became so great that now the Metropolitan Tournament has added a fourth group—the Spinning Division. Last year, the man killed a 36-pounder on his spinning rig.

For example, last year a man with a spinning outfit landed a 36-pound permit, using a 6-pound monofilament line. A permit, as you may or may not know, is a very touchy citizen. He has the speed of a bonefish and the dogged determination and power of a jack crevalle. Even a five-pounder is a formidable adversary for a light-tackle angler, yet this man killed a 36-pounder on his spinning rig.

Other species of game fish—the spinning rod and reel are accounting for increasingly greater catches at the tournament reports shows a 25-pound barracuda; a 35-pound amberjack; a 13-pound jack crevalle; a 20-pound kingfish; and a 38-pound tarpon.

Of course, this sort of thing can be said to be exceptional or excelled by anglers using orthodox plug-casting outfits. Winner of the angler's current tournament-leading tarpon is a 154 pounder, 12 ounces. Or, for that matter, consider Harry Franzmans 86-pound tarpon, taken on regular fly-rod tackle, using a leader point of 12-pounds test.

Plug-casting tackle and fly-rod tackle are, of course, time-tested outfits. The fact that the spinning outfit is now a factor to be reckoned only proves my point—that a spinning outfit makes an efficient and deadly tool.

Popularity understandable

The popularity of the spinning outfit is readily understandable in that the rig is easy to use. Give an outright beginner a spinning rig, show him how it works, and time him loose. With an hour's practice or less he can cast as well as the next fellow.

Once a fish is hooked, he needs to know very little about playing that fish. The drag on a spinning reel is usually set at about half the strength of the line. The flexible rod takes up sudden strains. All he has to do is to hang on and keep the handle. The rod and reel do the rest.

Thus, Mr. Tired Businessman can go fishing with a spinning outfit and have fun. He needs little instruction and almost no practice which is certainly not true of plug casting or fly-rod fishing. Neither does he waste much time. Man finds the spinning rig to be ideal equipment.

Admittedly being of the "old school," I have little use for spinning outfits. I find them to be cumbersome, awkward affairs which certainly are not fun to use. That, however, is a matter entirely of personal preference.

For the inshore angler in South Florida the spinning outfit is ideal equipment. Its greatest can have more fun with it than he can with tackle which requires practice to learn how to use. No fair-minded man can find fault with a man's choice of tackle for that sort of fishing.

The development with which I do take issue, however, is the use of spinning tackle in our northern trout streams. Trout fishing, I'm done as it is supposed to be done, is fascinating and artistic pastime. It seems too bad, when fishing for a fish that will rise to a fly, to hit him on hardware equipped with treble hooks.

From what I've observed on our streams, the spinning rigs do not do much damage from the standpoint of endangering our supply of trout. Usually a good fly fisherman can hold his own against a spinning tackle.

The only thing I like in what the spinning addict does to the other fellow's fun. Time and again I have seen it happen. A fly fisherman is enjoying himself thoroughly, drifting a dry fly over a school of rising trout. Then along comes a spinning outfit.

One or two casts with the spinning lure is about all it takes to put down every rising fish in the school. The spin fisherman then follows his lure in search of the green fields and pastures new, while the fly fisherman thinks of trying to find another school of fish that are being going home.

As I say, spinning is all right in the wide open spaces, an ideal outfit for the beginner. I don't like to see these outfits used in trout streams, at least. I suppose it is only one man's opinion. Maybe I'm getting old and it is typical of old-timers to resent the intrusion of the new order.

Hurt Driver To Hear Race

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The roar of the Indianapolis speedway race will be used in an attempt to revive an injured driver Wednesday, doctors said.

Al Keller's tape recording of the 500-mile classic will be replayed beside the bedside of the stricken Bobby Ball, who finished fifth in the 1952 Indianapolis Race.

Ball, who dropped out in the early going with car trouble last year, was injured later in a midsummer race Jan. 4. He has been unconscious since.

Dr. John Eisenbeiss, Ball's physician, hopes the sounds of racing cars and track announcers may provide enough stimulus to bring him back to consciousness.

Fillyy Expected to Win Plate For First Time in Ten Years; Canadiana Is People's Choice

By JIM BARTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A filly may be trained to victory by a hundred three-year olds on Coronation Day.

That is the day when about 20 of the country's equine aristocracy go to the post for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate at fashionable Woodbine Park. It is also the day when the country's largest sports crowd—an expected 50,000—makes it the event of the turf year.

Traditionally, the Plate has the color of a royal garden party, the ladies in their summer finery and the men in hopsers, striped trousers and frock coats basking in the fenced-off members' enclosure. The infield has a fun-in-the-sun air, grandstand and spill over into the infield.

All the hopes, fears, patient care and training of a horse will be bundled into two minutes of drama as the horses pound over the nine furlong course in pursuit of the Queen's 30 Guineas, $10,000 or so in cash, and the Canadian thoroughbred fact that such and such a thoroughbred won.

Said Sure Thing

This year a filly, Canadiana, with the big-league combination of Jockey Eddie Arcaro and E. P. Taylor's Canadian stable behind her, is "a sure thing," pose a strong threat to make the Plate's $25,000-added stake. There is plenty of cash around that says at least three of the fillies will be in the money.

Not since 1943 — that's when Pabulum did it — has a filly entered the Plate winner's circle. This may be the year for such speedsters as Canadiana, Virginia Fair, Avella and Winter Lady are entered.

The people's choice will be Canadiana, though the last lay that was fourth in the May 25 Plate Trial, she probably will go to the post just as long as there is money. She was the 8-to-5 winner-look favourite, favored over Avella, Winter Lady, and 1-to-10 in the trial.

Canadiana was a doubtful starter earlier this week. However, she recovered a mile workout in 1:40.2 at Woodbine Park Thursday. Friday, Saturday and Taykey, a Toronto industrialist, was reported that she was "fit and well."

Up against her will be Virginia Fair, Winnipeg's two-year-old champion last year, owned by Mrs. Jack Adamson of Toronto and trained by Jack Adamson. Avella, second-choice favorite in the May 25 trial, owned by Jack Addison of Toronto and trained by Lady, owned by Miss Olive Armstrong of Toronto.

The records show that only four fillies have won the Plate, the oldest continuously-run horse race in North America — in the last 10 years. The last was Gaga in 1951, a good run from J. R. Fifty Expected to Win Plate For First Time in Ten Years; Canadiana Is People's Choice

By JIM BARTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A filly may be trained to victory by a hundred three-year olds on Coronation Day.

That is the day when about 20 of the country's equine aristocracy go to the post for the 94th running of the Queen's Plate at fashionable Woodbine Park. It is also the day when the country's largest sports crowd—an expected 50,000—makes it the event of the turf year.

Traditionally, the Plate has the color of a royal garden party, the ladies in their summer finery and the men in hopsers, striped trousers and frock coats basking in the fenced-off members' enclosure. The infield has a fun-in-the-sun air, grandstand and spill over into the infield.

All the hopes, fears, patient care and training of a horse will be bundled into two minutes of drama as the horses pound over the nine furlong course in pursuit of the Queen's 30 Guineas, $10,000 or so in cash, and the Canadian thoroughbred fact that such and such a thoroughbred won.

Said Sure Thing

This year a filly, Canadiana, with the big-league combination of Jockey Eddie Arcaro and E. P. Taylor's Canadian stable behind her, is "a sure thing," pose a strong threat to make the Plate's $25,000-added stake. There is plenty of cash around that says at least three of the fillies will be in the money.

Not since 1943 — that's when Pabulum did it — has a filly entered the Plate winner's circle. This may be the year for such speedsters as Canadiana, Virginia Fair, Avella and Winter Lady are entered.

The people's choice will be Canadiana, though the last lay that was fourth in the May 25 Plate Trial, she probably will go to the post just as long as there is money. She was the 8-to-5 winner-look favourite, favored over Avella, Winter Lady, and 1-to-10 in the trial.

Canadiana was a doubtful starter earlier this week. However, she recovered a mile workout in 1:40.2 at Woodbine Park Thursday. Friday, Saturday and Taykey, a Toronto industrialist, was reported that she was "fit and well."

"Carson City"

Frequent robbing of gold-bearing stage coaches convinces banker Larry Keating that a railroad should be built to provide transportation and get gold out of the mine area. He is advised to hire Randolph Scott as his engineer. Scott is greeted enthusiastically by Lucille Norman, daughter of newspaper publisher Don Beddoe, whom Scott knew 10 years back, and by his half-brother Richard Webb, who works for Beddoe. Beddoe heads those in opposition to the railroad, figuring that the town will be despoiled, including Raymond 'Massey, mine owner and supposed respectable citizen, but in reality the head of the bandits along with his partner, James Millican. The latter tries to stop the railroad by sidetracking supplies, but the road goes on. A manmade landslide traps Scott and some men in a tunnel, and the whole town turns out to dig them out. Feeling is heightened against the railroad when Beddoe's body is found and railroad crews are blamed for the killing. Webb and Scott quarrel because Norman shows more than a passing interest in Scott. The road is finally completed and Massey decides to make a final killing by robbing the first train.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 31, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Aggressive stimulus in the air should be utilized for good. Be active in support of spiritual devotions. Good day for good deeds.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Your Venus and other planets advise quiet, thoughtful routine. Don't irritate others; get inner contentment at church services. Do essential chores pleasantly.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Good advice to Taurus now. Remember those who have fought for these still fighting, that you may enjoy freedom and many other blessings. Pray.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Will better enjoy this day if we unselfishly serve our dear ones, our Heavenly Father first, and our neighbors, too. What pleasure in doing good!

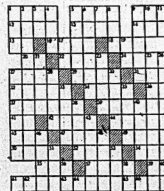
July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Today's stars tend to consign our faults to oblivion. We can supply kindliness, cheerfulness where needed. Attend church; pray for only peace.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—As with Leo, today advises pleasant but quieting activities, good reading, and of course spiritual devotions. Urgent matters need not be neglected.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra)—Read advice to Taurus natives. Day generally similar for all except Aries and Scorpio; they have an edge of friendly Mars rays more forceful for them.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—You can afford to be magnanimous with your Mars only planet in superlative mood. And we know Scorpio folk like to be gracious, kindly helpful. Think of God.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Be not content to lag behind. We must live at, or near, the frontiers with those who think and do for the good of mankind.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Advice to Sagittarius pertinent. For the Sabbath, we who have so many blessings desire to love and appreciate God. We do so by prayer and good deeds.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—You should find stimulus: from your spouse, your family or worthy friends this Sunday. Enjoy just ordinary happenings. Pray.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—The diversity of life with its vast opportunities, and room for church and wholesome pastimes, is so important that we must give it much thought and—keep God with us.

YOU BORN TODAY: Versatility, charm, enthusiasm, excitability highlights of you usually on-the-go individuals. You were born under Gemini, the Twins, and—while some note how dual or contradictory may be your nature—you can when pressed achieve more in shorter time than many. Birthdate of: Walt Whitman, poet; Fred Allen, Don Ameche.

Magazine Seller Found Guilty Of Fraud Charge

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 20-year-old Hagersville magazine salesman was convicted Friday on a charge of false pretence. The charge arose from complaints of customers at nearby St. Davids where he was selling subscriptions.

Gordon R. Shilton, who lost part of his right forearm in an accident in a Toronto laundry in 1947, was remanded to June 3 for sentence. Mrs. Charlotte Irvine, elderly St. Davids housewife, charged that Shilton told her he was "from the war veterans" and was selling subscriptions to a veterans magazine.

She said that Shilton told her he was trying to raise $1,200 to buy an artificial limb and that he needed $90 more.

Shilton said in court he left his artificial limb at a Hagersville laundry and had been using the same sales talk for years.

NON-COM FLEES

BERLIN (Reuters) — A Polish non-commissioned officer in civilian clothes fled across the East-West Berlin border Friday night while East German police waved pistols and shouted at him to come back. West Berlin police reported. The Pole was handed over by the United States military authorities.

Evidence Shows Bottle Money Split Six Ways

WHITBY, (CP) — Evidence of money received from the disposal of empty beer bottles being split six ways among members of the police force was heard Friday during a hearing held by three-man Pickering township police commission.

The commission, headed by Judge F. J. Maslin, is investigating the disposition of beer and liquor seized by police. It was adjourned late Friday.

Doug Wilson, former member of the township force and now a constable with the Scarborough department, said he received $36 for empty beer bottles and the money was shared among members of the force, including Chief Lockart Trim.

Sgt. Fred White, a member of the force since 1946, said he refused to accept any of the money and after it was left on his desk he put it in a sealed envelope and gave it to his solicitor.

Constable Gordon Channing, formerly at Pickering and now with the force at Ajax, said 13 cases of beer had been seized in the Ajax Legion Hall in 1950.

Chief Trinnell said there is no complete record of seizures.

Joseph Bartelt, Ontario provincial police inspector, said there had been no returns made to the liquor control board since May, 1950. He added that he could find only 32 of the 296 bottles of beer confiscated following a golf club raid.

Breaks Record

PARIS (AP)—An American-built four-engine transport airliner broke the commercial non-stop distance record Friday in the first flight by such an aircraft from Los Angeles to Paris. It completed the record 5,700 miles in 20 hours and 28 minutes, averaging 278 miles an hour.

The flight over the great circle route was made by a $1,000,000 Douglas DC-6B, which was being delivered to its French purchasers, Compagnie Aerienne Transatlantaux. The previous distance record for commercial planes was 3,300 miles, flown by a Pan American airliner from Tokyo to Honolulu.

OF THE FERGUSON SIDE-DELIVERY RAKE
Ferguson Side-Delivery Rake will catch your eye at the Fair. For the Ferguson Rake is actually tractor-mounted, power-driven. It raises and lowers with Finger Tip Control.
Watch the "pick-up" action of the 6-bar, offset reel. It lifts hay gently, easily . . . moves it cleanly sideways to the windrow.
Stop at the Ferguson Exhibit. Learn to make better hay with the Ferguson Side-Delivery Rake.
